Diplomatic envoys of various countries in our country who participated in the ceremony for the completion of the Nampo barrage were invited to the banquet.

Comrade O Kuk-yol spoke at the banquet. The speech by Comrade O Kuk-yol, member of the WPK Central Committee Political Bureau and KPA chief of staff, is as follows:

[Announcer reads] Comrade heroic constructors of the Nampo barrage and supporters in its construction, respected diplomatic envoys of various countries, comrades and friends: Today, we are very pleased to have here the heroic constructors of the Nampo barrage, supporters in its construction, and various foreign guests in connection with the completion of the Nampo barrage, a grand monumental creation of the Worker's Party age.

First of all, under the authorization of the WPK Central Committee Political Bureau, in the name of the WPK Central Committee and the government of the republic, I extend my warm gratitude and congratulations to KPA soldiers, constructors, and supporters who accomplished heroic feats in the construction of the Nampo barrage. I also express my gratitude for the participation in our ceremony for the completion of the Nampo barrage of diplomatic envoys various countries in our country. Various foreign comrades and friends have joined us and congratulated the completion of the Nampo barrage. This is a great encouragement to our people and soldiers.

With deep emotion and pleasure, we recollect the spirit of incomparable boldness and indomitable struggle shown by the our soldiers and constructors in the construction of the barrage as well as the heroic feats that they have accomplished.

The great leader Comrade Kim II-song, who laid out a grand blueprint for the construction of a large-scale barrage amid gunfire during the past fatherland liberation war, helped erect a grand-scale barrage that one can boast of the world, by wisely leading the construction of the barrage for 5 years since he personally decided on the site of the barrage after appearing at the coast of the rough West Sea.

The dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il, who is brilliantly carrying out the grand nature-remaking plan of the respected and beloved leader, from the first day of the construction of the barrage, has helped attain a great victory in the construction of the barrage by engaging in bold and large-scale operations with tested leadership, thus overcoming many difficulties, and made the constructors of the barrage heroes of the times and creators of great feats.

The Nampo barrage is a brilliant fruition of the outstanding and tested leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim II-song and the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il, and another great victory won by our party in the struggle to realize the age-old desire of the popular masses to free themselves for good from the fetters of nature.

Only 5 years ago, the site of the Nampo barrage was a 20-ri-long section of rough sea where only reeds abundantly grew and where only the sound of waves was heard. However, our KPA fighters, who have the firm faith that they must unconditionally carry out the orders of the leader and the tasks given by the party under all circumstances, and that there is nothing that they cannot do on the road of following the leadership of the leader and the party, have boldly overcome difficulties facing them. Displaying the revolutionary spirit of self-reliance and arduous struggle, they have vigorously carried out the worthwhile combat in order to conquer grand, furious nature with firm confidence.

Our KPA soldiers have completed the difficult and large-scale project involving the construction of a large-scale barrage that has 3 locks and 36 floodgates across the 20-ri-long section of rough sea in a matter of 5 years by removing some 15 million square meters of earth, casting some 2 million cubic meters of concrete, and excavating and transporting some 16 million cubic meters of rock and aggregate.

The Nampo barrage is the largest of its kind in human history, built on our own design and with our own techniques material, and manpower at the huge cost of $4 billion. It is a gigantic, heroic, epochal creation displaying the great might of our country's independent national economy and chuche-oriented science and technology.

Through the construction of the Nampo barrage, the KPA has shown that it is a true people's army, defender and a builder of the country, that not only guards the defense line of the country like an iron wall by undergoing effective political and military training, but also works world-startling miracles by actively participating in socialist construction.

The Nampo barrage is a grand foundation for improving our people's lives and a valuable creation that guarantees the prosperity and development of the fatherland and its brilliant future. The construction of the Nampo barrage has linked industrial and agricultural zones in the basins of the Taedong and Chaeryong rivers with a grand canal, and will supply sufficient life-giving water to vast arable land on the west coast, and several hundred thousand chongbo of tideland-turned-paddies to be reclaimed in the future. It has also completely resolved the problem of industrial water and potable water in the Taedong river basin and will prevent damage from drought or flood in this basin.

Moreover, because the waters of the Taedong and Chaeryong rivers have been deepened, the Mirim, Tonga, Hadan, and Toam locks and many other locks will be built so that large and small ships will be able to sail deep into inland areas; hydraulic power stations will be built along with the locks; Nampo and the South Hwanghae province will be linked by a grand ring-shaped railway line; and a railway line and road for vehicles will be laid on the dam of the barrage, thus establishing new prospects for further developing foreign trade, maritime transportation, railway and automobile transportation, the electrical power industry, and also adding beauty to the scenery of the river basin.

Comrades and friends, now, all people and KPA soldiers are filled with the great national pride and honor of displaying the grand appearance of chuche Korea to the world by excellently building the brand new Nampo barrage, a feat unprecedented in the history of construction in our country. The creative labor and heroic feats of the heroic constructors of the Nampo barrage and the supporters in its construction will be brilliantly and eternally inherited by all posterity along with the Nampo barrage.

On this meaningful occasion, filled with deep emotion and pleasure for the completion of the Nampo barrage, I propose a toast to the long life and good health of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song; tc the long life and good health of the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il; to the good health of diplomatic envoys of various countries in our country and their wives; to the good health of the heroic constructors, supporters, and many other comrades present here; and to independence, friendship, and peace.

TEXT OF KIM IL-SONG GREETINGS TO HU YAOBANG

SK010940 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 1200 GMT 30 Jun 86

[Text] The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song sent a congratulatory message to Comrade Hu Yaobang, general secretary of the CPC Central Committee, on the occasion of the 65th anniversary of the founding of the CPC.

The message is as follows:

Beijing

Comrade Hu Yaobang,

General Secretary of the CPC Central Committee

I, in the name of the WPK Central Committee, all party members, and in my own name, extend warmest [kajang yolyohan] congratulations and comradely greetings to you, to your party Central Committee, and to all members of your party on the 65th anniversary of the founding of the CPC.

The founding of the CPC was a historic event of weighty importance in the development of the Chinese people's revolutionary struggle for freedom, liberation and socialism. With the founding of the CPC, the Chinese working class and people had a glorious vanguard, a genuine protector of their class and national interests.

The 65 years which the CPC traversed in the past is a course full of arduous trials, heroic events, and embroidered with victory and glory. For a long time after its founding the CPC has waged a strenuous struggle against imperialism, fuedalism, and bureaucratic capitalism under the uplifted banner of Marxism-Leninism, thereby winning victory in the new democratic revolution and building a new socialist China on the vast territory of China, where age-old backwardness and poverty had prevailed. The victory of the Chinese revolution brought a radical change to the social position of its people and turned the balance of forces decisively in favor of the side of revolution in the international arena.

The fraternal Chinese people, under the correct leadership of the CPC, have made great progress in their efforts to realize the four modernizations and build socialism with Chinese characteristics since the third plenary meeting of the 11th Central Committee of the party, giving full scope to the revolutionary spirit of self-reliance and hard struggle and adhering to the four basic principles.

The changes in the PRC constitute a major contribution to the world revolutionary people's common cause of sovereignty, independence and socialism. Our party and our people sincerely rejoice over all the achievements of the CPC and the fraternal Chinese people in their revolutionary struggle and construction work and warmly hail them.

It is our party's consistent and invariable policy to steadily consolidate and develop the traditional Korea-China friendship and treasure it. We will as always exert every effort to consolidate and develop through generatonse the indestructible fraternal friendship and unity between the parties, governments, and peoples of our two countries.

Our party and people sincerely wish the CPC and the fraternal Chinese people, faithful to the decisions of the party's national conference, greater success in their struggle to build a modernized socialist country, have Taiwan returned to the fatherland, and reunify the whole of China.

Kim Il-song

SOUTH'S ANTICOMMUNIST 'RACKETS' ASSAILED

[Commentary by station commentator Kim Kyong-pok: "They Should Not Run Amok Indiscreetly"]

[Text] The South Korean puppets held a government-patronized event of a so-called meeting in Seoul on 28 June, using a government-patronized organizational called the Central Council of the Movement of People Deprived Their Homes in the North for Protecting the Country, and had this organization blow for trumpet of anticommunism. This is a frantic racket of those who have lost their reason from deranged anticommunism, and is open provocation to us.

In the 25 June-27 July anti-U.S. joint struggle month, the entire Korean people and the world's peace-loving people are raising their vigorous voices on eliminating the danger of the recurrence of war on the Korean peninsula and promoting the peaceful reunification of the country. Moreover, we have recently made a new important initiatve for holding talks between military persons in authority to open a new phase for peace and peaceful reunifications, and made a peace proposal for establishing a nuclear-free, peace zone on the Korean peninsula.

However, how are the puppets responding to this? They are frenziedly engaging in preparations for a war of northward invasion under the signboardof sure victory and security. Raving about intensifying anticommunist education, they are forcing college students to make a pilgrimage march to the so-called battle sites along the Military Demarcation Line and to military strategic points. They are even holding government-patronized events trumpeting anticommunism.

There cannot be a more vicious challenge than this to the aspirations for national unity and peaceful reunification. The puppets' rash act reveals once again to the entire world the fact that they do not desire peace and peaceful reunification but are pursuing only confrontation and war.

The Chon Tu-hwan ring are anticommunist fanatics far surpassing their predecessors. As soon as he took power, the puppet traitor raved that one should not even imagine peaceful reunification, and since then he has been running amok, instructing the DJP to make long-range plans for reunifying the country by destroying communism, frequently conducting war exercises with the signboard of destroying communism, and instructing his lackeys to prepare to redivide the nationalized industries in the North.

Some time ago they ran amok indiscreetly when they held a so-called athletic meeting with a ghost organization of so-called teams of players representing the five provinces of the North participating in it and inspiring anticommunist confrontation. They held the government-patronized event under the signboard of destroying communism as part of the ongoing anticommunist spasm. This is a revelation of the anticommunist consciousness which has infected them to the bones.

Therefore, who would believe the anticommunist fanatics when they rave about dialogue and peaceful reunification? Through their indiscreet rash act, the Chon Tu-hwan ring clearly revealed more thoroughly that their publicity about dialogue and peaceful reunification is thorough falsity and deceit, and that they are the enemy of reunification and peace.

The puppets' oppose-communism and destroy-communism rackets are a reflection of their sense of crisis as well. The Chon Tu-hwan ring, undergoing an ever-deepening crisis in its rule in the face of the strong anti-U.S. and antidictorship advance of the South Korean students and people, is attempting to divert the attention of the people, demanding independence and democracy by barking more loudly about anticommunism and destroying communism, thereby attempting to remove their consciousnes of resistance.

However, the puppets are calculating foolishly. Historically those who have raved about winning over communism and destroying communism have brought themselves to ruin. How dare those who are in crisis in the face of the resistance of the South Korean people and the rejection of the world's people, and who are gasping under the heavy burden of foreign debt far exceeding $50 billion do anything against someone? This is a foolish rash act comparable to a day-old puppy not fearing a tiger.

The puppets should take a look at themselves before playing the presumptuous trumpet. Anticommunism is antireunification, antipeace, and antination. The puppets are using spiritless anticommunism -- which the puppets have been using as a remedy for every ill in justifying their nation-selling treacherous acts -- as a means to stay in power, but this is no longer workable.

Although the puppets try hard to babble about nonsense, in gathering crowds it will only arouse the scorn of the people. The puppets should squarely see the trend of the times and reality and should not run amok indiscreetly.

DJP CONCENTRATING ON U.S.-STYLE INDIRECT ELECTION

[Text] The ruling Democratic Justice Party will choose either the presidential system based on indirect election of the president or the parliamentary cabinet system as the form of government for its draft amendment to the Constitution, a leading party member indicated yesterday.

Rep. Yi Chi-ho, assistant chairman of the party's Special Constitutional Committee, said, "Our study of power structure is concentrated on the U.S.-style presidential government and the British-style parliamentary cabinet system.:

"We excluded other forms of government such as their combination, from the subjects of our study," he told reporters.

He was briefing them on the panel's full session in which the results of the studies of its three subcommittees were discussed.

But, party sources observed that the DJP will eventually seek a compromise between the system of its choice and the opposition camp's presidential government system involving direct election of the president.

Yi said that the committee members have concluded that "genuine democratic development would be impossible under the direct presidential election system."

Party secretary-general Rep. Chong Sun-tok also said Tuesday that the DJP's draft will not adopt a system which is based on direct presidential vote.

Yi stressed, in particular, that the party would work out devices to invigorate political parties and the parliament in its draft, irrespective of the type of government.

The basic frame of the party's draft will be confirmed by the end of this month on the basis of public hearings to be held from Saturday and the results of the study by the government's "Constitution research committee."

The draft will be made public around Aug. 15, after it is confirmed by various party organs and is approved by President Chon Tu-hwan, who is also president of the party, Yi said.

Besides the form of government, the DJP panel's work will be also focused on the extension of the people's basic rights; guarantee of self-rule of th judiciary; feedom of speech, publication, assembly and association; the three labor rights and personal liberty, he said.

Meanwhile, the party finalized the schedule for its public hearings, to be held in 10 major cities.

Party leaders, including chairman No Tae-u, will attend the events, in groups, a party spokesman said.

The schedule is: Taejon, Saturday; Chunchon, Monday; Kwangaju, Tuesday; Pusan, Thursday; Taegu on Muly 11; Cheju on July 12; Chongju on July 14; Inchon on July 15; Masan on July 16 and Chonju on July 18.

NKDP SEEKS SINGLE AMENDMENT DRAFT FROM OPPOSITION

[Text] The major opposition New Korea Democratic Party is seeking to prepare a single draft for constitutional amendment by opposition forces. The minor opposition Korea National Party, however, shows a negative response.

NDP floor leader Kim Tong-yong told the press yesterday that he has conveyed his party's idea for a unified revision bill to his KNP counterpart, Kim Yong-chae.

He said, "The drafts of our party and the KNP are the same in essence, although there are some differences in minor areas. So, I suggested to KNP whip Kim that we produce a single revision bill for a united struggle for amendment."

The two opposition parties maintain that direct election of the president should be reintroduced in a new basic law.

KNP president Yi Man-sop said that his party received no such proposal officially, though he understands that NDP floor leader Kim "sounded out our party's position through whip Kim Yong-chae."

Yi said clearly, "We believe that political parties should submit their own drafts to the Special Committee for Constitutional Amendment in the National Assembly and hammer out a single draft through partisan compromise."

NDP advisor Kim Yong-sam also made it clear that the main opposition party will seek a single revision bill of the "Democratic camp," including dissident forces.

At a news conference with the members of the seoul Foreign Correspondents Club Tuesday, Kim revealed that the NDP will hold public hearings and consultations with dissidents to make a single draft.

The special House committee has not started operation yet, as parties have yet to produce their lists of delegates to the panel.

Floor leaders of the rival parties will meet today to narrow their differences in distributing the seats of the special committee.

The ruling party asserted that lawmakers of the 12-member New Conservative Club, which supports the parliamentary cabinet system, should be included in the opposition line-up, while the NDP argued that they should be excluded.

KIM YONG-SAM CALLS FOR 4 YEAR LIMIT TO PRESIDENCY

[Text] Opposition leader Kim Yong-sam said yesterday that to achieve a democracy, it is desirable that the first president elected on a new Constitution steps down after a four-year single term.

It was the first time that he remarked clearly with regard to the tenure of the presidency.

Meeting reporters at his private office, the National Affairs Research Institute, in Mugyo-dong, Kim noted, "If the president steps down after he restores stability of the nation during his four-year term of office, it will be very significant in having democracy firmly rooted."

However, he stressed it was his private opinion and has nothing to do with the draft for constitutional revision of the main opposition New Korea Democratic Party.

According to the NDP's draft, the term of office of the president shall be four years, and the president can be reelected just once.

Kim, who is an advisor to the NDP, said, "Our people have seen that the prolongation of the presidential tenure only brought about dictatorship. So, if the next president promises to leave the office after only a four-year single term, the people will feel at ease."

He added that the by-laws of the new Constitution can stipulate the restriction.

PROFESSORS PROTEST AGAINST RESEARCH FUND DENIALS

[Text] Professors of Seoul National University's College of Humanities yesterday lodged a protest with university president Pak Pong-sik over the school's decision to exclude 17 professors from the list of academic research fund recipients.

The 17 are among the 48 SNU professors who signed a statement on touchy political and campus issues in April.

The professors insisted in the note of protest that choosing the recipients on a nonacademic basis is a grave threat to the dignity of a university and to the freedom of academic activities.

SCHOOL AUTHORITIES, PARENTS PROTEST SEARCHES

[Text] The Seoul metropolitan police searched 230 high schools and some middle schools in the capital city early yesterday morning in a blitz hunt for "subversive" material or letters sent by collegian activists, but found "nothing."

School authorities and parents of the students lodged protests against the police action, accusing the Seoul police of hampering the educational atmosphere by searching schools without prior notice. It was the first search of middle and high schools since the founding of the Republic.

Some teachers blamed the police for their search of middle schools without sure evidence that there were anti-government leaflets or letters which university students had reportedly sent to indocrinate the pupils.

The police combed the playgrounds, gardens and walls but did not enter into classrooms. They also frisked youths around middle and high schools who seemed to be collegians, for its subversive publications or printed material.

A senior police officer explaind that the sudden search was made on the basis of information that university student activities might distribute the leaflets and letters around the schools on a massive scale.

Sorabol High School, where a bundle of anti-government leaflets was found late last month, was searched for about an hour, from 6 a.m., by two detectives.

They asked a school guard to accompany them during their search of the playground, gardens and toilet.

About an hour later, 10 or more policemen searched the bags of youths, believed to be collegians, passing by the school.

The Seoul police however, did not notify the middle and high school authorities of their search in advance of the controversial acts, only calling for cooperation of school guards on the scene. They were learned to have not obtained search warrants.

FOREIGN MINISTER ON 10 DAY ASIAN TOUR

SK180330 Seoul YONHAP in Engish 0133 GMT 18 Jun 86

[Text] Dhaka, June 17 (YONHAP) -- The foreign minister of Bangladesh, Humayun Rashid Chowdhury, said Tuesday that his country recently decided to establish a residential embassy in Seoul.

Chowdhury revealed his government's plan in a meeting with South Korean Foreign Minister Yi Won-kyong, who is visiting here on the second leg of his 10-day southwest Asian tour.

Although Dhaka and Seoul established diplomtic relations in 1973, Bangladesh's ambassador to Japan has served concurrently as Dhaka's representative to South Korea.

Signs Investment Agreement

SK180352 Seoul YONHAP in English 0303 GMT 18 Jun 86

[Text] Dhaka, June 17 (YONHAP) -- South Korea and Bangladesh Wednesday signed an agreement for the mutual protection of investments.

Korean Foreign Miniser Yi Won-kyong and Sultan Mahmud, Bangladesh's minister of Industries, signed the agreement. Yi is in this Bangladesh capital city on the second leg of his four-nation tour of southwest Asia.

Under the accord, Korea and Bangladesh will treat citizens of each other's nation with the most favored status in the field of investments. It also calls for the free remittance of earnings generated from investments. The agreement will go into effect 30 days after the two countries complete ratification procedures.

Sri Lanka Vows Olympics Support

[Text] COLOMBO (YONHAP) -- Sri Lankan President Junius Richard Jayewardene on Friday promised to render as much assistance as possible to Korea to assure the successful staging of this year's Asian Games and the 1988 Olympics.

He was meeting with visiting Korean Minister of Foreign Affairs Yi Won-kyong, who arrived here Thursday for a three-day visit.

Minister Yi is currently on a four-nation tour of Southwest Asia, which has already taken him to Pakistan and Bangladesh. He will leave for the Maldives Saturday.

Earlier in the day, Yi held a meeting with his Sri Lankan counterpart, Abdul Carder Shahul Hameed, and discussed ways of expanding trade and economic cooperation between the two countries.

Yi expressed interest in expanding the participation of Korean businesses in economic development projects of Sri Lanka.

Hameed told Yi that he will give favorable considerations to such wishes from Seoul.

Yi also explained to Hameed the development of situations on the Korean peninsula and asked him to continue to support Seoul's position in international forums, including Third World nonaligned conferences.

Hameed said his government will continue to support Seoul's efforts to realize national unification through peaceful means.

He also briefed Yi on racial disputes and other domestic developments.

IRANIAN TRADE DELEGATION CONDUCTS TALKS

[Text] Seoul, June 30 (YONHAP) -- For the first time since the 1979 Islamic revolution, Iran last week sent a high-powered trade delegation to South Korea for talks on the expansion of bilateral trade and economic cooperation.

The Korean trade and industry ministry said Monday that the 16 Iranian delegates, led by Deputy Commerce Minister Majtaba Khosrow-Taj, held two rounds of talks with their Korean counterparts. Khosrow-Taj is the highest-ranking Iranian Government official to visit Korea since the revolution, according to ministry officials.

The ministry said that the Iranian delegates expressed interest in boosting imports of industrial products from Korea and exports of agricultural products, as well as crude oil, to Korea. The Korean side said it hopes that Korea will expand the exportation of industrial products and industrial facilities to Iran and that Korea will participate in Iran's economic development projects, according to the ministry. During their stay in Korea, the Iranian delegates, who represent state-run purchase and sales institutions, toured Korea's leading heavy industrial firms and the Olympic stadium. The delegation left here on Monday.

MPRP GREETS KPRP ON OCCASION OF ANNIVERSARY

[Text] Ulaanbaatar, 27 Jun (MONTSAME) -- The MPRP Central Committee today sent a congratulatory telegram to the KPRP Central Committee on the occasion of the 35th anniversary of the formation of the Kampuchean People's Revolutionary Party. It says:

The creation of the KPRP in June, 1951 was an important event in the history of the revolutionary struggle of the Cambodian people for national independence and social progess of the country. The Cambodian people, under the leadership of the KPRP fighting vanguard, has achieved great success in the cause of strengthening people's power in the country and in restoring the economic and cultural life. The KPRP is now confidently leading its country on the path of peace and social progress. The People's Republic of Kampuchea, with Vietnam and Laos, is making an important contribution to turn Southeast Asia into a zone of peace, stability, and cooperation.

The MPRP Central Committee wishes the KPRP Central Committee and all the Cambodian people great success in the cause of achieving the program tasks in building the basis of a socialist society in its country and in the defense of freedom and independence of the motherland.

The telegram notes: The MRP Central Committee expresses confidence that the fraternal ties between the MPRP and the KPRP, and between the MPR and the PRK, which are based on the principles of Marxism-Leninism and proletarian internationalism, will continue to develop and strengthen in the interest of our peoples, and in the cause of social progress in Asia and throughout the whole world.

U.S. STAND AT GENEVA TALKS 'UNCONSTRUCTIVE'

[Text] Ulaanbaatar, Jun (MONTSAME) -- A MONTSAME commentator writes: At the fifth round of the Soviet-American talks on nuclear and space arms in Geneva no positive results have been achieved due to the irresponsible policies of the United States. Moreover, Max Kampelman, the head of the American delegation at the Geneva talks, made a clumsy statement to the press in which he attempted to shift the blame for the stagnation in the Soviet-American talks to the Soviet Union.

Meanwhile, as is well-known, during the entire course of the round there were no changes in the position of the American delegation which would have contributed to the achievement of a mutually acceptable agreement on the questions of averting the arms race in space and stopping it on earth. The United States continued to torpedo and openly emasculate the essence and goals of the numerous constructive peace-loving Soviet initiatives and proposals, which correspond with the vital interests not only of the peoples of both countries but of the people of the whole world it continued to hold on to its previous unconstructive positions, avoiding an honest study of the suggestions from the Soviet side. The reason for this is hidden in the openly militaristic and extremely dangerous policies of official Washington, which are attempting to undermine the case of the 1972 SALT II Treaty. The Mongolian public resolutely condemns the unseemly and unconstructive position of the American delegation at the Soviet-American talks on nuclear and space arms and calls on the U.S. administration to listen to the voices of reason, good will, and peace which come from the Soviet Union.

KANG TOAP PADEVOAT CITED ON KPRP ANNIVERSARY

BK010753 Phnom Penh SPK in English 0532 GMT 1 Jul 86

[Text] [Quotation marks as received] Phnom Penh SPK June 30 -- Kampuchean papers in the past few days ran front-page editorials articles and illustrated reports, marking the 35th anniversary of the People's Revolutionary Party of Kampuchea (June 28).

The army paper "KANG TOAP PADEVOAT" recalled: "Being originated from the Indochinese Communist Party with the late President Ho Chi Minh as the founder, the People's Revolutionary Party of Kampuchea, the Communist Party of Vietnam and the Lao People's Revolutionary Party united altogether in the hard struggle against the French colonialists, the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys for national independence, peace, freedom and happiness of the three peoples.

"Since its coming into being the KPRP with entire Kampuchean people and army closely uniting around it and with the wholehearted assistance of the Communist Party of Vietnam and the Lao People's Revolutionary Party and other fraternal parties the world over has become the organizer of all victories for the Kampuchean revolution bringing about great changes to the country, especially in the past seven years since the overthrow of the genocidal Pol Pot regime."

The paper concluded by expressing a firm conviction that under the KPRP's clearsighted leadership and with the assistance from fraternal parties, especially the Communist Party of Vietnam, the Kampuchean revolution will certainly gain the final victory ensuring independence, freedom, peace and prosperity for the Kampuchean nation.

The paper PHNOM PENH wrotes "The historic victories in ousting the French colonialists and the U.S. imperialists has clearly proved correct the leadership of the People's Revolutionary Party of Kampuchea. The victory on January 7, 1979 in toppling the Pol Pot regime was won under the KPRP's banner with the entire Kampuchean people's unity and the timely and effective assistance of the party, government and people of Vietnam and Vietnamese army volunteers who have sacrificed their flesh and blood for the cause of the Kampuchean revolution and people. "All the achievements in the past seven years have testified to the fact that despite all the difficulties the Kampuchean revolution led by the KPRP will gradually advance toward socialism the only path chosen by the Kampuchean people.

Welcoming the KPRP's 35th anniversary, all party members, cadres, army security forces and people of Kampuchea pledge to do their utmost to fulfil the tasks set by the party," the paper concluded".

GREETINGS FROM CPV ON KPRP ANNIVERSARY

BK290750 Phnom Penh SPK in English 0539 GMT 29 Jun 86

[Text] Phnom Penh SPK June 28 -- The Central Committee of the People's Revolutionary Party of Kampuchea received a message of greetings from the Central Committee of the Communist Party of Vietnam on the former's 35th founding anniversary.

The message, dated June 26, says:

"Over the past 35 years, promoting the nation tradition of undaunted and indomitable struggle and the glorious revolutionary cause of the Indochinese Communist Party founded by President Ho Chi Minh, the P.R.P.K. has successfully led the Kampuchean people through a long struggle full of difficulties and hardships to win victories over the colonialist and imperialist aggressors and overthrow the genocidal Pol Pot regime, henchmen of the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists. These victories have ushered in a new era of independence and freedom for Kampuchea which is embarking on a period of transition to socialism".

It continues: "Over the past seven years since the historic victory on January 7, 1979, the Kampuchean people, under the P.R.P.K. correct leadership, have recorded inspiring achievements in national construction and defense.

"With the foreign policy of peace, independence, friendship and cooperation the Kampuchean revolution has won more and more sympathy and support from revolutionary and progressive forces over the world. The international prestige and position of the People's Republic of Kampuchea are raising.

"Those glorious achievements and especially the 1984-85 dry-season victories have continually enhanced the position and strength of the Kampuchean revolution and constituted a great contribution to the common struggle for peace and stability in Southeast Asia as well as for peace, national independence, democracy and socialism and world over.

"The special relationship between Vietnam and Kampuchea and among Vietnam, Kampuchea and Laos is a decisive factor guaranteeing all victories of the revolution in each country as well as of the common cause of the three countries on the Indochinese peninsula".

"Loyal to President Ho Chi Minh's testament, the party and people of Vietnam pledge to do their utmost to fulfill their internationalist duty toward the fraternal Kampuchean people's revolution", the message concludes.

Also on this occasion, Chan Ven, president of the Kampuchea-Vietnam Friendship Association, has received greetings from his Vietnamese counterpart, Phan Truong Tue.

USSR'S SOKOLOV GREETS BOU THANG ON ARMY DAY

BK020356 Phnom Penh Domestic Service in Cambodian 1200 GMT 1 Jul 86

[Text] On the occasion of the 35th anniversary of the KPRAF's Traditional Day and Army-People Solidarity Day, Comrade Sokolov, USSR minister of Defense, has sent a greetings message to Comrade Bou Thang, member of the KPRP Central Committee Political Bureau, vice chairman of the Council of Ministers, and minister of National Defense of the PRK. The message noted:

Esteemed comrade:

On behalf of the USSR Armed Forces and in my own name, we sincerely extend best wishes to you and the Cambodian Armed Forces on the occasion of the 35th founding anniversary of the People's Revolutionary Army.

We are convinced that the friendly relations and all-round cooperation between our two armed forces will further strengthen and develop for the cause of our two peoples of the Soviet Union and Cambodia, and for firm peace and socialism.

May you enjoy good health, happiness, and new victories in defending your country's sovereignty and independence against [words indistinct] reactionaries.

HENG SAMRIN MEETS SRV WAR VETERANS DELEGATION

BK251242 Phnom Penh SPK in English 1101 GMT 25 Jun 86

[Text] Phnom Penh SPK June 25 -- Heng Samrin, General secretary of the People's Revolutionary Party of Kampuchea (P.R.P.K.) and president of the State Council, received in Phnom Penh a delegation of the Vietnamese war veterans on the occasion of the 35th tradition day of the People's Revolutioinary Armed Forces of Kampuchea and the Army-People Solidarity Day.

The delegation was led by Nguyen Thanh Son, former vice minister of finance. Present on that occasion was Chan Phin, member of the P.R.P.K. Central Committee. Heng Samrin said that the presence here of the delegation had encouraged the Army and people of Kampuchea [GND] demonstrated the indomitable militant solidarity among the three Indochinese countries.

The president recalled the fine tradition of Kampuchea's Issarak Army who, in close cooperation with the armies of Vietnam and Laos, had won successive victories over the enemies and completely liberated the country, he added that within a short period of eight years since liberation in 1979, the Kampuchean people and army, under the clearshighted leadership of the P.R.P.K. and with the effective and timely assistance from the party, the government and the heroic army of Vietnam and the assistance from Laos, the Soviet Union and other socialist countries, have gained all-round successes in national construction and defence especially in building the Kampuchean Army.

For his party, Nguyen Thanh Son highly acclaimed the Kampuchean people's successes and expressed sincere thanks for the hospitality accorded to him and his party.

The delegation left Phnom Penh for home on Monday. It was seen off at Pochentong Airport by Meas Kroch, deputy defence minister, and other Kampuchean officers.

During its stay in Kampuchea from June 18-23, the delegation had attended a meeting in honour of the 35th tradition day of P.R.A.F.K. and and visited the Army museum, the Army cultural school, the Cuiu Long orphanage and the former royal palace in Phnom Penh and The Angkor Wat temple in Siem Reap Province.

VODK COMMEMORATES CGDK FOUNDING ANNIVERSARY

[Text] The 4th founding anniversary of our CGDK falls on 22 June 1986. Since its founding 4 years ago, that is on 22 June 1982, our tripartite CGDK factions led by Samdech Norodom Sihanouk, president of Democratic Kampuchea; Prime Minister Son Sann; and Khieu Samphan, vice president of Democratic Kampuchea in charge of foreign affairs, have jointly launched vigorous and effective activities against the Vietnamese aggressors. They have fought the Vietnamese aggressors on the battlefield and launched vigorous and effective activities in the international arena, at the United Nations and other international forums, to expose the Hanoi authorities' aggressive and expansionist policy. Our CGDK has won greater symmpathy and support from the world.

Through their joint activities, our tripartite CGDK factions have come to understand each other better and become more acquainted and united in their views. The fact that our tripartite CGDK factions jointly put forth an 8-point peace proposal on 17 March 1986 clearly shows that our CGDK factions have become more unanimous on major issues, particularly the problems relating to the survival and future of our Cambodian nation. Thanks to this unity, our friends near and far throughout the world have become more confident in the CGDK and have given it more active support. At the same time, the world people clearly recognize the CGDK as the sole legitimate government of the Cambodian people. This is the outcome of the unity and unanimity within the CGDK and the unreserved effects of the tripartite CGDK, the Cambodian people, and the armed forces of the three CGDK factions.

Based on the splendid results of our efforts during the past 4 years, the tripartite CGDK will further unite and cooperate more closely and carry on our all-round struggle, militarily, politically and diplomatically, against the Vietnamese aggressors until we realize the goals mentioned in the declaration on the formation of the CGDK made in Kuala Lumpur on 22 June 1982, that is, until we drive all Vietnamese aggressors out of our Cambodian territory.

SON SANN REPORTEDLY THREATENS TO RESIGN

BK281015 Bangkok BANGKOK WORLD in English 28 Jun 86 PP 1, 32

[Text] Kampuchean non-communist leader Son Sann has threatened to resign as Prime Minister of the Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea, nationalist sources told the WORLD yesterday.

Sources said Mr Son Sann despatched a letter from Paris on June 18 to CGDK President Prince Norodom Sihanouk in Pyongyang offering his resignation if the situation in the Khmer resistance did not improve.

No further details of the letter are available and sources said Mr Son Sann, 75, who is also president of the strife-ridden Khmer People's National Liberation Front, did not elaborate on the improvements he was seeking.

KPNLF representatives here did not confirm or deny this latest development, saying only that they had "no indication."

Contacted in Paris, Mr Chhay Hancheng, Mr Son Sann's son-in-law, told the WORLD he was unaware of his father-in-law's gesture.

He said the KPNLF leader was in Rome where he met the Pope yesterday. KPNLF sources said Mr Son Sann was due back in Paris shortly before returning here next month.

Staff members of the Sihanoukist office in Bangkok said the letter from Mr Son Sann did not pass through their office here, and they had no reaction from Prince Sihanouk as yet.

Foreign Ministry officials have so far declined comment on the matter. But some diplomats affirmed that they had heard that Mr Son Sann had communicated his intention to resign to Prince Sihanouk.

The diplomats speculated on this move as a possible attempt by Mr Son Sann to draw the attention of ASEAN states and their dialogue partners to his displeasure about the yet-unresolved troubles in the KPNLF.

ASEAN foreign ministers and counterparts from the United States, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, the European Community and Japan ended their meeting in Manila yesterday.

Mr Son Sann's letter to Prince Sihanouk came after he sent a memorandum to ASEAN governments on May 12 appealing for "renewed and increased assistance" for the Kampuchean resistance movement.

In the memorandum, sent during a visit to Australia, he obliquely referred to his problems in the Front, asking specifically for permission for him to move freely among his supporters scattered in various sites along the Thai-Kampuchean border.

"I would like also to be able to move freely and to visit regularly our civilian population of site 2 and elsewhere as well as to meet with our armed forces," he said.

He stressed the need for "cohesion, unity and discipline within the CGDK an in particular the KPNLF," saying a "stricter discipline" within the KPNLF by reorganization of civilian and military cadres was vital to the attainment of peace and stability in Kampuchea and Southeast Asia.

Rumours of Mr Son Sann's wish to resign have been circulating here for the past few days.

Observers monitoring the Kampuchean situation saw it as a "common ploy" that had been used before by nationalist Kampuchean leaders, notably Prince Sihanouk.

The Prince is due to pay a visit here early in August as part of a tour that will also cover Indonesia and Singapore. He earlier turned down a last-minute invitation by ASEAN foreign ministers to brief them in Manila on the resistance efforts.

Some observers speculated that Mr Son Sann might have been prompted to despatch the letter to Prince Sihanouk after some disappointment with a senior aid, Gen Thach Reng, whom he appointed to replace dissident chief Gen Sak Sutsakhan as KPNLF armed forces commander-in-chief.

Gen Thach Reng was said to have angered Thai authorities when he arrived in September last year without a visa or prior notification and proceeded to stir up trouble within the KPNLF.

He reportedly circulated unfounded allegations about senior KPNLF dissidents who in December declared the formation of the PCCS -- the provisional central committee for salvation of the KPNLF -- which challenged the leadership of Mr Son Sann.

A few weeks after Mr Son Sann left for Europe, Thai authorities gave Gen Thach Reng 48 hours' notification to leave the country.

The departure of Gen Thach Reng and the absence of Gen Sak, who is in the United States, leave the KPNLF without a military chief.

The Front remains factionalised and Mr Son Sann's memorandum to ASEAN seems to reinforce the view of Western observers that he is still frustrated with split in the KPNLF since the seccessionist move in December last year.

Mr Son Sann reportedly seeks control over political, diplomatic as well as military affairs. Present arrangements, however, only give him control over political and diplomatic affairs, diplomatic sources noted.

VIENTIANE RALLY MARKS KPRP FOUNDING ANNIVERSARY

BK301501 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 1200 GMT 28 Jun 86

[Text] Today, 28 June, marks the 35th anniversary of the KPRP. A grand rally was held at Vientiane theater today at 0900 to celebrate the occasion. More than 1,000 Vientiane residents, cadres, and workers representing compatriots throughout the country attended.

Also present were Comrade Souphanouvong, member of the LPRP Central Committee Political Bureau, president of the LPDR, and chairman of the SPC and the Lao Front for National Construction; Comrade General Khamtai Siphandon, member of the party Central Committee Political Bureau, vice chairman of the Council of Ministers, minister of National Defense, and chairman of the Lao national committee in charge of celebrating the 35th anniversary of the KPRP; Comrade Sisomphon Lovansai, member of the party Central Committee Political Bureau and vice chairman of the SPC; many comrade secretaries and members of the party Central Committee, ministers and deputy ministers, representatives of mass organizations, and members of the national committee in charge of celebrating the 35th anniversary of the KPRP. It was also attended by Comrade Kim Yin, member of the KPRP Central Committee and head of the visiting PRK radio and television delegation, Comrade Nguon Phansiphon, PRK ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary to Laos; and diplomats of fraternal socialist countries in Laos.

President Souphanouvong made a speech at this auspicious ceremony. He said in part: [Begin Souphanouvong recording] In this joyous atmopshere in which the entire party, Army, and people of Laos are competing to carry out the Second 5-year State Plan and scoring achievements to welcome the Fourth LPRP Congress, we have gathered here to organize a ceremony to commemorate the 35th anniversary of the honorable and glorious KPRP. [applause]

On this auspicious occasion, on behalf of the party, state, Army, and people of all Lao nationalities throughout the country, we extend warm fraternal salutations, wholehearted congratulations, and special militant solidarity to the party, state, Army, and fraternal heroic people of Cambodia. [applause]

Comrades and friends, 35 years ago, while the national salvation struggle of the three fraternal Indochinese peoples was continuing fiercely against the French colonialists, inheriting the glorious and honorable cause of the Indochinese Communist Party founded by the great President Ho Chi Minh, the Cambodian communists joined in establishing the Khmer People's Revolutionary Party on 28 June 1951 to lead the cause of national-democratic revolution in Cambodia. [applause]

The Khmer People's Revolutionary Party, which is now the KPRP, was a staunch Marxist-Leninist vanguard of the working class and laboring people. Shortly after its establishment, the party led the Cambodian people in a heroic struggle along with the Lao and Vietnamese peoples. The national salvation struggles waged by the Cambodian, Lao, and Vietnamese peoples, which constituted a hard and protracted people's war, inflicted on the French colonialists repeated defeats and enfeebled them. They were condemned by world opinion and isolated in the international arena. Eventually, the resounding Dien Bien Phu victory and other victories on the Indochinese battle fields forced the French colonialists to withdraw from Indochinia and sign the Geneva accords recognizing the independence, sovereignty, and territorial integrity of each country in Indochina.

Following these victories, the KPRP led the Cambodian people in a continuing struggle to defend the fruits of the revolution. Together with various Cambodian progressive forces, it encouraged the then monarchical system to take the path of peace, independence, and neutrality and to oppose the U.S. imperialist intervention and threats.

In 1970, while the struggles of the Vietnamese and Lao peoples were continuing fiercely and reaching their apex, the U.S. imperialists widened their war of aggression throughout Indochina and encouraged the Lon Nol reactionaries to stage a coup d'etat on 18 June 1970. Taking advantage of this situation, the KPRP mobilized the heroic Cambodian people throughout the country to rise up to counter the brutal U.S. imperialist agression.

The party organized and led the Khmer National United Front to wage a national liberation struggle and united a broad sector of revolutionary and progressive force in Cambodia to carry out a fierce people's war in coordination with the Vietnamese and Lao peoples against the U.S. imperialist aggressors and their lackeys. The victories simulateneously won by the Cambodian, Lao, and Vietnamese peoples affirm the truth of: Unity, unity, great unity; victory, victory, great victory of the three fraternal peoples who shared weal and woe and fought in the same trench against their common enemy -- the imperialist aggressors. This constituted a very important contribution to the common victory of the various nations struggling for peace, national independence, democracy, and socialism, thus moving forward the wheel of history. [applause]

Comrades and friends, after liberating the country from the yoke of occupation of the neocolonialists and their henchmen, instead of having a chance to build a new, prosperous, and civilized life on the land of the famous Angkor and to advance jointly along their chosen path, the Cambodian people were deprived of all their rights and power by the traitorous Pol Pot-Ieng Sary clique, which is a tool of the Chinese expansionists-hegemonists. It is this clique that destroyed the KPRP -- the torch illuminating the path for the Cambodian revolution. It brutually slaughtered the Cambodian cadres and party members who were loyal to Marxism-Leninism in an attempt to serve the Chinese expansionists' scheme of swallowing up Cambodia, Laos, and Vietnam and of extending their influence to the whole of Southeast Asia.

During its inhuman 3-year rule, the genocidal Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan clique of murderers slaughtered more than 3 million Cambodian people, including the elderly, women, children, intellectuals, and innocent Buddhist monks; pushed the Cambodian people face to face with genocide; and led Cambodia down a dark path. Despite the dangerous and complex situation, the KPRP, inheriting the Indochinese Communist Party's tradition of heroic and glorious struggle, regrouped its forces, organized the national united front to save the Cambodian fatherland, and adopted an 11-point political program calling on the Cambodian people throughout the country to rise up to overthrow the genocidal Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan regime. With the assistance and all-round, prompt, and effective cooperation of the Vietnamese Army and people as well as the support of the Lao people and international assistance, the Cambodian revolutionary forces and people resolutely rose up to smash the genocidal regime completely and established the PRK on 7 January 1979 on the land of the famous Angkor. [applause]

This great victory constituted a contribution to restoring the fraternal friendly relations and special militant solidarity among the three fraternal Indochinese countries and produced a new quality for this solidarity. This quality serves as the rule of the survival and development of the revolution in each country. The victory also serves to check the dark schemes of the expansionists-hegemonists colluding with the imperialists and other reactonaries, thus shifting the balance of forces in this region in favor of those of peace and revolution.

Comrades and friends, the KPRP has now organized and led the Cambodian people to restore successfully the economy, culture, and society, placing them on the path of the advance toward socialism lighted by the beacon of the resolutions of the Fourth and Fifth KPRP Congresses. Agricultural and industrial production has vigorously developed and educational and public health networks have been restored and extensively developed, thus daily improving the Cambodian people's material and spiritual life.

Under the correct and clear-sighted leadership of the KPRP, with the militant alliance among Cambodia, Laos, and Vietnam; and with the support and assistance of various fraternal socialist countries and friends, Cambodia has achieved a swift development; the people's living conditions have been continuously improved; and the PRK has become strong and solid, thus becoming worthy of the status as the sole representative of the heroic Cambodian people. [applause]

The various great victories prove that the KPRP is a gallant Marxist-Leninist party capable of surmounting all difficulties. It has maintained and developed its revolutionary tradition, thus deserving the title: Organizer and leader of all victories of the Cambodian revolution. [applause]

The above all-round successes and victories of the Cambodian Army and people have contributed to clearly improving the situation in Cambodia and proved the strength of the PRK, thus daily raising the role and influence of the people's republic in the international arena. [applause] The all-round and great victories are the successes of patriotism linked with socialism. They are the successes of the strength of the Cambodian nation linked with the strength of the solidarity among the three Indochinese nations and with the strength of the three world revolutionary currents and world peace with the Soviet Union being the bulwark. [applause] The Lao working class and people of all nationalities are overwhelmingly happy and wish to express wholehearted acclamation to the fraternal Cambodian working class and people for their great victories and regard them as their own. [applause] [end recording]

Following the conclusion of Comrade President Souphanouvong's speech, Comrade Nguon Phansiphon addressed the rally. He said in part as follows:

Today, I am very happy to have participated in this grand rally organized by the national committee in charge of organizing the celebration of the 35th anniversary of the KPRP amid an atmosphere in which the entire Cambodian party, Army, and people are joyfully and enthusiastically implementing the resolutions of the Fifth KPRP Congress and at a time when the LPRP and the fraternal Lao people of all nationalities are vigorously and enthusiatically competing to score new, greater acheivements to welcome the forthcoming Fourth LPRP Congress. On behalf of the Cambodian party, Government, and people, I would like to hail the presidium of the rally, diplomats, foreign guests, and comrades and friends attending this grand rally.

Cambodia, Laos, and Vietnam are three Indochinese countries. They were once subjected to the French colonialist aggression and were colonized by them at the end of the 19th century. During the period of oppression and persecution and the plundering of their freedoms by the French, the people in each country instantly rose up to counter them. However, they suffered repeated setbacks due to lack of a correct leadership. The great success of the Rusian Great October Revolution gave a definite hope to the oppressed and persecuted nations. During that period Comrade Nguyen Ai Quoc convened a meeting and declared the establishment of the Indochinese Communist Party in 1930. After it was founded and trained by President Ho Chi Minh, it grew and developed and was divided into three Indochinese parties so that they could effectively function for the historic cause of each nation and the proletarians in each country.

The Khmer People's Revolutionary Party was founded on 28 June 1951 and is now called the KPRP. Later, on 22 March 1955 the LPRP was established. These events mark a step of development, which is of great significance to the history of each country's revolution. Such events served to boost the resistance against the French in the three countries.

Remembering the trials in the past 35 years, we can make a profound observation and assessment that the party is always loyal to Marxism-Leninism, to the interests of the country and people, and to the relations and close militant solidarity among Cambodia, Laos, and Vietnam and that it has effectively safeguarded the militant relationship of the three Indochinese countries against their common enemy. Despite difficulties, our three countries' revolutions have attained great and all-round successes in the politicial, military, economic, cultural, social, and diplomatic spheres.

Respected and beloved comrades and friends, after more than 30 years of revolutionary struggle beset with difficulties, hardships, and complex trials, the LPRP has applied Marxism-Leninism with creativity to the true conditions in Laos and has defined a correct and clear-sighted political line suitable to the international situation and true situation in the country, leading the people and the entire army to wage a heroic struggle, causing the correct and just cause of the country and class to gradually advance with firm steps and winning glorious victories. The most outstanding of all was the resounding victory recorded in December 1975 during which the LPRP, bringing into full play the spirit of revolutionary offensive and taking advantage of the ripening situation in the three Indochinese countries. It led the people to rise up and seize the administrative power, liberated the Lao people throughout the country from the yoke of imperialist occupation, completely eliminated the oppressive and persecuting feudalist system which had existed for thousands of years, and established the LPDR. A new era was initiated, an era of independence and freedom, which enabled the Lao people to truly master the fate of the country and themselves. It has carried out social transfomation and built material and technical bases of socialism.

During the past 10 years, under the correct and clear-sighted leadership of the LPRP, the people of all nationalities have striven to bring into full play the spirit of collective mastery, united as one around the party, and recorded great and all-round successes in the cause of defending and building the country. The whole country is enthusiastically and vigorously implementing the resolution of the Third Party Congress and other resolutions of the party Central Committee.

The Cambodian people are convinced that under the correct and clear-sighted leadership of the LPRP headed by Comrade Kaysone Phomvihan, the Lao people will advance to win new, greater victories in the glorious cause of defending and building socialist Laos and that no reactionary forces can check the LPDR's advancement.

Then Comrade Nguon Phansiphon mentioned the activities of the KPRP. Since its founding, the KPRP has held five congresses. The First Congress was held in 1951 when the resistance policy against the French colonialists was adopted. The Second Congress, held in 1960, defined the line for the revolutionary struggle under the new situation. The third one in 1979 adopted the strategy for smashing the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan regime and decided to rebuild the party. With the assistance of the Vietnamese Communist Party and army and of the LPRP and fraternal Lao people, the genocidal regime was overthrown and the country liberated on 7 January 1979. The Fourth Congress in 1981 defined an overall task — a strategy for firmly defending national independence foundations, building the country, passing the new turn, and gradually advancing toward socialism.

At its Fifth Congress in 1985, the party defined the direction for restoring and building its territorial integrity, ensuring a plentiful and happy life for the people, and building socialism on the beautiful land of the Angkor. In this, party building is an important task of decisive significance.

In conclusion, the Cambodian ambassador stressed: Over the past 7 years thanks to the ardent efforts of the entire party and to the fraternal assistance of the Vietnamese, Lao, and Soviet comrades and other fraternal socialist countries the Cambodian revolution has attained repeated successes. Among these was military success scored in the 1984-85 dry season during which the Cambodian people's revolutionary forces, in coordination with Vietnamese volunteer troops, attacked and completely wiped out the enemy's positions along the Cambodian-Thai border, thus inflicting heavy setbacks on the forces of Pol Pot, Son Sann, and Sihanouk and causing fear, panic, and internal friction among the enemy. The Cambodian revolution has attained such victories thanks to the correct and clear line of the party which has upheld a true national patriotic banner and international proletarian solidarity and which has successfully mobilized the entire party, people, and armed forces to actively take part in the task of defending the fruit of the revolution and to concentrate all efforts on restoring and developing the economy and the society with a view to building the country and gradually advancing toward socialism.

The Cambodian people as well as the fraternal Lao and Vietnamese peoples have the objective of peaceful coexistence with the Chinese people. They want to have peaceful border between Cambodia and Thailand and between Laos and Thailand as soon as possible in order to bring peace, stability, friendship, and cooperation to Southeast Asia.

MILITARY RESHUFFLE MAY PRECEDE NEW GOVERNMENT

[Text] The annual military reshuffle list may be pushed through before the new government is installed following the July 27 general elections, according to Deputy Defence Minister Phaniang Kantarat.

Speaking to reporters after yesterday's Cabinet meeting, Air Chief Marshal [ACM] Phaniang said he had no details on any lists of proposed new appointments that the armed forces may have submitted to the ministry.

But he affirmed that it would be up to Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanon, in his capacity as Defense Minister, to make the final decision on the new line-up.

He added that it was possible that these procedures would be completed before July 20.

Although ACM Phaniang did not elaborate, his disclosure firmed up reports from military sources that the new appointments are expected to be announced before this government's term expires and hence the matter is being considered earlier than last year.

The appointments would be effective from October 1, the start of the new fiscal year.

ACM Phaniang noted that the new apppointments would be publicised after they are made official as the air of secrecy that surrounded last year's reshuffle had caused some unease among officers at operational levels.

Moreover, the positions of military personnel must be known to facilitate co-ordination between units, he added.

In a departure from the traditional practice of announcing new appointments over Radio Thailand, the reshuffle last year was individually conveyed to officers involved.

Army Commander-in-Chief Gen Chawalit Yongchaiyut earlier said during inspection trips to units in the Second and Third Army Regions that justice would prevail in this year's reshuffle.

He pointed out that he would not finalise the Army list alone as a committee comprising commanders of various levels had been set up to handle the matter.

SAP SAYS NEXT PRIME MINISTER MUST BE MP

[Text] The Social Action Party (SAP), moving to erase its image as a pro-Prem party, announced yesterday that the next prime minister must be an elected member of the House of Representatives.

The declaration followed widespread speculation that the SAP would support Gen Prem Tinsulanon as the next prime minister after the July 27 general election.

"It is the party's policy to support an elected MP as the next government leader." SAP deputy leader Surat Osathanukhro and acting secretary general Montri Phongphanit said at a press conference.

Gen Prem is not contesting the election, though many politicians have persuaded [as published] him to run.

The Democrat Party had earlier announced that its leader, Phichai Rattakun, should be the next prime minister if the party gained an absolute majority after the election.

Both Pol Capt Surat and Montri also announced yesterday that their leader, ACM Sitthi Sawetsila, should be named head of government if the party won the most seats.

"We will not invite an outsider to become Prime Minister. This is our stand," the two SAP executives said after a meeting of top party members.

Pol Capt Surat who is acting Commerce Minister, claimed that the SAP was gaining popularity in recent weeks.

He attributed this to the Commerce Ministry's success in bringing up the prices of tapioca and rice.

"Prices of the two farm products are rising well and this convinces the people of our efficiency," Pol Capt Surat said.

Montri said a survy indicated that the SAP could win more seats than it had earlier expected.

The SAP had said that it would win about 60 seats in the election, but Montri said yesterday: "We are confident to gaining more than 70 seats."

Asked if the SAP would approach Gen Prem if it was invited to form the next government, Montri said: "We don't know."

"If we win a large number of seats we will push for the appointment of ACM Sitthi as head of government," he stressed.

CHAWALIT ON 'PROVOCATIVE' LAO TROOP BUILDUP

BK020805 Bangkok BANGKOK WORLD in English 2 Jul 86 p 32

[Text] Army Commander-in-Chief Gen Chawalit Yongchaiyut said there had been a provocative troops build-up in Laos along the border under the jurisdication of the Third Army Region.

Gen Chawalit made the remark last night at his Suan Phuttan residence when discssing his recent inspection trip to units under the Second and Third Army Regions.

He said he had instructed the Third Army to be vigilant but patient when provoked.

Although the situation along the Thai-Kampuchean border under the Second Army Region's care was not as tense, military forces there must be strengthened and intelligence work must be more efficient, he said.

On the situation in Phuket, Gen Chawalit said now that the state of emergency had been lifted all parties concerned should get back to their daily routines and local administrative officials and police should continue to maintain peace and order.

The recent riot in Phuket should serve as a lesson for all parties concerned to be more prepared for whatever may happen in the future, he said.

Gen Chawalit is scheduled to make an inspection trip to the Fourth Army Region on July 8.

PHUKET PEACEKEEPING FORCE DISSOLVED 2 JUL

[Text] Phuket -- Fourth Army Region Commander Lt Gen Wanchai Chitchamnong yesterday ordered the dissolution of the peacekeeping command set up in this island province following the tantalum unrest late last month.

The dissolution came one day after Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanon and Interior Minister Sitthi Chirarot issued an order lifting the state of emergency that went into effect on June 23 when angry demonstrators set the multi-million-baht tantalum plant ablaze and attacked a first-class hotel in the island resort.

Lt Gen Wanchai and his entourage, stationed on the island to supervise the situation since the rioting day, flew back to the regional headquarters at Wachirawut military camp in Nakhon Si Thammarat.

Earlier, before leaving the order, the commander held a meeting of senior provincial officials and officially handed over the law enforcement task to the Phuket police force. Lt Gen Wanchai was said to have instructed police investigators to strictly prosecute these found guilty.

So far, 49 suspects including a candidate of the New Force Party have been arrested on charges ranging from arson to instigating violence.

In a related development, Pol Maj Gen Suthep Chanthana, deputy Zone Four Police commissioner, yesterday invited village headmen and village group chiefs in the province to testify on the incident. No arrests, however, have been made.

PRASONG DISCUSSES CURRENT CAMBODIAN SITUATION

[Excerpt] The Soviet Union is stepping up the delivery of weaponry to Vietnamese forces in Kampuchea in a bid to realize the strategy of defeating the Khmer resistance force and sealing the Thai-Kampuchean frontier, according to a top national security official.

National Security Council (NSC) Secretary General Squadron Leader Prasong Sunsiri also told THE NATION that the Vietnamese failed to achieve the objectives set in the code-named K-5 plan of sealing the border and strangling the resistance force to death. The Vietnamese set 1986 as the initial deadline to achieve the target.

The NSC chief said that the objectives envisaged in the K-5 plan is increasingly a too far-fetched goal given the consistent growth in the strength of the resistance guerrillas waging the Vietnamese [as published] under the banner of the Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea (CGDK) headed by President Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

Assessing the resistance strength, Prasong said that the Khmer People's National Liberation Front (KPNLF) of Son Sann has risen in strength to about 12,000 armed men while the Khmer Rouge force and the Army of Nationalist Sihanoukists now total about 51,000 and 8,000 respectively.

The overall resistance strength thus comes to about 70,000 compared to about 140,000 Vietnamese troops, of which only about 100,000 are combatants, Prasong said.

He cited the principle of fighting a guerrilla warfare as saying that to win such a warfare, the ratio of strength between the repressing force and the guerrilla force must fall in the tune of 10:1 or more.

Prasong dismissed announcements by Hanoi that it has been gradually pulling out its troops from Kampuchea. He added that the overall Vietnamese force in the war-ravaged country remained very much the same as when the Vietnamese invaded the country in 1978.

The NSC chief said that despite publicized partial pull-outs, Hanoi quietly sent about 9,500 troops into Kampuuchea in June and 3,500 more in May.

Hanoi, he said, initially planned to transfer the security responsibility to the Heng Samrin force by the end of 1985 but had to postpone it to 1990 because its failure to achieve the K-5 plan targets.

He predicted that after next year, the situation in Kampuchea will change its course with the resistance starting to be on the offensive side in strategic terms.

The anticipated leadership change in Hanoi during the upcoming Sixth Party congress would not affect its policy with regards to Vietnam [as published] but the transition of powers would allow an opportunity for the resistance to score fresh success, he said.

Referring to the U.S. aid worth about US$3.5 million earmarked for the two Khmer non-communist forces, Prasong stood firm that the aid to be channelled through Thailand must be of humanitarian nature, and not support the resistance fighting.

The United States has set many terms on the use of the aid but Thailand has to take responsibility for the criticisms that may arise, he said. He added the matter is still being under negotiations.

VNA REPORTS ON U.S. MIA DELEGATION VISIT

VNA REJECTS THAI CHARGE ON INTRUSION, CLASH

[Text] Hanoi VNA June 30 -- VIETNAM NEWS AGENCY is authorized to reject the false charge made by Thai officers and quoted by Western sources on June 28 that, while intruding into Thai territory, Vietnamese troops fought against the Thai Army, firing at a Border Guards' station and a bridge, and they wounded several Thai troops and civilians.

Such a fabrication is but an ill-intentioned allegation frequently made by the Thai authorities.

NHAN DAN EDITORIAL MARKS KPRP ANNIVERSARY

BK280659 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 2300 GMT 27 Jun 86

[NHAN DAN 28 June editorial: "Organizer of All Successes of the Cambodian Revolution"]

[Text] Today, together with the fraternal communists and people of Cambodia, our communists and people heartily congratulate the KPRP on its 35th founding anniversary. The birth 35 years ago of the KPRP -- a genuine Marxist-Leninist party -- was a shining milestone in the protracted, difficult, arduous, but very glorious struggle of the Cambodian revolutionary and patriotic forces for independence and freedom. Through the realities of the revolutionary struggle, the KPRP has been maturing with each passing day. It is the organizer and leader of all successes of the Cambodian revolution and is worthy of being the outstanding successor to the glorious undertaking pursued by the former Indochinese Communist Party founded and trained by President Ho Chi Minh.

Advancing under the party's banner, the Cambodians surmounted untold obstacles and trials. They have successfully defeated colonialist and imperialist forces and smashed and genocidal Pol Pot regime -- lackey of the Chinese expansionists-hegemonists. With the 7 January 1979 victory of great historic significance, the KPRP has ushered its country and nation into a newe era -- one in which Cambodia is completely independent and free and is advancing step by step toward socialism.

Over the past 7 years and more, the Cambodian people have translated the resolutions of the Fourth and Fifth KPRP Congresses into extremely vivid realities. With the will of a nation that has risen up from the depths of history and with their industrious labor, courage, and creativity, the Cambodian people of various nationalities have achieved a wonderful rebirth that warms the hearts of brothers and friends throughout the five continents. Their achievements in all fields are very great. The economy is gradually stabilizing and making headway. Industrial and handicraft outputs have been increasing every year. Gross industrial output value in 1985 tripled that of 1980, meeting the demand for consumption and production as well as for export. The land, rail, and water communications network has been restored to support combat and production effectively. The state-run trade sector has been extended to the villages.

In agriculture, land has come under the ownership of the entire people. Some two-thirds of the cultivated acreage has been restored, and -- provided by the state with seed, chemical fertilizer, insecticides, and agricultural supplies -- the more than 100,000 solidarity teams engaging in production on a mutual-help basis have produced increasingly plentiful crops. In 1985, the entire country reaped nearly 2 million metric tons of paddy.

Much progress has also been achieved in the cultural, educational, and public health fields. Political security and social order have been ensured. The entire people have actively participated in the construction of a border defense line and in the consolidation of national defense. The resounding victory scored in the 1984-85 dry season by wiping out the basis of the genocidal Pol Pot clique -- lackey of Beijing -- and other Khmer reactionary groups was of strategic significance. The fifth withdrawal of Vietnamese Army volunteers recently is one of the convincing proofs testifying to the stable and ever improving situation in Cambodia.

The revolutionary administration -- which has been built, developed, and strengthened step by step both quantitatively and qualitatively from the central to grass-roots level -- is carrying out its duty of state and social management. The KPRPO, with its ever growing membership and its ever increasing militant strength, has clearly proven its role as a trusted vanguard and truly developed its bond with the people, thus winning ever broader affection and support at home and abroad.

The great, comprehensive successes of the Cambodian people confirm the irreversible trend of advance of the Cambodian revolution contribute to consolidating the potential of the revolution in the three Indochinese countries and the common struggle of Southeast Asian nations for peace, stability, and cooperation. Our Vietnamese people heartily hail and highly value these successes, considering them as their own. The Vietnamese communists and people are very proud to have a stalwart, militant friend and a highly faithful comrade in the KPRP.

The militant solidarity and special relationship between Vietnam and Cambodia -- established and fostered by great President Ho Chi Minh on the basis of genuine patriotism and lofty internationalism -- have become increasingly firmer and more beautiful with each passing day.

The all-round cooperation between our two parties, states, and peoples on the basis of equality and in the interests of both nations has brought about more and more great, practical results, especially under the light of the SRV-PRK Treaty of Peace, Friendship, and Cooperation and the Indochinese summit statement.

The official friendship visits and meetings between high-ranking party and state leaders of the two countries, the treaties and agreements signed between the two sides, and both past and present cooperation projects have all testified to the close bond between Vietnam and Cambodia and have realistically contributed to the economic and cultural development of each country and the three Indochinese countries as a whole. Exactly as Comrade General Secretary Heng Samrin affirmed, the new qualitative development of the solidarity and all-round cooperation between the two countries have become a factor deciding the success of the revolution in each country.

The KPRP's 35th founding anniversary comes as the Cambodian revolution is taking a new step of development and the revolution in the three Indochinese countries is continuing its advance. The Cambodian people look back happily at their numerous achievements over the past nearly 1 year in carrying out the strategic tasks set forth by the Fifth Party Congress for the new stage of the revolution. The peoples of Vietnam and Laos are enthusiastically emulating in scoring achievements to greet the forthcoming congresses of their glorious parties. The successes of the three peoples are great. However, the immediate tasks still remain very heavy, difficult, and complex. The Chinese expansionists-hegemonists, acting hand in glove with the U.S. imperialists and other reactionary forces, are intensively rallying forces and hatching new plots and schemes to further their dark design of weakening and then annexing the three Indochinese countries to open the way for their expansion to Southeast Asia.

It is our sacred duty to heighten vigilance and constantly consolidate and strengthen the solidarity and special cooperation between Vietnam and Cambodia as well as the militant alliance of the three Indochinese countries. This is an important guarantee for the three nations to defeat all types of enemies.

Implementing great President Ho Chi Minh's sacred testament, the Vietnamese communists and people pledge to do their best, alongside the fraternal communists and people and people of Cambodia, to make the special friendship, militant solidarity, and all-round cooperation between Vietnam and Cambodia forever green and durable. Today, cn the occasion of this anniversary of the Cambodian communists and people, our people once again express for the bottoms of their hearts their profound gratitude to the party, government, and people of Cambodia for the valuable assistance and support they have accorded our revolutionary cause.

May the Cambodian people successfully achieve the great objectives set forth by the Fifth KPRP Congress to defend the gains of the revolution firmly and succeed in building a peaceful, independent, democratic, and socialist Cambodia!

LEADERS ATTEND MEETING TO MARK KPRP ANNIVERSARY

[Report on 27 June Hanoi meeting marking 35th KPRP founding anniversary -- with portions recorded]

[Excerpts] Dear friends: The CPV Central Committee, the Hanoi party organization Central Committee, the VFF Central Committee, and the Vietnam-Cambodia Friendship Association held a grand meeting this afternoon at Hanoi's Municipal Theater to mark the 35th founding anniversary of the Kampuchean People's Revolutionary Party.

Attending the meeting, and participating in its presidium, were Comrades Truong Chinh, Political Bureau member and chairman of the Council of state; Nguyen Duc Tam, member of the Political Bureau and secretary of the CPV Central Committee; Tran Xuan Bazch, secretary of the CPV Central Committee; Le Van Luong, member of the CPV Central Committee and secretary of the Hanoi municipal party committee; Dang Thi, member of the CPV Central Committee and chairman of the vietnam Committee for Economic and Cultural Cooperation with Laos and Cambodia; Phan Trong Tue, chairman of the Vietnam-Cambodia Friendship Association; Nguyen Van Tien, general secretary of the VFF Central Committee, and other comrades.

Also taking part in the meeting presidium were Comrade Tep Henn, PRK ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary to Vietnam, and Comrade Khampheun Tounalom, LPDR ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary to Vietnam. Also present were many representatives of organs and mass organizations at the central level and in Hanoi, the armed forces, and the capital's people of various strata. Other attendees included cadres and personnel of the Cambodian Embassy in Vietnam, and domestic and foreign newsmen, news agency reporters, and radio and television station reporters.

The meeting began at 1500 [0800 GMT] sharp.

Comrade Nguyen Duc Tam made the opening speech. He said:

[Begin Nguyen Duc Tam recording] Comrades and friends, the KPRP came into being 35 years ago, on 28 June 1951. Its emergence is an historic event of momentous political significance for the working class and people of fraternal Cambodia. Over the past 35 years, developing the traditions of staunch and indomitable struggle of the Cambodian people, and carrying on the glorious undertaking of the former Indochina Communist Party, founded and forged by President Ho Chi Minh, the KPRP has led the Cambodian people in traversing long periods of struggle filled with hardships, in repeatedly scoring many glorious successes in their struggle against colonialism and imperialism, as well as in their struggle to smash the genocidal Pol Pot-Ieng Sary regime, lackey of the Chinese expansionist-hegemonists in conducting a revival in all respects, and in gradually advancing the country to socialism.

The above successes and achievements are an epic glorifying the cambodian people. They are also worthy contributions to consolidating and strengthening the might of Vietnam, Cambodia, and Laos and of the socialist community as a whole, and positive contributions to the common struggle of the people in Southeast Asia and the rest of the world for peace, national independence, democracy, and social progress.

The two parties and peoples of Vietnam and Cambodia have stood shoulder to shoulder and remained alongside one another in life and death in the protracted revolutionary struggle of each country. They have succeeded in establishing especially bright relations of unswerving loyalty. With feelings of comradeship and close fraternity, we are gathered here today, at this meeting, to solemnly celebrate the 35th founding anniversary of the glorious KPRP.

On behalf of the presidium, I hereby declare the meeting open, and invite Comrade Le Van luong, member of the CPV Central Committee and secretary of the Hanoi municipal party committee, to make a speech. [applause] [end recording]

Comrade Le Van luong's speech stressed the Cambodian people's 7 January 1979 victory of historic significance, which smashed the genocidal Pol Pot regime, lackey of the Chinese expansionist-hegemonists and which has opened up in the glorious land of Angkor a new era, the era in which the Cambodian people live in total independence and freedom and build a new, civilized, progressive, and happy life.

He emphasized that, under the correct KPRP leadership, and enlightened by the resolutions of the Fourth and Fifth KPRP Congresses, the deeply patriotic, diligent, valiant, intelligent, and talented Cambodian people have conducted a marvelous revival in their beautiful country.

He asserted the great and comprehensive victories at home and abroad which the Cambodian people have scored since liberation day. Those great and all-round victories are vivid realities proving the correctness of the KPRP policy and the irreversible trend of the Cambodian revolution's advance.

Amid an atmosphere of solidarity and friendship, Comrade Tep Henn made a speech. He said:

[Begin Tep Henn recording in Cambodian, fading into Vietnamese translation] We are extremely encouraged, and sincerely thank the CPV Central Committee, the Hanoi party organization Central Committee, the VFF Central committee, and the Vietnam-Cambodia Friendship Association, for holding this solemn meeting to mark the 35th KPRP founding anniversary. [applause] [end recording]

Comrade Tep Henn's speech pointed out the significance of the KPRP's extremely fierce revolutionary struggle, filled with difficulties and hardships, over the past 35 years, and expresed his sincere thanks to the party, Army, and people of Vietnam for their valuable assistance and support.

He also said fine words about the CPV, President Ho Chi Minh, and the Vietnamese people, as well as about the militant solidarity and special relationships between Vietnam and Cambodian and between Vietnam, Cambodia, and Laos. He went on:

[Begin Tep Hen recording in Cambodian, fading into Vietnamese translation] On the occasion of this glorious historic anniversary, our entire party and people all the more remember the great meritorious service of the venerated and beloved president Ho Chi Minh, the first man to diffuse the light of Marxism-Leninism, to popularize a scientific socialist doctrine in our Indochinese Peninsula. Our party and people always remember the extremely great meritorious service of all Vietnamese cadres, combatants, and specialists who have devoted, and are devoting, their energies and sacrificing their flesh and blood for the sake of our Cambodian revolutionary undertaking.

On behalf of the party, Government, and people of Cambodia, I wish to express my profound gratitude to the party, Government, and people of Vietnam for wholeheartedly devoting their energies to our people's revolutionary undertaking and to their own survival in the past and at present. This truly great meritorious service will forever be engraved in the hearts of all Cambodians. [applause] [end recording]

Dear friends, the solemn meeting, held this afternoon in Hanoi, to mark the 35th KPRP founding anniversary, ended successfully, reflecting the ever-consolidating and developing militant solidarity, great friendship, and all-round cooperation between Vietnam and Cambodia and between Vietnam, Cambodia, and Laos.

As Comrade Nguyen Duc Tam stressed in his closing speech, we are overjoyed at very great victories of the Cambodian revolution, which the Cambodian people have scored under the correct KPRP leadership, and wish the fraternal Cambodian people successful implementation of the revolutionary tasks seee out at the Fifth KPRP Congress.

NHAN DAN HAILS ANNIVERSARY OF TREATY WITH MPR

OW251722 Hanoi VNA in English 1459 GMT 25 Jun 86

[Text] Hanoi VNA June 25 -- NHAN DAN in an article today warmly hails the fine development of the relations between Vietnam and Mongolia on the occasion of the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Vietnam-Mongolia Treaty of Friendship and Cooperation (June 25).

The paper (?says):

"With that historical treaty, the Vietnamese Mongolian peoples have closely united in the struggle against all forces of aggression to safeguard their indpendence, sovereignty and socialist construction and contribute to strengthening the socialist community and to the struggle for peace in Asia and the rest of the world".

The relationship between Vietnam and Mongolia, the paper notes, has been further promoted through the Vietnam visit by Comrade J. Batmonh in Dec. 1979 and the visit to Mongolia by Comrade Truong Chinh in 1984.

The paper recalls Mongolia's assistance to Vietnam in stockbreeding and agriculture, adding that the two countries have also promoted their scientific and technical cooperation, especially in traditional medicine.

"The recent 19th congress of the People's Revolutionary Party of Mongolia reaffirmed Mongolia's consistent support to the Vietnamese people in their socialist construction and national defence. It is also voiced full support for the peace initiatives of the three Indochinese countries aimed at making Southeast Asia a region of peace, stability, friendship and cooperation. The Vietnamese people will forever remember the fine feelings and valuable support of the Mongolian party, government and people towards their revolutionary cause," the paper says in conclusion.

NHAN DAN EDITORIAL MARKS 10TH SRV ANNIVERSARY

[NHAN DAN 2 July editorial: "All for the Socialist Fatherland and the People's Happiness"]

[Text] Today 10 years ago, 2 July 1976, a new page of our nation's history was opened with the decision of the first session of reunified Vietnam's Sixth National Assembly to rename our country the SRV. This momentous event marked a historic turning point of the revolution and social life in our country. The birth of the SRV was the result of a glorious, protracted, difficult, and hard struggle conducted by our people under the leadership of the party and great President Ho Chi Minh. It was made possible thanks to the great meritorious services rendered by fallen heroes and all our compartriots and combatants who had fought persistently and made sacrifices valiantly for the fatherland's independence and freedom, socialism, and internationalism. Ten years ago, our people, through their National Assembly, expressed our fervent desire and ironclad will to rebuild the country, make it more grandiose and beautiful, and transform it into a prosperous and powerful socialist country with a well-deserved position in the world. In spite of untold trials and difficulties and regardless of good or bad times and of successes or failures, we have always firmly upheld that ideal and belief and steadily marched forward on the path chosen by the party and the people, never straying from the objectives set forth by the fourth and fifth party congresses.

Over the past 10 years, under the party's leadership, the heroic armed and security forces, together with the heroic people of our country, have recorded great successes of strategic significance in our undertaking to defend the fatherland and fulfilled our internationalist duties. Despite the fact that the socioeconomic situation is still replete with difficulties, and that we have made many shortcomings in our work, from an overall point of view, the achievements our people have recorded in socialist construction are great. This has been possible thanks first of all to the correct lines of our party, to the dynamism and creativity of party cadres and members, to the industrious labor and valiant fighting of our people and our armed and security forces, and to the great international assistance and support, notably from the Soviet Union, Laos, Combodia, and other fraternal socialist countries, and from a number of friendly countries as well as international orgainzations.

The 10th plenum of the party Central Committee, fifth tenure, asserted: In the past, the revolution in our country has scored great successes in various fields and created new factors for continued advancement, thus testifying to the correctness of the lenes adopted by the party at its fourth and fifth congresses, of the resolution of the fifth party Central Committee's eighth plenum, and of the various resolutions of the Political Bureau. These sucesses belong to our entire party, people, and armed forces.

The party Central Committee plenum also pointed out the major shortcomings to be overcome strenuously. We have not satisfactorily materialized the major lines, objectives, and policies put forward by the party at its fifth congress, have made big mistakes in the organization of investmens in capital construction, have not correctly implemented the policy of considering agriculture the primary battlefront, have neglected the development of consumer goods and heavy industries, have failed to firmly grasp proletarian dictatorship, and still have neglected the struggle between the two paths.

In guiding and organizing the implementation of the party Central Committee's eighth plenum resolution and the Political Bureau resolution on prices, wages, and money, we have committed serious mistakes, causing very bad socioeconomic consequences.

With a high sense of responsibility for the revolutionary cause of the people and party, the party Central Committee and its Political Bureau and Secretariat, and the Council of Ministers' standing committee scrupulously conducted self-criticism and criticism. All have clearly pointed out good points, profoundly analyzed shortcomings and mistakes in leadership and operational control, and taken effective remedial action.

The struggle between the two opposing global systems, between peace and war, between national independence and the forces of aggression, and between social progress and the multinational monopolistic capitalist organizations is always fierce and remains totally antagonistic.

The acts of war and sabotage by China and imperialism against our country have been heavily defeated by our troops and people. However, there has been no indication, not even a very small one, that the Chinese reactionaries want to relinquish their hostile policy against our country and other Indochinese countries.

The SRV is faced with the land grabbing border war and the multifaceted war of sabotage by the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists in collusion with the imperialists, first of all the U.S. imperialists, although the country is in peace now.

While building and fighting for national defense, our people and our armed forces help the fraternal Lao and Cambodian peoples defend their revolutionary gains. The present situation is continuously tense and complicated. Our tasks of national defense and construction remain heavy, dangerous, and urgent.

Proceeding from such a situation, let all our party members, people, and troops; the SRV citizens of all generations, and compatriots at home and abroad as well strengthen solidarity, unify our mind and action, uphold revolutionary heroism, and devote all our strength, ability, and intelligence to victoriously fulfilling the two tasks of successfully building socialism and of maintaining combat readiness and fighting to firmly defend the SRV fatherland. This is the ideal, the spiritual motive, and the goal for daily action of each Vietnamese.

Continuing the stalwart traditions of developing good points and overcoming shortcomings, our party will certainly fulfill the historic mission of leading our people and their glorious task to final victory. Let all of us uphold the revolutionary will to struggle for this great objective. We must immediately create a mass movement to emulate in productive labor and thrifty practice, renovate management, reestablish order in distribution and circulation, stabilize the socioeconomic situation, attentively care for national defense and security tasks, satisfactorily conduct the party organization congresses at all levels, and score practical achievements to greet the Sixth National Party Congress.

Let us devote everything for the socialist fatherland and the people's happiness!

PHAM VAN DONG ADDRESSES THANH HOA RALLY

[Report on address by Pham Van Dong, member of the CPV Central Committee Political Bureau and chairman of the SRV Council of Ministers, to representatives of various sectors at a "recent" rally in Thanh Hoa Province]

[Text] Dear friends: As reported, Comrade Pham Van Dong, member of the party Central Committee Political Bureau and chairman of the Council of Ministers, recently visited the party organization and people of various nationalities in Thanh Hoa Province. During his stay there, he spent a considerable amount of time working with the standing committees of the provincial party and people's committees. He held cordial meetings with revolutionary veterans and attended a welcome meeting held by more than 1,000 representatives of districts, towns, military units, and the people of Thanh Hoa.

In his address to these representatives, Comrade Pham Van Dong, on behalf of the CPV Central Committee and the SRV Council of Ministers, extended solicitous regards and warm greetings to the laboring people, compatriots of various nationalities, combatants of the armed forces, cadres, workers, and government employees in Thanh Hoa Province. With its important strategic position in national building and defense; with its four prosperous economic areas, including the mountainous, midland, lowland, and coastal areas; and with its 2.7 million-strong populatio, Thanh Hoa has all the necessary conditions to become a comprehensively rich and strong province.

On the agricultural front, following its achievements scored over the past years, Thanh Hoa -- despite heavy floods -- achieved in 1985 a grain output of 800,000 metric tons, including nearly 200,000 metric tons delivered to the state. The province is currently harvesting fifth month-spring rice with the prospect of a high paddy output. By promptly overcoming some difficulties in industry, small industry, and handicraft production, Thanh Hoa was made progress in exploiting locally available raw materials to turn out large quantities of goods in service to the local people's lives and production.

In implementing the resolution of the Eighth Party Central Committee Plenum and Resolution Nos 28 and 31 of the Political Bureau, Thanh Hoa has correctly applied the party Central Committee's guidelines and adopted effective measures to manage the market and prices in order to minimize the impact of a variety of changes on the people's living conditions.

Chairman Pham Van Dong then pointed out the weaknesses to be overcome by Thanh Hoa: Its failure to fully exploit all the potentials of the midland, mountainous, and coastal areas; its slowness in developing the industrial, small industry, and handicraft sectors; its failure to produce larger quantities of export goods; the great imbalance in its communications and transportation service; its neglect of family planning work; its sharp restrictions on the deployment of its laborers and population from the lowlands to the midland and mountainous areas as well as on the partial transfer of its population to the new economic zones across the country; and its extreme slowness in multiplying advanced models. Most encompassing is the fact that the leadership by the party organization and administrative authorities at various levels has not been close and dynamic while their creativeness has not been enhanced. For this reason, the laboring people's socialist collective mastery has not been developed properly.

At this point, let us cite Chairman Pham Van Dong's views -- as noted in his address -- on some strategic guidelines for economic development and on the important and urgent tasks now to be implemented by Thanh Hoa:

In the face of the country's current situation and of the requirements of the revolutionary work, all of us, including the comrades in Thanh Hoa as well as those in the central organs, must strive to adopt a proper outlook on things and a level of awareness based on the party's viewpoint, Marxist-Leninist concepts, and the scientific socialist viewpoint. This is aimed at gaining a clear view of all aspects of things -- including the corrupt and negative as well as the positive and sound aspects -- and to be conscious of any awry tendency as well as of the tendency to advance along the party's line, which was set by the Fourth and Fifth Party Congresses.

All of us must be deeply aware of the might and strong position of our people's revolutionary undertaking under our party's leadership as well as of the new factors which have appeared during the application of the party's line to managerial and organizational work, plan implementation, and adoption of working methods. These new factors will help us gradually overcome difficulties and eliminate negativeness in order to advance farther, faster, and more steadily. Of course, I have dealt with the above issues in a general way. I just want you comrades to ponder, discuss, and implement all that I have said.

As you have asserted, the economic strategy for building Thanh Hoa into a rich and strong province is to advance along the path of producing large amounts of food products and assorted export goods, in accordance with the guideline of accelerating production and creating a new quality. I agree with you and want to add some specific ideas for your consideration in connection with prescribing major tasks for the locality's program of action.

We must really mobilize all forces to develop agriculture comprehensively and advance to solve the grain and food problem steadily, to supply more raw materials for processing industry, and to increase export goods rapidly.

Intensive cultivation to increase rice output must be practiced together with multiplying crops, expanding cultivated acreage, and intensively planting subsidiary crops. Greater attention must be paid to corn, the most important subsidiary crop. Thanh Hoa has conditions to raise the corn acreage to more than 20,000 hectares and achieve a yield of 35-40 quintals per hectare so a to help raise the output of subsidiary crops from 17.5 to 25-30 percent of the province's total food output. Subsidiary crops must be part of the people's daily meals and their diet must be improved gradually.

It is necessary to vigorously develop cultivation of food crops as well as industrial crops, including those needed particularly for production of export goods.

Thanh Hoa's abundant resources can be found in the midland and mountainous areas where large quantities of forest products and raw materials are available for industry and the production of consumer and export goods. These areas are very important because they also constitute a stable rear base of Thanh Hoa.

To develop the economy and culture of the eight midland and mountainous districts of the province, you should rapidly and steadily deploy laborers coming from the lowlands; combine agriculture with forestry; develop the processing industry, small industry, and handicraft sectors; and expand communications and transportation operations while coordinating water conservancy work with the construction of minor hydroelectric power projects in these areas.

In the coastal areas, an important economic region of Thanh Hoa, it is necessary to promptly increase sea-fishing means, deploy manpower, arrange production, develop handicrafts, effectively expand areas for special products development, and develop jute cultivation in brackish water areas.

In the industry, small industry, and handicraft sectors, it is necessary to reorganize production in order to practically support agriculture, forestry, and fishery. Special attention must be paid to developing the machinery, fertilizer, building materials, communications and transportation, and processing, industry sectors.

It is necessary to continue to properly implement the resoltutions of the 6th, 7th, and 8th party Central Committee plenums and the conclusion of the 10th party Central Committee plenum on prices, wages, and money. It is necessary to resolutely eliminate bureaucratism and subsidization, completely shift to the socialist system of economic accounting and trade, grasp the principle of democratic centralism, and exert autonomy in production and trade at primary installations. It is necessary to advance the scientific and technological revolution in coordination with renovating the management system and enhancing the laboring people's capability and responsibility regarding their collective mastery, in order to raise labor productivity, quality, and economic efficiency.

Each unit and district as well as the entire province must strive to turn out increasingly large amounts of social products and to increase national income.

In coordination with production development, it is necessary to apply positive measures to collect, purchase, and control all sources of goods; achieve equitable and direct distribution of goods to consumers; resolutely and completely manage the market; combat speculation, smuggling, corruption, and complicity; eliminate blackmarketeering, reduce the administrative staff personnel by transferring people to production and other services; pursue every method to increase receipts and reduce expenditures; apply strict economization measures; and expand all money-saving forms.

In economic activities as well as in the entire social life, it is necessary to heighten the socialist legal system, observe labor discipline and work regulations, abide by all state laws, and maintain social order and safety.

It is necessary to properly take care of the people's life in all aspects -- including food, clothing, housing, learning, travel, health, and recreation -- and attach importance to forming socialist new-style people on the basis of raising the quality of general education and coordinting scholastic teaching with vocational training and schools with life.

It is necessary to constantly heighten vigilance in countering the enemy's war of sabotage, pay major attention to organizational work at primary installations, mobilize the uniform strength of the local people's forces, including the public security, self-defense, and militia forces as the nucleus.

Comrades: Revolution is the masses' undertaking. To advance our province's undertaking rapidly and steadily and to impart a new quality to it, we must in one way or another build a steady, vigorous, and clean party organization, because this is a decisive factor for all successes.

Uncle Ho taught us that during the period of the socialist revolution, the party must be stronger than ever before. It is impossible to achieve social reform if party members refuse to reform and improve themselves. The socialist revolution requires that party members and cadres should be endowed with a steady proletarian stand and a high socialist consciousness, eradicate the impact of the thoughts of the exploiting class as well as individualism, and practice collectivism.

We must now, more than ever before, understand Uncle Ho's teaching thoroughly and implement it resolutely while fulfilling the following most important and urgent tasks:

1. We must increase the fighting capacity of the entire party organization, especially party chapters. The work related to party chapters has so far been neglected. We must resolutely remedy this shortcoming. Raising the quality of this work is the best measure to intensify the fighting power and leadership capacity of the party so as to forge qualities for cadres and party members and tighten relations between the party and the masses.

It is necessary to scrupulously implement the principle of democratic centralism; overcome paternalism, arbitrariness, conservatism, liberalism, and indiscipline; and intensify the party's solidarity and unity. Each cadre and party member must preserve the party's unity as the apple of his eye.

2. We must effectively combat negativism in the party and state apparatus. Key cadres and leading organs must be clean, exemplary, and brave. Each party member and cadre must eliminate negativism in himself and encourage lower echelons in the fight and ensure that those who fight seriously are not ill-treated.

3. In the current self-criticism and criticism drive, we must resolutely expel from the party all degenerate and deviant elements to make the party organization worthy of being a leading force and the contingent of party members in the party organization worthy of being a group of vanguard revolutionary combatants. We must deal with bad, corrupt, and guilty people in various party organizations, administrative organs, mass organizations, and other bodies resolutely, promptly, and severely. Only by doing so can we make the self-criticism and criticism drive truly meaningful and practically effective, consolidate the people's confidence in the party and government, and solve knotty problems to greatly enhance our revolutionary undertaking.

Along with building the party, we must constantly concern ourselves with consolidating and raising the efficiency of the managerial work of administrative apparatuses at all levels. We must pay great attention to cadre work, properly deploy the contingent of key cadres from the provincial to the grassroots level, and resolutely and promptly replace incompetent, unreliable cadres who have no redeeming qualities, while consolidating the mass organizations, especially the trade unions, the Ho Chi Minh Communist Youth Union, and the Vietnam Women's Federation.

We must whip up and expand mass revolutionary movements directed toward the specific objectives of the locality's program of action, which must be implemented with the people's support. We must develop the people's socialist collective mastery in accordance with this revolutionary truth: All for the people, all by the people.

To arouse the people's enthusiasm, faith, and fervor in all businesses, it is vital to achieve social justice -- justice in productive labor; justice in the distribution of material and spiritual resources; justice relating to everyone's obligations, rights, and privileges; justice in matters of commendation, rewarding, and discipline; justice in political, economic, and cultural activities and social life; and justice in all cooperatives, enterprises, stores, schools, hospitals, administrative organs, wards, subwards, and hamlets.

Comrades: The forthcoming party congresses at all levels of the Thanh Hoa provincial party organization [as heard] must help arouse a fighting spirit, a new behavior, a seething revolutionary mass movement. In this way, Thanh Hoa will be able to advance steadily and vigorously.

I am convinced that the party organization, administration, people, and armed forces in Thanh Hoa Province will unite closely, develop the glorious revolutionary tradition, and build Thanh Hoa into a mode province as expected by Uncle Ho.

I wish you comrades, compatriots, and combatants good health and greater successes.

SELF-CRITICISM, CRITICISM IN BINH TRI THIEN

BK210920 Hanoi NHAN DAN in Vietnamese 10 Jun 86, p 3

[Text] Pursuant to the guidelines of the Fourth and Fifth National Party Congresses and the resolution of the Third Provincial Party Congress, the party committee of Binh Tri Thien Province promptly completed the preparation of a draft political report for the executive committee to present at the forthcoming Fourth Provincial Party Organization Congress.

On the basis of discussions held to understand thoroughly the draft political report of the provincial party organization committee and to make suggestions to the standing committees of the provincial party committee and people's committee, members of the provincial party committee displayed a high sense of self-criticism and criticism. Following self-criticism by the provincial party committee secretary, deputy secretary, and provincial people's committee chairman, the members of the provincial party committee also criticized themselves individually. Each of them carefully prepared his self-criticism and sternly examined himself with respect to the implementation of policies and viewpoints; the organization and performance of political duties; and the quality ethics, leadership, and policy of cadres. Those comrades criticized by their subordinates and the public or denounced by the people for their mistakes and shortcomings were fairly scrutinized.

The self-criticism and criticism by the Binh Tri Thien Province Party Committee was conducted scrupulously, sincerely, cordially, and constructively thus helping strengthen internal unity.

The party committee echelon asserted: All the party committee members are absolutely loyal to the party lines and have striven to study thoroughly and apply them to realities in the locality. Faced with difficulties caused by natural disaters and embarrassment in the tasks of prices, wages, and money, all of you, comrades, have displayed steadiness and firmness in overcoming difficulties and have upheld a high sense of responsibility. No matter where you serve -- at the provincial, city, town, district, or grass-roots levels -- you have clearly proved your devotion, dynamism, resourcefulness, and maturity. Each of you has striven to preserve your qualities and ethic. Large numbers of you have been exemplary in work and life and have lived closely, modestly, and justly with cadres.

The party committee echelon devoted much time to analyzing shortcomings: Lines have not been profoundly understood and strictly applied to realities. Party lines have not been harmoniously reflected in each specific task and work. Some works are still conservative and sluggish and have not progressed on a par with the development of the general situation.

The organization and implementation of resolutions and policies are still poor as manifested by shortcomings in the plannings, programming, and policy-making tasks.

There are still many deficiencies and weaknesses in the tasks of party development and mass motivation.

Work regulations set by the provincial party committee have not been fully implemented to promote further the principle of democratic centralism. Relations between party and state agencies and mass organizations have not been satisfactorily established. Smooth operations cannot, therefore, be guarnateed, and an integrated strength cannot be developed. The work behavior of many comrades is still simplistic, narrow-minded, and unscientific, which has led to a subjective and bureaucratic method of work with adverse consequences.

With respect to ethics, some comrades in the party committee have not been truly scrupulous in building houses, paying money they owe, using monetary wards improperly, taking bribes, sending relatives abroad, and educating children and wives.

To overcome these shortcomings, the provincial party committee put forth the following:

First of all, guidelines and resolutions should be firmly grasped and correctly applied to localities. Words must match deeds, and work counts more than speech. The control committee and the people's committee are charged with controlling, examining specifically, dealing definitively with cases of building, using, and repairing state-allocated houses against regulations. Borrowing household appliances must be rational, conform to prescribed policies, and be closely administered. The standing committee of the people's committee and the trade union federation of the province are charged with studying and stipulating specific regulations on the establishment and management of bonus funds. Henceforth, members of the party committee who work in the administrative field will not receive monetary awards from production and business units. All offers of gifts and bribes and all forms of wasteful and ostentatious meetings must be halted immediatley.

PNA REPORTS 'SECRET' CEASE-FIRE TALKS BEGIN

[Text] Manila, July 3 (PNA) -- Ranking government and communist emissaries reportedly began meeting Wednesday in a secret place to discuss a possible ceasefire in insurgency-infested areas in the country. Representing the government side are Agriculture and Food Minister Ramon Mitra Jr. and presidential commission on human rights Chairman Jose W. Diokno.

Mitra and Diokno were earlier named by President Aquino to hold ceasefire talks with the rebel side headed by two former newsmen -- Antonio Zumel and Satur Ocampo, both of the National Democratic Front of the outlawed Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP). The location and the agenda of the meeting are being kept under wraps reportedly to avoid prejudicing the outcome of the talks.

Reports said one of the items the two sides would take up is the safe conduct pass for Zumel and Ocampo. Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile has said the rebel emissaries would be assured of safe conduct passes to enable them to pursue their dialogue as part of President Aquino's national reconciliation program.

Tuesday, Mitra said he did not know yet the venue of the peace talks. But, he added, he was willing to go anywhere even to a rebel stronghold to show the government's sincerity in its peace initiatives. Diokno and I have agreed that we will meet with them in private in a more relaxed environment, according to Mitra.

Aquino has said her government's peace overture with the insurgents is aimed at ending the 18-year communist dissidence problem in the country. She said she was willing to grant amnesty to the rebel's and offer them livelihood opportunities to enable them to lead normal lives.

But Jose Maria Sison, alleged former founder of the CPP, said the truce talks did not mean that the communists would lay down their firearms and surrender to the authorities. He said it was likely that the communist side would press for a possible coalition government with President Aquino. But Aquino thumbed down any possible coalition government with the communists, adding she would not appoint any leftists in her cabinet.

Today's secret ceasefire talks came amid fresh reports that three army officers and eight soldiers were killed in an ambush Tuesday in Baranga Villa Principe, Gumaca, Quezon, by communist rebels. The incident immediately drew protest from southern Tagalog regional unified commander Brig. Gen. Restituto Padilla who said the ambush site was part of the ceasefire area. General Padilla has sent troops to track down the ambushers.

ENRILE SAYS CPP SPLIT INTO THREE FACTIONS

[Text] Manila, July 3 (PNA) -- Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile Wednesday declassified an intelligence report that the outlawed Communist Party of the Philippines [CPP] is fragmented into three factions.

Quoting the report, he said, one faction is known as the Marxist-Leninist that is seeking the help of a super power; the other is opting to link up with a U.S.-based communist party; and the third one is a Maoist organization.

Addressing the Martha's Vineyard Fellowship at the Intercontinental Hotel in Makati, the defense chief said some disagreements cropped up recently within the organization as a result of conflicts of approach to the present political situation. However, Enrile said, the CPP political cadre has remained intact. The leadership and the organization of the underground movement, unfortunately, remained active and intact, he added.

He said the CPP Central Committee, the territorial commissions and the functional commissions of the party, together with their officers and members, are still operating full blast. There are no indications that these organs are being scuttled or downgraded in terms of manpower, logistics, or tasks, Enrile said. These organizations in the CPP have been beefed up and strengthened in preparation for a broader organization, recruitment, training and intensified armed activities.

Enrile said that on the political fronts, the communists have used new terms to the same unit to spin a fresh web of deception and expanding for front organizations. He revealed there is a renewed communist attempt to forge a tighter alliance between the elements of the far left and the elements of the left-of-center in the political spectrum which was torn apart as a result of the February revolution.

In fact, Enrile said, the CPP has always made the church as a prime target for infiltration. This is understandable because of the church's moral influence in society, he said.

CPP REPORTEDLY SET TO LAUNCH

HK021549 Manila THE MANILA EVENING POST in English 1 Jul 86 pp 1, 3

[By Ed Malay and Ray Briones]

[Text] The Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP) is all set to launch what the underground movement calls the "People's War."

Reliable sources told THE MANILA EVENING POST that the program of the National Democratic Front (NDF), the umbrella political front of the communist movement, contradicts the movement's earlier claims that it is prepared to meet and negotiate with the government of President Corazon Aquino.

He said that while the underground movement announced it would meet with the government, it laid down plans to launch an escalated rebellion involving all forms of mass support.

The source stressed that during the last plenary session of the CPP last December 26, it agreed that "national liberation and general democracy" could be secured only by waging a "People's War."

The NDF has named former newsman Satur Ocampo as its chief negotiator, while the national government appointed Agriculture and Food Minister Ramon Mitra, Jr. and former Sen. Jose W. Diokno, Presidential Commission on Human Rights chairman.

The policy of the CPP, according to the source, is to wage a "People's War" which entails the total mobilization of the entire people for armed struggle, open mass struggle, rural and urban uprisings, and other forms of unarmed and armed combat to destroy by stages the military and political capability of the government.

This commitment to a total "People's War," said the source, was confirmed at the 9th Marxist Summer School in Sydney, Australia, last January when two representatives of the NDF said that "the forces of change in the Philippines will not allow the people to be swindled into paraliamentary change."

The NDF claimed in the same forum that "progress in the Philippines would occur only by means of a revolution in which state power would be secured in the hands of the NDF."

To wage its war, the source said the CPP and its military arm, the New People's Army (NPA) have grown in size to about 16,000 full-time guerrillas.

In support of its armed objective, the CPP uses different political organizations involving students, unions, churches, and so-called human rights groups which enjoy international contacts and foreign financial support.

The commitment of the communist movement to a "People's War," the source pointed out, could push the impending peace negotiations into a deadlock.

The communist movement, he said, will not budge from its official position that before peace could be reached, its demands must be met.

These demands include the abrogation of the U.S. military bases agreement, a government formed out of a coalition of forces, and the immediate halt to military operations against the insurgents.

The source also said that the communist movement looks at the government of Aquino as an extension of an old bourgeois state.

The political campaign of the CPP, the sources added, seeks to portray Aquino as benignly ineffective.

AFP REFORM GROUP VIEWS COMMUNIST STATEMENTS

HK010641 Quezon City BUSINESS DAY in English 30 Jun 86 p 20

[Text] Officers of the Reform the AFP [Armed Forces of the Philippines] Movement (RAM) chided the "highly inconsistent" statements of three ranking communist officials.

"They talk of power sharing, but refuse to lay down their arms and forego violence," RAM officers said.

RAM was reacting to a recent interview by BUSINESS DAY with Satur Ocampo, Antonio Zumel and Jose Luneta. The three were quoted as saying that they would consider a coalition with the government, but underscored that laying down of arms is "out of the question."

Taking the cue from recent pronouncements of President Corazon C. Aquino and New Armed Forces of the Philippines chief of staff Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, the RAM officers said power sharing with hardcore communists is not possible.

President Aquino last week said she would not appoint a communist in her Cabinet which in effect meant a rejection of the offer of power sharing.

Ramos said, "Never in the history of communist revolutionary warfare in Southeast Asia has a coalition between the communist and a democratic government ever succeeded."

"The bottomline is they don't actually trust the government, particularly the NAFP [New Armed Forces of the Philippines], and would want to keep a knife at the back of the government just in case," a RAM officer told BUSINESS DAY.

The RAM officer said NPA-initiated atrocities run to about 70 percent of all encounters in the countryside.

"So they call for a cessation of hostilities, and commit 70 percent of the atrocities," he said.

Another Ram member said the interviewed communist leaders issued statements which were mostly "systematic attacks on the military."

"The discussions for a ceasefire haven't even started and already, the other side has advanced conditions and even presupposed certain things," he said.

"Basically, they are trying to erode public trust on the NAFP and to gain strategic positioning in the rural areas."

"What are the indicators of this?" he asked. "First, by refusing to lay down their arms, they want to join the government as an armed force not as a political force. Why? Because they intend to use this force again against the government. Second, they want the NAFP in the rural areas to withdraw prior to a ceasefire."

"A ceasefire based on clear battle lines never worked between communist guerrillas and a democratic government anywhere mainly because there are no battle lines to speak of," he pointed out.

On a supposed "middle ground" in which the interviewed communist leaders said the government and the insurgents could meet, another RAM officer said before agreeing on the middle ground, "you should first agree on what government should be adopted and its ideology. If we can't define that, there is already a fundamental difference and I can't see the middle ground at all."

But the three officers agreed with the communist view that sincerity on both sides must first be established prior to peace talks.

"After that is established, then we discuss," said one member.

"If this goes through, then maybe a ceasefire is theoretically possible. Unfortunately, the first step seems a bit difficult because the other side has already stated that their armed struggle is non-negotiable."

Earlier, Ramos told BUSINESS DAY that a ceasefire between the government and the insurgents is a "theoretical possibility." But Ramos could not say the same thing on a coalition government.

"This effort for a coalition government is being orchestrated by a higher or more ideologically hardcore body within the communist party," Ramos said.

"The National Democratic Front [NDF] is only one of the organs of the Communist Party of the Philippines. It's mission covers liaisoning, organizing and coalescing with other sectors to attain the party's goals," he noted.

Besides, the pattern of communist warfare in Southeast Asia and previous attempts to establish a coalition government with them, Ramos said, "power-sharing with the communists always resulted in the collapse of the democratic system."

On the NDF charge that the Armed Forces is increasing its militarization thrust in the countryside for counter-insurgency purposes, Ramos said the NAFP is working "with the same number of units and practically the same number of people as before the February revolt."

"We merely rearrange the AFP units' deployment to achieve a more orderly and rational disposition of troops," Ramos explained. This, he said, was done to increase the efficiency of these units at less public expense.

More specifically, divisional headquarters and other units were reployed from the urban areas to the rural areas where they are now functioning more effectively," he said. [no opening quotes as published]

SISON, OTHERS DISCUSS CON-COM, U.S. BASES

HK011557 Manila THE NEW PHILIPPINES DAILY EXPRESS in English 1 Jul 86 p 6

[By Melchor Parale]

[Text] Jose Ma. Sison, former chairman of the Communist party of the Philippines [CPP], said yesterday the Presidential Commission on Good Government [PCGG] is not the proper body to take over the operations of business firms it has sequestered.

Sison said the Aquino government should designate a separate entity to perform such functions. He did not explain why.

At the Kapihan sa Manila [Manila Coffeeshop] at the Manila Hotel, Sison also said that although the new Constitution being drafted by the Constitutional Commission [Con-Com] may be better than the 1973 charter, the proposed fundamental law of the land should not be expected to solve all problems facing the Aquino administration.

Sison also batted for the retention of the PCGG powers to go after corrupt government officials even in the Aquino government.

He said this can be done through the inclusion of an appropriate section in the transitory provisions of the new charter.

Sison disputed charges that the CPP is out to interfere in the current Constitution-making.

The ventilating of sentiments, by communist elements should not be taken as interference, he said.

He took pot shots at the Con-Com failure to tackle the removal of U.S. military bases in the Philippines although the charter body is almost halfway in its work.

Con-Com records show that not one resolution has so far been introduced in the assembly seeking the phaseout of U.S. military bases.

What was introduced was Resolution No 268, authored by Gregorio Tingson, seeking the retention of the U.S. military bases on Philippine territory "as part of national defense."

Sison criticized the appointment to the Con-Com of "pro-U.S. nominees."

"There is an overkill in the appointment of these conservatives that could frustrate the emergence of a truly nationalistic Constitution," he said.

He recalled a story published recently in the WASHINGTON POST quoting an American bishop warning against the appointment of three communists to the Con-Com. He hinted he was one of those mentioned.

Sison predicted that there would be widespread uprising by the people if the Aquino government is replaced through a coup.

Another panelist, former Abra Gov. Arturo Barbero, said that any coup to change the new government can only succeed with American support.

He said it was difficult for any presidential aspirant in the past to win without U.S. backing.

UP Professor Felipe Miranda, also a panelist, said it would be a mistake for the Aquino administration to underestimate the so-called Marcos loyalists. He noted that the loyalists' ranks have swelled with the joining of even elements that supported the opposition in the last presidential polls.

He recommended the cutting down of the present military force which, he said, is too big for the country's requirement.

Jose Ma. Sison, former chairman of the Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP) yesterday said it is possible that nuclear weapons are stored in the two U.S. military bases at Subic and Clark Field.

Speaking at the regular "Kapihan sa Maynila", Sison said although Filipinos are employed in the two military bases, they would not have any way of confirming this because they are mostly confined to the perimeters of the installations.

He warned that to stockpile nuclear weapons in the country would pose a serious security threat because we might be a "target" in the event of a nuclear war between the superpowers.

Giving his comment on the Constitutional Commission, Sison said unless the ongoing Con-Com do away with provisions providing for the inclusion of U.S. military bases here in the country, the end product constitution would not become a truly "nationalist constitution."

Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, new AFP [Armed Forces of the Philippines] chief, failed to attend the regular forum which was to discuss among others the ceasefire agreement between the CPP and the Aquino government.

Ramos and Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile are reportedly making preparations for the convening tomorrow, July 2 of a two-day seminar workshop on the insurgency problem, which incude among others subjects like the ceasefire talks.

The two are reportedly holding a series of meetings with top military officials for tomorrow's occasion which will be attended by all Cabinet members, governors, military officials, and local and private sector leaders.

President Aquino is expected to address the seminar at the closing rites.

No Chance of Coup Success

HK011555 Quezon City BUSINESS DAY in English 1 Jul 86 p 24

[Text] A military coup d'etat to oust the Aquino government stands no chance of success because President Corazon C. Aquino still has popular support.

Jose Ma. Sison, former chairman of the Communist Party of the Philippines, made this assessment at the Kapihan sa Maynila weekly forum at the Manila Hotel yesterday.

Sison discounted a military takeover because of a split within the military establishment.

One bloc consists of Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and the Reform of the AFP Movement; another is comprised of pro-Marcos remnants within the Armed Forces; and still another is composed of forces loyal to President Aquino led by retired Gen. Rafael Ileto, the defense deputy minister.

AFP Chief of Staff Gen. Fidel V. Ramos is seen by Sison as either neutral or loyal to President Aquino.

Sison's analysis of the three military blocks is significantly different from what he told students and professors of the University of the Philippines-Baguio City last month. In that forum he said Enrile and Ramos form a military bloc.

Sison said Enrile has no legal basis for claiming power and Ramos is not seen as taking sides with the defense minister without such legal basis.

If Enrile staged a coup, this will be hindered by Mrs. Aquino's popularity with the masses, he said.

Sison sees two possible developments in case of a coup. First, the New People's Army will develop rapidly. Second, there will be a widespread uprising of armed partisan throughout the countryside.

Sison's view on the "foolhardiness of any military goup to stage a coup against the Aquino government" was shared by the rest of the Kapihan guests: Mar Canonigo, head of the government task force on urban poor, University of Philippines professor Felipe Miranda and ex-Kilusang Bagong Lipunan member of parliament Arturo Barbero of Abra. Sison expressed optimism that despite Mrs. Aquino's rejection of a coalition government with the communists, a future development might make her change her mind.

That development -- the possibility of the AFP turning against President Aquino and the return of fascists in the country -- will leave her government no option but to coalesce with the democratic revolutionary forces, Sison said.

Warns of U.S. Pressure

HK010539 Quezon City Radyo ng Bayan in Tagalog 0400 GMT 1 Jul 86

[Text] Jose Maria Sison, spokesman for the Communist Party of the Philippines, [as heard] said that the United States will exert more pressure on President Corazon Aquino for the retention of their military bases in the country and will try to use financial assistance as its bargaining tool.

At the same time, Sison indicated the possibility of the communists being accepted into a coalition government of President Aquino should political and economic conditions worsen. Sison also stressed that the military could not stage a coup d'etat against Mrs Aquino because of her popularity. However, he warned that such a coup could be successful if supported by the United States.

NAKASONE PROCLAIMS VICTORY FOR LDP IN ELECTIONS

OW070649 Tokyo KYODO in English 0633 GMT 7 Jul 86

[Text] Tokyo, July 7 KYODO -- The ruling Liberal-Democratic Party Monday swept the twin Diet elections, capturing a substantial lower house majority in the biggest landslide victory in post-war Japan. Returns as of 2:40 p.m. show that the LDP had won 300 of the 506 seats decided for the 512-member lower house. The LDP's strength was further boosted to 304 seats with the admission of four independent conservatives into the party fold.

An elated Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone proclaimed a victory for the ruling LDP, pledging to continue with the policies he has promoted since coming to office in 1982. Speaking to reporters at LDP headquarters, Nakasone said he plans to carry out the privatization of the government-run Japanese National Railways next April. A bills on the privatization will be one of the biggest legislative programs to be put before the Diet this fall.

Nakasone, reflecting new confidence, was also upbeat on the latest upsurge of the yen, saying the currency reflects a strong Japan. The yen shot up to 158.90 yen to the dollar for a new postwar record at one point in Tokyo's foreign exchange market today.

The top opposition Japan Socialist Party took a beating in the simultaneous elections of the upper and lower houses of the Diet Sunday, ending up with 82 seats in the lower house. The figure was 27 seats less than the 109 seats the party controlled before the elections, and JSP Chairman Masashi Ishibashi indicated that he may quit the party chairmanship to take responsiblity for the big defeat. Komeito and the Democratic Socialist Party -- the two main centrist groups -- also did poorly. Komeito picked up 55, three short of its pre-election strength, and the DSP won 26 seats, compared to 38 before the election. The Japan Communist Party, which controlled 26 seats before the election, won 24. The New Liberal Club, the LDP's coalition partner, got six. Apart from the LDP, the United Social Democratic Party was the only other party which had a net gain in the lower house election, winning four seats, an increase of one. Nine seats went to independents.

The LDP victory, the largest since the party's previous record of 296 lower house seats in 1960, means a new mandate for Nakasone, who staked his leadership in calling the elections. The result, political analysts said, would give Nakasone a strong hand in running the government, and Masaharu Gotoda, the chief government spokesman, told reporters that the government may call a special Diet session early to appoint the new prime minister.

Nakasone is certain to remain in the job, and stands a good chance of having his tenure extended beyond October when his second two-year term as LDP president expires. He may even find enough support within the party to rewrite a current party rule which bans a consecutive third term for the LDP presidency, which carries with it the prime ministership.

In the upper house race, with half of the 252 seats at stake, the LDP had won 67 of the 101 seats declared by Monday afternoon, and the JSP 15. Komeito picked up six, the DSP three, the JCP five, and another five went to independents. The final outcome of the upper house election, which is awarded through a complex electoral district and proportional representation system, is expected by Monday night.

Lower House Election Results

LDP Factional Strength Boosted

[Text] Tokyo, July 7 KYODO -- Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone increased his factional strength within the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party by five to 52 in the powerful lower house of the Diet as the LDP posted a sweeping victory in Sundays double elections. But the Tanaka faction, which is nominally led by ex-Premier Kakuei Tanaka but has gradually come under the control of Finance Minister Noboru Takeshita, remains LDP's biggest faction with 79, up from 65 at the time of the Diets dissolution on June 2. Second is the Suzuki faction, led by former Premier Zenko Suzuki and now virtually headed by senior LDP leader Kiichi Miyazawa, with 53 seats in the lower chamber, an increase of one seat. Despite Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe's grueling election campaign across the country, the Fukuda faction, nominally headed by his mentor, ex-Premier Takeo Fukuda, now has 50 seats, up from 46, keeping the faction in the no. 4 slot. A fifth LDP faction, led by former Economic Planning Agency chief Toshio Komoto, boosted its strength by one to 28 members.

Factional strength inside the ruling LDP, particularly in the lower house chamber, is a crucial factor in determining who heads the party. Political analysts said the election results thus increased the possibility of Nakasone seeking a third consecutive two-year term or an extension of his current tenure as LPD president, a post which carries with it the premiership, through revision of existing party rules barring more than two straight two-year terms. Nakasone's tenure as LDP president expires at the end of October. Factional strength involving the LDP's upper house members was not immediately determined. The LDP factions have a chance to increase their strength by scouting unaffiliated LDP members and victorious conservative independents.

Four Independents Join LDP

[Text] Tokyo, July 7 KYODO -- The ruling Liberal-Democratic Party said Monday that four independent conservatives who won lower house seats in Sunday's Diet elections have been accepted as official members of the party. The four are Iwao Matsuda of Gifu Prefecture's no. 2 District, Kenichiro Otsubo of Saga Prefecture, Hirohide Uozumi of Kumamoto Prefecture's no. 1 District, and Hiroyuki Sonoda of Kumamoto Prefecture's no. 2 District, the LDP said.

Nakasone Holds Press Conference

[Text] Tokyo, July 7 KYODO -- A victorious Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone pledged Monday that his government, boosted by a landslide victory in Sunday's double elections, will implement a series of reforms to overhaul the export-dependent Japanese economy. He also said at a news conference that he will abide by Liberal-Democratic Party rules barring more than two consecutive two-year terms for the party president.

But his ambiguous responses to questions about the impending expiry of his tenure as LDP president at the end of October left open the possibility of a change in LDP regulations following its resounding victory. "The LDP president is an LDP member and it's natural for me to abide by LDP rules," Nakasone, 68, said during the news conference, called after the LDP won an overwhelming 300 seats in the powerful 512-seat house of representatives. The smiling premier said the victory was "a voice of the people, heaven and God" rather than being due to the LDP's prowess.

Nakasone, prime minister since November 1982, vowed that his business-oriented LDP and government will carry out the privatization of the state-run Japanese National Railways, as well as administrative, educational and tax system reforms to trim the budgetary "fat" and reduce cases of classroom violence.

He also said his administration will follow some of the recommendations made by a blue-ribbon advisory panel in April to transform the export-dependent Japanese economy into one reliant on stimulation of domestic demand and increased imports. The recommendations contained in the so-called Maekawa report were in response to calls from the United States and other trading partners dissatisfied with bulging trade deficits with Japan.

Nakasone said that the ruling party's one-sided victory also represented a confidence vote in Japanese foreign policy under him and his Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe, and that he and Abe will continue the present foreign policy. As examples, the prime minister cited Japan's "utmost efforts" to help realize the second U.S.-Soviet summit between President Ronald Reagan and General Secretary Mikhail Gorbachev, narrow the economic disparities between rich and poor countries and implement a debt relief program for developing countries proposed by U.S. Treasury Secretary James Baker. Nakasone, referring to Gorbachev's letter to him earlier this month, expressed the hope that the Soviet leader would visit Japan in "the not too distant future" as he indicated in the letter.

Asked about the yen's sharp surge in value against the dollar and its effect on the domestic economy, Nakasone said the prevailing yen-dollar exchange rate would benefit Japan in the long run, reflecting the nation's economic fundamentals. Nakasone also hinted at implementing a supplementary budget this fall, although he declined to either confirm or deny the much-rumored figure of 3 trillion yen. The prime minister said he will consult with the New Liberal Club, until now a coalition partner, and other opposition parties on issues of mutual interest. But he strongly hinted that his LDP may part with the NLC now that it has secured an absolute majority in the lower house.

MITI WELCOMES U.S. SEMICONDUCTOR AGREEMENT

[Text] Tokyo, July 3 KYODO -- International Trade and Industry Minister Michio Watanabe Thursday said in a statement the agreement in Japanese-U.S. semiconductor trade talks will help the industry develop under a "free and fair trade" system. The statement said the "constructive" solution is very significant in the light of current severe Japan-U.S. relations.

Koji Kodama, director general of MITI's Machinery and Information Industries Bureau, told a press conference that the bilateral agreement is in conformity with regulations of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), adding that its aim is to eliminate dumping practices. Kodama also said officials of the two governments will work toward formal signing of a comprehensive government-to-government agreement in late July, including an export-price monitoring system on Japanese chips shipped to the U.S. house of representatives. The smiling premier said the victory was "a voice of the people, heaven and God" rather than being due to the LDP's prowess.

Nakasone, prime minister since November 1982, vowed that his business-oriented LDP and government will carry out the privatization of the state-run Japanese National Railways, as well as administrative, educational and tax system reforms to trim the budgetary "fat" and reduce cases of classroom violence.

SOVIET UNION SUPPORTS GOVERNMENT PEACE PROPOSAL

[Text] Moscow July 3 (KCNA) -- The USSR foreign ministry made public a statement supporting the government statement of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea containing a new peace proposal for the establishment of a nuclear-free, peace zone on the Korean peninsula, according to a TASS report July 3.

The proposal would eliminate in the event of its consistent and full implementation a serious potential breeding gound of a nuclear conflict and would become a substantial contribution to consolidating the nuclear weapons non-proliferation regime, the statement of the Soviet foreign ministry notes, and stresses:

The DPRK's constructive step is being viewed in the Soviet Union as logical continuation of socialist Korea's consistent peace efforts directed at achieving a withdrawal of the U.S. troops from South Korea, replacing the Korean Armistice Agreement with a peace agreement, drafting a non-aggression declaration between the North and the South, suspending large-scale military exercises on the Korean peninsula and promoting a peace dialogue between the two parts of Korea.

The DPRK's initiative is yet another vivid example of the socialist countries' readiness for an active search for ways of nuclear disarmament so as to traverse their part of the road in resolving the problem of ensuring security in Asia.

Authorized by the Soviet leadership, the USSR Ministry of Foreign Affairs states that the Soviet Union fully and completely supports the new proposal of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea.

SOCIAL GROUPS SUPPORT KPA TALKS PROPOSAL

[Text] Pyongyang July 4 (KCNA) -- Yi Song-pok, chairman of the Central Committee of the Korean Journalists Union, and Cho Hon-yong, director of the Secretariat of the Consultative Council fo Former South Korean Politicians in the North for the promotion of Peaceful Reunification, published press statements on July 3 in support of the peace initiative of the Supreme Command of the Korean People's Army on holding talks between the military authorities.

Yi Song-pok denounced the United States and the South Korean authorities for turning down our peace initiative without any justifiable ground under the pretext of "Propaganda" and the like.

He further said: I believe that the South Korean journalists and men of the press, conscious of the important mission they assume for the nation, will courageously conduct righteous press activities to save the nation from the disasters of war, provide a new turning point for detente and peace and achieve the independent and democratic development of the South Korean society.

We also express the hope that the broad press circles of the world that value justice and truth will direct deep attention to the grave situation prevailing on the Korean peninsula and extend as ever firm support and encouragement to the Korean people's struggle against war and for peace and reunification.

Cho Hon-yong said: The United States and the South Korean authorities have taken an entirely unjust attitude toward the new peace proposal advanced this time by the DPRK side and thus proved themselves that their talk about "threat of southward invasion" from the North, "deployment of armed forces in the frontline area" is a lie.

I sincerely hope that all the politicians and figures of various circles of South Korea will pay due attention to the peace proposal of the DPRK which will occasion a turn in the country's peace and in the improvement of the North-South relations, exert every possible effort to make the United States and the South Korean rulers positively respond to it and thereby discharge their patriotic mission for the country and the nation.

LETTER ON REUNIFICATION COUNCIL 30TH ANNIVERSARY

["Letter to political parties, organizations, and personages of all walks of life in South Korea and compatriots abroad" adopted at a meeting held in Pyongyang on 2 July to mark the 30th anniversary of the formation of the Consultative Council in the North for the Promotion of Peaceful Reunification]

[Text] Political parties, organizations, and personages of all walks of life in South Korea, compatriots abroad, old friends, comrades:

Marking today the 30th anniversary of the formation of the Consultative Council in the North for the Promotion of Peaceful Reunification [CCNPPR] and looking back, with emotion, on the rewarding course in which the CCNPPR has traversed the road of alliance with communism in the bosom of the Republic, we are sending to you this letter reflecting our ardent patriotic motive to achieve at an early date the independent and peaceful reunification of the fatherland, the supreme hope of the nation.

We, who have directly experienced the pain and misfortune of national division, are feeling the pressing need for national reunification more acutely than anybody else. Through our own experience obtained in the course of living in the North and South and through the contradictory approach of the South and North toward the reunification question, we have come to have a clear understanding of where the blueprint for true reunification and patriotism lies.

It is because of influences implanted from outside in the southern part of our fatherland, dominating our countrymen with antinational things, that the tragedy of division has continued for as long as 40 years. In other words, it is because the southern half of our fatherland has been turned into a colony of the United States, a country that is far away from South Korea across an ocean, and because the southern part has been transformed into a military base for the U.S. world stragegy [that we continue tc suffer the tragedy of division].

On the basis of its wrong policy toward Korea, the United States began to impose military rule in South Korea as soon as it sneaked into it, suppressed by use of force the patriotic advance of the South Korean masses for the building of a unified democratic, independent state, and drove home a stake of division in the hearts of our people who aspired for reunification by forcibly holding unilateral elections and by establishing a unilateral government in South Korea.

Indeed, the U.S. imperialists are the ones who have divided our people as well as the archvillain who stands in the way of our country's peaceful reunification. In addition to the suffering of division, the U.S. imperialists are now trying to place our fellow countrymen in the southern half of the fatherland under a pall of nuclear war holocaust.

Also, the United States does not hope for democratization of the South Korean society, but rather has consistently enforced a policy of imposing fascist military rule on South Korea.

The off-stage political parties, organizations, and personages of all walks of life in South Korea should extricate themselves from illusions about the United States and embark on a road of rectifying South Korea, which has been ruined by a pro-U.S. attitude, through an anti-U.S. attitude.

The U.S. imperialists have ruthlessly massacred patriotic and democratic personages supported by the South Korean people simply because they called for national independence and sovereignty and peaceful reunification. Mr. Yo Un-hynong, alias Mongyang, president of the People's Party; Mr. Kim Ku, alias Paekbom, president of the Korean Independence Party; and Mr Cho Pong-am, alias Chuksan, president of the Progressive Party, were all massacred in this manner. The assassination of Mr Chang Chun-ha, of the United Democratic Party, falls into the same category. The arrest, imprisonment, expulsion, and placing under house arrest of Kim Tae-chung, who once ran as the New Democratic Party's presidential candidate, following his abduction is a case in point.

As long as the U.S. imperialist troops of aggression remain in South Korea, whoever comes to power in South Korea will have to play the role of spokesman for the U.S. colony.

We wholeheartedly call on all the political parties, organizations, and personages of all walks of life in South Korea to resolutely join in the struggle for national salvation of the South Korean youths, students, and masses of all walks of life for the anti-U.S. cause for independence and the antifascist cause for democratization.

We the personages in the North who came from the South are watching you -- off-stage political parties, organizations, and personages of all walks of life in South Korea, our old friends and colleagues -- actively launch the antifascist cause for democratization, including the campaign of collecting 10 million signatures for the revision of the Constitution with deep interest.

The Chon Tu-hwan ring, which finds itself cornered in the face of the anti-U.S. and antifascist struggle, is making its desperate last-ditch efforts to split and subvert the patriotic and democratic force by dividing and ruling them through the double-faced tactics of suppressing on the one hand and placating on the other under its U.S. master's instigation.

At a grave time when confrontation between independence and subordination, and between democracy and fascism is becoming more acute with the passage of time, political parties, organizations, and personages of all walks of life in South Korea should form a powerful united anti-U.S. and anti-Chon Tu-hwan front together with the patriotic youths, students, and masses of all walks of life, and rise as one in the pan-national anti-U.S. and antifascist resistance struggle for national salvation.

With the tense situation on the Korean peninsula recently becoming extremely acute, North-South dialogues that had been arranged after much difficulty have not only come to a halt at one stroke, but the situation is also edging toward a phase capable of triggering a war, a nuclear war, by any accidental incident.

Recently, the KPA Supreme Command put forward an important new proposal for holding a meeting between military authorities to save the country and people from such dangers of war. We are now appealing to the political parties, organizations, and personages of all walks of life in South Korea to warmly support the new peace proposal for holding a meeting between military authorities, between those who hold real power in the military from the North and South, out of the ardent aspirations for peace and the peaceful reunification of our country, and put pressure on the United States and the South Korean side that have refused to accept this proposal.

Also, political parties, organizations, personages of all walks of life in South Korea, and compatriots abroad should support the proposal for cohosting the 1988 Olympics advanced by the government of the republic in order to create a favorable environment for realizing the peaceful reunification of Korea, and actively struggle to realize it.

The path of struggle for turning the South Korean society into one governed by independence and for national reunification cannot be a broad and level highway, as a matter of course. However, if all the patriotic forces in the North and South and abroad who love the country and people join forces in struggle, they can open a path leading to turning the society into one governed by independence and democracy in South Korea, and will eventually be able to achieve an independent reunification of the fatherland without fail by overcoming all obstacles laid before reunification.

Anticommunism is a path of confrontation, war, treason, and division. Alliance with communism is a path leading to patriotism and reunification.

We the personages in the North who came from the South in search of the alliance with communism and the patriotic path have come to the sharp realization through our own experience over the past 30 years that the chuche-oriented communists in the northern half of the republic, who are under the wise leadership of the great leader President Kim Il-song, the lodestar of national reunification, and the dear Mr Kim Chong-il [titles as heard] are the true patriots who are generous enough to collaborate and unite with anyone among the nationalists in South Korea and among the Korean compatriots aborad who hope for peace and the reunification of the country in perfect harmony, regardless of their past.

We sincerely hope that the political parties, organizations, and personages of all walks of life in South Korea and compatriots abroad will abandon the jaundiced view and suspicions about the communists in the North and join them on a path of patriotism through alliance with communism and reunification, transcending differences in thoughts, systems, factions, political views, and religions.

We more than hope that all the patriotic forces from the North and South and abroad will have a glorious reunion in the reunification plaza where the banner of the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo is flying, cherishing their proud contribution made to the fatherland and people on that day replete with moving emotion.

NODONG SINMUN MARKS THREE PRINCIPLES ANNIVERSARY

[NODONG SINMUN 4 July editorial: "Let us Achieve the Independent and Peaceful Reunification of the Nation by Realizing the Three Principles"]

[Text] A total of 14 years have passed since the publication of the historic 4 July North-South joint statement. The publication of the joint statement, an epochal event in our people's struggle for the independent and peaceful reunification of the nation and for the North-South relations, was a brilliant embodiment of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's policy for independent and peaceful reunfication and was a lofty fruition of his wise leadership.

As the 1970's dawned, the respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who always leads our people vigorously to national reunification, put forth a comprehensive policy for the North-South negotiations based on his understanding of the demand in development of the rapidly changing situation at home and abroad and opened a path for contact between North and South. He advanced the three principles of independence, great national unity, and peaceful reunification as the basic program for national reunification.

Thus, the high-level talks were realized between the North and the South and the historic 4 July joint statement with the three principles for national reunification as its basic content was published.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught. The three principles that stiupulate the independent achievement of reunification without the interference of outside forces, promotion of great national unity trnscending the differences in ideology, ideas and systems; and peaceful reunification of the divided nation without resorting to exercises of the armed forces, serve as the starting point and a foundation for resolving the question of reunifying our fatherland.

The three principles are a historic milestone which solely elucidates the correct way to resolve the question of reunifying our nation. With the publication of the 4 July North-South joint statement, the basic message of which is the three principles of independence, peaceful reunification, and great national unity, the three principles of national reunification advanced by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song became the nation's single common program of reunification jointly confirmed and solemnly proclaimed internally and externally by North and South.

Over the past 14 years since the publication of the 4 July North-South joint statement to date, our party and the government of the republic repeatedly put forth fair and reasonable proposals to implement the ideals and principles of the joint statement, from issues of removing the status of military confrontation between the North and the South and of realizing manifold collaboration and exchanges in many fields to expedite the cause of national reunification in accordance with the ardent aspirations and wishes of the entire nation, to the plan of founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo, and made persistent and patient efforts to achieve them.

However, our realistic plans to realize the three principles of national reunification have not been achieved due to the treacherous act of the South Korean puppets and their maneuvers for permanent division.

The former dictator in South Korea, turning his back on solemn pledges made before the nation through the joint statement, adhered to depending on outside forces, anticommunist confrontation, fascism and war maneuvers with the support of the U.S. imperialists, running counter to the three principles of national reunification. He finally concocted the Yusin fascist dictatorship and put forth a statement for permanent division which assumed the fabrication of two Koreas as its policy and committed a treacherous act by unilaterally breaking the joint statement.

Following his predecessor's lines for depending on outside forces, for anticommunist fascism and for division, traitor Chon Tu-hwan turned up as the most vicious executor of the U.S. imperialists' colonial subjugation policy on South Korea and policy for war. Thus, he is blocking the road of reunification, the aspiration of the entire nation.

The Chon Tu-hwan ring is the fascist murderer and vicious enemy of reunification who, under the U.S. imperialists' behind-the-scenes manipulation, atrociously suppressed the residents of Kwangju who rose in peaceful demonstrations for democracy and reunification, and who massacred several thousand fellow countrymen.

The Chon Tu-hwan ring suspended the North-South dialogue by staging the "Team Spirit-86" joint military exercise while following the U.S. imperialists' policy of war and pursuing the line of confrontation against us. It has cruelly repressed patriotic students and people from all walks of life who demand independence, democracy, and reunification while raving about dialogue and reunification. It runs amok with war preparations and military provocation against us while viciously making anticommunist confrontation noises on the pretext of a nonexistent threat of southward invasion.

The ringleaders who instigate the South Korean puppets' maneuvers of fascism, division, and war are the U.S. imperialists. Putting forth the fabrication of two Koreas as their basic policy toward Korea, the U.S. imperialists have instigated the puppets to fascism, war, and permanent division to implement their policy.

The Chon Tu-hwan ring has infringed upon the demand of the students and people for independence and democracy with guns and bayonets, it has attempted to prolong its power by kicking off anticommunist war maneuvers and aggravating tension, and it is being manipulated by the U.S. imperialists behind the scenes. The Chon Tu-hwan ring's maneuvering for permanent division of the nation by putting forth the issue of unilateral and simultaneous entry into the United Nations and of cross-contact and cross-recognition and it's mean maneuverings to create international circumstances favorable for two Koreas are in accordance with the U.S. imperialists' scenario.

To achieve their aggressive Asian strategy, the U.S. imperialists openly declared that the Korean peninsula is the first line of the U.S. strategy and their frontline defensive area. They are accelerating the formation of the U.S.-Japan-South Korea tripartite military alliance, having turned South Korea into the largest nuclear magazine in the Far East, and are frequently staging large-scale war exercises in South Korea to perfect nuclear war preparations.

Because of this, an extremely grave and dangerous situation in which a nuclear war may break out at any moment has been created in our country.

If realistic measures are not worked out under circumstances in which the armed forces of the two sides sharply confront each other at the military Demarcation Line and in which the atmosphere of war is being enhanced, the situation may be aggravated and a military clash may occur at any moment.

We have repeatedly proposed holding gatherings between the North and South to work out realistic measures to eliminate the danger of war and to ease tension and have knocked on the door for dialogue with the United States many times. We have also proposed holding tripartite talks in order for us and the United States to replace the Armistice Agreement with a peace agreement and for us and South Korea to adopt a nonaggression declaration. We proposed holding North-South parliamentary talks to discuss the issue of announcing a joint declaration concerning nonaggression as the basic content of the talks.

However, none of our proposals has been adopted due to the hindrance maneuvers of the United States and the South Korean authorities.

In June, the KPA Supreme Command proposed holding talks among the military authorities of the republic, the United States, and South Korea to discuss issues of suspending military exercises and the expansion of armaments to ease tension on the Korean peninsula, of reducing troops and armaments, and of observing the Armistice Agreement.

The proposal of the KPA Supreme Court is designed to hold meetings of those who have real military power in the North and the South to seek ways to resolve the problems under circumstances in which the Military Armistice Commission cannot fulfill the desired functions to relax tension.

If realistic measures are taken to eliminate the danger of war at the talks among military authorities, it will undoubtedly bring about a new turning point to ease tension on the Korean peninsula.

However, the United States and the South side show the attitude of refusing [kobujok taedo] our proposal while slandering it as propaganda and unconstructive. If the sides were to meet they would know if our proposal is propaganda or constructive. It is not an appropriate attitude for one to provoke another before a meeting or discussion. This is not the position to resolve the question.

If peace is valuable to them and if they are interested in alleviating tension, they should have no ground not to accept our proposal. In a recent statement, the government of the republic declared that we would not produce nor introduce nuclear weapons, would not offer to foreign countries [space] for nuclear bases, and would not allow the internal passage of nuclear weapons of foreign countries. At the same time, we demanded that the United States stop deploying new nuclear weapons in South Korea and reduce and withdraw all weapons that it has already deployed. If any negotiation is necessary in connection with this, we will sit face to face with the United States and the South Korean authorities any time regardless of the type of negotiation. They have kept silent about this, too. Their arrogant attitude clearly reveals the pacifist mask that they wear.

The reunification of the fatherland is the greatest national desire of our people. Our plan to reunify the fatherland by establishing a federal state with the present systems of the North and South intact is already well known to the world. The plan is established a federal state is the most reasonable and realistic one for reunification, a plan in which the three major principles for the reunification of the fatherland are embodied.

Even though they are babbling about reunification, in reality, the South Korean divisionists are pursuing the perpetuation of division. Under the U.S. imperialists' control, the South Korean puppets have invited the 24th Olympic games to be held in Seoul and are maneuvering to use the Olympic games as means to perpetuate division in Korea and to fabricate two Koreas.

Seoul, which is politically unstable and where tension is promoted, is not a place suitable for holding the Olympic games. Moreover, holding the Olympic games in one side of a divided country will only result in promoting division. If the Olympic games are used as a means to fan national division by divisionists at home and abroad, this will run counter to the ideal of the Olympic games that it must promote friendship and unity among sports figures and contribute to the peace of the world and will result in the division of the Olympic movement. If the ideal of the Olympic games is to be realized and if the ties of a homogeneous race are to be linked, cohosting the 1983 Olympic games by the North and the South must be realized as demanded by us.

In order to reunify a divided fatherland, the people in the North and the South must achieve greater unity under a single national ideology, transcending differences in ideas and systems. The North and the South are of the same race and have a common interest in the reunification of the fatherland. Even though the people in the North and the people in the South have different political ideologies, principles, and assertions, these cannot become obstacles to realizing the reunification of the country.

The position of our party and the government of the republic on realizing the independent and peaceful reunification of the country on the basis of the three major principles is firm. We will make all efforts to realize this in the future, too.

The anti-U.S., antifascist, antiwar, and antinuclear struggle for independence and democracy to oppose subjugation, fascism, and war, to achieve national independence and deomocracy, and to maintain peace by the South Korean youths, students, and people is a just, patriotic struggle linked to the reunification of the fatherland. The South Korean people will not lower the banner of struggle until their just demand is realized. Our people will without fail achieve the historical cause of independent and peaceful reunification by joining hands with the partiotic forces in South Korea.

VNS ROUNDTABLE TALK ON SOUTH STUDENT MOVEMENT

SK040227 (Clandestine) Voice of National Salvation in Korean to South Korea 0300 GMT 1 Jul 86

[Roundtable talk among Madame Yun Chong-won, Ko Il-chol, and announcer Min Hui-chong as moderator in the "Feature Program": "Coordinates for Modern Men's Struggle"]

[Text] [MIN] As you may know, last April our SKNDR [South Korean National Democratic Front] Central Committee greatly encouraged South Korean youths, students, and patriotic masses of all walks of life who have risen in the sacred struggle for independence, democracy, and reunification by publishing the April Declaration entitled "Current Coordinated and Direction of the South Korean Student Movement," while at the same time throwing a scare into the enemy.

Student throughout the country, including members of the Chamintu [Committee for Anti-U.S. and Antifascist Struggle for Independence and Democratization] at Seoul National University, are now analyzing and studying the "Current Coordinates and Direction of the South Korean Student Movement" published by our SKNDF and find in it coordinates for their action.

We are here today to discuss the April Declaration. Will you please explain against what background the SKNDF Central Committee published the declaration?

[Ko] We can talk about the background against which the SKNDF published the declaration in many ways. I believe that the declaration was timed to coincide with the growing need to actively encourage the anti-U.S. and antigovernment struggle of the youths, students, and masses of all walks of life which has surged ahead with each passing day and to present them with correct coordinates for their struggle.

As you may know, toward the end of last year and last February resistance struggle by the entire population Haiti and the Philippines toppled pro-U.S. dictatorial regimes in succession. Such a course of development served to encourage our South Korean masses who are engaged in the anti-U.S. and antigovernment movement.

Following this, patriotic youths, students, and masses of all walks of life began to stage their anti-U.S. and antigovernment struggle in which they had already been engaged more actively throughout the country.

These two ensuing developments led to the publication of the SKNDF Central Committee's April Declaration.

[Yun] The SKNDF's April Declaration can also be viewed as a response to a need to sum up the South Korean youth and student movement which has left a proud record in history and to let the youth and student movement know what coordinates and direction to follow.

[Min] Yes. I believe that the South Korean youth and student movement has decorated a proud chapter in the long history.

[Ko] Right. As you may know, from its first day, the South Korean student movement has achieved giant strides in its development with an important sense of mission during the course of tenacious struggle. Always standing behind the South Korean masses' pan-national anti-U.S. resistance struggle for national salvation waged shortly after the 15 August national liberation to oppose the U.S. military rule and the policy of national division were our intelligent youths and students. Engraved in every step of the struggle are the exploits of the hot-blooded students.

[Yun] The movement of our youths and students, I mean the South Korean youths and students, opened a new turning point in the wake of 19 April 1960 after crossing its path of struggle in the 1950's. Following the 19 April uprising, the student movement embarked on a new path of tenacious development with a conviction that it can throw asunder and kind of stronghold of fascist colonial rule if it stages a struggle by joining forces with the masses of all walks of life.

[Min] Indeed, our students have tenaciously traversed a path of struggle without experiencing any frustration under the fascist pall. It was also students that played a leading role in the popular resistance in Pusan and Masan toward the end of the 1970's that brought an end to the fascist Yusin system.

[Ko] Right. The hot-blooded students who had raised high a banner of democracy and patriotism, painting the October anti-Yusin struggle and the 3 April uprising with blood despite the nightmarish Yusin that raged on in the 1970's, fully displayed their wisdom and courage inherent to their youthfulness again in the struggles in Pusan and Masan.

The democratic resistance struggle waged by our youths and students in Pusan and Masan was not only a brilliant summing up of the anti-Yusin struggle of the 1970's, but a breakthrough that provided that popular movement of the 1980's with an outlet.

[Yun] The resistance struggle in Pusan and Masan, waged by the brave youths and students together with the masses of all walks of life, brought down the Yusin dictator, led the U.S. fascist colonial rule in South Korea to a crisis, and caused the (?masses' resistance) to surge ahead further.

[Min] The South Korean youth and student movement which has decorated proud chapters in history with wisdom and bravery decade after decade can be said to have entered a new stage in the wake of the Kwangju popular uprising that occurred in May 1980.

[Ko] The Kwangju popular uprising in May 1980 was an explosion of the frustration that had accumulated under the U.S. fascist colonial rule. Following the Kwangju popular uprising, the mass movement of the South Korean masses changed its direction from an antifascist struggle for democratization to an anti-U.S. struggle for independence.

[Yun] Right. Indeed, the Kwangju popular uprising can be said to be a historic watershed that has changed the direction of the antifascist struggle for democratization into an anti-U.S. resistance struggle. From this time on, South Korea, which had hitherto been a land where no anti-U.S. winds blew, has been turned into a land of heated anti-U.S. sentiment, and the anti-U.S. struggle began to expand further with each passing day.

[Min] The youth and student movement, which has left indelible prints on the history of the South Korean people's struggle for democratization in the course of its advancement, has entered a new higher stage under the slogan of "National Reunification, the liberation of the masses, and the attainment of denocracy," while winning new triumphs.

For the student movement to continue to triumph, it should solve many problems.

[Ko] Right. The South Korean student movement today has reached an important stage to refresh its historical mission and to take off anew. As some of the Chamintu and Minmintu [Committee for Anti-Imperialist and Antifascist Struggle for National Democratization] say, the most pressing demand of the South Korean student movement for its development at present is to define the movement's guiding ideology as clearly as possible.

As is widely known, a mass movement's guiding ideology is something that presents coordinates for the movements. It is also a beacon fire that illuminates the direction in which the movement should follow.

This being the case, the student movement can hasten its vigorous advance on the right track without being embroiled in any amalgam of ideological trends or in any factional feuds only when it is armed with a correct guiding ideology.

[Yun] For ships floating on vast oceans to reach their right destinations along the correct sea routes, they need a mariner's compass. Exactly for the same reason, whether the student movement will triumph or fail boils down to the issue of ideology. The slogan of "National reunification, the liberation of the masses, and the attainment of democracy," the so-called Sammin slogan that the students in South Korea came up with, can be said to be a very valuable banner of struggle needed to make the student movement surge forward anew.

[Ko] The Sammin slogan engraved in the banner of the South Korean student movement, I believe, is an extremely just slogan as it reflects the demand of the times as well as the aspirations of the nation and the masses. Not only has this slogan embodied the principal spirit of the thought of the times, the thought of independence, but it also represents the masses' aspirations. Therefore, the youth and student movement should further consummate the Sammin slogan in accordance with the demands of the developing situation.

[Min] I believe that the South Korean student movement now faces a task to define its own ideology of struggle more clearly, while at the same time to do good work in raising consciousness in the youths and students and in organizing them.

[Ko] That is right. One of the important tasks now facing the South Korean student movement is to raise consciousness in the students and organize them. As you may know, raising consciousness in the students can be said to be a prerequisite step of the student movement. The students' movement of raising consciousness is a movement of arming themselves with an independent ideology to discharge their patriotic mission and to play their role. It is also a movement of arming themselves with theories.

The ideology and consciousness that the students should absorb before anything else is the chuche idea and its embodiment, consciousness of national independence. The consciousness of national independence is the driving force behind the national liberation struggle. This being the case, the movement of raising consciousness, whose aim is to develop the national liberation struggle, should be conducted, without fail, in a way that focuses on the instilling of the consciousness of national independence. And this should serve as a method of eliminating pro-U.S. flunkeyist and subordinate consciousness and of encouraging the anti-U.S. consciousness and the consciousness of independence and sovereignty to grow.

[Yun] The movement of raising consciousness can attain its aim only when it is conducted in the smoothest forms and ways and also in a more devoted way in accordance with the concrete reality in which the students find themselves.

The youths and students have recently begun to study and spread advanced thoughts through their ideological group activities, and underground journalism has strengthened exploration and popularization of such [word indistinct]. Do you not think this is a great advancement in the development of the movement of raising consciousness? So, today's reality requires that students further enliven their various forms of group activities to absorb advanced thoughts, further activate their public relations activity to instill such thoughts, and further diversify and popularize the means of spreading and popularizing ideological books and underground leaflets.

[Min] In my opinion, students need to pay greater attention to organizing their fellow students, while at the same time paying equal attention to raising consciousness in them. What do you think of this?

[Ko] The organizational unity of the student ranks can be said to be the lifeline of the student movement. The heavy role of the students as the main unit can be achieved only when a strong organizational unity has been achieved in the ranks of the student movement.

Like most other things, the organizational unity of the ranks of the student movement cannot be expected to be spontaneous. The organizational unity of the student ranks can be achieved only by its core members. The leading cadres of the student movement are not trained in the narrow ivory tower of the campus without any help from outside. They are to be reared and trained in the course of practical struggle.

[Yun] Then, the most pressing question with regard to the student movement is to pay greater attention to training the core members of the student movement, to train them in practical struggles, and to expand their ranks.

I believe that, in particular, primary attention should be paid to actively protecting the core students from the enemy's suppression. At the same time, it is imperative to complement and expand self-autonomous student groups in the universities and see to it that these student groups embrace more students without interruption.

[Min] I believe we can continue talking about the issues arising in organizing the students for a very long time. Do you not think it is necessary to have scinetific strategy and tactics to make the student movement a success?

[Ko] Of course, they are necessary. Scientific strategy and tactics can be described as a mighty weapon to make the student movement a success. Only when it is waged on the basis of scientific strategy and tactics can the student struggle expedite the course of raising consciousness and of organizing the student massed [as heard] and attain the task and goal of the movement successfully.

The initial precondition that is necessary to make the student struggle develop on the basis of scientific strategy and tactics is to understand the prevailing situation in a most correct way. Only when it has a correct understanding of the situation at the very outset, can the student movement choose struggle slogans and ways to stage struggle appropriate to the situation and stage all struggles most effectively.

[Yun] Let me talk a little more about the issue concerning having a correct understanding of the initial stage of the student movement. In order to have a correct understanding of the [work indistinct], it is imperative to see the situation not as a group of spontaneous actions, but in a multidimensional manner, and to have insight into it. It is also imperative to approach the situation on one's own while taking into consideration understanding the role of secondary influences on the main situation.

[Min] You mean to say that it is equally important to make a correct judgment of the situation in order to stage the student movement effectively. Now, do you not think it is also important to implement struggle slogans in the course of staging the student movement?

[Ko] Yes. It is very important to correctly implement slogans in a mass movement. Only when the slogans are correctly presented can they advance the student movement in a wasy that is goal-oriented and expand it among the masses. Correctly presenting slogans is also necessary to systematically deepen the mass movement.

It is imperative to present slogans by correctly combining slogans which reflect the basic goal of the struggle and tactical slogans that reflect goals that must be attained immediately. Only when this is achieved can they guarantee the direction and practical aspect of the movement.

[Yun] You have just explanied the importance of slogans in a mass movement. In reality it is desirable for the historical task looming before the South Korean student movement to be performed toward combining the basic slogans which call for waging the anti-U.S. struggle for independence with slogans which call for democratizing society and achieving peaceful reunification.

The present slogans of our student movement in the context of the anti-U.S. movement call for checking and foiling the machination of U.S. colonial rule and a nuclear war, for preserving peace on the Korean peninsula, for opposing support for the dictatorial regime, and for investigating the truth of the Kwangju incident. These slogans in the movement for democracy call for repealing the fascist constitution, overthrowing the dictatorial regime, rejecting Seoul's hosting the 1986 and 1988 games -- an attempt to justify long-term power -- and achieveing campus autonomy. These slogans should call for guarantees of free discussion of reunification questions, for an end to the North-South confrontation, and for achievement of national unity.

[Min] Today the South Korean student movement is assigned the task of comprehensively stepping up various forms of struggle to meet the requirements of the situation's development. In particular, it is important to closely combine the student movement with the movement of people from all walks of life

[Ko] That is right. The close combination of the student movement with the movement of people from all walks of life firmly guarantees the epochal development and victory of the struggle to liberate the people. Only when the student movement is fused into one entity which encompases the people can this movement possess invincible might and assume a leading and vanguard role in the people's liberation movement.

[Yun] It is important to achieve [words indistinct] in combining the student movement with the movement of people of all walks of life. Workers are members of decisive forces which influence success or failure in the people's liberation movement and of the leading class which most highly reflects the requirements of the situation. Therefore, the students should pay close attntion to maintaining ties between [words indistinct] so that they can develop the student movement into a true people-minded movement on a most firm foundation and open a new phase in the struggle to liberate our people. To achieve ties between [words indistinct], the students should mingle with workers, learn from their organizational nature and from their determination, disseminate advanced ideologies among them, strengthen organizational ties with them, and wage a joint struggle with them.

[Ko] The students should correctly understand that the anti-U.S. struggle to liberate the people can attain victory only through positive participation in this struggle by a broad strata of the people and their united effort. They should pay close attention to waging a joint struggle with all patriotic forces, including workers, peasants, patriotic soldiers, religious figures, intellectuals, and democrats. I would like to stress in this regard that those concerned should not become extremely left-leaning or right-leaning in the anti-U.S. and antidictatorial movements. If they become left-leaning by committing radical acts, they will lose the masses of the people. If they become right-leaning, they will surrender to the enemy. Thus, they will finally undermine the movement.

By making the struggle of our patriotic students assume left-leaning or right-leaning natures, the United States and the Chon Tu-hwan ring are trying to prevent this struggle form winning support form the masses of the people. By making this struggle traverse the road of right-leaning -- the road of surrender -- they are trying to exterminate this struggle. Therefore, the students should become highly vigilant. The problem for us is to awaken the broad strata of the people and move the student movement toward helping them to willingly join the anti-U.S. and antidictatorial struggles.

[Moderator] That is very right. I believe that the April manifesto issued by the Central Committee of the South Korean National Democratic Front won support and sympathy from students and from various social circles which caused the enemy to become uneasy and panic-stricken because this manifesto analyzed and assessed the 40-year course of the South Korean student movement and delineated the coordinates and direction of the student movement of the contemporary era. I also believe that the students should be proud of their being members of the leading force of the struggle to liberate the people and should be much more courageous in the struggle to achieve independence, democracy, and reunification. It is time to close. Thank you for your useful comments.

NODONG SINMUN GREETS ANNIVERSARY OF CPC FOUNDING

[NODONG SINMUN 1 July editorial: "The Path of Struggle Embroidered With Glory and Victories -- Marking the 65th Anniversary of the Founding of the CPC"]

[Text] Today, the Chinese working class and people are marking the significant 65th anniversary of the founding of the CPC, their true vanguard unit and guiding force. Marking this day, our party members and people are extending the most wholehearted congratulations and militant greetings to all CPC members and the fraternal Chinese people.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: The founding of the CPC was a historical event of epochal significance in the revolutionary development of the Chinese people.

The founding ofthe CPC was an important event of historical significance in the revolutionary struggle of the Chinese working masses, including the Chinese working class, to achieve class and national liberation against the domination and plunder of the domestic reactionary ruling clique and alien aggressors.

The bloody resistance struggle by the popular masses against the oppression and exploitation of the feudal bureaucratic clique and against alien forces' aggession and plunder had continued in the Chinese land even before the founding of the CPC. Unable to stand the maltreatment, plunder, poverty, and starvation anymore, the masses of all walks of life, including the workers and peasants, rose bravely in a sacred struggle for class and national liberation.

However, because there was no correct leadership of a revolutionary party, they had to go through heartrending failures at every attempt. The ardent hope for the leadership of a revolutionary party, which the Chinese revolutionaries and patriots aspired to have, was realized in the end when the CPC was founded in Shanghai. With the founding cf the CPC, the working class and popular masses in China came to have a new type of Marxist-Leninist party as well as a militant staff office. The founding of the CPC also brought the Chinese revolution to a stage of new development conducted under the leadership of a true vanguard unit.

From this time on, the Chinese people nave ushered in a new era in which they had to victoriously blaze the path of a treacherous revolutionary struggle under the leadership of a revolutionary party. For the past 65 years since the day it was founded, the CPC has led the Chinese working class and all the people to victory as the organizer of and guiding force for all the victories won in the Chinese revolution amid the fierce class struggle against the enemies within and without.

By organizing and mobilizing the popular masses in the domestic revolutionary war and other protracted and arduous struggles such as the anti-Japanese war, the CPC has achieved a victory of a pan-national scale in the people's revolution and founded the People's Republic of China, the first true sovereignty of the people ever founded in China's thousands of years of history.

With the founding of the PRC under the leadership of the CPC, the Chinese people were able to bring about a fundamental change in their position and become the true masters of their nation and society.

The founding of the PRC changed the relationship of forces in the international arena in a way that decisively favors the revolution. After leading the people's revolution to victory, the CPC fundamentally changed the apperance of China, which had lagged behind, and built a new China full of life in the vast land by actively mobilizing the Chinese People's revolutionary zeal and creativity for socialist construction under the revolutionary slogan of self-reliance and arduous struggle.

Victory in the people's revolution, the establishment of the PRC, and the birth of socialist China--these are the great contributions made by the CPC before the Chinese people and world revolution.

The CPC is a party which has glorious traditions, rich experience in struggle, and accomplishment. It waged anti-Japanese and anti-U.S. struggles, fought against domestic reactionary factions of various stripes, fought against the deviations of either the left or the right, engaged in a united front, and launched a long march. It is a party which has carried out a people's democratic revolution and a socialist revolution. it is also a party which has achieved brilliant victory in this course by overcoming all dificulties.

The CPC, which has continued an arduous but proud history of struggle, has now achieved great success in the revolutionary struggle by leading the Chinese people in a new struggle since the 3d plenary meeting of the 11th party Central Committee in particular. Under the leadership of the CPC leadership, including the respected Comrades Hu Yaobang and Deng Xiaoping, the CPC has now entered a new stage of development. The party ranks have been organized, temporary obstacles laid on the advancing path have been eliminated, stability and unity have been achieved on a pan-national scale, and socialist economic construction is now being carried out successfully.

Uniting firmly around the CPC, the Chinese people are now vigorously accelerating the struggle for socialist modernization by joining in the struggle to implement the decisions of the 12th party congress and various other plenary meetings that followed the 12th party congress.

Thanks to the correct leadership of the CPC and creative zeal of the Chinese people, China increased industrial and agricultural products by 16.4 percent last year as compared to that of the previous year and increased the people's per capital income by 12.3 percent. Great successes have been achieved in the fields of transportation, science, technology, education, culture, and public health.

With great successes attained in various domains of the national economy last year, the Sixth 5-Year Plan came to a conclusion as a brilliant success. As a result of annual growth in production during the period of the Sixth 5-Year Plan, a new phase in which the national economy is stable and is achieving a balanced development as a whole has been created. Also, as a result of this, the urban and rural residents' income has increased and the people's living standard has been improved.

The successful implementation of the Sixth 5-year Plan is a powerful testimony to the superiority of the socialist system. Based on such successes, the Chinese people have now vigorously set out on their new march for the Seventh 5-Year Plan which begins this year.

The changes taking place in China demonstrate that the CPC lines correspond to the reality in China and that they are displaying great vitality.

The CPC is actively struggling to reunify the whole land by returning Taiwan, its inseparable territory, to the fatherland while consistenly enforcing a peace-loving foreign policy of independence and sovereignty.

Today, the international position ot the CPC and the PRC is growing daily and their influence on the settlement of international issues and on the devleopment of the international situation is growing stronger. The growing and strengthening of the PCC's might and its prosperity and development serve as a great contribution to accelerating the common cause of the world's revolutionary people for independence, sovereignty, socialism, and peace against imperialism.

The Korean people genuinely rejoice over the successes being attained by the CPC in socialist construction for the four modernizations as if they were their own. Korea and China are the closest neighbors who are linked to each other across a river, and the peoples of the two countries of Korea and China are credible revolutionary comrades-in-arms and close class brothers who established blood ties in the course of struggle to achieve a common goal while opposing their common enemy.

the peoples of our two countries have fought hand in hand against the Japanese imperialists and against the U.S. imperialists; they have fought in the land of China and in the land of Korea; they have fought together in the past; even today they are advancing on the same front for independence, sovereignty, socialism, and peace.

The history of such a common struggle waged by the peoples of the two countries, Korea and China, is a history of beautiful friendship in which the two peoples overcame difficulties and ordeals by sharing woe and weal with each other and mutually supported and encourgaed each other with a comradely sense of obligation while blazing a victorious path.

Korean-Chinese friendship is a great friendship which the leaders of the two countries' parties and states have established and nurtured themselves. Because it is based on the particularly close friendly relation between the leaders of party and state in the two countries, Korean-Chinese friendship has solid roots and is a genuine and solid friendship displaying its invincible vitality.

In particular, mutual visits and meetings in recent years between the leaders of party and state of the two countries have become events that are worth recording in the history of Korean-Chinese friendship as special events.

Today, mutual visits and contacts of delegations between the parties and governments of the two countries and in various fields are active, and economic and cultural cooperation between the two countries is growing.

Korean-Chinese friendship is a common treasure that the parties and people of the two countries of Korea and China must value and make blossom and develop indefinitely. It is the firm conviction and will of our party and people to defend and make Korean-Chinese friendship, which has been sealed with blood in the flames of revolutionary struggle and which has overcome all stern difficulties of history, shine from generation to generation.

No matter how severe the storms and wind and difficulties may be in the future, our people will always advance forever hand in hand with the fraternal Chinese people on the same road of common struggle for victory in the socialist and communist cause and the cause of the world peace against imperialist aggression and war maneuvers.

The WPK members and Korean people are convinced that the fraternal CPC members and Chinese people will attain new victories in the overwhelming struggle for the four modernizations by uniting firmly around the CPC Central Committee, the organizer of all their victories, encourager, and guiding force.

U.S. CONGRESS RESOLUTION DENOUNCED AS 'ARROGANT'

SK280457 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0440 GMT 28 Jun 86

[Text] Pyongyang June 28 (KCNA) -- Dailies today come out with commentaries accusing the U.S. House of Representatives of demanding the North to work for the relaxation of the tension on the Korean peninsula in a very arrogant, tricky and impertinent "resolution" on June 24:

A signed commentary of NODONG SINMUN says:

The "resolution" is a tricky one intended to wave off the international community's condemnation of the belligerent moves of the U.S. imperialists to heighten the tension on the Korean peninsula, emasculate the struggle of the South Korean people and students against U.S. imperialism and for independence and legalize its occupation of South Korea and policy of division and war toward it.

Referring to the fact that the United States, the very one responsible for the heightened tension on the Korean peninsula, demanded the North to accept "cross recognition" and "simultaneous entry of the North and the South into the United Nations", the commentary says:

The brigandish demand that the North accept its divisive scheme is an intolerable insult to the entire Korean people struggling for the reunification of the country and an open challenge to the world's people desirous of peace in Korea and her peaceful reunification.

In bringing forward as ever "cross recognition" and "simultaneous entry into the United Nations", the United States disclosed its intention to keep Korea divided forever and hasten preparation for another war, keeping its forces in South Korea for an indefinite period. With no trick can the U.S. imperialists, splittists, and warmanaics, conceal their true colour.

TESTIMONY ON ARMS BUILD UP IN NORTH SCORED

[Text] Pyongyang July 2 [KCNA] -- U.S. Army Chief of Staff Wickham, in his secret congressional testimony, alleged that the DPRK was building up arms and had stockpiled offensive chemical weapons.

Refuting this, a signed commentary of NODONG SINMUN says:

It is the U.S. imperialists themselves who have deployed upwards of 1,000 pieces of nuclear weapons and large quantities of chemical weapons in South Korea and are planning to ship Pershing 2 missiles, cruise missiles and binary chemical weapons. They seek in this the heinous purpose of starting a nuclear and chemical war against our republic and, furthermore, attacking socialist countries with South Korea as the strongpoint.

Wickham's propaganda that the DPRK is building up arms is no more than a fiction to veil the U.S. own feverish aggressive arms buildup and war preparations.

Wickham in his testimony argued that the South Korean puppets were justified in harshly cracking down on the anti-U.S. struggle for independence and anti-fascist struggle for democracy of South Korean students and people in these remarks he glaringly revealed his truculent color as the mastermind of the bloody suppression of the Kwangju popular uprising a few years ago.

By defending the fascist repression by the puppet clique he suggested that the U.S. imperialists were intending to maintain their colonial rule in South Korea, keep that part of Korea under the U.S. forces' occupation and step up the moves for the provocation of another war.

U.S. SR-71 OVERFLIGHT REPORTED 3 JULY

[Text] The U.S. imperialist aggressors perpetrated an espionage act by infiltrating a spy plane into the airspace above the territorial waters in the East Sea of our country.

At around 1652 today, the U.S. imperialist aggressors infiltrated an SR-71 high-speed, high-altitude reconnaissance plane into the airspace above the territorial waters east of Kosong, our country, thus committing an espionage act against the northern half of the republic. For the month of June alone, their aerial espionage acts have numbered as many as 15. This shows that the United States is not interested in easing tension on the Korean peninsula and in dialogue.

JAPANESE DISTORTIONS OF HISTORY DISCUSSED

[Test] Pyongyang July 4 (KCNA) -- NODONG SINMUN today carries an article by Associate Doctor Kang Sok-hui of the history institute of the Academy of Social Science, under the headline "Unjustifiable Move of the Japanese Authorities to Distort The Korean History Again".

the headline "Unjustifiable Move of the Japanese Authorities to Distort The Korean History Again".

Pointing out that the Japanese authorities gave "instructions" to understate the number of Korean casualties at the hand of Japanese troops in the March 1 popular uprising in 1919 at 53,000 and cut other figures, too, in history textbooks for the high school authorized by the Japanese Ministry of Education, the paper says:

This is, in essense, an attempt to conceal the ferocity of their fascist colonial repressive rule in the past days and "justify" their reinvasion of South Korea and overseas expansion.

It continues: In dealing with the early Korea-Japan relations in the authorized textbooks, the Japanese authorities saw to it that "the people who came across the sea" was rewritten into "naturalized people" who were naturalised into Japanese, ceasing to be Koreans from the very beginning. This is intended to obliterate the role played by Koreans in the historic, economic and cultural development of Japan. And this vividly reveals their bid to gratify their desire for reinvasion of South Korea.

Pointing to the "instructions" of the Japanese authorities to change the "Korean language" into "Hanguk Korean language" in the authorized textbooks, the paper says: They seek in this to win the favor of the South Korean puppets with textbooks as a tantalizing political bait and realise their reinvasion designs on South Korea without difficulty.

The Japanese authorities made an ambiguous and distorted descriptions of stark historical facts, as can be seen in their attempt to whitewash the crimes committed by the Japanese aggressors in Korea in the 1592-1598 war. This is an artifice to conceal the brutality of the Japanese aggressors in the past.

With no amount of attempt can the Japanese authorities change or erase history of crimes committed agianst the Korean people.

MINJU CHOSON ON NAKASONE U.N. PROPOSAL

SK052253 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1517 GMT 5 Jul 86

[Text] Pyongyang July 5 (KCNA) -- Japanese Prime Minister Nakasone, in his speech July 2, drivelled that "simultaneous entry" of the North and South of Korea into the United Nations, which he had advertised at the Tokyo Western summit, could be "a tentative step" toward the reunification of Korea."

Dismissing this as a ridiculous sophism, a signted commentary of MINJU CHOSON Saturday says:

The "plan for the simultaneous entry into the United Nations" is a plan for the permanent division of Korea. In peddling this ware, Nakasone seeks the sinister aim of perpetuating the division of Korea at the request of the U.S. imperialists, therby stretching the crooked hand of political and economic domination ever deeper into South Korea and, furthermore, realising reinvasion designs on Korea.

The Japanese reactionaries' cry for "simultaneous U.N. admission" is a criminal act openly challenging the Korean people's purpose and desire for peace on the Korean peninsula and its peaceful reunification.

DIVERSE OPINIONS ON CONSTITUTIONAL REFORM VIEWED

[From the "News in Review" column by Political Editor Kim Myong-sik: "Age of Hundred Flowers' Arrives Here"]

[Text] Any keen-eyed observer of current developments in Korea is likely to arrive at the conclusion that an "age of a hundred flowers" is coming to this Republic.

The intense constitutional debate now going on in different sectors of society is obviously the main source of this general impression but there are many more signs of pluralism growing in the country.

The academic world, both faculties and students, is of course the leader in the orchestration of various political and ideological calls, as well as social and economic claims. Still, voices are no less assertive in labor, literary and religious circles.

Even within political parties, traditionally the most disciplined institution in the nation, diversity in opinions is clearly seen over such a crucial issue as constitutional reform.

The Democratic Justice Party has just started public hearings in provincial cites as a means to publicize its current theme of "anti-direct election" in a counter-fire against the opposition call for direct presidential polls.

But indications are that the sessions will hardly be homophonous as earlier debates in Seoul contained many different ideas on the form of government and economic provisions to be spelled out in a new constitution.

In a recent caucus, rep. Yi Yong-hun who is a noted lawyer, engaged in frontal criticism of the party's rejection of the direct presidential election formula. The provincial sessions may see the emergence of some of his kind.

As to the question of whether the projected basic law should clearly prescribe de-concentration of businesses or other economic principles, opinions within the ruling party are sharply split.

In the main opposition New Korea Democratic Party, where party president Yi Min-u's "ban" on advocacy of systems other than the direct presidential election formula is in effect, there are endless individual objections and more organized dissent from minor factions.

Yi Chol-sung champions the parliamentary cabinet system, though his rejection of the party policy may emanate from his antagonism towards the "two Kims" as much as from purely ideological grounds.

The pluralistic trend is also found in the creation of new parties by some maverick figures in the opposition world. At least two parties are in the making, with the titles of "the People's Democratic Party" and "the Third Generation Party," respectively.

Most dazzling are perhaps the ramifications of those dissident organizations. In addition to such well-known acronyms as "Minmintu," "Chamintu," "Mintongnyon" and "Minchu," new entries make the list day by day.

The riotous demonstrations in Inchon last May 3 were an alarming display of the great bariety of the nation's dissident movements. People were shocked not only at the radicalism of their slogans but at the diversity of groups represented in the streets.

Among the newer organizations is "Mingayon," which is composed of the families of students and workers who were arrested in connection with various protest actions.

Its members met each other for the first time on their visits to investigation agencies in search of their kin, whose whereabouts were not immediately reported to them in many cases.

Mostly mothers and wives of the young dissidents, the "Mingayon" members are active in protesting alleged atrocities against the detainees and thus became a major dissident force in terms of the intesity of the activities and organizational strength as well.

Civil disobedience movements like the "Boycott KBS" campaign are further evidence of the changing social climate. Protestant Christian churches, which are leading the campaign, are more and more deeply involved in secular affairs, as is the Catholic community.

The labor movement which had long been led by the moderate "Nochong," or Federation of Korean Trade Unions, are now dominated by more spontaneous smaller groups which were born at the scene of actual struggles at workshops.

Some militant groups, such as the Chonggye Garment Workers Union, were outlawed but many others are created to engage in protest actions against employers as well as the government.

Independent voices are heard in rising tones from organizations of writers, artists, teachers and even plain consumers on subjects ranging from government systems and human rights to educational autonomy and freedom of expression.

Some analysts determine all these phenomena simply as the effect of "democratization" but others see them as reflecting general social development that, conversely, form the foundation of political progress.

Despite vivid evidence of voluntary or imposed restraints in many institutions, the cacophonous activities in diverse social sectors allow many to engage optimism rather than worry.

There are warnings that the trend could be temporary: a different calculation by political power could make things different overnight. Yet, it seems more and more to be an irreversible course and politicians would be well advised to adapt themselves to the change.

'NO LIVE U.S. POW'S IN VIETNAM' REAFFIRMED

[Text] Hanoi VNA July 3 — On July 2 and 3, a number of U.S. and other Western news agencies reported that at the U.S.-Vietnamese meeting held in Hanoi on July 1 and 2 on the issue of Americans missing in action in Vietnam, the Vietnamese side agreed to let U.S. officials participate in the investigation into reports about Americans allegedly still alive in Vietnam.

According to the Vietnam office for Americans missing in Vietnam, this is sheer fabrication prompted by ill intention. On this issue, the Vietnamese side has time and again affirmed that there are no more live U.S. prisoners-of-war in Vietnam.

COMMUNIQUE ISSUED IN PRC CRIMES

BK071044 Hanoi International Service in English 1010 GMT 7 Jul 86

[Text] The Vietnam Committee for Investigation into the Crimes of the Chinese Expansionists and Hegemonists Against Vietnam on Monday [7 July] issued a communique saying that, in the first 6 months of this year, Chinese troops fired more than 250,000 artillery and mortar rounds and rockets on Vietnamese territory. Meanwhile, China still maintains more than 200-division [as heard] strong force close to the Vietnamese border.

Chinese troops from company to battalion-sized units on 15 occasions attacked several heights of Vietnamese northern provinces of Ha Tuyen, Lai Chau, and Cao Bang, some of them by 300 to 400 meters deep inside Vietnamese territory.

The communique also reports that in the first 6 months of this year, Chinese planes on 1,000 occasions operated close to the Vietnamese border. On 16 February, Chinese planes violated airspace over Xin Man District, Ha Tuyen Province. Meanwhile, Chinese vessels made 200 intrusions into Vietnamese waters. China even floated mines downstream of river, which caused casualties to several Vietnamese children. [sentence as heard]

The communique points out that during this period, China caused great losses to the Vietnamese people. Forty-seven persons were killed, 72 wounded, and 35 kidnapped -- most of them women and children -- 185 houses and classrooms were destroyed; and more than 700 hectares of forests and precious medicinal herbs damaged.

JUNE BORDER INCIDENTS WITH PRC REVIEWED

Leaders Pay Last Tribute

[Text] Hanoi VNA July 6 -- General Hoang Van Thai, member of the Communist Party of Vietnam, vice minister of National Defence was buried at the Mai Dich cemetery here this morning. He died in Hanoi on July 2 of a heart attack, at the age of 71.

Le Duan, general secretary of the Communist Party of Vietnam Central Committee, sent a wreath. Truong Chinh, Pham Van Dong, Nguyen Huu Tho and other leaders of the party, the state, the national assembly, the council of state and council of ministers, and more than 200 delegations of the army, of the various ministries, state offices and mass organisations paid their last tribute to the late general at the army club where his remains lay in state.

A delegation of the Lao Ministry of Defence, and delegations of the embassies of the Lao People's Democratic Republic, the People's Republic of Kampuchea and the Soviet Union, the military attaches of the Soviet Union, Cuba, the German Democratic Republic, Poland, Bulgaria, Hungary, Indonesia, and the representation of the French Communist Party in Hanoi, also paid their last homage to General Hoang Van Thai.

General Van Tien Dong, political bureau member of the Party Central Committee and minister of National Defence, delivered the oration. He said that with the passing away of General Hoang Van Thai, the CPV lost an illustrous member, the state and the army lost an excellent leader and commander.

VO NGUYEN GIAP AT VOCATIONAL GUIDANCE MEETING

[Text] The office of the Council of Ministers held a conference recently to review the implementation of the decision on providing vocational guidance for students and rationally using them upon their graduation during the 1981-85 period and to discuss guidelines for this task in the days ahead. Vice Chairman of the Council of Ministers Vo Nguyen Giap directed and addressed the conference.

Over the past 5 years, the implementation of the decision on providing vocational guidance for students and rationally using them upon their graduation has changed the concepts of society and various sectors, echelons, and schools and many parents of students. The substance of the decision is that apart from teaching students, all general schools must provide them with vocational training so as to successfully initiate a seething and firm movement for vocational guidance not only among our schols but also in our entire society.

Through the providing of vocational guidance, educational activities at various schools have been carried out under relatively diversified forms and have begun to combine the training objective with the economic, social, and cultural objectives of each locally and the entire country. Meanwhile, scholastic, labor, and technical activities have also been stepped up.

Thanks to the use of various forms of productive labor with a popular vocational guiding and training character, many schools have made it possible for students to understand the essential quality of work and professions and have brought about considerable economic results.

REPORTAGE ON PRO-MARCOS 'COUNTERREVOLUTION'

Tolentino 'Acting President'

[Text] Manila, July 6 KYODO -- About 200 fully-armed soldiers joined thousands of supporters of deposed President Ferdinand Marcos at a rally in a park in central Manila Sunday. A private radio station covering the rally live reported that former Member of Parliament Arturo Tolentino, who ran as Marcos' vice president in the February 7 snap presidential election, took his oath as acting president at the rally. Marcos has asked Tolentino to act as president since fleeing into exile in Hawaii after he was deposed in a civilian-backed military revolt which installed Corazon Aquino as president in late February.

It was the first time that fully-armed regular troops had joined a Marcos loyalist rally, many of which have ended in violent clashes with the police in the past. The soldiers, who posed for photographers but refused to talk to journalists, covered their name plates with white stickers displaying the Philippine flag and the words "long live democracy." They also back [as received] headbands with the red triangular insignia of the anti-colonial "Katipunan" army during the anti-Spanish struggle.

The troops were reportedly led by Col. Rey Cabatuan, officer-in-charge of the Philippine Constabulary Regional Command 3 in central Luzon, about 80 kilometers north of Manila. A military jeep led the convoy of troops who rode on three army trucks and two dump trucks plastered with Marcos stickers used in the February 7 snap election campaign. The soldiers, carrying M-16 rifles and M-60 machineguns, were in loose groups of about 30 standing in formation or sitting on the seawall behind a grandstand where the loyalists were rallying in the park by Manila Bay.

A police spokesman said anti-riot contingents withdrew to a bridge near the Malacanang presidential palace about a kilometer away to stop any possible attempt to assault the seat of government of President Aquino, who is on a visit to the southern Philippines.

The loyalist demonstrators are accusing Aquino of handing over power to communists. Representatives of the underground leftwing coalition, the National Democratic Front (NDF) and government officials are preparing for talks on a possible ceasefire which could end the 17-year communist-led insurgency.

Tolentino Names Cabinet

[Text] Manila July 6 (PNA) -- Former Member of Parliament Arturo Tolentino Sunday took his oath as acting president of the Philippines in a ceremony attended by thousands of supporters loyal to ousted President Ferdinand Marcos. Tolentino said he was taking the oath on instructions of Mr Marcos from his exile in Honolulu, Hawaii. He said he would assume office until Mr Marcos returns to the Philippines.

Both Marcos and Tolentino were proclaimed president and vice president, respectively, following the Feb 7 elections by the Batasang Pambansa (national assembly) which was abolished by the revolutionary government of President Corazon Aquino.

Immediately, Tolentino named five officials as cabinet members. They are Juan Ponce Enrile as defense minister, Rafael Recto as justice minister, Isidro Rodriguez as local government minister, and Manuel S. Alba as budget minister. [Tokyo KYODO in English at 2310 GMT on 6 July reports on Tolentino's appointment of a cabinet and adds that Tolentino appointed "former Member of Parliament Manuel Collantes as acting foreign minister."] Tolentino said he retained Enrile as defense minister to allow him to continue the government's anti-insurgency program.

Enrile could not be immediately reached for comment. He and military chief Gen Fidel V. Ramos led a civilian and church-backed military revolt in February that toppled Mr Marcos' 20-year unpopular regime and installed Aquino, the 53-year-old widow of assassinated opposition leader Benigno Aquino Jr., as the new president.

Tolentino's oath-taking came at a time when President Aquino is in the southern Philippines city of Cagayan de Oro, some 800 km south of here. Aquino has been informed of Tolentino's swearing-in and has instructed General Ramos to handle the rallyists with maximum tolerance.

The rallyists, dubbed as Marcos loyalists, have been staging demonstrations at the central park every Sunday since Aquino's rise to power last February. Reports said some 300 soldiers had deserted their posts and joined the Marcos loyalists in a show of defiance.

The soldiers were seen Sunday afternoon among those in the crowd of Marcos supporters at the Manila Hotel. They were heavily armed and their guns were tied with blue ribbon and white ribbons -- the campaign colors of Mr Marcos in the last national elections.

The loyalists and the military deserters were reportedly set to proceed to the presidential palace Sunday night. Meanwhile, military authorities had beefed up security measures at the palace in the wake of reports that soldiers loyal to Mr Marcos would assault anytime Sunday night.

Tolentino on Taking Oath

[By Roberto Coloma]

[Excerpts] Manila, July 6 (AFP) -- Opposition leader Arturo Tolentino Sunday proclaimed himself acting Philippine president here while President Corazon Aquino was visiting the southern city of Cagayan de Oro. Mr. Tolentino, 75, appeared in the lobby of the hotel after a speaking with other supporters of deposed President Ferdinand Marcos and formally announced that he was the acting president of the Philippines, eyewitnesses said. "I have taken my oath of office this afternoon as acting president of the Republic of the Philippines," Mr. Tolentino said to thunderous applause and chants of "Tolentino, Tolentino" and "Marcos, Marcos."

Mr Tolentino nominated the joint leader of the revolt which toppled Mr. Marcos in February, Juan Ponce Enrile, as his defence minister and said he was also nominating him as prime minister under a 1973 constitution abolished by new President Corazon Aquino in March.

Some 1,500-2,000 Marcos supporters, including several dozen troops armed with rifles, had virtually seized the Manila Hotel, packing its huge lobby and barricading and encircling the bayside government-owned luxury hotel, eyewitnesses said. A further three truckloads of troops had joined some 5,000 pro-Marcos supporters who staged a rally at a park near the central Manila Hotel. Police at the rally pulled back when the troops arrived and went to guard the Presidential Palace, eyewitnesses said. No pro-Aquino troops were visible at the site.

Hotel staff said that foreign tourists had begun evacuating the hotel. One elderly Caucasian couple were nearly mauled after deriding Mr. Marcos, but were allowed to leave, eyewitnesses said.

(In Cagayan de Oro, Armed Forces Chief Fidel Ramos said that some 1,000 troops, 300 of them armed and led by Bridagier General Jose Maria Zumel, were in the Manila Hotel with Mr. Tolentino.

(But "there has been no violence and the situation is under control," he told a local radio station.

("We should like to assure our people that the government of Corazon Aquino is supported by the new Armed Forces of the Philipines. I appeal to the people to be calm and to be on the alert for any depredation and terrorism."

(Political Affairs Minister Antonio Cuenco told AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE that Mrs. Aquino was "very calm" and was continuing her scheduled programme.

(But a press conference scheduled for 1000 GMT was delayed. The university where Mrs. Aquino was meeting local residents was surrounded by armed troops, but the atmosphere remained calm.)

Mr. Tolentino had stood as Mr. Marcos's running-mate in a February election widely held to be rigged, in which they were officially declared the winners.

Mr. Tolentino took his oath before a retired supreme court justice, and said he had taken the vice-presidential oath before the presidential oath. He had been absent when Mr. Marcos was sworn in as president February 25, hours before being forced to flee the palace to exile in Hawaii.

Mr. Tolentino said that he had taken the oath under a law enacted by the abolished National Assembly, which stated that the vice-President would take over if the chief executive informed the Assembly speaker that he was temporarily unable to perform his duties. "President Marcos from Honolulu, where he is now staying, sent a letter to Speaker Nicanor Yniguez, telling the speaker that he is temporarily unable to perform his duties as president and so Vice-President Tolentino can act now as president."

He named four other principal members of his cabinet, all former ministers or close Marcos associates, and said other posts would be sealed shortly. Appealing for national unity and reconciliation, he said he would call for local government elections and a constitutional convention as soon as possible.

Mrs. Aquino's government has been criticized for replacing elected pro-Marcos local officials with their own appointees. Mr. Tolentino stressed that he would not discriminate against people identified with Mrs. Aquino in his choice of officials.

Aquino To File Charges

[Text] Cagayan de Oro, Philippines, July 6 (AFP) -- Philippine President Corazon Aquino said Sunday she would file sedition charges against opposition leader Arturo Tolentino hours after he declared himself acting president in Manila. But she told a news conference in this southern city at the heart of the country's communist insurgency that she would stick to her itinerary. She is due to leave Cagayan for Manila Monday.

Asked if she believed Mr. Marcos was involved in Mr. Tolentino's decision, Mrs. Aquino said: "Definitely so. Either they informed him or they received orders from him, but I'm sure Marcos has something to do with this because all they want is to destabilize this government."

"Turing Tolentino will not make any difference as far as my plans are concerned," she said, using Mr. Tolentino's nickname. However, Mrs. Aquino looked worried. A spokeswoman, Alice Villadolid, said the president was "a bit tired."

(In Manila, tanks surrounded the Malacanang presidential palace after the military received reports that military deserters backing Mr. Tolentino were planning to seize the downtown Manila compound, palace spokesmen said.

(Tolentino supporters barricaded the central Manila Hotel, where Mr. Tolentino was sworn in as acting president by a retired supreme court judge, with passenger buses, flower pots and burning tires, but the rest of the capital remained calm, eyewitnesses said.)

Laurel Comments From Madrid

HK061957 Hong Kong AFP in English 1951 GMT 6 Jul 86

[Text] Madrid, July 6 (AFP) -- Vice President and Foreign Minister Salvador Laurel of the Philippines, in Spain on an official visit, Sunday dismissed as a "farce without any backing" the power play led by opposition leader Arturo Tolentino early in the day. In a statement released through the Philippine Embassy here, Mr Laurel said the power grab would not "affect" the government of President Corazon Aquino or "cause us to change our course from the consolidation of the democratic process in the Philippines."

Mr Laurel said he had spoken by phone with Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile as well as with Jaime Cardinal Sin, the archbishop of Manila. Both had assured him that matters were under control of the government, he said. Mr Laurel, who arrived here Sunday on the first leg of a European tour, said he would stick to his planned itinerary, despite Mr Tolentino's proclaiming himself acting president. "Everything is under control" in Manila, Mr Laurel's statement said. "The government is functioning without change, as always."

Aquino Troops Surround Hotel

[By Roberto Coloma]

[Excerpts] Manila, July 7 (AFP) -- Security forces backing President Corazon Aquino Monday surrounded a first-class hotel here where opposition leader Arturo Tolentino set up headquarters with armed supporters after proclaiming himself president on Sunday. Mrs Aquino, bolstered by pledges of support from Philippine military leaders and the U.S. Government, continued an overnight visit to the south, where she played down the coup attempt and said sedition charges would be filed against Mr Tolentino. Manila remained calm despite the political crisis only four-and-a half month after a popular revolt ousted President Ferdinand Marcos and swept the 53-year-old Mrs Aquino to power on February 25. She was expected to be back in Manila Monday morning.

Some military officials sacked by Mrs Aquino supported Mr Tolentino and said they were acting to prevent a communist takeover of the Philippines, which is battling an insurgency led by the 16,000-strong New People's Army, the armed branch of the Philippine Communist Party. The coup group claimed to have 5,000 troops but pro-Aquino officials and witnesses in the hotel estimated their strength at 150 to 200 armed soldiers and some 2,000 civilians after midnight Sunday (1600 GMT).

Mr Tolentino, 75, proclaimed himself acting president until Mr Marcos can return from exile in Hawaii. But he failed to gain the crucial support of Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile. Mr Enrile, 62, who led the February revolt that toppled Mr Marcos, dismissed an offer from Mr Tolentino to make him defense minister and premier. "I'm not looking for another job," Mr Enrile said after a meeting with top military leaders at the suburban Manila Armed Forces headquarters. "There is only one government in this country and that is the Aquino government."

Mr Enrile pledged to exhaust peaceful means to persuade the rebels to give up and sent three emissaries to talk Mr Tolentino out of his plan but rebel military men demanded a meeting with the minister himself.

Armed Forces chief General Fidel Ramos, who co-led February's revolt against Mr Marcos, was travelling with Mrs Aquino in the south. He urged Mr Tolentino to stop his "foolishness."

Among the prominent military men who supported Mr Tolentino were retired Major General Prospero Olivas, a former Metropolitan Manila police chief, and Brigadier Gererals Jaime Echeverria and Jose Zumel, who have not been given assignments since being relieved of their duties by Mrs Aquino in February. Members of Mr Marcos's presidential guard and political party showed up at the government-owned Manila Hotel to express support for Mr Tolentino, who named four Marcos allies apart from Mr Enrile to an imcomplete, would-be cabinet.

Pro-Aquino troops overnight closed down a private radio station supporting Mr Tolentino and guarded a government broadcast complex and private news organizations, military officials said.

Mrs Aquino said in a scheduled speech at a dinner with businessmen in Cagayan de Oro that she didn't know what prompted Mr Tolentino's attempt, adding that "my patience has run out."

"I think my having announced that I was going to the United States on September 17 could probably be one of the reasons," she said. "I guess he wants to embarrass me, make it appear in the foreign media that he is still a power to reckon with."

She quipped that "I hope he realizes he has to pay all the bills there. I am not about to pay for his bills."

Gen. Ramos' deputy, Brigadier General Eduardo Eermita, said in a radio interview at four A.M. (2000 GMT) Monday that a group of soldiers in the hotel had joined the pro-Aquino troops, saying they were deceived into believing that Mr Enrile and Gen. Ramos had abandoned Mrs Aquino. This could not be immediately confirmed.

In Washington, the U.S. State Department on Sunday voiced strong backing for Mrs Aquino. "The U.S. strongly supports the government of President Aquino and is against efforts such as these to undermine it," spokesman Joe Reap said. "We understand that General Ramos and Defence Minister Enrile are working closely with President Aquino to bring matters under control," he added.

Meanwhile, Mr Marcos, who has been at Hickham Air Force Base in Honolulu since the day after his 20-year rule ended on February 25, refused comment. A Marcos spokesman, Joe Lazo, told AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE by telephone that Mr Marcos was monitoring developments. Mr Lazo said Mr Marcos was still in Hawaii. He said he did not know what role Mr Marcos might have played in Tolentino maneuver.

Mr Lazo also was unable to conform a claim made by Mr Tolentino that Mr Marcos had sent a letter to the speaker of the Philippine Parliament, Nicanor Yniguez, authorizing Mr Tolentino to take over until he could return.

Radio on 'Counterrevolution'

HK062342 Manila Far East Broadcasting Company in English 2300 GMT 6 Jul 86

[Text] Thousands of Marcos loyalists staged a counterrevolution yesterday [6 July] at the Manila Hotel and proclaimed Arturo Tolentino as acting president. Tolentino took his oath of office during a ralley at the hotel, and said he will assume the presidency until deposed President Marcos returns. He also named his cabinet, including Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile as Prime Minister and AFP [Armed Forces of the Philippines] Chief of Staff General Fidel Ramos as his chief of staff. Enrile immediately declined the offer.

The loyalists were supported by 100 armed troops loyal to the Marcos regime.

Tolentino told his press conference that his proclamation of a government in Marcos' name was based on the 1973 Constitution scrapped by President Aquino when she took office. He called on the National Assembly, which was dissolved by president Aquino, to convene and pass a law calling local elections. He named several members of his cabinet, and said he was retaining Enrile and Ramos so they can continue their fight against communism without limitation or restriction.

Reacting strongly to former MP Arturo Tolentino's oath-taking, President Aquino said criminal charges will be filed against him. She told a press conference that Tolentino was illegally installed and that it is up to the justice minister and solicitor general to decide on the charges and when to file them in court. The president said, however, that she had not issued an order to Tolentino and Marcos loyalists who are trying to destabilize her government, but the matter is being studied now.

Soldiers from the Capital Regional Command, or Capcom, now ring the Rizal Park area, including the Manila Hotel where Marcos loyalists have holed up after the oath-taking of former MP Arturo Tolentino as acting president. Capcom Chief Brigadier General Ramon Montano said their main objective is to contain the loyalists in the area and stop them from any efforts to seize any government building. He also said a dialogue is being arranged with Brigadier General Jose Maria Carlos Zumel, the former military academy superintendent. Montano said he told Zumel that the Capcom will not attack loyalists, but if they take over Malacanang it will be over their dead bodies. However, he warned the public from going to the Rizal Park area, to avoid any complications. At general headquarters in Camp Aguinaldo, General Salvador Mison said soldiers have ringed the Manila Hotel to prevent people from going, and that military camps in and around Manila have been secured.

Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile has called for calm in the face of events precipitated by the oath-taking of Tolentino as acting president of the Philippines. Enrile also presented to newsmen the commanding generals of the various branches of the armed forces, except for AFP Chief of Staff Gen Fidel Ramos and PC-INP [Philippine Constabulary-Integrated National Police] chief Major General Renato de Villa, who are with the president in Cagayan de Oro. The defense minister also said he has briefed the president on the situation here in Manila through Gen Ramos, and has sent emissaries for a dialogue with Tolentino at the Manila Hotel.

In new developments, some 200 fully-armed troops from the 3d Regional Unified Command base din Pampanga walked out of the Manila Hotel early this morning and proceeded to Fort Bonifacio for a little rest before their return to their mother unit. The troops, led by Lieutenant Colonel Danilo Victorina, boarded four vehicles provided by the western police district and went to Philippine Navy headquarters on Roxas Boulevard, then proceeded to Fort Bonifacio.

Victorina said they left their mother unit in Pampanga when they were told that they were needed by Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and Gen Fidel Ramos at the Manila Hotel. When they learned later that they were misled by the loyalists, they decided to return to their mother organization.

Radio station DZME, well-known for its pro-Marcos stand, was disabled by the military shortly before 2200 yesterday to prevent it from rallying mass support for the loyalists who have gathered at the premises of the Manila Hotel. The putting of the station off the air was confirmed by Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile himself during a television interview yesterday evening. The radio station, located along Roosevelt Avenue, in Quezon City, during the month after the February revolution carried broadcasts of interviews with deposed President Marcos by long distance from Hawaii.

Executive Secretary Joker Arroyo said the government is keeping its options open in dealing with the Marcos loyalists who have established headquarters at the Manila Hotel after the proclamation yesterday of former MP Arturo Tolentino as acting president. In a radio interview, Arroyo said he was bothered by the tremendous number of calls he received from people suggesting that they use people power and march to the Manila Hotel to show their numbers.

About 1,000 Marcos loyalists are reported holed up at the Manila Hotel, together with a sprinkling of higher-ranking politicians.

Meanwhile, Metro Manila has remained quiet and calm despite a potentially explosive situation brought about by the oath-taking of former MP Arturo Tolentino as acting president of the Philippines. Traffic along koxas Boulevard has been observed normal, and no untoward incident has been reported by police. Troops of the Capital Regional Command, however, have surrounded the Rizal Park area, including the Manila Hotel, where thousand of Marcos loyalists are keeping vigil.

Aquino Leaves Cagayan de Oro

AFP [Armed Forces of the Philippines] Chief of Staff General Fidel Ramos, who accompanied her to Cagayan de Oro City, left on a separate plane.

[Excerpts] Manila, July 7 (AFP) -- President Corazon Aquino arrived here Monday from a provincial visit and immediately conferred with top aides as participants in a failed coup continued to occupy the Manila Hotel. Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile, who rejected Mr. Tolentino's offer of a cabinet post and directed the encircling of the rebels by elite troops, welcomed Mrs. Aquino at a suburban Air Force camp where her plane landed. Mrs. Aquino conferred with cabinet ministers and military officials led by General Fidel Ramos at the air base.

The military presented officers among from 200 troops who abandoned Mr. Tolentino after finding out that they had been deceived into thinking that Mr. Enrile and Gen. Ramos had mutinied against Mrs. Aquino. The two led February's revolt that toppled Mr. Marcos and forcd him to flee to Hawaii. Mr. Tolentino, a former member of parliament, ran as vice president with Mr. Marcos in February's presidential election. Poll frauds by Marcos partisans fueled the revolt.

Military Moves in Ilocos

[Text] Regional unified Command 1 Chief Colonel Jesus de la Cruz today set up more detachments around highways in the Ilocos region. The detachments will closely monitor possible mass movements of loyalists from the north to join their colleagues in metro Manila.

De la Cruz told a radio interview in Camp (Danrod), Benguet, that he had already placed his men on alert for any eventuality. He also advised residents to stay calm, saying the situation is very much under control.

Aquino Issues Ultimatum

[Text] Manila, July 7 (AFP) -- President Corazon Aquino Monday gave opposition leader Arturo Tolentino and his supporters a 24-hour ultimatum to vacate a government-owned hotel where he had proclaimed himself president. Mrs. Aquino, reading a statement to journalists, did not say what she would do if the ultimatum on the "sorry adventure" was not heeded, but warned: "Let me tell you now that the law will not be flouted with impunity."

Mr. Tolentino, an ally of deposed president Ferdinand Marcos, seized the plush Manila hotel on Sunday and formed a rival government, trying in vain to recruit Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile into his cabinet. Troops backing Mrs. Aquino sealed off the hotel.

Mrs. Aquino appealed to "the people who have holed up in the hotel to end it and come out within 24 hours." But asked what would happen if the 24-hour dedline were not met, she said "we will not tell you at the moment what our options are." she refused to answer any other questions.

Mrs. Aquino said military involvement in the aborted coup was "confined to a small number of men and officers with special loyalties to the previous government and who were largely misguided by a disinformation campaign launched by the loyalists and instigated by Mr. Marcos." She said that Armed Forces Chief of Staff Gen. Fidel Ramos had been in touch with all the major service commanders and the field commanders to assess the extent of "loyalist involvement" in their commands. "They report that, except for the small contingent at the Manila hotel, there is no problem."

Mrs. Aquino said that she would "exhaust every peaceful means to an early resolution of this problem." She said that Mr. Tolentino had only 100 armed men with him. Some 200 soldiers earlier abandoned him, saying they were deceived into thinking it was a top-level military mutiny against the government. "It was a propaganda gimmick and a violation of law and it has failed," Mrs Aquion said.

She said they had sealed off the hotel to a radius of 300 meters (1,000 feet) to prevent curious people from getting in the way and appealed to her supporters not tomarch to the hotel as reportedly planned by some groups. "This is not an occasion for a demonstration of people power," she said, referring to the February popular revolt that swept her to power. "Please try to keep a cool head."

HK070736 Quezon City DZFM Radio in English 0500 GMT 7 Jul 86

Troops backing President Aquino today sealed off the Manila Hotel. Military said [word indistinct] was left with (?100) troops after 200 abandoned him early this morning. [words indistinct] A general supporting Tolentino said they still have many armed troops inside the plush hotel, but eyewitnesses said only about 1,000 civilians and military loyalists remained inside and outside the building. The attempt by Tolentino [words indistinct] to form a separate government failed when Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile [words indistinct]. Enrile said he does not need any job and appealed to the loyalists to avoid any outburst of violence. Enrile expressed surprise why he was being dragged into the move. He said the country has just gone through a peaceful revolution and it is not good for the country to witness another. [Words indistinct] a radio station that President Aquino is the president of the country, [words indistinct], as such he said at the moment, the country has more serious problems which need more attention. The defense chief advised the people to stay calm and at the same time assured them that nothing would happen again like what happened last February.

A radio station DZME, well known for its pro-Marcos stand, was disabled by the military shortly before 2200 last night to prevent it rallying mass support for the loyalists who are gathered at the premises of the Manila Hotel. The putting of the radio station off the air was confirmed by Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile. The radio station located along Roosevelt Avenue in Quezon City previously carried broadcasts of interviews with deposed President Marcos by long distance from Hawaii. Before the radio station went off the air, the [words indistinct] was carrying appeals for food to sustain the people in a projected vigil at the premises of the Manila Hotel.

Capcom [Capital Command] chief Ramon Montano said [words indistinct], however, he asked the public not to go to the Rizal Park area to avoid any complications. Deputy Capcom commander Emiliano Templo told reporters that the counterrevolution appears to have collapsed. He quoted rebel soldiers who surrendered early today as saying they have made to believe that they were supporting Defense Minister Enrile and Armed Forces Chief of Staff Fidel Ramos in a coup against the Aquino government.

AFP [Armed Forces of the Philippines] chief General Ramos demonstrated his loyalty to President Aquino by appearing at her side at a news conference in Cagayan de Oro City. General Ramos has been in touch with Minister Enrile and his military headquarters in Manila. The AFP chief left Cagayan de Oro City this morning for Manila.

And in Washington, the American Government is closely following the situation in the Philippines. The American State Department's Joe Reap however declined to make any immediate comment on developments.

Back here at home, Acting National Housing Authority General Manager Lito Atienza, when asked to comment, gave this statement:

[Begin Atienza recording] We are very sorry to see a very learned man and a man who has showed his former wisdom in his decisions commit such an illegal act. The former Senator Tolentino surely has committed something which he will be sorry for because it is a complete mistake not only for himself but for the Filipino people. And the earlier he realizes this, the better for himself and for all of us. He is like a fool like a [words indistinct] but definitely he would not be effective in any of his designs to destabilize the government because the present leadership enjoys overwhelming support from the people, the military and from all the government agencies. So the earlier Senator Tolentino realizes his error, the better for himself and for all of us. [end recording]

Political Affairs Minister Antonio Cuenco commented on Tolentino's induction of his former MPs as whistling in dark and behaving like a king without a kingdom. Cuenco commented that Tolentino's formation of a shadow cabinet means that Tolentino is shadow boxing.

Meantime, former San Juan Metro Manila Mayor Joseph Estrada told government radio reporters that he went yesterday to the Manila Hotel not to support any politicians. He said he was just supporting the clamor of many Filipinos for the government to be more decisive in the fight against the communist insurgents.

[Begin recording in Tagalog] [Estrada] The fighting is against communism and perhaps it is a well-known fact that last week, that within a week our soldiers were being murdered by the communists. And in spite of the murder of our soldiers, the cease-fire order remains. In short, there is no pity for our soldiers. Thus this is what the fighting is for. Lift the cease-fire order. If we continue with the cease-fire order, we will be eaten up by the communists.

[Reporter] Who are the people with you in the group?

[Estrada] There are different groups, some from Caloocan, Quezon City, San Juan, Mandaluyong, Pasay, and others who join in the mourning.

[Reporter] [Words indistinct]

[Estrada] If it were up to me, there is no need for proof as the whole country can see it. It was in the papers. For three consecutive days, our soldiers were killed without a fight and up to this day, the cease-fire order has not been lifted. It is still on and our soldiers will continue to be killed without a fight. [end recording]

Major General Eduardo Ermita, AFP civil relations chief, this morning appealed to Marcos loyalists to allow foreign visitors at the Manila Hotel to leave. Ermita aired the appeal following reports that some loyalists refused to open the hotel gate for those seeking to get out. Ermita also said the movement of foreign newspapermen who covered the hotel conference of the loyalists were restricted. He said there is no plan on the part of the government troops to attack the hotel or disturb the loyalists and there is no reason to hold the guests or newspapermen as hostages. Several politicians loyal to deposed President Marcos are currently holed up at the Manila Hotel hoping to generate supporters similar to the people's power that turned up at EDSA [Epifano de los Santos Avenue] during the peaceful revolution in February.

Reports said the loyalists expect today thousands of reinforcements from other parts of the country, notably from central Luzon. The PHILIPPINE NEWS AGENCY quoted the reports as saying that reinforcements would include supporters from the civilian and military sectors including local government officials.

[Text] Manila, July 7 (AFP) -- Opposition leader Arturo Tolentino Monday called for early elections as he continued to hold out at a plush hotel which he took over when he declared a rival government with himself as acting president. There was no immediate word on whether Mr. Tolentino would heed President Corazon Aquino's ultimatum for him to surrender within 24 hours, given earlier Monday.

Brigadier General Jaime Echeverria, one of the leaders of the small military force backing Mr. Tolentino, told reporters "force begets force" when asked what they would do in case of an attack by troops loyal to Mrs. Aquino. Two battallions of government troops ringed Manila Hotel, where an estimated 100 rebel troops armed with automatic rifles had barricaded themselves since Sunday. Some 200 troops who joined the coup attempt surrendered at dawn Monday.

Mr. Tolentino, speaking at a hotel news conference, called on Mrs. Aquino to hold early election, saying many people were "restless" because she had sacked local officials loyal to deposed president Ferdinand Marcos. But he added: "We do not want the restoration of a constitutional government by violence or by force. That is farthest from our thoughts."

Tolentino To Meet Emissary

Mr Tolentino, who sparked a political crisis by proclaiming himself acting president while Mrs Aquino was out of Manila Sunday, left with fellow rebels in several cars, Brigadier General Jaime Echeverria told reporters.

The general, who later joined the party, said Mr Tolention was to meet with Deputy Defense Minister Rafael Ileto, a former general and ambassador to Thailand closely identified with Mrs Aquino. Accompanying Mr Tolentino were lawyer Rafael Recto, whom he named justice minister, former National Assembly Speaker Nicanor Yniguez, and two other rebel generals, Brig Gen Echeverria said.

The Tolentino party left the Manila Hotel, which he and thousands of supporters seized Sunday, four hours after Mrs Aquino gave a 24-hour ultimatum for him to give up the "sorry adventure" by 1:30 p.m. (0530 GMT) Tuesday.

Earlier, Defence Minister Juan Ponce Enrile offered amnesty to the rebel troops led by Mr Tolentino if they abandoned their cause within 24 hours. "If the soldiers leave the hotel within 24 hours, no sedition charges will be filed against them," Mr Enrile told a press conference. Mr Enrile stressed that he was not asking the troops to surrender. "Let us not use the word 'surrender,' because we do not intend to embarrass anybody," he said.

Tolentino Leaves Hotel

[Text] At this time, we would like to make way for a special report from our mobile unit who is on the road at this time. They are at the Manila Hotel, and they would like to make a report on the ongoing activities in the area. I think this is an interview with Mr Espina. So Mobile One, come in.

[Begin Mobile One report] First we would like to report that Tolentino, or President Tolentino to the Marcos loyalists, has left the Manila Hotel to an undisclosed destination. According to the security offices of Tolentino, I think they are going out to make negotiations with the Cory group. At the moment, it is established that Mr Tolentino has left the hotel and he has driven a grey (?racer) with plate number MNS 301. So, we do not know the disclosed destination, but we believe that he is out for negotiations or whatever developments are to take place with the Cory government. At this point, we have been able to interview Gerry Espina, who has been silent actually about what is the real score. But based on an interview with a mixed group of journalists and correspondents we will find out what he is to say.

[Begin recording] [Espina] Because we do not know what the military arrangements. [Words indistinct] I have always been outside the rooms. I do not know where these military personnels are being deployed.

[Espina] No, I was not into that because I arranged after [words indistinct], and this is the first time I heard about them, that was when we faced members of media. [Passage indistinct] No, no I was just asked to help to coordinate with media.

[Reporter's question indistinct]

[Espina] I really don't know because I never heard being discussed. Later they were inside the room and talking about what has happened. [Passage indistinct]. They were inside the room for over an hour. When the session was over, Enrile and the chief arbiter, all the military men, and we were outside.

[Reporter's question indistinct]

[Espina] There have not been any instance, but I understand that there has been constant communications between the military and the military of Mr Tolentino.

[Reporter] Is there serious efforts to negotiate?

[Espina] I think they are, the lines of communications are left open. [Passage indistinct] I really don't know.

[Espina] Well, the situation at the moment is that the military group are now making [words indistinct]. They have been made aware of the notice of 24 hours. They are meeting now.

[Reporter] What 24 hours?

[Espina] That we are to vacate in 24 hours, in the next 24 hours. The military are now meeting and after that they will meet with the political leaders, Mr Tolentino. After that they will call. They will contact [words indistinct] and when all is decided, Mr Tolentino will hold a press conference.

[Espina] He is now talking with the political leaders. Also about the 24 hours. The military in the other room is talking and come out with an official reaction to it.

[Reporter's question indistint]

[Espina] Well, that is the decision that they made and I cannot explain why. [Passage indistinct] The military has certain information and contacts outside that we do not know.

[Reporter] When will the 24 hours run out, the deadline?

[Espina] That is not clear to me, because when I heard it from the generals, they were saying the next 24 hours. Whether it is the next 24 hours after they made the decision or whether the 24 hours has in fact started already.

[Reporter] What time did you hear about the ultimatum?

[Espina] About an hour ago, about 2 hours ago. [Passage indistinct] Let us just wait for Mr Tolentino to face later the media.

[Mobile unit] That was Gerry Espina speaking for the Marcos loyalist groups and Mr Tolentino, who was down earlier at about 2 in the afternoon. At that point, the military group of Tolentino and the political group were meeting separately to discuss the ultimatum or the deadline given to them by the Cory administration to vacate the Manila Hotel.

But now, at 20 minutes to six, Mr Tolentino has already left the Manila Hotel. I don't know where he has gone. He hasn't given a statement, but according to some security men, he may be going out to make negotiations further about his self-proclaimed government. So, we will have to stand by [name indistinct] FEBC news right here at Manila Hotel.

4 JULY DECLARED PHILIPPINES-U.S. FRIENDSHIP DAY

[Text] Malacanang announced yesterday [2 July] that President Corazon Aquino has declared July 4 a public holiday to mark Philippines-American Friendship Day. The day marks the country's independence in 1946 after nearly half a century as a U.S. colony. The Philippines gives more prominence to June 12, the anniversary of its freedom in 1898 after almost 400 years of Spanish colonial rule. Spain ceded the 7,100 islands to the United States for $20 million in December of that year.

ANTI-U.S. DEMONSTRATIONS BREAK-OUT IN MANILA

[Text] Manila, July 4 KYODO -- Members of the constitutional commission supporting an anti-nuke, anti-bases provision in the new Philippines charter led 10,000 demonstrators protesting U.S. interventionist policies in the Philippines in front of the American Embassy in Manila Friday. The demonstrators had returned to the embassy an hour after police dispersed a smaller group of 2,000 protesters with tear gas and baton charges.

Twelve policemen and at least six demonstrators were injured in the earlier confrontation, including a protester who suffered a gunshot wound in the back when anti-riot contingents fired at rock-throwing demonstrators who had been shoved by policemen toward another portion of the boulevard in front of the embassy in central Manila. Four demonstrators were arrested. The embassy was closed for the July 4th American Independence Day, which is also celebrated officially as Philippine-American Friendship Day here.

The protesters, mostly belonging to the leftist New Patriotic Alliance (Bayan), carried placards which said: "oppose American intervention in Philippine affairs" and "Remember Hiroshima and Chernobyl -- no foreign bases. No nuclear arms and plants." Peasant leaders and constitutional commission member Jaime Tadeo said America dominates the Philippines through its two military bases in the country. The domination continues even with the ouster of President Ferdinand Marcos, who has been accused of being an "imperialist puppet." "The U.S. bases should no longer continue to stay," 87-year-old Bayan Chairman Lorenzo Tanada said in a speech. "I hope the American people will come to know that the Filipino people no longer want those bases."

The dispersal was the first police action against leftist groups which had participated in the civilian-backed military revolt that ousted Marcos and installed President corazon Aquino last February. Aquino has declared that she will leave her options open on the bases agreement between the United States and the Philippines which expires in 1991.

The two largest U.S. overseas military bases are both in the Philippines -- Clark Air Base and Subic Bay Naval Base, both north of Manila. Sixty organizations, including Bayan, have started a signature campaign to support incorporation of a provision in the new charter declaring the Philippines a nuclear-free and bases-free country. Aquino's cabinet recently decided in the wake of the Chernobyl accident not to operate the Westinghouse-built nuclear power plant located west of Manila, alleging it was unsafe.

BAYAN OPPOSES U.S. 'SPECIAL RELATIONS'

[Text] The left-leaning Bagong Alyansang Makabayan (Bayan) said yesterday U.S. intervention in the drafting of the new constitution will revolve on key issues such as national economic policies, American bases and counterinsurgency.

In a statement condemning Philippine-American "special relations," commemorated today (Philippine-American Friendship Day), Bayan said the U.S. will go against proposals in the new charter which will oppose their continued "plunder" of the country's human and natural resources.

"...The U.S. shall not lie content with (President Aquino's) promise to fully pay Marcos's debts, especially in the face of a militant people anxious to end an economic crisis caused by an IMF-WB (International Monetary Fund-World Bank) plan prioritizing debt service through oppressive measures...," the statement said.

On the issue of the military bases, Bayan claims the U.S. has "used its local agents" to argue that these installations enhance national security and will fight for a foreign policy favoring the indefinite retention of its major arsenals.

Bayan also foresees that the U.S. government will invoke "special relations" to justify its direct hand in the counterinsurgency campaign. It may also employ coercive tactics to wrangle constitutional provisions" [no opening quotes as published] ensuring the beefing up of the counterinsurgency program.

Bayan has earlier proposed provisions to the Constitutional Commission advocating:

-- A self-reliant national economy founded on national industrialization, agriculture.

-- A non-aligned foreign policy which denounces wars of aggression.

To observe Philippine-American Friendship Day, Bayan will hold a rally at the U.S. Embassy along Roxas Boulevard.

Before that, it will lead in the formation of a human chain around the Executive House where the Constitutional Commission will hold public hearings on the bases issue.

Bayan will also present resolutions for a nuclear bases-free Philippines.

LEE KUAN YEW CONDUCTS 4-DAY OFFICIAL VISIT

Comments on Economy, Security

[Text] Singapore Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew yesterday said Filipino workers in Singapore are in no danger of being laid-off because of his country's new labor policies.

In a press briefing before his departure at the end of a four-day official visit, Lee said the new policies do not apply to domestic helpers and construction workers. In the case of workers, he said, the scheduled phase out is not due until 1992, and if by that time workers are still needed, they will be accommodated.

Lee said: "There has been misunderstanding or misrepresentation of the workers' problem."

As for Singapore buying Philippine products even if the same products are cheaper elsewhere, Lee said: "We cannot buy from the Philippines just because we want to help. People don't do that. We don't have that consideration and President Aquino expressed understanding of our government's position."

Lee said he favored the retention of U.S. military bases in the Philippines since their presence adds to regional security. "As long as the Soviets continue to build up in the region, the U.S. is the only power that can keep the balance."

On trade protectionism, Lee said it should be up to each country to assess the effects this policy may have and to act accordingly. "It should not be one-sided," he said. This was taken to mean that a country should not restrict imports and at the same time ask for liberal export privileges.

Offers Aid Package

[Text] Manila, July 2 (PNA) -- Visiting Singapore Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew said his country has offered an aid package worth five million dollars spread over three years to the Philippines.

In a closed-door meeting with President Corazon Aquino, Lee told her that the assistance is for the payment of services in areas where Singaporean technical expertise is needed. [Hong Kong AFP in English at 1025 GMT on 1 July reports on this meeting and adds that Lee "said he was embarrassed to offer so little, a Philippine official said."]

Responding to his apology the president said, however, that it is the gesture that is appreciated.

The former Philippine Government had asked Singapore for a consultant to conduct a feasibility study on air navigation facility and maintenance system. This is the kind of project that is envisioned under the Singaporean assistance, Information Minister Teodoro Locsin Jr. explained, adding that harbor planning and port development may also be of interest.

According to the information minister, Prime Minister Lee said that the chief asset of government is its credibility, which turns on its reputation for honesty. If nothing else, government must be that.

He told the president that her example must reach down to the bottom of her bureaucracy and spread out to the community as well.

During the formal meeting with their respective panels, President Aquino expressed her appreciation for the moral support extended by Singapore to her new government and for its refusal to grant asylum to Marcos.

I am greatly honored to be received by you. I find this a very unusual and moving occasion. I had been here on previous occasions, but I never envisaged the events that transpired. But that is history, Lee responded.

He also said the future is what you will make of it. More so than any ASEAN leader, you will make history. You proceeded from a greater mandate than any of us enjoy and you face greater problems.

He added: I hesitated to come because there is little more to be said and yet so much more to be done, much that is daunting even for me to share in conversation.

Mr. Lee continued that we have watched the Philippines climb precipitously with mounting anxiety. Protocol requires us to maintain an air of normalcy, that all would be well, when each of us knew that all would not be well.

He said he had come here to be able to know the new president and the men and women who serve in her government. He added that he might be able to interpret events here if he knew the personalities involved.

Discusses ASEAN Role

[Text] Manila, July 3 (PNA) -- Singapore Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew has expressed hope that the Aquino administration will once again be more active in the affairs of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN).

At a luncheon given by President Corazon C. Aquino in his honor at Malacanang, Mr Lee said he felt certain that the Philippines would be able to recover its health and again play her role in strengthening ASEAN's stability and development.

On the next ASEAN summit meeting to be held in Manila next year the prime minister told Mrs Aquino that he is looking forward to cooperating with you and your administration in working towards a successful and substantive summit. Together, we can open up fresh avenues for renewed ASEAN economic cooperation, he pointed out.

According to Mr Lee, one threat to regional stability is the Vietnamese invasion and occupation of Cambodia, now in its 7th year. The Philippines, with the other ASEAN members, has been resolute in denying the legitimacy of the Vietnamese occupation and in supporting the nationalist resistance under the coalition government of Democratic Kampuchea, he explained. And we shall continue to work for the withdrawal of all foreign forces and the exercise of self-determination through free elections as provided for in the U.N. resolution on Cambodia, Prime Minister Lee pointed out.

In her response, President Aquino praised the prime minister who, she said, destroyed the myth that Asians are irrevocably condemned to backwardness and corruption. His remarkable achievement in state craft of course, benefitted his people, but it has also been a source of pride for all of us the president said.

Says Aquino To Visit

[Text] Manila, July 3 (AFP) -- President Corazon Aquino will probably visit Singapore before September, visiting Singapore Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew said here Thursday.

The Philippine Foreign Minsitry earlier confirmed that Mrs. Aquino had accepted an invitation to visit from Mr. Lee Wednesday but said no exact date had been set for her first foreign trip since she came to power in February.

"Probably before September," Mr Lee said at a pre-departure news conference here when asked about the timing of the Aquino visit, which is expected to be followed by a trip to the United States.

Mrs. Aquino has vowed to visit a member of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) before going to another country. She has accepted invitations to visit Japan and several othr countries.

PAPER ON PREPARATIONS FOR CEASE-FIRE TALKS

HK010649 Quezon City BUSINESS DAY in English 30 Jun 86 p 20

[By Marites Danguilan-Vitug]

[Text] Davao City -- The Central Committee of the Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP) has proposed to the Aquino government a formula for peace through a two-phase process for dialog and ceasefire and ultimately a negotiated political settlement. It also offered to cooperate with the new government in a "transitional democratic coalition government."

Such a proposal for a coalition government may doom the outcome of official truce talks, which have yet to begin. It also came in the wake of pronouncement of President Corazon C. Aquino that power sharing with communists on the Cabinet level is not possible. And Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile expressed reservations on such negotiations.

Nevertheless, in a 10-page draft document, the CPP said the first phase requires adoption of "political measures to remove immediately forces of armed clashes."

The successful conduct of the first phase should lead to a "standstill wherein both armies will not attack each other's forces unless provoked," the CPP said.

They -- the National Democratic Front [NDF], CPP, and New People's Army -- will take initial steps in the first phase. They will prohibit their own officials and followers from violating people's right and impose strict sanctions against these violations. They will confine their tactical offensive against "unreformed AFP [Armed Forces of the Philippines] officers and men, local warlords, Marcos loyalists, unruly police, and Civil Home Defense Forces [CHDF] units."

We have also decided to confine the NPA regular and guerilla forces in barrios and interior town centers within their areas of control, they said. They also said they will release all their detained captives.

While they have not relied on foreign aid, they said, they will halt entry into the country of military arms and supply from any foreign sources.

From the Aquino government, they seek the following demands:

-- Trial and punishment of government officials who committed such political crimes against the people as murder, assassination, torture, kidnapping and other crimes.

-- Guarantees to abolish torture and halt kidnapping and political murders.

-- Release of political prisoners remaining in the government custody.

-- Repeal or suspension of all decrees, letters of instructions and other laws issued by the previous regime which are repressive of people's right.

-- Reduction in AFP hositilities.

-- Dismantling of CHDF units and armed groups of local warloads, Marcos loyalists, and other types of paramilitary forces.

-- Termination of the AFP jurisdiction over the police forces, placing the latter under the authority of municipal governments and confining them to peacekeeping functions.

-- Withdrawal of detachments and checkpoints from barrios and interior town centers with the AFP advanced command staging post within or near the areas of control of the NPA.

-- Halt creation by AFP of free fire zone.

-- Suspension of further military assistance from U.S. or other foreign countires, participation of foreign military advisers assigned to train AFP command in all types of military exercises and joint maneuvers with U.S. or foreign troops in the country.

This party document discloses demands from the underground left, but Antonio Zumel, reported NDF chairman and member of the executive committee of the central committee, has earlier said that "we are not stating bottom lines or preconditions. What we want is an atmosphere for cordial talks. The substantive issues will have to come later."

Both parties, the CPP said, will open dialog and negotiation and probide for a period of time and "means of control and verification" to implement the negotiation goals.

Both sides should observe the nationalally recognized humanitarian principles and laws of war such as respect for the lives of captives, care for the wounded, non-attack of medical and paramedical personnel, and cessation of bombardment against civilian population and property, the CPP added.

The second phase, or the negotiation proper, will work out basic agreement with the framework of a trasitional, democratic coalition government.

Its main function will be to guarantee compliance with the negotiated agreement, resolve such problems resulting from war as the disposition of two existing armed forces, and to pave the way for holding an election for a regular government.

Initially, both parties will maintain their respective armed forces. But steps will be taken to reorganize and integrate both armies into a new armed forces, the CPP proposed.

The goals of a negotiated political settlement include:

-- Eradication of offensive structure carried over from the previous regime.

-- Reorientation and reorganization of the AFP.

-- Provision of guarantees to prevent recurrence of fascists rule.

-- Rehabilitation and indemnification of all victims of armed conflicts.

-- Resettlement of displaced people and repatriation of those who sought political refuge abroad.

-- Legislation and thorough implementaiton of land reform program to eradicate monopoly of land ownership by a few and redistributed land to peasants.

-- Placing all strategic and key industries and businesses under Filipino ownership.

-- Repudiation of illegally contracted foreign loans as well as unequal economic treaties with foreign governments.

-- Expansion of economic relations with other countries.

-- Abrogation of all military treaties with the U.S. and any other foreign country.

The CPP proposed that constitutional reform or admendment needed to embody the basic elements of the negotiated political settlement be submitted to a national referendum.

Both parties will then completely terminate hostilities and establish a democratic coalition government in which both sides shall apportion and share power.

President Corazon C. Aquino has said she will not appoint any communist in her Cabinet.

Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile has expressed reservations about the ceasefire talks and earlier said he is against negotiating on a government to government level, meaning treating the NDF-CPP-NPA as an equal body.

A ranking defense ministry official is pessimistic about the talks because of the CPP demands which, he says, mean the surrender of the AFP. "They are not serious about negotiating. If this fails the AFP will go all out and launch campaign against the rebels," he added.

CPP sources told BUSINESS DAY there need not be an immediate implementation of the agreement, say on the removal of U.S. bases.

"A written policy statement is enough," the CPP sources said.

Talks are slated to start immediatley. Jose W. Diokno and Ramon Mitra will negotiate on behalf of the government; Satur Ocampo and Antonio Zumel, for the NDF-CPP-NPA side.

SISON SUGGESTS ELECTION TO 'TEST' CPP ROLE

HK011559 Quezon City BUSINESS DAY in English 1 Jul 86 p 21

[Text] The acceptability of the communist Party of the Philippines (CPP) as a political force can be tested in an election, and if the people accept the CPP, then a coalition government may be possible.

Speaking at the weekly Kapihan sa Maynila [Manila Coffeeshop] forum at the Manila Hotel yesterday, former political detainee (and "former founder" of the CPP, according to the forum's organizers) Jose Ma. Sison said the CPP will play a significant role in bringing about political peace in the nation.

"(President) Aquino recognized this. The CPP can play a very positive role," Sison added.

Sison said a coalition government is possible. If the Aquino government becomes desperate in its efforts to bring about peace in the country side, it will begin to recognize the government can work with the revolutionary forces in a coalition government, he added.

Former member of parliament Arturo Barbero of Abra said a coalition government is possible only "if the left proves its acceptability" and this can be done if it submits itself to an election.

"The CPP should expose itself to a political battle," he said, "it should be above ground."

However, Felipe Miranda, political science professor at the state university and vice president of the Social Weather Station [SWS], a group monitoring political developments in the country, said a survey conducted by SWS last May revealed that 53 percent of the respondents do not like the CPP to be legalized.

Sison, on the other hand, said the legalization of the CPP "is no big deal." He said it would be "courting disaster if it comes out in the open without any guarantees" of its existence.

He said the "ruling classes" might "create incidents and provocations which would allow the Armed Forces to wipe out" the party, willing to join elections "only with guarantees that it is not vulnerable to being crushed."

Legislative and local government polls are expected in early 1987 after voters ratify a new constitution late this year.

Sison, freed by President Corazon C. Aquino along with 500 other political prisoners after February's centrist revolt, stressed that he was speaking for himself, but is believed to maintain links with rebel leaders.

President Aquino has repeatedly ruled out a coalition with the communists. She has named two top aides as negotiators in ceasefire talks aimed at a political solution of the insurgency, vowing to unleash the military if the rebels reject her peace efforts.

The CPP's estimated 16,000-strong New People's Army (NPA) is at the forefront of a 17-year-old insurgency that grew rapidly during the last years of rule by strongman Ferdinand Marcos, who fled to Hawaii after the revolt.

Sison, a former English professor, said he was not planning to run for office and would go back to teaching despite his key role in the current formation of an open leftist political party called Party of the People.

He expressed confidence in the future of the CPP-NPA, which has admitted it blundered when it boycotted February's presidential election. Pol frauds sparked the revolt that swept opposition bet Mrs. Aquino to the presidency.

He said the CPP-NPA was "laying the groundwork for the forthcoming revolutionary government that will eventually have its seat in Manila."

Sison said Mrs Aquino will be "desperate" and bring the left into her government, which has "substantially restored civil liberties," but has not "been able to even only lay the ground for the solution of basic problems."

COMMUNISTS INVITE AQUINO TO VISIT NORTH

[Text] Manila, July 4 KYODO -- Communist-led insurgents are inviting President Corazon Aquino to visit the northern Philippine home province of Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile to see if a cease-fire in the area is possible, the PHILIPPINE TRIBUNE newspaper said Friday.

"If President Aquino has the time, we would like to invite her for a visit to find out for herself just what is happening here," the newspaper quoted a Philippine Communist Party spokesman as saying. The Communist spokesman for Cagayan province, identified as Ka (Comrade) Julio, said Enrile and Armed Forces Chief of Staff Gen. Fidel Ramos, "are trying to fool Mrs Aquino (about) the real situation in Cagayan."

Representatives of the underground leftwing coalition, the National Democratic Front (NDF), and official government negotiators have been holding preliminary discussions on talks on a possible cease-fire to end the 17-year rebellion. The NDF groups the Communist party and its military arm, the New People's Army (NPA), with other outlawed workers', peasants', youth and religious groups.

"We want the cease-fire to have meaning, but if their counterinsurgency activities continue, if the violence on the people continues, then ceasre-fire might not be possible even for just a short period," Ka Julio said. He also rejected a proposal for a regional cease-fire. "It might be used as an excuse by the military to reinforce its units in areas where no cease-fire has been declared," he said.

Fighting has remained intense in Cagayan province since Aquino took power in a civilian-backed military revolt, led by Enrile and Ramos, which ended Ferdinand Marcos' 20-year rule last February. The insurgents are accusing the military of strafing, bombing, summary executions and imposing food blockades in several towns in the province.

"These measures are being implemented to deprive us of a mass base and mass support," the TRIBUNE quoted Cagayan NDF spokesman Ka Mario as saying.

"It would be fortunate if Mrs Aquino or even the Human Rights Commission would come here and find out just what the Cagayan masses think of the record of Enrile and the military here," Ka Julio said. "The masses themselves will show them the real character of Enrile and his men." Enrile has expressed skepticism on the projected cease-fire talks and said he did not think the NPA would lay down their arms even if a cease-fire was called by both sides.

7 SOLDIERS KILLED IN NPA AMBUSH IN AURORA

[Text] A constabulary major and six of his companions were killed in an ambush staged by 50 NPA guerrilas between Barangays Alcala and Dimatunto in Aurora yesterday afternoon. Colonel Constancio Lazapin, Aurora provincial commander, reported to Camp Olivas this morning and said that the victims were aboard a Philippine Constabulary [PC] Toyota jeep when they were fired upon from both sides by guerrillas.

The slain major was identified as Jose Valdonado, commander of the 187th PC Company based in Maria Aurora. The driver, Constable Leandro Gonzalang, was able to escape from the attack and return wounded to his unit.

[Excerpts] Communist rebels struck again Thursday, killing a PC [Philippine Constabulary] major and six constables in another ambush in Marie Aurora town in Aurora Province. The ambush brought to 31 the number of military personnel killed in ambushes in the past 4 days. The fatalities include four officers.

Regional Unifed Command III Commander Brigadier General Romeo David said the unit came from a newly established detachment in barangay (Nacdon) in (Dicapulao) and were on the way back to their station when ambushed. The leader of the NPA ambushers was identified as Commander Kojack.

The ambuscades took place at a time when the government and the Communist Party of the Philippines are holding informal dialogue to forge a ceasefire agreement.

Reacting to the NPA attacks, Armed Forces Chief General Fidel Ramos yesterday [4 July] accused the communists of trying to project a position of strength before entering into ceasefire negotiations with the government. He made the observation in an address before the Hunters ROTC celebration at the (Oberdin) Court in Quezon City. Ramos said this is a sign that the subversive terrorists are desperately moving themselves into a position of strength before entering into ceasefire negotiations with the government.

The military chief was referring to current talks between the government and the rebel emissaries on the possibility of concluding a ceasefire to end the 17-year communist insurgency problem in the country.

[Text] Manila, July 5 (AFP) -- The military Saturday disclosed that a relative unknown has emerged as the new chairman of the banned Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP). A high-ranking military officer identified the new CPP chairman as Benito Tiamzon, a former regional party officer on whom the Armed Forces intelligence services have scant information.

The official PHILIPPINE NEWS AGENCY (PNA) said the change at the head of the CPP was apparently sparked by a major blunder of the past leadership. The report could not be immediately verified, although there have been persistent reports of a shakeup in the hierarchy of the party, which was founded along Maoist lines in 1968.

The CPP as a firm policy has never disclosed or confirmed the identities of its leaders. The party's military arm, the 16,000-strong New People's Army (NPA), leads the insurgency which the new government of President Corazon Aquino is seeking to end through peace talks.

Former party chairman Rodolfo Salas was ousted along with Secretary-General Rafael Baylosis, whose probable successor was not pinpointed, due to their role in a party directive to boycott the presidential election in February which resulted in the popular revolt against former President Ferdinand Marcos. The CPP organ THE NATION last month admitted that the boycott was a major political blunder that isolated the left during the revolt that proclaimed opposition candidate Corazon Aquino as the rightful winner of a rigged poll. It blamed the Executive Committee of the party Central Committee for the error.

PNA said that military intelligence does not even know when Mr Tiamzon was born, estimating him to be in his late 30's or early 40's, as well as other personal information about him. But military intelligence have monitored his underground activities in the central island of Samar where the CPP is firmly entrenched, the news agency added.

NAKASONE GIVES POST-ELECTION PRESS CONFERENCE

OW071107 Tokyo NHK Television Network in Japanese 0700 GMT 7 Jul 86

[Press conference of LDP President and Japanese Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone at the LDP headquarters in Tokyo; questioners not identified -- live]

[Text] [Question] Now we will begin this press conference jointly with the Hirakawa Club [club of reporters assigned to LDP]. Although tallying is still in progress in the House of Councillors election, the LDP has scored a sweeping victory for the first time in a long time, winning 304 seats in the House of Representatives. How do you assess this judgment of the people and what do you see as the cause of the victory technically speaking?

[Nakasone] Honestly we did not expect to get as many as 304 seats in the House of Representatives. But, after learning of the figure, I am convinced that such an expectation would have been beyond human ability. Should I call it the voice of the people or the voice of Heaven or voice of God? I am convinced that we must be respectful and reverential in accepting the warm support extended by the people. After obtaining a number as large as this, I rather feel that my heart is choked with a sense of responsibility. I am convinced that we must double our efforts to meet their expectations.

[Question] Before the simultaneous elections of both houses there was speculation in some quarters that you, Mr. President, would step down using the elections as a flowery way to adorn the last page of your career. The result, however, has been a sweeping victory. Meanwhile, during the peak of the election campaigns you consistently said that you would obey party rules concerning the question of a third term of office. Now, after scoring this unexpected landslide victory of more than 300 seats, would you tell us how you will run the regime from now on?

[Nakasone] Since the party president is also a party member, it is only natural for him to follow party rules. As far as that matter is concerned, the position I held before the election remains unchanged and will still be valid after the election as well as even now when the election returns have been made known.

[Question] Do you, Mr. President, intend to raise the question of revising party rules in light of this big victory?

[Question] The LDP formed a coalition with the New Liberal Club [NLC] 2 and 1/2 years ago. As far as the stability of the LDP Government is concerned, this coalition appears to be no longer necessary now that the LDP has obtained more than 300 seats. What do you think of the coalition question now?

[Nakasone] I am grateful to the NLC members for their help. I am wholeheartedly thankful to them for their cooperation for the sake of political stability and the country when we were short in number. I am thankful to them even now. I think that the NLC played a significant role in this matter. I think that a minimum number of seats is a sort of strength needed to carry policies into practice in the Diet. In working out policies we heed the opposition's views well and, before that, we heed the people's opinion well. Since policy formulation is a matter of quality, and since it deals with a qualitative question rather than a question concerning any given number of Dietmen, I intend to humbly listen to what the people and opposition have to say about this question of quality with a fresh frame of mind. However, before doing so I believe we must first faithfully carry out the pledges we made. From this viewpoint, if there is a party or parties which offer their policy cooperation concerning important issues, I would not be reluctant to pursue policy cooperation with them on a case by case basis after holding talks. For instance, I think it would be very good if a situation develops in which we can hold talks and cooperate with other parties concerning the Japan National Railways [JNR], administrative and education reforms or tax reduction policy, depending on the situation. In sum, as far as the quality of policies is concerned, the LDP should be humble without being proud of the figure. In this sense I intend to listen to the opposition's opinion carefully, and I hope that the NLC, to which we have been indebted so far, will continue rendering cooperation with respect to our policies. The NLC has very excellent policies, I think. When it comes to the coalition question, however, the situation has changed. In this sense I think it is necessary to deal with this question circumspectly after hearing the views of the party members.

[Question] Would it be correct for us to interpret that you personally believe the intra-cabinet cooperation has come to a successful conclusion now that the elections are over?

[Nakasone] Now that we are faced with a new situation including that question, and since the opinions of LDP members are important, I intend to deal with the situation carefully after listening to the party members' opinions.

[Question] I believe you will begin forming your administration including the party Leadership in real earnest from now. Could you tell us about your basic policy for party personnel administration and the formation of your third Cabinet?

[Nakasone] The elections are not over yet. The returns in the House of Councillors election are yet to be announced. Therefore, I have not thought about that.

I am thinking of beginning to work out measures for the political situation and the party cautiously -- very cautiously -- after seeing the people's reaction to the results, criticisms or comments by journalists or experts as well as reactions of other countries.

[Question] Before going into the twin elections, you invited the so-called new leaders to your official residence to ask for their cooperation in the elections. Would it be correct for us to understand that in making decisions on those policies you mentioned, you will continue to put the new leaders in the center of your consultations?

[Nakasone] Under party politics it is natural to carry out our work with party leaders as the central elements. Therefore, I will be listening to and consulting with the senior party members and younger members and, while doing so, I will be consulting with the party executives who each have their respective areas of responsibility.

During the election campaign I said that I want to work for the rejuvenation of Japan, I want to accelerate the change of generation and I want to set the political foundation for opening up Japan's new future in the 21st century. That sort of thinking lies at the foundation. Thinking of where the popular will lies on the basis of the election returns, I believe that was also the case. New candidates were elected and young candidates are being elected with a great force. In this sense the people's judgment reflects their wish for the LDP to become a fresh, sprightly party, I think. If the LDP is rejuvenated, outgrowing its former self, and becomes progressive, I believe it will influence other parties and even the business circles or the cultural circles. Therefore, I think we should keep this in mind. Of course, the LDP is a political party and its old, middle-age and young members should be united. Therefore, I need to listen to the opinions of my seniors, or the older members, and also younger members. However, I must translate into practice, to a certain extent, what I appealed for in the elections. I want to pursue our work while maintaining harmony.

[Question] There was a period in which a political vacuum existed for approximately one month before the double election, and the JNR as well as measures to deal with the aftereffect of the yen rise and other pending issues are believed to have become big issues. In this connection when are you planning to call a special Diet session and an extraordinary session?

[Nakasone] The yen seems to have appreciated a little. But I think that this is because the yen was bought with the credit given to the fact that the LDP won an overwhelming majority as a result of the election. I think that they appreciated the fact that Japan will be politically stable -- at least, Japan will not be thrown into confusion, if it is wrong to say that Japan has become strong -- expecting that Japan will be carrying out economic policies vigorously and its economy will pick up. But this is a temporary phenomenon. The foreign exchange rate fluctuates depending on various factors prevailing at the time. It is affected by how speculators move, how the U.S. economy and the European situation develop and also by changes in oil prices. So, I think it is a temporary phenomenon. But the fact that Japan is perceived to have become politically stable and steady is in Japan's national interest, I think. It gives the world the impression that Japan has become firm without being in disarray. I think this is a plus. Regarding the exchange rate issue, I intend to continue striving to bring it to an appropriate level on a long-term basis to reflect national strength in a way satisfactory to all parties -- the United States, Japan and Europe as well.

[Nakasone, interrupting the questioner] Regarding the Diet session question, elections were held this time for both the House of Representatives and the House of Councillors. And it takes time for both houses to make preparations. The nameplates must be changed and documents need to be kept in order. So I will have to listen to the opinions of the secretaries general of both houses first. Furthermore, there are various political programs to be scheduled on our side -- for instance, when a cabinet meeting should be held to estimate budget demands and when and how the rice prices should be determined. So I plan to consult with the party sooner or later on how to keep it in harmony with those political programs and decide on it after sounding out the opposition's wishes as well. In any case, I hope to convene it as soon as practicably possible.

[Question] What do you think about an extraordinary session?

[Nakasone] An extraordinary Diet session will be called in autumn, I think.

[Question] During the election campaign the opposition criticized you, saying that the Diet dissolution was a foul play and that you are a liar. It is believed that the opposition holds a considerable degree of distrust in you, taking issue with your political management leading to the simultaneous elections of both houses. The LDP obtained as many as 304 seats, which constitutes an absolute majority, but how are you going to restore mutual trust with the opposition?

[Nakasone] The people handed down their verdict. It is sportsmanship to stop clean and shake hands after the game is over. Since the people passed their judgment, the opposition should abide by the people's judgment, I think. I think it is democratic and desirable that the opposition play it clean as in sportsmanship. I will lend an open ear to the opposition. Since we both are engaged in politics to serve the country and the people, we both are in complete agreement as far as that point is concerned. There also are many parties which uphold similar public pledges to ours. So we will hold talks with the opposition at full length. The more seats it garners, the humbler the LDP should be. I think it is a correct position to take for politicians to be humbled and pay due respect to the opposition's stand. So we intend to strive for satisfactory political management by respecting the opposition's opinions.

[Question] The recent Tokyo summit was a major test for the Nakasone foreign policy. Now the curtain is about to rise on Act Two of the same foreign policy -- or should it be called Act Three? What will you focus on in your future conduct of foreign policy? Also, would you tell us what kind of timetable you have in this area, if any?

[Nakasone] Indeed, we had the Tokyo summit. I believe that the foreign policy I have been conducting with Foreign Minister Abe has now been endorsed by the people. Generally speaking, the outcome of the elections this time has indisputably demonstrated their support for what we have been doing, as well as the basic lines of policies as manifested in our campaign pledges.

Foreign policy is one of those policies, I believe. I will pursue the same policy lines as I have been pursuing heretofore. As politics permit no break, there is no break in the conduct of foreign policy. The world situation keeps developing every moment. We will keep moving with foresight in world developments; I would like to press ahead with positive and active diplomatic activities.

Issues relating to peace and disarmament are most important. I would like to do my best to help realize the second U.S.-USSR summit -- the second Reagan-Gorbachev meeting -- by all means.

In addition, issues involving developing countries and North-South relations are becoming increasingly imporant. They are likely to become important issues. Now we have such things as the Baker Plan. Problems involving debtor nations will possibly surface as an international issue. With all these issues, it is also necessary that we show a stance of positive cooperation. In a nutshell, I will focus on positiveness and on taking the initiative in the future conduct of foreign policy. The question of economic friction remains a major problem. Previously, we had a panel work out the so-called Maekawa Report, which, after examinations by the LDP and the cabinet, was decided to be carried out in all its major contents by a cabinet decision dated 1 May.

Faithfully implementing recommendations in that report is, I believe, the fundamental way of resolving economic frictions and problems caused by the strong yen. With this in mind, I am determined to implement them. With regard to relations with the Soviet Union, I will see to it that the planned August visits of former residents to family graves in northern islands are carried out without fail. Also, in this recent reply to me, General Secretary Gorbachev referred to his possible future visit to Japan, using the expression that there is the possibility of such a visit in the not so distant future, or that he does not deny that possibility. I would like to have the visit realized by all means. I have been saying that with such a tough opponent as the Soviet Union, it is important to negotiate in a positive manner and expand dialogue. I will continue to strive along that line.

[Question] The tax cut issue and the related issue of revenue sources were never clearly addressed during the campaign. It is about time, we feel, for you to express your views about the tax reform issue with a focus on the related question of revenue sources. Your doing so will help business circles a great deal in formulating medium- and long-term plans, it is believed. On this occasion, would you mind commenting in a more specific manner?

[Nakasone] The issue is currently being studied by the government research council on tax systems. The council began first of all with the work of straightening out strains of the Schaupt Tax Era and relieving the taxpayers of the pressure of heavy taxes. It recently presented an interim report recommending an income tax cut and a corporate tax cut. The council is now working on an inheritance tax cut plan, after which it is scheduled to consider the general question of balance including the question of revenue sources. My position is to wait and watch developments in the council's work. As regards the issue of a large-scale indirect tax, and the issue of the small-amount tax-free individual accounts, however, I will strict to what I said during the campaign.

[Question] You have said that you will abide by the party rules. If you do so, that means that you have about 4 months left in your terms as LDP president. Would you comment on your plans for these 4 months?

[Nakasone] Since I don't have much time left, I think that I will be using it most effectively, putting everything I have into it. As I said during the campaign, I will do everything possible for the passage of wehat is called the Eight Major Bills of the Japan National Railways [JNR]. Also, there is the task of establishing a watchdog commission on administrative reform as referred to in the final batch of recommendations recently received from Mr Doko. I believe that we need to establish the proposed commission as early as possible by law. I consider it necessary to continue to work together with fellow citizens to establish a steady and stable line for Japan to follow in this area. I expect that there will also be other problems. I will work on them in cooperation with my colleagues in the party and the cabinet.

[Question] It is legally possible for you to continue to serve as prime minister even after your current term as LDP president has expired. What is your comment on this subject?

[Nakasone] Your question involves two problems, legal and political. You say that it is possible for me to legally continue as prime minister but it should be noted that I am the person who rejected the proposal for separating the premiership from the party presidency in the party's last presidential election. My position remains unchanged. Under the parliamentary cabinet system, I believe that there is incompatibility between that system and such a separation.

[Question] You have said that you wish to have the Diet act on the JNR bills and administrative reform-related bills during your term. And there are problems relating to a large-scale supplementary budget to be passed by the Diet. It seems to be rather difficult for the Diet to act on all these matters by the end of December. If the JNR bills are to be passed at all costs, is it possible that your term as LDP president will be extended?

[Nakasone] During the campaign, I kept saying that in order to expedite the passage of the JNR bills, the Diet needs to handle matters before it more effectively -- through intensive deliberations, efficient deliberations and other means.

[Question] In their reactions to the election result, opposition parties are saying that it is rather frightening, and that you might be ready now to go ahead and carry out what you call a political overhaul of post-war Japan no matter what. Would you comment on that point?

[Nakasone] If the people had felt the same way as those parties did, they wouldn't have voted for us. The fact that opposition parties are saying what they are saying means that they have some kind of complex motive on their part, does it not? I personally believe that what is expected of democratic politicians is to obey the people's mandate in good spirits.

As I said earlier in this press conference, in some cases we are required to view numerical strength in a qualitatively different light from the matter of policy. Superiority in numerical strength does not necessarily mean good policy. We will keep this point in mind at all times and pursue -- with maximum caution and moderation -- policies that are acceptable to the people. People do not like extremes. We will follow lines that are acceptable to the majority of people. In other words, the greatest happiness for the largest majority of people represents the secret of success for politicians dedicated to democracy. That has been our philosophy and we have been struggling along that line. That is how we have been able to win the support of our people, I believe.

If anyone regards the election outcome as frightening, it appears to me that he or she lacks real understanding of the greatest-happiness-for-the-largest-majority-of-people philosophy.

[Question] You have briefly touched on an extraordinary session of the Diet to be convened in the fall. If the issue of the JNR bills is to be viewed in connection with the expiration of your current term that comes at the end of October, isn't it necessary to begin work on them at an earlier date? If you insist on waiting until the fall rather than starting the work earlier -- say toward the end of July -- then you might risk running out of time. Would you comment on this point?

[Nakasone] One may ask what time of the autumn I am thinking about in that respect. What I am thinking is that it could be a good idea to start the work on the bills when the autumn breeze begins blowing. It could be that people may find themselves somewhat tired after the elections. In addition, the election results have to be taken into account. What I mean is that the results were probably something unexpected to both the LDP and opposition parties; consequently, each party needs time, I believe, to grasp them and come up with plans on how to deal with them.

Thus, considering the time factor, I believe that it is necessary for us to just name the prime minister and set up regular committees in the Diet in the upcoming special session, then to have a break and ponder the future of the nation and the way political parties should be. Especially, facing the House of Representatives is the task of bringing basic resolution to the seat reapportionment issue. Meanwhile, while stumping, I heard remarkably strong voices demanding reform of the Diet as well as administrative reform. We are required to listen to them carefully, I believe. In that sense, I feel that we need to pause and ponder for a while.

[Question] By reform of the Diet do you mean a drastic cut in the total number of seats and a review of the functions of the House of Councillors?

[Nakasone] Yes, I do. While members of the House of Councillors may not like to hear about reform of the upper house, the House of Representatives also needs a review of its functions. For instance, members of the House of Councillors suggest that the Diet conduct its regular session in January. In fact, the Finance Act provides the budget bill to be presented to the Diet in December, however, this provision has never been honored since 1919. It remains an empty clause. The reason is that economic figures do not become available until the end of the year, forcing the government to delay the presentation of the budget bill until some time in January. As the result, the Diet session convened in December is customarily recessed immediately until late January, giving rise to criticism of waste, including those of salaries paid Diet members. This led some members of the House of Councillors to propose that a regular session be convened in January instead of December.

In addition, there are matters concerning the way the Diet conducts its deliberations and the way Diet members should conduct themselves. The time has come, I believe, for the Diet itself to ponder all these matters and take whatever corrective measures are necessary in the light of criticism from the people. I say this as LDP president.

[Question] What would you do if the Diet should fail to pass the JNR bills by the time yur term expires?

[Nakasone] I will see to it that the kind of situation as you have mentioned will not occur. That is what I have in mind now. [pause] You were remarkably vigorous with your questions today, were you not? [laughter]

NONALIGNED SPORTS MEETING HOLD PLENUM

[Text] Pyongyang July 6 (KCNA) -- The Second Conference of Ministers and High Officials of Physical Education and Sports of Non-Aligned countries opened in Pyongyang, the capital of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, on July 5.

Present at the conference are delegations and delegates from Iran, Seychelles, Afghanistan, Angola, Benin, Bolivia, Chad, Cuba, Ethiopia, Guinea-Bissau, Guyana, India, Korea, Laos, Madagascar, Malta, Nicaragua, the Palestine Liberation Organization, Sao Tome and Principe, Senegal, Togo, the Sudan, Burkina Faso, Viet Nam, Democratic Yemen, Yugoslavia, Zambia, Algeria, Bangladesh, Cape Verde, the Congo, Egypt, Gabon, Ghana, Indonesia, Lebanon, Mali, Mozambique, Nefal, Niger, Somalia, the African national Congress of South Africa, the Southwest Africa People's Organization, Syria, Tanzania, Tunisia and Zimbabwe.

Premier Kang Song-san, Vice-Premier and Foreign Minister Kim Yong-nam, Vice-Premier Chong Chun-ki, Chairman of the Korean Physical Culture and Sports Guidance Committee Kim Yu-sun and other senior officials were also present.

In his opening address, Kim Yu-sun said that the non-aligned countries were confronted at this moment with an important and heavy task to expand interchange and cooperation and further stregthen friendship and solidarity in the sports field and establish a new international sports order.

Premier Kang Song-san made a congratulatory speech at the conference.

And congratulatory speeches were made by the head of the Indian delegation on behalf of the chairman nation of the Seventh Non-Aligned Summit, heads of the Burkina Faso, Nicaraguan, Maltese and Democratic Yemeni delegations on behalf of the continents and by the head of the delegation of the Palestine Liberation Organization on behalf of the liberation movement organisations.

Then, the session entered into a plenary meeting.

The meeting elected Kim Yu-Sun, head of the delegation of the DPRK, chairman of the session and Da Sansan Jean Baptiste, head of the delegation of Burkina Faso, Conrado Martinez Corona, head of the delegation of Cuba, and Slobodan Filipovic, head of the delegation of Yugoslavia, vice-chairmen.

It adopted the following agenda:

1. Study of the implementation of manifesto and plan of action adopted at the First General Conference of Ministers and High Officials of Youth and Sports of Non-Aligned Countries held in 1981

2. Report and recommendations of the coordinators's meeting of physical culture and sports of the non-aligned countries held in Havana in 1986

3. The 24th Olympic Games slated for 1988

4. Basic problem for the establishment of a new international sports order

5. Other matters.

Debate on the above agenda items took place at the afternoon session.

Delegates said in their speeches that the non-aligned countries should strengthen mutual cooperation and exchange in the sports domain and make joint efforts to replace the old international order with a new one in the sports field.

They also accused the imperialists of their schemings to use the Olympic movement for political purpose and manifested full support to the Olympic cosponsorship proposal put forward by the Democratic People's Republic of Korea.

Mohamed Reza Afzalifa, delegate of Iran, underlined the importance of the current session in expanding cooperation among non-aligned countries in the sports domain and stressed that the non-aligned member nations should do their utmost to completely do away with prejudice and exploitation in the sports domain and cooperate with each other.

Emilio Popez Arteaga, delegate of Bolivia, said that the current session should adopt documents for development of sports of various forms in accordance with the desire of the peoples of non-aligned countries, the commercialisation and professionalisation of sports be checked and the non-aligned countries be allowed to participate in games on an equal footing with all other countries of the world.

Whether the 24th Olympic Games will serve as an opportunity of encouraging the Korean people's desire of achieving a peaceful reunification of the country and uniting people, or not, depends on how the national Olympic committees act, he said, and added: The 1988 Olympics should be games to unite the great Korean nation.

Conrado Martinez Corona, delegate of Cuba, said that non-aligned countries are today under obligation to oppose and overcome the reactionary tendencies which are becoming unscrupulous in the international Olympic movement.

He stressed that these countries should show particular interest in the designation of the venues of international games. The non-aligned countries, he said, are duty bound to support the just proposal of the DPRK for cohosting the 24th Olympics to prevent the Olympic movement from being divided.

Delegate of the Republic of Zambia Frederick S. Hapunda said:

Zambia supports the efforts of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea for the cohosting of the Olympic Games by the North and South of Korea.

The International Olympic Committee should not allow itself to be used for a commercial purpose and the funds accruing from sports games should be allocated to the development of the physical culture and sports of the third world countries.

Referring to the 24th Olympic Games in 1988, delegate of the Lao People's Democratic Republic Uplavan Thongchan expressed full support to the DPRK's proposal for the cohosting of the Olympic Games by the North and the South of Korea.

Unless a proper measure is taken against commercialism and professionalism manifested in the international sports movement, it will adversely affect the sports movement of the non-aligned countries, he warned.

Delegate of the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia Slobodan Filipovic said the conference would adopt important decisions for the future progress of sports.

He expressed thanks to the DPRK for organizing the conference well and providing excellent work conditions.

Delegate of the People's Republic of Benin Ousman Batoko said:

The DPRK's proposal for the cosponsorship of the forthcoming Olympiad by the North and South of Korea deserves our unanimous approval and support.

This is the view and stand of the Benin people and Government and the party of the people's revolution of Benin, their vanguard party.

Delegate of the Republic of Guinea Amadou Binani Diallo said its delegation maintains that the Olympic Games should contribute to strengthening friendship and exchange among peoples in the building of a more peaceful and prospering new society in accordance with the basic principles of the Olympic movement.

He called upon all the delegates present at the conference to fully support the DPRK's cohosting proposal in conformity with the principles of the Non-Aligned Movement.

Delegate of the Republic of Senegal Landing Sane said:

At this conference we should earnestly discuss practical and realistic problems of establishing a new sports order and strengthening cooperation in the field of sports. Sports makes a great contribution to the promotion of understanding and friendship among peoples.

Delegate of the Republic of Ghana Samuel Asumah Nelson said that Ghana supports the DPRK proposal to cohost the 1988 Olympic Games and it is the very important proposal conducive to achieving peace and solidarity and saving the international Olympic movement from the crisis.

Delegate of the Republic of Togo Bulua Yao Agbo said:

Togo holds that in case of the 24th Olympic Games the same number of sports events should be held in Pyongyang and Seoul.

Sports and Olympiad should help strengthen friendship and cooperation among the world youth. The Olympic movement must not serve as a means of freezing the split of the Korean people.

Delegate of the Democratic Republic of Madagascar Jean Andre Ndremanjari said:

The 3rd sports games of the island countries of the Indian ocean will be held in 1989. Such international sports contests will contribute to expanding economic relations based on South-South cooperation and help strengthen subregional social and cultural exchange among the youth.

The cohosting of the 24th Olympic Games will create favourable circumstances for the struggle of the Korean people to realise national reunification. Therefore, the DPRK's proposal to cohost the 1988 Olympic Games should be given full support.

The speakers expressed heartfelt thanks to the great leader President Kim Il-song and dear comrade Kima Chong-il for the warm hospitality shown for them and all conditions provided for the success of the conference.

The conference continues.

KANG SONG-SAN SPEECH AT SPORTS MEETING

[Text] Pyongyang July 5 (KCNA) -- Kang Song-san, premier of the Administration Council of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, made a congratulatory speech at the Second Conference of Ministers and High Officials of Physical Education and Sports of Non-Aligned Countries which opened here today.

He said that the current second conference since the founding of the Non-Aligned Movement was of very momentous significance because it is an international meeting convened at a time when the interest of the non-aligned countries in sports is growing as never before.

Noting that the peoples of the non-aligned countries have much more to do in the future than what they have already done in developing sports and establishing a new international sports order, he continued.

If the non-aligned countries are to develop sports, a state must set a correct orientation of development suited to their specific conditions and the people themselves implement it as a master.

We consider it to be a most correct way for the development of sports on a sound foundation to let the entire people participate in sports and give full play to their creative enthusiasm and activeness.

The course of the sports development in many non-aligned countries shows that when countries once backward in this field push forward sports as a nation-wide campaign, they can rapidly develop them on a sound foundation.

It is a unanimous desire and demand of our member nations to expand and develop cooperation and exchange in sports field.

When the non-aligned countries actively encourage cooperation of various forms such as exchange of experience and technique and material assistance in sports field, too, on the principle of unity, solidarity and mutual assistance already recognized in our movement, they would be able to build physical culture successfully and contribute to developing international sports.

We hope that the current meeting will provide an excellent programme of cooperation among the non-aligned countries for sports fields and its concrete practical measures so as to contribute to bringing about an upswing in sports field and further strengthening the friendship and solidarity among member nations.

The struggle of the non-aligned countries in the international sports field to destroy the old undemocratic and unfair order and establish a new one is part of the work for democratizing international relations as a whole and it fully accords with the idea and purpose of the non-aligned movement.

The non-aligned countries should make all national Olympic committees participate in the Olympic movement on an equal footing and realise a genuine democracy and energetically struggle to establish a new international sports order as a whole.

It is of very weighty importance at present to heighten vigilance against the imperialists' attempt to use the Olympic movement for their political purpose and wage a resolute struggle against it.

We consider that we should not allow the 24th Olympic Games to be used for a wrong political purpose to bar the reunification of Korea, freeze her division and create "two Koreas".

We advanced a proposal that the 24th Olympiad be cohosted by the North and the South of Korea in order to save the games from the crisis, hold them smoothly and create a favorable climate for the peaceful reunification of our country.

The Korean people will as ever struggle to frustrate the imperialists' moves to use the Olympic movement for their political purpose, make a contribution to its sound development and accelerate the cause of national reunification by realising the cohosting proposal with the positive support and encouragement of peoples of the non-aligned countries and all the progressive peoples of the world who love peace and justice.

He went on to say:

Today sports in Korea are daily developing and flowering as the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song advanced a chuche-oriented policy of sports and opened a bright prospect for their development and the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il wisely leads them.

The thoroughgoing implementation of the sports policy of the government of the DPRK to firmly establish chuche in sports, popularize sports and develop their science and technique helped the entire people to actively participate in sports activities and turned sports into an enjoyment of the popular masses and a powerful weapon in bringing up independent men in our country.

Today our country has modern sports establishments including stadium, gymnasium and swimming pool in Pyongyang, the capital of revolution, and in all other parts of the country to meet the ever growing demand of the people for physical culture and successfully ensure any big international games.

He stressed: The government of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea will as ever vigorously struggle to intensify the unity of the Non-Aligned Movement, safeguard world peace and security and build a new, independent world under the banner of non-alignment, the banner of independence against imperialism.

NODONG SINMUN DEMANDS COHOSTING OF OLYMPICS

SK301055 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1018 GMT 30 June 86

[Text] Pyongyang, June 30 (KCNA) — If the 24th Olympic Games are co-hosted by the North and South of Korea, all the Olympic members including the countries considering their participation in the games to be held in South Korea will take part in them and, accordingly, the Olympic movement will be saved from the crisis of split, declares NODONG SINMUN Monday.

In its signed article titled "Olympics Must be Co-Hosted by North and South," the paper says:

We are making every sincere effort for the realisation of the co-hosting proposal from the earnest stand to remove the crisis facing the Olympic movement and contribute to peace in the country and its peaceful reunification at any cost.

It is an anachronistic act for the South Korean side to refuse co-sponsorship supported by the whole nation and the world peaceloving people in unison and insist on the single-handed sponsorship by South Korea. The Olympic movement must never be abused for the perpetuation of the division of Korea.

As we have already made clear, the 24th Olympic Games must be co-hosted by the North and South and, to this end, our elementary demand for such basic questions as the title of the games, division of events, formation of the organizing committee and the opening and closing ceremonies of the games must be accepted.

If the co-hosting is realised, we will offer excellent sports facilities to all sports games to be held in Pyongyang and warmly receive the players and officials, reporters, tourists and all other guests coming to Pyongyang and provided [as received] them all conveniences.

SK270406 (Clandestine) Voice of National Salvation in Korean to South Korea 0300 GMT 26 Jun 86

[Text] Madrid -- On 24 June, Gramov, chairman of the Soviet Olympic committee, on a visit to Spain, called for the '88 Olympic games to be co-hosted by the North and the South. In a recent interview held in Madrid, he said that the decision to hold the Olympic games in Seoul would not contribute to the reunification of the Korean peninsula and that the Soviet position is to hold the Olympic games in the North and the South.

DEVELOPMENT OF FACTIONS REPORTED IN OPPOSITION

[From "Week in Review" column]

[Text] A political turbulence is brewing in the opposition New Korea Democratic Party.

Its adviser Kim Yong-sam is triggering an array of rumors by making enigmatic remarks concerning the next government.

Breaking his self-imposed taboo, party leader Yi Min-u is finding fault with the "godfathers" of the opposition party: Kim Tae-chung and Kim Yong-sam.

The so-called "two Kims" are busy reinforcing their factions in what may prove to be the beginning of their eventual estrangement.

Political observers are divided in interpreting the unexpected development in the opposition party.

Out of the blue, Kim Yong-sam said Wednesday that the next president should serve for only four years, whatever the stipulations of the new Constitution may be.

Political observers paid keen attention to the remark because it reminded them of the controversy that Kim Tae-chung had created last year by proposing to share the roles as NKDP president and NKDP's presidential candidate with Kim Yong-sam.

Kim Yong-sam tried to dampen the mounting speculations concerning his comment by saying, "If rival parties succeed in working out a democratic constitutional amendment through a bipartisan agreement, the new basic law will carry the meaning of the constituent Constitution."

Kim added, "Therefore, the next president can help establish a tradition of peaceful power transfer by stepping down at the end of a four-year term."

Some political analysts construed the remarks as meaning that he intends to run for the president ahead of Kim Tae-chung.

The interpretation is somewhat plausible, in that Kim Tae-chung is barred from political activities by convicted sedition stemming from the 1980 Kwangju incident.

Other analysts said the utterances were politically motivated ones aimed at the government or the ruling party.

They said that Kim apparently thinks a transition period will follow the constitutional revision and that he will agree to the election of a third personage as president, if he serves a single term.

Kim, however, emphasized that he made the remarks as part of an effort to help ruling and opposition parties to hammer out a compromise constitutional reform bill.

Meanwhile, party president Yi Min-u caused a minor storm at a tea Wednesday by openly criticizing the two Kims.

Volunteering to talk with reporters over coffee, Yi denounced the Kim Yong-sam faction to which he belongs.

"During the last mountaineering rally sponsored by the Democratic Alpine Club, I saw how the emcee led the gathering crowd to shout Kim Yong-sam is the next national leader. They should have refrained from irritating the other faction," he said.

Yi also complained about the Kim Tae-chung faction's reported plan to hold a unity meeting shortly.

He said to party secretary general U Chae-yon, a ranking member of the Kim Tae-chung action, "What's the idea of holding a reception only for the members of your faction at this juncture?"

The NKDP president made it clear that he will pick opposition members of the forthcoming Special Constitution Revision Committee on his own.

He also set off controversy within his party by making disputable remarks concerning the form of the next government.

Asked to comment on news reports that the ruling party is tilting toward a parliamentary government system, he said, "We maintain our position that the president should be elected by a direct popular voting."

Yi went on to say, "Even if we should adopt the parliamentary government system, we should first revise the National Assembly Election Law."

Dismissing the DJP's proposal for the parliamentary form of government as "not worthy of note," he said, "All those matters will be handled by the upcoming special constitutional committee."

Pointing to Yi's previous order that party lawmakers refrain from speaking of a government system other than a direct presidential election system, some political observers said his comments carried special significance.

The observers said the remarks might mean that there is a possibility that ruling and opposition parties may eventually agree on the parliamentary form of government.

At present, the ruling DJP, which adamantly opposes direct presidential election, and the opposition NKDP, which persistently calls for the system, show no signs of backing off from their positions.

The observers said the parliamentary form of government is the most likely option for the form of the next government.

They also said Yi seems to be willing to play his own role in clearing the way for rival parties to hammer out a constitutional reform bill.

Up to now, he has avoided making controversial statements that may hurt the feelings of the two Kims to whom he is indebted for being reelected as opposition party leader.

Some political watchers said Yi is acting on his own these days to enhance his status and capability within the opposition party.

The sudden change of attitude on the part of Yi is embarrassing the two Kims, especially Kim Tae-chung.

In the meantime, the two Kims are stepping up their efforts to expand their sphere of influence in the party.

Kim Yong-sam is seeking to make himself felt both in and out of the party by holding large-scale rallies.

Kim Tae-chung is reaching out to former opposition lawmakers to be prepared for an ultimate showdown with Kim Yong-sam.

Against this background, minor faction leaders are attempting to expand their bases in and out of the party.

Among them are party vice president Yi Ki-taek and Kim Chae-kwang, who challenged Yi's party leadership last August.

Political observers said the political turbulance now being brewed in the opposition party is expected to grow intense as time goes by.

DEFENSE MINISTER WARNS OF 'SPORADIC' PROVOCATIONS

[Text] Osan, Kyonggi-do -- Defense Minister Yi Ki-paek warned yesterday that north Korea may launch "sporadic" armed provocations against the south in a bid to disrupt the forthcoming Asian Games.

Yi also said that now is the most vulnerable session in the security of Korea with some 80 days remaining before the Asiad and with the advent of the foliage season.

"Korean and American forces should not let their guards down in the face of the ever-present military threat from the north," he said.

Yi made the remarks in a speech at a ceremony marking the 36th anniversary of the first battle between U.S. soldiers and north Koreans at an early stage of the Korean War that broke out on June 25, 1950.

About 120 people braved the drizzle while attending the ceremony held at the site of the bloody battle in Chukmiryong Hill just north of here.

They included Gen. William J. Livsey, a commander of the U.S. Forces Korea, Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Kim In-ki and Rep. Chi Kap-chong, chairman of the U.N. Korean War Allies Association.

Also speaking at the ceremony, Gen. Livesey paid tribute to the brave American soldiers who joined in the fierce battle.

"Those fighting men of Task Force Smith were pioneers for freedom on this peninsula," he said, referring to a group of 406 American soldiers who fought the battle under the command of Lt. Col. Charles B. Smith.

Recalling that the Republic of Korea was not totally prepared at the time of the north Korean armed aggression, Gen. Livesey said Korea and the United States learned a "bitter lesson" from that war.

"We learned that the bill for being unprepared must be paid for in the blood of our best and bravest. We must never make that mistake again," he said.

"The people of America, the people of the Republic of Korea and the people of the free world pay tribute on this day to the gallant soldiers who fought on these hills on that sorrowful day 36 years ago."

History records that it rained at the battle site on the morning of July 5, 1950, when the far-outnumbered American soldiers successfully conducted a delay tactic against the north Korean soldiers supported by 33 Soviet-built tanks sweeping down the road from Suwon.

HANGUK ILBO ON NORTH'S DEMANDS ON OLYMPICS

SK041242 Seoul HANGUK ILBO in Korea 4 Jul 86 p 1

[Report by HANGUK ILBO correspondent Kim Sung-ung in Lausanne]

[Text] In a communique issued on 3 July, the International Olympic Committee [IOC] said that even though North Korea has sent the IOC side a "very positive" reply to the IOC proposal to hold events of the 1988 Seoul Olympic Games in the North and the South, after dividing events, North Korea has added the proviso strongly hoping that it would hold more games in North Korea than the number of events proposed by the IOC. IOC spokesman Michele Verdier said, "South Korea sent us a reply saying it will accept the IOC proposal. In the meantime, North Korea has accepted the IOC proposal but added some provisos. North Korea has basically approved the IOC compromise proposal."

Saying that before arranging a new round of negotiations to discuss the issue of transferring some events to North Korea [the IOC] demands that the North Korea side clarify its position on some points. The spokesman added that [the IOC] sent the North Korean Olympic Committee a letter requesting that it explain what its further requests are.

The spokesman said that before a general meeting of all 91 IOC members is held in September in Lausanne, North Korea must make its position clear.

In talks held between IOC president Samaranch and relevant [South] Korean official on 3 July, it has been learned, North Korea demanded that all wrestling, weight lifting, and soccer games be held in the North Korean side.

The IOC did not reveal which points North Korea must clarify its position on and whether this issue will give rise to problems for the [South] Korean side.

On 11 June, the IOC proposed that the North Korea side hold table tennis and archery matches and preliminary matches of one group in soccer and that the 100-km road cyclist event start from North Korea.

When it made this proposal, the IOC revealed that it was with the condition that North Korea must withdraw its demand that an equal number of events be held respectively in North Korea and South Korea, its demand that North Korea and South Korea jointly arrange opening and closing ceremonies, and its demand concerning the title of the Olympic Games.

EXPERTS 'REGRET' NORTH'S 'UNREASONABLE' DEMANDS

[Text] Seoul, July 4 (YONHAP) -- South Korean sports experts Friday expressed regret that North Korea has not renounced its "unreasonable demands" that Pyongyang be allowed to host additional events during the 1988 Seoul Olympics.

They were commenting on North Korea's reaction with reservation to a compromise plan proposed by the International Olympic Committee (IOC). On June 11, the IOC suggested that Pyongyang stage a few events, including table tennis, archery, competition involving one group in the soccer tournament and the start of the 100-kilometer cycle road race.

IOC President Juan Antonio Samaranch presented the idea as a final offer in an effort to meet North Korea's demand that the Olympics be shared equally. South Korea accepted the idea at the end of last month.

They also urged Pyongyang to abandon its demand that it be permitted to co-host the games, and to observe the provisions of the IOC charters and the decision by the Olympic governing body in Baden-Baden designating Seoul as the sole venue for the 1988 games.

U.S. COMMITMENT VIEWED AGAINST USSR-DPRK RELATIONS

[Editorial: "Expanding Soviet-N.K. Ties"]

[Text] One of the most conspicuous political and military developments taking place of late in the Far East is the intensification of ties between North Korea and the Soviet Union. The present visits to North Korea by a flotilla, including an aircraft carrier, and an airforce delegation of the Soviet Union are one telling indicator.

These latest visits come following Pyongyang's acquisition of an advanced Soviet-supplied military arsenal and the Soviet Union's procurement of the right to fly over north Korea. All this unmistakably reflects Moscow's increasing recognition of the growing importance of the Pacific region.

It is quite logical for the Soviets to emphasize the geostrategic importance of the Korean peninsula in their quest for greater influence in the Pacific theater. The history of the peninsula over the past century underlines its critical importance.

The Communist north Koreans seem to be finding recent Soviet strategy concordant with their attempt to communize the whole Korean peninsula. Mindful of this, we cannot but be concerned about the danger arising from Pyongyang's ambitions.

At this juncture, it is worth noting the remarks of Adm. Ronald J. Hays, commander of the U.S. Pacific Command, who recently said, "The Republic of Korea lives in constant apprehension that north Koreans will break a 33-year-old armistice and invade the south again." He warned that north Korea may attempt to disrupt or spoil this fall's Asian Games and the 1988 Olympiad, both to be held in Seoul.

Any armed conflict occurring on the peninsula is apt to draw others into the fray in view of Korea's geostrategic position, as history has often proven. Therefore, maintaining deterrence against Pyongyang's threats is surely vital to keeping other nations in the region and around the world stable and at peace. That deterrence, of course, should be sufficient enough to prevent the Pyongyang Communists from making any miscalculation about our resolve and capability to counter any military adventurism on their part.

As such, we doubt the wisdom of U.S. House Democrats who, in the policy plan approved recently at their party caucus, said that the United States, in the short term, should equip south Korea with more tactical air, naval and logistical support, particularly munitions, instead of making a large commitment to the stationing of ground forces in Korea. They said, "In the long run, we favor a much greater contribution from Japan to the defense of south Korea."

The statement, though yet to be adopted as an official plank for their November midterm elections, smacks of the Carter administration's policy calling for the pullout of American ground troops from Korea. The Democrats need to recall why the plan had to be scrapped. In hindsight, it is clear that the ill-advised plan was conceived based on an inadequate assessment of the realities of the situation on the peninsula.

It must be noted that the geostrategic position of south Korea is now more critical than in the late 1970s, both for itself as well as for its allies. The Soviets have long since made it their goal to eliminate American influence from the Asian continent.

Undeniably, the presence of American ground forces here has served as the strongest deterrence to any renewed invasion by the northern Communists. The resolve for deterrence that has been unequivocally demonstrated by the stationing of ground troops here is no less important than actual military potential. Therefore, we doubt whether military commitment without ground troops could ever prove as effective as with them.

Practically speaking, Japan can at the present make a greater contribution to the defense of south Korea only through indirect approaches, such as stepped-up economic cooperation, but not through any military alliance. Japan's constitutional restriction prohibiting the sending of soldiers overseas, coupled with the popular sentiments existing between the Korean and Japanese people as a result of their unique historical relationship, makes it difficult to expect the two nations to form a military alliance in the foreseeable future.

Deterrence must be based on a realistic assessment of the very tangible threats facing the peninsula and the region as a whole. Maintaining unequivocal resolve is the surest way of keeping the Korean peninsula stable for the good of our own nation as well as all others concerned, especially at a time when tensions are apt to rise ever higher.

SPK HAILS HAYDEN CALL FOR POL POT TRIAL

BK020740 Phnom Penh SPK in French 0408 GMT 2 Jul 86

["Public Opinion Continues To Condemn the Pol Pot Clique" -- SPK headline]

[Text] Phnom Penh, 2 Jul (SPK) -- Australian Foreign Minister Bill Hayden's call for the creation of an international tribunal to try Pol Pot and his accomplices for their crimes against Cambodians constitutes a continual condemnation of the criminals of genocide by world public opinion.

this call, made at the recent 19th ASEAN foreign ministers conference, conforms with the aspirations of all justice-loving people in the world. In fact, Pol Pot's people were tried from 15 to 19 August 1979 at the revolutionary tribunal of the Cambodian people in Phnom Penh with the participation of many foreign jurists. Pol Pot, Ing Sary, and Khieu Samphan were sentenced to death in absentia.

Since then, many people have realized that Pol Pot and his accomplices, like several World War II criminals, must be punished and that the decision of the Phnom Penh tribunal is entirely correct.

However, more than 7 years have already elapsed. Instead of being punished, these criminals continue to exist and to engage in sabotage activities against the rebirth of the Cambodian people. It is generally known that they would not have been able to survive even a single day if the Chinese expansionists, U.S. imperialists, and Thai ultrarightists did not support them morally and materially.

The PRK has pointed out on many occasions that Cambodia's internal affairs must be settled by Cambodians themselves. Those who break away from the enemy and defect to the revolution will fully enjoy the rights of citizens. As for the genocidal Pol Pot clique and other reactionary Cambodian groups that have committed odious crimes against Cambodians, their lot will be decided by Cambodians. In short, the Pol Pot clique must be eliminated politically and militarily.

It is certain that a growing number of people will listen to Bill Hayden's call.

VODK CRITICIZES HAYDEN REMARKS AT ASEAN MEETING

BK020359 (Clandestine) Voice of Democratic Kampuchea in Cambodian 2330 GMT 1 Jul 86

["Short commentary": "Ignorant or Siding With the Aggressors?"]

[Text] During the 19th annual conference of ASEAN foreign ministers and during the meeting between the ASEAN countries and their economic partnes held recently in Manila, the foreign ministers in general voiced their support for the CGDK's 8-point peace proposal and the just struggle waged by the Cambodian people and the CGDK, condenmed the Vietnamese aggression in Cambodia, and demanded that Vietnam withdraw all its troops from Cambodia immediately and unconditionally in accordance with UN resolutions.

However, Australian Foreign Minister Bill Hayden, who also attended the ASEAN conference, did not utter a word about the Vietnamese enemies' gross and barbarous aggression against Cambodia, nor about Vietnamese crimes in massacring Cambodians daily. On the contrary, he opposed Vietnamese aggressors in order to defend their race and liberate their country.

Hayden's statement at this ASEAN conference really amazed all who were present. They have asked: Is Mr Hayden such an ignorant politician that he does not know about the Vietnamese aggression in Cambodia? It was agreed by all that during this ASEAN conference, Hayden wa the only one who overlooked Vietnamese crimes in Cambodia -- how they have massacred the Cambodian people both inside the country and those innocent Cambodian people who have fled to live in refugee camps on Thai soil; and the Vietnamese enemies' barbarous and arrogant acts violating Thai territorial integrity and sovereignty and their criminal acts in destroying peace, security, and stability in all of Southeast Asia. In saying this, who does Mr Hayden side with? Does he side with justice or injustice? Does he side with the Cambodian people who have suffered from Vietnamese aggressive acts or with the Vietnamese aggressors and expansionists? Obviously, Mr Hayden's statement clearly shows that he totally sides with the Vietnamese aggressors, defends the Vietnamese acts of aggression and expansion, and opposes the common demand and just call of the world community in a most ignorant manner.

SRV TRYING TO 'WOO' U.S. WITH MIA ISSUE

["Short article": "The Hanoi Vietnamese Clique Are Unearthing Bones To Trade With the United States"]

[Text] Recently, during talks in Hanoi between a U.S. Delegation and Nguyen Co Thach and Hoang Bich Son to resolve the MIA [Missing in Action] issue, the Hanoi clique tried to please the United States by hastily affirming that Vietnam will provide information to the United States on the issue, cooperate with the United States in digging up MIA remains, and lead U.S. teams to find U.S. soldiers believed to be still alive in mountainous or remote areas, and so on. This attitude of the Vietnamese clique has led people to question why Vietnam -- which is facing a serious economic crisis and busily trying to resolve countless urgent problems -- is trying so hard to unearth bones for the United States. There is nothing to be surprised about in this issue. The fact is that while vietnam is facing serious difficulties, both at home and in the international arena, because of its isolation resulting from its war of aggression in Cambodia, the Hanoi Vietnamese clique has been trying to woo the United States by every means. First, because Vietnam wants to get U.S. assistance to resolve its economic plight and, second, to end its isolation in the international arena.

However, no matter how hard Vietnam tries, the United States does not soften its stand. This time, as on previous occasions, the U.S. side affirmed to the Vietnamese side that the MIA issue is a humanitarian one and is not related to any political or other issues. The United States will not resume normal relations with Vietnam as long as Vietnam refuses to withdraw its forces from Cambodia.

So, with the United States, as with other countries, if Vietnam wants to receive aid to resolve its economic problems or to resume normal relations with others to get out of its isolation, the only way is to end its war of aggression in Cambodia and withdraw all its forces from this country. Otherwise, no matter how many more metric tons of bones are unearthed, no one will give aid to or resume normal relations with Vietnam.

ARMY MEETING ON LPRP DRAFT POLITICAL REPORT

[Text] To expand upon the substantial contents of the party Central Committee's draft political report to be read at the forthcoming Fourth LPRP Congress and to make them correct in line with the realities in Laos, to broaden the democratic practices of studying and collecting views from lower levels as well as from the contingents of cadres, party members, the entire party, the entire army, and the entire people in order to turn the line and plans as stipulated in the draft political report of the party Central Committee into the genuine line and plans of the masses, the Army General Political Department has held a meeting to officially publicize the contents and spirit of the draft political report of the party Central Committee. Publicizing the report at the meeting were Major General Osakan Thammatheva, member of the party Central Committee, deputy minister of national defense, and chief of the Army General Political Department, and Major General Choummali Sai-gnakon, member of the party Central Committee, deputy minister of national defense, and deputy chief of the Army General Staff Department. Nearly 200 representatives of Army departments together with cadres and party members from various levels attended the meeting to study the draft political report on this occasion.

In the meeting, the representatives of each unit or department thoroughly studied, discussed and exchanged views on the report with each other. They then organized to further study and publicize the draft political report at Air Force units. They have also practiced implementing what they learned from the report in certain outstanding basic units or regiments in the central areas of Vientiane in accordance with a plan to build these units or regiments into all-round strong units or regiments.

Through the thorough studying discussions, and exchanges of views as well as through the experiences scored in the actual practices, all officers and party members have unanimously agreed to the draft political report of the party Central Committee. They have come out with a view that the report is appropriate and perfect and is in conformity with the practical conditions of our country and that our party has always correctly adopted its line to follow while scientifically distinguishing friends from foes. They have also viewed that the party has clearly put forth the guideline for the defense of the country and the maintenance of public security as well as the independent and sovereign domestic policy and the consistent foreign policy of respecting the independence and sovereignty of other nations.

The meeting to publicize the party Central Committee's draft political report was opened in a very energetic atmosphere on 11 June. It continued for 15 full days and officially closed with glorious success on 26 June 1986. In the closing speech, Maj Gen Osakan Thammatheva further stressed certain points on the direction and duties adopted by the party for implementation in the new stage, from now until the end of 2000. He also pointed out some conveniences and difficulties in the transition period facing an underdeveloped country with a backward economy and agriculture to march toward socialism bypassing the path of capitalist development.

He noted that while improving the living conditions of the people our country must face the new enemy, namely the Beijing big-nation expansionists and hegemonists, who have colluded with the U.S. imperialists and the Thai ultrarightist reactionaries in pursuing the schemes of general sabotage against our country, Cambodia, and Vietnam.

Maj Gen Osakan Thammatheva then called on everyone to profoundly study and firmly grasp the contents and spirit of the draft political report as well as various resolutions to orgainzationally implement them in their respective units or regiments in an effective manner. He particularly called on everyone to urgently pay attention to consolidating and perfecting their organizations in terms of quality. He instructed the participants to lead others in their units or regiments to launch political life campaigns to commend and criticize each other while launching new emulation campaigns in an ever more enthusiastic atmosphere to score new, ever greater and more glorious achievements to welcome the forthcoming Fourth LPRP Congress.

LEADERS GREET U.S. INDEPENDENCE DAY CELEBRATION

[Text] Today, LPDR President Souphanouvong sent a greetings message to U.S. President Ronald Reagan. The message reads as follows: Mr President, on the occasion of the U.S. Independence Day celebration, on behalf of the Lao people and in my own name, I would like to convey greetings to your excellency and the U.S. Government. I would like to express best wishes of happiness and peaceful life to the American people.

On the same occasion, Acting Foreign Minister Khamphai Boupha has also sent a greetings message to U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz.

"TEXT" OF COMMUNIQUE ON PRC "WAR CRIMES"

OW071548 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 1100 GMT 7 Jul 86

["Text" of the 7 June communique of the Vietnam Committee for Investigation Into the Chinese Expansionists and Hegemonists' War Crimes Against Vietnam concerning the Chinese reactionaries' Crimes Against the SRV in the First 6 Months of 1986]

[Text] For some time, in diplomatic activities and through the mass media, the Chinese authorities have repeatedly claimed that China values highly the friendship between the Chinese and Vietnamese peoples and wants to restore its traditional relations with Vietnam. In reality, however, over the past 6 months China has continued to pursue its hostile policy and exert pressure on Vietnam.

On Vietnam's northern border alone, the Chinese side has constantly maintained a 20-division force close to the Vietnamese border, massing its troops especially in areas adjacent to Ha Tuyen Province and unceasingly moving its war means close to the Vietnamese border. In the early days of 1986, CPC General Secretary Hu Yaobang visited the Paracel archipelago, a Vietnamese territory illegally occupied by China since 19 January 1974, with a view to arousing the Chinese troops' spirit of hostility against Vietnam.

In the past 6 months, China has on 15 occasions mobilized its forces -- ranging from company to battalion-size groups — attack and encroach on these areas: Height 1226 in Lai Chau Province; Pha Han and Thanh Thuy in Vi Xuyen District; Bat Dai Son and Nghia Thuan in Quan Ba District; and Thi Hoa in Ha Lang District, Cao Bang Province where many heights are located deep inside Vietnamese territory 300 to 400 meters away from the Sino-Vietnamese border.

In the past 6 months, China has fired more than 250,000 mortar shells and H-12 rockets and nearly 10,000 rounds of 12.7mm machinegun ammunition into the Vietnamese northern border areas. In particular, China has fired up to four-fifths of the number of these mortar shells into the narrow district of Vi Xuyen.

During the first 3 days of the Binh Dan lunar year -- from 7 to 9 February 1986 -- in defiance of the traditional New Year's festival of the border peoples of the two countries, Chinese troops lobbed as many as 20,000 mortar shells into Thanh Thuy village in Vi Xuyen District.

On 1 June 1986, International Children's Day, Chinese troops shelled the schoolchildren's summer camp of the basic general education school of Quyet Tien village in Quan Ba District, Ha Tuyen Province, killing two pupils and wounding five others as well as a teacher.

Over the past 6 months, China has dispatched 130 scout and commando teams to Vietnamese border areas for sabotage activities, abduction of local people, and assassination of Vietnamese cadres. On 9 January, a Chinese Army unit infiltrated into Binh Lieu in Quang Ninh Province, setting fire to dozens of hectares of forests for timber and precious medicinal products and many hectares of corps.

On 13 February, a Chinese Army company aboard 14 armed boats intruded into a section of the Da River in Muong Te District, Lai Chau Province, felling trees, ravaging crops, and conducting reconnaissance operations along the sides of the river.

In the past 6 months, Chinese Aircraft have on more than 1,000 occasions conducted operational flights close to the northern airspace of Vietnam. On 16 February, they violated the airspace over Xin Man Districe in Ha Tuyen Province. Chinese armed boats and ships have on 200 occasions infiltrated into Vietnamese territorial waters at the Bac Luan Estuary and at Bach Long Vi, Tran, and Tra Co islands. In five cases, Chinese mines deposited in rivers have injured Vietnamese children.

Although the Chinese authorities' maneuvers and criminal acts were different in each area, their frenzied nibbling attacks on a number of points in Vi Xuyen and Quan Ba; their repeated shellings on Vi Xuyen, Ha Tuyen Province; their scounts and commandos' intensified infiltration into Lai Chau, Hoang Lien Son, Cao Bang, Lang Son, and Quang Ninh; and their intensified psychological warfare in Hoang Lien Son, Lang Son, and Quang Ninh caused serious damage to the Vietnamese people, killing 46 and wounding 72. They also took 37 captives to China, including many women and children; burned 185 homes and classrooms; destroyed more than 700 hectares of forests for timber and precious medicinal products; and so forth.

China's criminal acts in the border areas have caused losses in human lives and property to the Vietnamese people. More important is that they have caused comprehensive tension and instability to dominate the Vietnamese people's lives and Vietnam's construction work, creating a premise for their spies to infiltrate and establish contacts with other agents in building opposition installations and conducting political and ideological sabotage activities inside Vietnam.

On the other hand, on the diplomatic front, China has sought by every means to isolate Vietnam on the international arena and undermine the trend toward a dialogue and reconciliation in Southeast Asia and the rest of the world.

All these facts prove that the Chinese authorities' propaganda arguments about peace and friendship are entirely deceitful and shrewd. Refusing to give up their expansionist and hegemonist ambitions, they have maintained their policy of severe hostility, trying to bleed Vietnam through their multifaceted war of sabotage while continuing to prepare for a new military adventure against Vietnam when the opportunity presents itself.

The Vietnamese people have always treasured the fine traditional friendship between the peoples of Vietnam and China. They eagerly desire to coexist peacefully with China and other neighboring countries. They resolutely demand that the Chinese authorities seriously implement what they have declared; respect the peace, territorial sovereignty, and right to self-determination of neighboring countries; respect Sino-Vietnamese friendship; and take specific and practical moves to rapidly end all criminal acts against the Vietnamese people and restore normal relations between Vietnam and China.

NHAN DAN URGES STRICT ECONOMIZATION OF GRAIN

[NHAN DAN 4 July editorial: "Strictly Economize Grain"]

[Text] Accelerating grain production and strictly economizing grain are two aspects involved in meeting society's grain consumption needs. Some localities and sectors have begun to pay attention to ecnomizing grain by adopting many measures against waste and loss of grain through various activities, from production, transportation, preservation, and distribution to consumption.

The prohibition of drinking wine against regulations, which has extensively been enforced by many provinces and some sectors, is helping us economize rice and effectively prevent many social vices. The joint movement for emulation between the grain sector and the communications and transportation sector in delivering, receiving, and transporting grain on the south-north communication line and in some major grain-producing provinces has produced initial results. Thanks to this movement, the quantity of state grain lost in transit in 1985 was reduced by more than a half of that of the two previous years.

In 1985, through various managerial measures, the southern general grain corporation was able to prevent the loss of 11,000 metric tons of rice to the state. In inspecting grain distribution, Quang Ninh and Ha Nam Ninh Provinces and Haiphong City have kept a considerable quantity of grain from being distributed to nonexistent people or against criteria, as well as from being used in an irrational manner.

In the current self-criticism and criticism drive, many localities and sectors have adopted decisive measures to eliminate feasting and staging entertainment that wastes money, grain, and food. A number of units in the grain sector have paid attention to controlling the receipt and delivery of grain and have optimally used paddy and rice scattered on the ground to produce commodities benificial to the people's livelihood. Attention has also been paid by many localities to struggling against the embezzlement, waste, and theft of grain.

However, still not all localities, sectors, and echelons have paid adequate and constant attention to economizing grain and have wasted and lost grain, especially in transporation and delivery. Damage has also been inflicted on grain in the receiving, preserving, and distribution process. The use of rice to distill wine and feed hogs is still prevalent and efforts have not yet been made to ensure that subsidiary and food crops are satisfactorily procured and promptly and correctly processed and consumed.

Strictly economizing grain is currently a state policy of extremely great significance that must be expounded in a comprehensive and most specific manner. On the basis of accelerating the development of production, all localities and peasants must optimally harvest their rice and subsidiary crops while minimizing loss and waste. Localities with a bumper or normal crop should educate and ensourage the people to realistically economize grain and think of those localities facing shortages so they can actively contribute part of their grain to the state to help it satisfy the needs of the entire country while using the remainder most rationally and without waste.

Localities facing a grain shortage should accelerate production and satisfactorily exploit all available sources of grain, including rice and subsidiary crops. These localities should also pay attention to the daily meals of all households, especially needy families of fallen combatants, the war disabled, and soldiers, and manage most satisfactorily the stock of grain they have on hand. It is necessary to organize even more satisfactorily the procurement and transportation of subsidiary crops; solve the problem of processing and introducing these crops to the people's diet; and define policies to encourage the production, circulation, and consumption of subsidiary crops. Attention must be paid to improving the people's diet in a way that suits the status of grain production in each locality in order to reduce step-by-step the regulation of grain from other localities. Meanwhile, we must, at all costs, ensure the state's unified management and monopoly over grain trade.

We can also secure hundreds of thousands more metric tons of grain each year by harvesting, storing, procuring, and preserving rice satisfactorily and by delivering and transporting it swiftly; by managing the source of grain prudently both in terms of quantity and quality and without loss; by milling rice and processing subsidiary crops in such a way as to ensure the quality and rate of finished products, and optimally use their wastes to produce additional essential commodities; by distributing grain most judiciously and rationally; and by guiding the people in economizing on grain.

The campaign to economize grain must be carried out in combination with the struggle to resolutely safeguard state grain and collective grain against all forms of embezzlement, waste, exploitation, and theft. It is the responsibility of every person, sector, and echelon to strive to produce grain and support the development of grain production as well as to economize grain.

DISTRICT PARTY OFFICIAL PUNISHED FOR CORRUPTION

[From the review of NHAN DAN for 1 July]

[Text] NHAN DAN on page four today reports that the CPV Central Committee Secretariat has decided to dismiss the comrade secretary of the Dong Anh District party committee from the Hanoi municipal party committee for plotting with members of the district party committee's standing body to distribute imported motorcycles among themselves, using their authority and privilege. Regarding this negative phenomenon, NHAN DAN has published public viewpoints in its "Through the Reader's Letters" column.

PROVINCIAL SELF-CRITICISM ACTIVITIES REPORTED

BK211430 Hanoi NHAN DAN in Vietnamese 30 May 86 p 2

[Text] To date more than half of the district party committees and one-third of the branches, sectors, and collectives in Nghe Tinh Province have reviewed their tasks. The review focused on the three contents of the first phase of the criticism and self-criticism drive -- speaking frankly, telling the truth, and discussing measures to overcome shortcomings. Party cadres and members worked in harmony with the people. So far, districts have carried out this task better than sectors, some of which have failed to meet the set requirements.

Many comrades have shown their strong impetus to overcome difficulties resolutely, enthusiastically work for the community, and maintain revolutionary ethics, while others have experienced notable shortcomings.

Regarding quality, some leading comrades showed their poor combat impetus; these degenerate cadres have led depraved lives -- drinking liquor, believing in fortune tellers, and neglecting their duties. Some of them have resorted to bureaucratism and failed to fulfill their tasks. Among the leading cadres, such negative phenomena as indulgence, rightism, and a lack of revolutionary vigilance are still prevalent.

In some districts, unanimity was not achieved between the standing bodies of the district party and people's committees, especially between secretaries and chairman of these committees, thereby creating disunity. The cause of this shortcoming was poor organization and a work system in which collective interests are neglected while those of individuals are upheld. In many places, cadres used their authority to buy construction materials and other items in greater quantities than they were entitled to. Some used state budget funds for unnecessary purchases. Many leading cadres illegally recruited their sons and daughters to work for state organizations. One leading district cadre recruited four or five relatives to work in a trade establishment.

Some 12 districts and 6 organizations used state budget funds to import hundreds of motorcycles and sold them to leading cadres at low prices (districts bought at least 11 motorcycles, some up to 30, while organizations purchased 32). Many heads of organizations were provided with state cars although they had their own motorcycles. Some cadres used checks drawn against their organizations to purchase vehicles, thus creating doubt among personnel of their organizations and the people as to whether they had used state money or their own in their purchases.

Regarding the policy on cadre-related tasks, some progress was achieved, although indulgence and unfair commendations and promotions remained prevalent. Departmentalism still exists in cadre-related tasks. Prevailing errors are negligence in improving the morality and quality of cadres and sluggishness in criticizing and preventing shortcomings. The fostering and using of women and young cadres as well as cadres with working-class backgrounds has not been carried out satisfactorily.

Prevailing errors in cadres' behavior include unrealistic thinking and lack of attention to the people. Many places could not firmly maintain collective leadership and unanimity in appraising various movements and cadres' performances. Some key cadres were guilty of such negative phenomena as bossism, subjectivism, individualism, and arbitrary changing of the collective's objectives.

Since the criticism and self-criticism drive, various districts and sectors have concentrated their efforts on overcoming immediate shortcomings. They are taking measures to suspend improper distribution of land for building houses; to promptly deal with irrational recruitment of personnel in state organizations and the buying of motorcycles and goods through privilege; to collect the balance of established prices on goods and materials previously sold at lower prices; to punish cadres flagrantly violating regulations; and to promptly improve the work system, manner of leadership, and party activities, especially at the chapter level.

The provincial party committee has decided to suspend from duty a district party committee secretary pending an investigation. It is considering a case of violation of discipline involving a deputy secretary and chairman of a district people's committee.

Quang Nam-Danang

BK221530 Hanoi NHAN DAN in Vietnamese 9 Jun 86 pp 3, 4

[Text] The Executive Committee of the Quang Nam-Danang Province party organization has conducted self-criticism and criticism.

Secretaries of subordinate party organizations, directors of the various establishments, and heads of commissions, sectors, and mass organizations in the province have made criticism of the provincial party committee.

Regarding revolutionary quality, the executive committee of the provincial party organization has, through the use of different measures and formats, forged, fostered, and enhanced the revolutionary quality of party cadres and members and people in the province, as well as their fighting spirit, their sense of responsibility, organization, and discipline, and their work conduct. Many party organizations have become firm and strong, and many party chapters have been made pure, firm, and strong. The majority of party cadres and members have strived selflessly to carry out revolutionary activities in the province and to perform their internationalist duty. Many comrades have upheld revolutionary quality and ethics, living and working for the ideals of communism and for the people's plentiful and happy life.

However, faced with the ever-demanding requirements of the revolution, a number of party cadres and members have failed to stand firm on their combat position of "making sacrifices all their life for the ideals of communism" and to sacrifice their personal interests for the common good. They have neglected their leadership responsibility, made no distinction between party members and nonparty members, and have even abetted illegal business operators in carrying out erroneous activities, thus adversely affecting the party's prestige. Some other comrades still remain irresolute in the difficult and fierce class struggle and the struggle between the two roads. While a tremendous fighting will, a thoroughly revolutionary spirit, and full consideration and all-out efforts for the benefit of the collective are needed in the hard and fierce struggle against nature, the struggle against the customs of small production, and the struggle against the enemy's multifaceted war of sabotage, a number of comrades have, to a certain degree, maintained the workstyle of public functionaries and are reluctant to cope with difficulties and hardship and use new and complex methods to solve problems. Worse still, driven by the desire for personal gain, some comrades have misappropriated public property and spent more time looking after the interests of their families than working for the benefit of the collective and the common use.

The executive committee of the provincial party committee's standing body -- has forged unity and an identity of views; actively engaged in study and training activities; upheld their fighting will, the spirit of revolutionary offensive, and boldness in thought and action; and, together with the entire party, people, and armed forces in the province, contributed to overcoming obstacles and difficulties and achieving big successes in many fields. Members of the executive committee have made good efforts to effectively contribute to the committee's collective leadership.

However, in the economic field, the committee has been slow in studying and finding the conditions and methods as well as organizational and managerial forms for rapidly and correctly strengthening the state-run economic sector in order to have a basis for developing the economy in general and guiding the collectivized economy. It is because of this that a situation has arisen in which management has been lax not only concerning the state-run economy but also concerning industry, and handicrafts.

In directing the economy, the committee has been slow to realize the need for a renovated mechanism; and upon supervising the implementation of this policy, it has failed to develop a full understanding of the issue, to devise specific and clearcut work methods, and to accelerate the formation of a viable mechanism for the basic units and the general mechanism.

Regarding leadership, the provincial party committee has directed its leadership at economic activities; and thanks to this, many localities, sectors, and production and business units have made progress more evenly.

The style of leadership still reveals the following shortcomings:

The principle of democratic centralism has not been fully respected and executed, nor has it become a regular concern first of all of the duty members of the standing body. Leadership is often plagued by formalistic democracy, which is characterized by lack of reliance on the collective, arbitrariness, patriachalism, failure to heed the views of the lower echelons, dislike for opinions that conflict with one's own, and unwillingness to learn about shortcomings and difficulties.

The province party committee's standing body -- first of all the duty members of the standing body -- has not yet paid attention to developing and employing the organization, nor has it relied on the organization and staff organs to carry out work activities.

Developing its tradition of staying close to the people and the grassroots, the provincial party committee has assessed realities and set forth a number of guidelines and policies designed to promote production and stabilize the people's life. Nevertheless, it has failed to make party cadres and members fully realize that the strength of the party actually stems from its close relationship with the masses.

The committee has failed to truly care for the people's life, listen attentively to the feelings and aspirations of the masses, learn from the masses, and promptly resolve the difficulties encountered in production and life by the people, especially those in the mountaipous areas and remote places.

Regarding the cadre policy, due to the absenc of planning, the work related to cadres has been running behind the immediate tasks and, therefore, it is not smooth and effective. Close guidance has not been provided for the recruitment and training of cadres, which has resulted in many negative phenomena. There are no policies designed to encourage cadres to further their study. No distinction has been clearly made between a good, dynamic workstyle and wheeling and dealing, or between opportunists and righteous persons; and consequently, face value takes precedence over true goodness. In many cases, cadres have been evaluated, promoted, or assigned without the views of the masses and the proposals of the basic units having been taken into consideration.

Cadres hve not been employed rationally. In many cases, cadres are not assigned according to their professional specialities; and in some instances, assignments are irrational altogether.

The nomination of key cadres at the various levels does not ensure succession and continuity. Efforts have not been concentrated on satisfactorily employing the contingent of scientific-technological cadres. The distribution and circulation sectors, especially the foreign trade sectors, have not yet been reinforced with fully capable and qualified cadres.

The policy for women cadres has not been carried out scrupulously; and in many cases, promotions and assignments are given only to meet the slot requirements. Care has not yet been taken to train and foster women cadres and create conditions for them to fulfill their tasks.

Good care has not yet been given to the living conditions and health of cadres, especially the retirees. No policies and systems have been established for cadres at the grassroots level and cadres serving in the mountainous areas. There are still no policies to ensure the conditions for cadres, especially key cadres and chief specialists, to perform their duties.

The provincial party committee has set forth measures designed to remedy shortcomings. Priority is given to accelerating the development of production, overcoming obstacles and bottlenecks in distribution and circulation, stabilizing the people's life, and satisfactorily guiding the province-wide self-criticism and criticism drive.

The provincial party committee, especially its standing body, will strengthen leadership over party building work. Between now and the party organization's 14th congress, a conference will be held to discuss party building work, assess the actual situation of the party organization, and adopt specific and suitable orientations and measures for this work. Efforts will also be made to consolidate the organization of the provincial party committee's staff organs and to establish their operational rules.

Between now and the congress, urgent efforts will be made to nominate fully qualified cadres to key positions in important socioeconomic sectors under the new mechanism of management in order to create the basis for formation of the future party committee echelons.

It is necessary to strictly observe the provincial party committee's work statutes, the systems and principles of activities, work procedures -- especially the principle of democratic centralism and the principle of collective leadership and individual responsibility -- the system of making visits to the basic units, and the system by which the party committee's standing body will periodically meet with each committee member to hear him report on the situation and make suggestions about operational policies so that any erroneous manifestations can be prevented and checked in good time. A system will be established for the standing body and party committee echelons to meet retired cadres, the people, and grassroots-level cadres. In implementing the resolution of the provincial party organization's 13th congress, a political day will be observed every month.

It is necessary to finish resolving cases involving the erroneous practices of some provincial party committee members and some other key cadres in acquiring houses and vehicles and buying imported goods. Disciplinary measures must be meted out strictly and justly in accordance with the procedures and principles set forth by the party Central Committee.

After finishing with these cases, each locality must file a report to its own party organization's executive committee and the provincial party committee's standing body.

Once every 3 months, arrangements must be made for provincial party committee members to study new viewpoints and policies as well as new issues so they can improve their awareness and knowledge, both in theory and in practice.

After making self-criticism and criticism, each member of the provincial party committee will go back to the party chapter where he works and make self-criticism and hear constructive suggestions from party members.

The provincial people's committee is entrusted with establishing the criteria and systems for using houses, means of transportation, and gasoline and oil, and other systems, and with supervising their observation province-wide to ensure the practice of thrift.

The provincial party committee's standing body will guide the provincial party organization congress agenda preparation commission and the various localities and sectors in making plans from the grassroots level up, and will guide implementation of the party Central Committee's eighth plenum resolution and the various resolutions of the Political Bureau in order to encourage the development of production and stabilize the people's life.

It is necessary to promote a healthy and pure lifestyle among party cadres and members. Members of provincial party committees will publicly announce in the party chapters where they work all their and their families sources of income. An end must be put to bribery and the giving of gifts, including the payment of bonuses that inconsistent with the established system.

Lang Son

[Text] The party committees of all districts and towns in Lang Son Province and nearly all the party committees of various sectors in the province and half of the party members in rural areas have conducted the first stage of self-criticism and criticism. Nearly all district party committees in the province have implemented the guidelines of clearly pointing out good points and pointing out all the shortcomings of each person. Some of the key leading cadres in districts have sincerely admitted their shortcomings and have taken remedial action. They have thus regained the confidence of other cadres and the people.

The vice chairman in charge of finance and trade of Huu Lung District is a qualified and good cadre. He made the mistake of using more housing space than authorized and of employing his wife, children, and other relatives in state agencies against the prescribed policies and regulations. After criticism, he sincerly admitted his mistakes, returned the land to the state, and brought his wife and five children back to the countryside.

The party committee of Van Quan District has publicly exposed its shortcomings and those of the leadership, and has simultaneously informed the people of the corrective action.

In Van Lang District, following self-criticism and criticism, three of the village party organizations have reelected their executive committees, appointed 40 more members of the party committees and chapters, and replaced old, weak, or incompetent cadres.

The Standing Committee of the Lang Son provincial party committee held a conference of all district and town party secretaries to draw upon the experiences in the first stage of self-criticism and criticism and commended Van Lang and Huu Lung districts.

The provincial party committee has directed the rural partry organizations to focus on controlling implementation of the agricultural cooperativization policy, opposing misappropriation of land and rice fields, and forest destruction, and on fulfilling tax obligations by delivering agricultural and forest products to the state.

The party organizations in the border area should control the implementation of border defense regulations and oppose the trade of psychological warfare goods. The party organizations of cities and towns should examine implementation of the market management system and oppose speculation and smuggling.

Thach ha District

[Thanh Phong's report: "Thach Ha Revisited -- Specific Actions"]

[Text] We visited Thach Ha District again after NHAN DAN had run a report citing the corrective measures taken by the local party committee following the self-criticism and criticism drive. Our cadres and the people want to know about the specific actions taken by the Thach Ha party organization and other party organizations that have performed self-criticism and criticism.

In these days of late June, Thach Ha has finished reaping its 5th-month spring rice; and now is the busiest period for grain procurement. Along with striving to meet the grain obligation quota of 8,000 metric tons and harvesting peanuts on 1,7000 hectares, the district party committee is intensively guiding efforts to rapidly plant 7,000 hectares of summer-fall and early 10th-month rice on schedule and in accordance with technical criteria, and to prepare for putting 4,000 hectares under the main 10th-month rice. A lot of work is being done urgently.

Some people had worried that the replacement and reasssignment of cadres and the disciplinary actions taken against a number of seriously errant cadres in the wake of the self-criticism and criticism drive would adversely affect the district's general activities.

During our fact-finding visit to Thach Ha, we found that, on the contrary, the district's situation has improved in all respects. The district party committee asserted that by conducitng self-criticism and criticism satisfactorily and promptly correcting shortcomings it would win the masses' sympathy and trust and further increase the strength of the party organization, and that the specific actions taken would simply strengthen the people's confidence in the leadership of the district party committee.

The Thach Ha party organization corrected shortcomings in a very strict, straightforward, rational, and reasonable manner. All members of the district party and people's committees' standing bodies upheld a sense of responsibility befitting the communists. They struggled unyieldingly and fearlessly against shortcomings concerning the ethical quality, style of leadership, and cadre policy of each and every comrade, including the district party committee secretary and the district people's committee chairman; and after having conducted self-criticism, they took specific actions to correct these shortcomings. Shortcomings that could be corrected immediately were dealt with first; and a time schedule was established for dealing with those shortcomings that could not be corrected right away. All the corrective measures taken were announced to the public and reviewed by the higher echelons.

The district party committee secretary and the district people's committee vice chairman were removed from their positions as leaders of the district administrateion because their shortcomings had affected the party prestige; and two capable, well-tried, and trusted comrades were elected by the district party committee echelons and the district people's council to replace them in handling the district's affairs. The district people's committee chairman is a dynamic and dedicated cadre, but he displayed some manifestations of subjectivism, arbitrariness, and abuse of authority in his work. He immediately rectified a situation in which one of his children had been hired as a state employee not in accordance with the prescribed principles. For this shortcoming, he was cautioned before the district party organization's executive committee. The district party committee considered that the pressing immediate talks set forth in the wake of the political drive reflect the district chairman's realistic action of correcting shortcomings with practical deeds. The district people's committee rectified a number of shortcomings concerning organization and the work system and immediately corrected the errors of each cadre. It assessed the value of imported motorcycles that had been distributed among cadres at a cheap price, dealt with irregularities in the hiring of personnel and in the assignement of cadres, and reviewed the issuance of land grants and house building permits to ensure that established regulations are observed by both ordinary citizens and party committee members. A commission headed by the chief procurator of the district people's organ of control was set up to review the building of houses in Cay township; and it has examined each specific case and immediately suspended unauthorized construction work on houses. The unauthorized builders have been given a time limit to move and help in searching for their new homesites.

All the key cadres in Thach Ha District have been reviewed. The chief of the district material supply company has been dismissed, and the deputy chief of the committee for building the Bac Bang salt field and the manager of the district restaurant have been replaced. Action has been taken to consider, educate, and replace unqualified comrades in the departments of capital construction and labor. All those who were improperly recruited into the staff of the Bac Bang salt production installation and the frozen shrimp factory have been returned to their former localities or been transferred to other jobs under a contractual system. All other agencies, factories, and work sites have streamlined their machinery for more compactness in order to start work with higher productivity and effectiveness.

The corrective action taken by the district party committee received the people's support and had a good effect on the villages and cooperatives in the spirit of "pooling effort of both district authorities and primary installations to remedy shortcomings". The district party committee assigned cadres to the various party organizations of primary installations to lead self-criticism and criticism according to the three points of first stage. With the help of the party organizations and people, action was taken to detect, control, and confirm cases of wrongdoings. Two cooperative heads and one party member were replaced immediately and warning was served to the Thach Hoa village people's committee chairman who indulgently allocated 1,020 square meters to a person to build houses against the prescribed plan. The district party committee showed respect for the people's view and clarified all views and public opinions to meet these two requirements: If cadres and party members make mistakes, immediate corrective action must be taken; otherwise justification must be made to the people. Following the criticism drive, an action program was formulated to correct shortcomings and fulfill the political task. The mass movement in various primary installations developed satisfactorily. Before the self-criticism and criticism drive, the rates of production and product delivery were very low. Following the drive, as of 15 June 18 villages had completed their overall grain obligations and shifted their attention to the planting of summer-fall crops. In Thach My, Thach Kenh, Thach Phu, Bac Xuan (Thach Xuan), Dong Dai (Thach Dai) villages, the three tasks of harvesting the 5th-month spiring rice, fulfilling the grain obligations, and planting the summer-fall crop were linked together in order to facilitate labor distribution and ensure that production schedules were kept. Many primary installations producing fish, salt, shrimp, and squid have gained high profits and have accepted contracts for larger exports than those of previous years.

In meeting with the party secretaries, district chairman, retired cadres, some workers, and those wrongdoingcomrades who had already voluntarily resigned from their leadership positions in the district, we found in all of them a brave attitude, looking squarely at the truth and sincerely correcting their mistakes in order to progress. A comrade in charge of the district people's committee told us: "The people are very good. Realities in Thach Ha show us that if cadres and party members sincerely admit their mistakes and resolutely and promptly corrct them, the people inside and outside the agencies will forgive them easily and will become even more confident in them. Every criticism offers an occasion for clear self-examination in order to mature." Many Thach Ha District natives who are now on temporary duty out of the province and abroad or are performiong their international duty in friendly countries have sent letters to Nghe Tinh Province to commend the steps taken by the Thach Ha District party committee, after they read the various reports published in NHAN DAN.

However, not everything has been satisfactorily settled here.

These achievements are only the beginning. The Thach Ha District party committee is continually trying to correct mistakes and shortcomings concerning ethics, quality, ability, cadre policies, organizations, and leadership. Excluding degenerate and deviant elements, all other party members "are speaking and acting in accordance with the party resolution."

Phu Khanh

[Text] The standing body of the Phu Khanh provincial party committee has sent many party committee cadres and members to all localities and sectors in the province to follow up and direct the self-criticism and criticism among all party committee echelons in preparation for the convening of party organizations congresses at various levels prior to the national party congress.

To date, 9 of the 14 districts and cities in Phu Khanh have completed self-criticism and criticism among all party committee echelons and 5 districts have reviewed more than half of the party committee echelons. After conducting criticism and self-criticsm, many localities have collected the constructive views contributed to key cadres by the masses.

Through this self-criticism drive, all party committee echelons have been able to understand more thoroughly various resolutions of the party Central Committee on economic development and the need to change the system of management as well as on the two strategic tasks in the present stage. Meanwhile, through criticism, many party committee echolons in Cam Ranh, Dien Khanh, Ninh Hoa, and (Xuong Hung) District and Nha Trang City have spontaneously returned seven motorcycles purchased at cheap prices. The Tuy Hoa District People's Committee chairman has also returned a plot of land he bought for building a house not in accordance with regulations.

Ninh Hoa and Son Hoa Districts have dealt with various cases involving corruption and the use of bonuses not in accordance with the system at some export corporations, thus recovering hundreds of thousands of dong.

AUSTRALIA

CABINET DECIDES ON SANCTIONS AGAINST S. AFRICA

BK010949 Melbourne Overseas Service in English 0830 GMT 1 Jul 86

[Text] The Australian Government has decided on sanctions it is prepared to implement against South Africa. A meeting of federal cabinet in Canberra decided on measures that the prime minister, Mr Hawke, will put to the Commonwealth meeting in London next week. The seven Commonwealth leaders will be discussing the report of the Commonwealth eminent persons group which has said the South African Government was not yet prepared to negotiate an end to apartheid. There has been no formal announcement of the Australian Cabinet decision but officials said it covered the second group of sanctions discussed by last year's Commonwealth Heads of Government Meeting.

These measures include a ban on investment and reinvestment in South Africa, the cutting of air links with South Africa, and a ban on tourist promotion and agricultural exports from South Africa. The foreign minister, Mr Hayden, said the prime minister had the autonomy to act as he saw necessary at the London Commonwealth meeting.

PROTESTERS ARRESTED BY POLICE AT PINE GAP BASE

[Text] Police at Alice Springs in the Northern Territory had arrested eight protesters at the front gate of the joint Australian-American communications base at Pine Gap. The eight were arrested during an anti-American protest by the Alice Springs Peace Group. A spokesman for the group claimed that at one stage protesters had chained the gates of the base, stopping traffic for an hour and a half. He claimed that the protest was the start of what would be an 18-month long campaign to have Pine Gap closed. The spokesman claimed that the presence of the base made Alice Springs a nuclear target and also said that the base was a foreign spy facility.

HAWKE, KEATING MAKE STATEMENTS ON ECONOMY

[Text] The value of the Australian dollar on local currency markets increased today following strong statements on the economy by both the prime minister, Mr Hawke, and the treasurer, Mr Keating. Speaking in Hobart, Mr Hawke urged foreign exchange market operators not to be swayed by stupid rumors such as the one spread yesterday suggesting that Mr Keating was about to resign. He said that instead of making negative judgments on the Australian dollar on the basis of rumors, foreign exchange dealers should wait for a tough August budget. Mr Hawke also criticized recent statements on the economy by some employers representatives. He said that if those business leaders had some sense of commitment and loyalty to Australia, then they recognized that the government was making a correct move. The prime minister added that Australia's economic performance was being hampered by the inefficient management of some companies.

[Begin Hawke recording] There are a lot of companies in this country where you got moribund management who are not accepting their responsibility they got and not seeking the opportunities that are there. And all of us would be much better off if they were taken over by more progressive and imaginative management. [end recording]

Mr Keating also moved to reassure financial markets about the dollar. The treasurer said the currency market should focus on the fundamental changes to the economy which the government was undertaking. He said the government was cutting spending, keeping interest rates up, and arguing for lower wage increases to adjust the economy to the trade problems.

[Begin Keating recording] We have this externally induced problem of wheat prices, wool prices, oil prices, coal prices all falling at once. In other words, a problem external to this country has (impacted upon) our products. Now, Australia must face the fact that that change has taken place. We might wish to wish it away. We might wish to say: Look, if we wait a bit longer the prices will pick up. But my view is that public policy cannot operate on that basis. We cannot hope something will turn up. We must make the internal adjustment. Now, as far as the prime minister and myself are concerned in this cabinet, we have never been more united and determined to make this fundamental adjustment. And we are making it in fiscal policy, we are making it in wage outcome, we are making it across the economy where it matters. [end recording]

NEW ZEALAND

LANGE SUPPORTS 'RAINBOW WARRIOR' RULING

[Text] Wellington, July 7 (AFP) -- New Zealand Prime Minister David Lange said Monday that the arbitration ruling in his country's row with France over the bombing of the Greenpeace ship Rainbow Warrior was "fair and just." Details were disclosed Monday of U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar's ruling to settle the dispute that erupted after French agents sank the nuclear protest vessel in Auckland Harbor a year ago this Thursday. Mr Lange told a hastily called news conference that the decision "specifically" met all four of Wellington's demands:

-- No "release to freedom" of the two French agents sentenced to 10-year prison terms in New Zealand for the bombing. Captain Dominique Prieur and Major Alain Mafart are to leave New Zealand on July 25 and spend at least three years on Hao Island, a forward base for French Nuclear testing in the Pacific.
-- The ruling requies a full apology to New Zealand from France for the bomb attack on the Rainbow Warrior in which one crewman died.
-- It requires France to pay New Zealand seven million U.S. dollars in compensation for the bombing of the ship, which was sunk as it was about to lead a new protest against French nuclear testing on Mururoa Atoll.
-- It meets Wellington's fourth requirement that "All the trade restraints places upon New Zealand by France be removed." France has placed what Mr Lange once called "petty restrictions" on New Zealand exports of items ranging from fruit to lambs brains.

Mr Lange said the ruling was "fair and just for New Zealand" and "will be acceptable" to his country.

TOLENTINO, FOLLOWERS AGREE TO END UPRISING

Meet With Government Panel

Mr Tolentino had some 5,000 supporters, including 300 troops, with him when he barricaded himself into the smart Manila Hotel Sunday and proclaimed himself acting president with the blessing of Mr Marcos, now living in exile. But by late Monday his support had dwindled to about 30 soldiers and 100 civilians in and around the hotel lobby with some 4,000 civilian supporters milling around the park opposite, after President Corazon Aquino had given the rebels until 1:30 p.m. (0530 GMT) Tuesday to give up their "sorry adventure."

Four hours later, Mr Tolentino and several supporters, including three generals, left the hotel to meet with government emissaries at a nearby club. After Mr Tolentino's departure, troops that had been surrounding the hotel pulled back to trucks and armored cars at the side of the hotel, although some 400 policemen remained blocking a main road junction near the totel.

As soon as Mr Tolentino left the hotel, his civilian supporters outside swarmed over the army vehicles, chanting "Marcos still" and "Tolentino, Tolentino," and urging the troops to withdraw, but got no response. Meanwhile supporters of Mr Tolentino circulated in the crowd, urging them to make a stand in the hotel. However, a spokesman for the Tolentino supporters, Gerardo Espina, had earlier admitted to AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE that the coup had failed.

Asked why the expected popular support had not materialised, Mr Espina blamed the military cordon around the hotel. "And of course, it rained in the afternoon," he added.

Mr Tolentino said after the talks that nothing substantial had been discussed, because a Justice Ministry representative was missing from the government panel. "We started preliminary talks and we will meet again tomorrow," Mr Tolentino told reporters. Mr Britannico said it would "depend on the situation" whether Mr Tolentino and civilian rebel leaders returned to the hotel Monday.

Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile had earlier offered amnesty to troops supporting Mr Tolentino, saying: "If the soldiers leave the hotel within 24 hours, no sedition charges will be filed against them." But he stressed that the amnesty offer applied only to the military. "The decision on what to do with Tolention and the other civilian cohorts lies with President Aquino," he said.

Mrs Aquino had said Sunday that sedition charges would be filed against Mr Tolentino, who staged his coup bid while the president was visiting the heartland of the communist rebellion in the south.

The government moved to play down the affair from the beginning, with Mrs Aquino refusing to change her schedule and return from the south before Monday, and joking about 75-year-old Mr Tolentino's age and saying he would have to pay his own hotel bill.

She appeared calm and unruffled Monday as she announed her ultimatum, but stressed to reporters that there was "nothing to worry about" and that she would "exhaust every peaceful means to an early resolution of this problem."

The coup attempt never looked likely to match the popular revolt that ousted Mr Marcos and swept Mrs Aquino to power after a fraud-marred presidential election in February, which has officially won by Mr Marcos and Mr Tolentino.

Lieutenant Colonel Danilo Vanturina, who abandoned Mr Tolentino Monday, told reporters that he had gone to the hotel to support Mr Enrile and Armed Forces Chief of Staff General Fidel Ramos, former Marcos stalwarts who led the revolt that toppled him. He did not explain why they might need support. But Mr Ramos backed Mrs Aquino in the south Sunday while in Manila Mr Enrile firmly rejected Mr Tolentino's offer of the premiership and defense portfolio in his new government -- although not until several hours after the abortive coup began.

No violence was reported, except for the mauling by Marcos supporters of a local radio reporter and driver and assaults on suspected infiltrators.

Apart from traffic jams caused by the cordon set up within a one-kilometer (0.6-mile) radius of the hotel earlier in the day, Manilans went about their business as usual.

Schools near the hotel were closed in the afternoon, but this was because of the snarl-up in the area father than fear of trouble, the official PHILIPPINE NEWS AGENCY (PNA) said.

More Troops Return

HK071418 Quezon City Radyo ng Bayn in Tagalog 1400 GMT 7 Jul 86

[Text] Eighty-Nine soldiers who joined the loyalists at the oath taking of former Senator Tolentino yesterday have returned to their headquarters in Camp Olivas in Pampanga. This was learned from Brigadier General Romeo David, Regional Unified Command 2 chief.

Gen David said two more officers and nine enlisted men from Camp Olivas are still at Manila Hotel, where Tolentino and his supporters continue to hold out. David identified the two officers still at the hotel as (Colonel Reynaldo Cabawagan), assistant chief of staff for civil relations, and Captain (Frederico Cacho).

Meanwhile, a U.S. Embassy spokesman in Manila declared his country's continued support for the Aquino government and condemned Tolentino's act to topple the Government of the Philippines. The declaration was made by Alan Groghan, press officer of the U.S. Embassy, in an interview with newsmen. Groghan added that the United States may provide Tolentino asylum.

At the same time, an embassy spokesman said that the Soviet Union Maintains a policy of nonintervention in the domestic affairs of any country.

Tolentino To Vacate Hotel

[Text] Arturo Tolentino and the holed-up Marcos loyalists, including military generals and troops, agreed last night to end their uprising and attempt to form a new government. Tolentino, who still considers himself president, agreed to vacate the Manila Hotel, which they had occupied for the past 2 days as the seat of the Tolentino government. Tolentino and his followers began pulling out of the Manila Hotel early today [8 July]. The more than 100 soldiers backing Tolentino have also agreed to pull out and return to their units.

The agreement to end the attempted coup peacefully was forged in negotiations between the leaders of the loyalists and a government panel by Deputy Defense Minister Rafael Ileto. The decision to end the rebellion was announced by Tolentino after meeting with government representatives at the nearby Army and Navy Club. It was not immediately known what actions the government will take against Tolentino, but it was understood from Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile that no retaliatory moves will be taken against them members of the military who joined Tolentino.

The end of the loyalists' rebellion followed President Aquino's appeal to end their open defiance of the new government and vacate the government-owned building. She gave them 24 hours to do so. The president issued the deadline even as she directed Justice Minister Neptali Gonzalez to study the case of Former Member of Parliament Artoro Tolentino and those who joined him in such an act of disloyalty and defiance. The president also directed Armed Forces chief General Fidel Ramos to investigate the extent of the military's involvement. She assured the Marcos loyalists holed up in the hotel never posed the slightest threat to the present government.

[Begin Aquino recording] I want to appeal to the people who have holed up in the hotel to end this and come out within 24 hours. No one has been hurt, and the public has not suffered that much inconvenience. An early and favorable response to this appeal will be taken greatly in their favor.

While moderation will remain the yardstick of our response, let me say now, however, that an incident like this will not be allowed to happen again. I have told my chief of staff and my minister of defense to make sure of this. There will be closer monitoring of loyalist and other similarly subversive activities from now on.

I was gratified to see on my way to the office this morning that the people have gone about their business as usual. The people have made the wisest response to the situation, to ignore what (?is in fact) a desperate attempt to attract attention and sympathy to a forlorn cause.

I should like to end by repeating my assurance that everything is under control. I ask our people not to march to the hotel, as many of them have signalled the intention to. This is not an occasion for a demonstration of people power. The incident is small, and there is no threat to their democracy. Please try to keep a cool head. I thank you, and may God bless all of you. [end recording]

Upon receiving the directive of the president, Justice Minister Neptali Gonzalez created an ad hoc committee to gather evidence against former member of parliament Arturo Tolentino and his group.

The ad hoc committee is composed of justice deputy minister (Silvestre Gelud) III, chief state prosecutor (Artemio Docero), and representatives from the judge advocate general's office, the PC [Philippine Constabulary] Capital Regional Command, and Manila fiscal (Jose Flaminiano).

[Begin Gonzalez recording] What we have done is to [word indistinct] call a meeting of the head of the national prosecution service, the city fiscal of Manila, the representative of the judge advocate general's office, and also a representative of the military, and I presented the situation to them, and ordered the gathering of evidence, and as soon as the evidence (?is in), then we will have our way, and if we find that there exists a case for whatever offense, whether it be for sedition or rebellion, as the case may be, then we will appoint a prosecution team and file the corresponding charges before the fiscal's office. [end recording]

Following this development, the tension gripping the areas around the Manila Hotel started easing up. Classes in all schools within 1 kilometer radius of the Manila Hotel and Malacanang and the university belt in Manila are expected to resume today. They were suspended yesterday afternoon in view of the confused situation and trouble spawned by the Tolentino uprising. Those schools included the (Balantasa ng Maynila), Manila High School, Mapua Institute of Technology, Lyceum of the Philippines, and San Juan [words indistinct] Intruamuros, and Central Escala University, University of the East, San Sebastian College, and Far Eastern University in the University area in downtown Manila. The Philippine Normal College on Taft Avenue also suspended classes in the afternoon.

Another reason for the suspension of classes was the heavy traffic generated by the closure of some major streets leading to malacanang and the Manila Hotel to secure the two areas from the so-called Marcos loyalists.

Over at Camp Olivas, military authorities yesterday relieved Lieutenant Colonel (Reynaldo Cabawagan) as regional civil military operations commander, for abandonment of post without authority from his superior. Colonel [words indistinct] (Mateus), PC-INP [Philippine Constabulary-Integrated National Police] regional commander, issued the release order and immediately designated Lieutenant Colonel Constantino Castro as (Cabawagan's) replacement. (Mateus) said that (Cabawagan) led at least 94 military officers and enlisted men who Joined Marcos loyalist soldiers in securing the Manila Hotel where Arturo Tolentino took his oath as acting president of the Philippines last Sunday.

Meanwhile, one of two military officers from this camp who led a group of soldiers that joined Sunday's rally of the Marcos loyalists in Manila said their purpose was forestall the possible takeover by the communists of the government. The defectors are not Marcos loyalists, according to (Cabawagan), but they are dedicated and professional military officers and men who have pledged to offer their lives for the return to the constitutional form of government.

Marcos Denies Involvement

[Text] Deposed President Marcos yesterday said he had nothing to do with the attempted revolt in Manila. However, Mr Marcos blamed the Aquino government for the situation.

At a news conference outside his residence in Honolulu, the ousted president also appealed to his countrymen to help in preventing bloodshed. He said the military should not be divided against communism, as the principal enemy is communism.

Referring to the coup attempt by former member of parliament Arturo Tolentino, the former President said he understands there are negotiations going on, and he hopes these would succeed.

Enrile, Ramos Meet Rebel Troops

[Text] Civilians and soldiers supporting presidential claimant Arturo Tolentino ended their rebellion at dawn today when they vacated Manila Hotel where they had holed up for 2 days.

The more than 100 rebel soldiers who were led by four generals left the hotel unnoticed. Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile told the rebel soldiers at a meeting later in Fort Bonifacio gymnasium that they will not be humiliated, punished, or embarrased because there will be no retaliation against the rebel soldiers. [Enrile Recording indistinct]

For his part, Armed Forces Chief of Staff General Fidel Ramos told the rebel soldiers that it is important to keep the Armed Forces united in the fight against communist insurgents. He said what is important is that the new armed forces and all its supporters maintain their capability to prevail over all its enemies, specifically the Communist Party of the Philippines and the New People's Army. Opposition MP on Tolentino

[Text] The self proclamation of former MP Tolentino was a unilateral act, according to former MP, now Con-comm [Constitutional Commission] member, Teodoro Natividad. Tolentino did not inform members of the opposition of his plan.

[Begin Natividad recording] The self proclamation of former MP Tolentino was never brought to us. We are still members of the opposition. We were never informed what prompted such a proclamation and if we were we would have objected to such a proclamation which would be interpreted or easily interpreted as attempted coup d'etat, because we are against a violence coup d'etat. As [the] opposition party, we are in favor legitimate election and a process that would restore constitutional government through the approval of the constitution. That is why we are in the Constitutional Commission, because we are drafting the Constitution to hasten the return to constitutionalism. [end recording]

Laurel on Marcos Role

[Text] Vice President Salvador Laurel said he believed that deposed President Marcos was behind the attempt to seize power in Manila. former Member of Parliament Arturo Tolentino took the presidential oath of office last Sunday, saying that he had been asked to do so by Marcos loyalists. He then took refuge with a cordon of soldiers in the Manila Hotel.

Laurel said he does not think Tolentino would proclaim himself as president without the consent of Mr Marcos. The vice president was interviewed in the U.S. television network ABC's Today in America program [words indistinct]

[Text] Manila, July 8 (AFP) -- The Philippine Government is to file sedition charges against the leaders of a failed coup, Justice Minister Neptali Gonzales said Tuesday.

"That is our instruction" from President Corazon Aquino, the justice minister told reporters after emerging from closed-door talks with opposition leader Arturo Tolentino and his associates at Navy headquarters here.

He said the sedition charges would be "definitely finalized tomorrow."

The talks followed the surrender early Tuesday of the remaining 67 soldiers holding out in the Manila Hotel, where Mr Tolentino proclaimed himself acting president Sunday.

Mr Gonzales said the opposition leader and his followers were not under arrest and declined to say why the government agreed to hold talks with the rebels. Armed marines blocked the entrace of the building where the meeting was held.

Mr Gonzales has been named by Mrs Aquino to head a panel charged with preparing sedition charges against the leaders of the aborted coup.

The Gonzales panel includes representatives from the office of the president, the military and the police.

Both Mr Gonzales and Mr Tolentino, running mate of deposed President Ferdinand Marcos in the disputed February election, refused to discuss what transpired during the meeting. "Ask Gonzales," Mr Tolentino told reporters.

Mr Tolentino was accompanied to the meeting by several supporters, including former Deputy Minister of Education Salvador Britanico, former MP Rafael Recto, and two brigadier generals, Jaime Echeverria and Antonio Palafox.

Mr Britanico said the talks would focus on "issues confronting the country and the events in the last few days."

Asked if there would be any discussion of dropping charges, he said: "We are asking that justice be done. We are going to talk about what is best for the country."

Mr. Tolentino and his followers immediately climbed into their own limousines after emerging from the talks. It was not known where they are going.

Military and civilian supporters of Mr. Tolentino abandoned the Manila Hotel early Tuesday. Government troops immediately sealed the hotel and bomb disposal experts moved in to check the premises.

A spokesman said a basket full of home-made petrol bombs had been found.

Government troops who had been standing by near the hotel during the rebellion had left Tuesday and traffic was flowing normally at a nearby major road junction which had been sealed off Monday and overnight.

The 67 rebel troops, 58 enlisted men and nine officers, who had been holed up in the hotel since it was seized by Mr. Tolentino Sunday, handed over their weapons to government forces at the hotel.

They then went to report to Armed Forces Chief of Staff General Fidel Ramos at army headquarters. Gen. Ramos stressed to reporters that he was carrying out a "processing" operation and that it was not a surrender.

Asked how the military would deal with the rebels, Gen. Ramos told reporters the military would allow the political branch to deal with both the civilian and military coup leaders because "it's a political problem."

Marcos Supporters Dispersed

HK080952 Hong Kong AFP in English 0949 GMT 8 Jul 86

[Text] Manila, July 8 (AFP) -- Riot police used truncheons Tuesday to disperse some 300 supporters of deposed President Ferdinand Marcos near a hotel where they staged an abortive coup Sunday, police said.

One man was arrested after he threw a stone at a police colonel but missed, police said. There were no reports of injuries.

The demonstrators fled to side-streets after being scattered from a park fronting the hotel by riot police wielding truncheons, where they continued to flash "V" for victory signs to passers-by, eyewitnesses said.

Arturo Tolentino, running mate of Mr Marcos in a fraud-marred February election followed by a peaceful revolt which installed Corazon Aquino as president, he declared himself acting president at the hotel Sunday.

Mr Tolentino and military and civilian followers occupied the hotel for two days before leaving early Tuesday after talks with government leaders.

Several supporters who said they did not believe that Mr Tolentino had left had been hanging around the hotel since morning, insisting that they be allowed to enter and see their "president."

They were kept off by police who said they had orders to prevent looting at the hotel. The hotel management said the occupation had left them facing a bill of half a million dollars in lost revenue and damage.

Tolentino supporters had looted the luxury building of expensive silverware, chinaware and wines, the management added.

ENRILE, DIOKNO CLASH ON U.S. BASES ISSUE

HK080817 Manila THE MANILA CHRONICLE in English 6 Jul 86 p 1

[Text] Human Rights Commissioner Jose W. Diokno and Defense Minister Juan Ponce Erile, perennial opponents on many issues, last Friday, clashed anew on the bases issue.

Diokno and Enrile, who did not agree on human rights and other issues during the Marcos regime, were guests in a television talk show Friday night. They disagreed throughout the show on almost every aspect of the evening's topic, the bases issue.

Enrile said the United States could not possibly store nuclear weapons in its Clark and Subic bases because delivering the warheads and building the launching pads would be detected by both the Philippine military and the Soviet Union.

He also said the United States did not have to store such weapons in its Philippine bases because nuclear submarines could serve the same purpose.

Diokno believes otherwise.

There are "unquestionably" nuclear weapons in both U.S. bases, Diokno said, because these are major U.S. logistical terminals and "every war plane and ship that goes to these bases is nuclear capable.

Enrile proposed that the bases agreement be "redefined" to include "compulsion of inspection to determine that our society partner is not violating our good faith."

Diokno argued for the total abrogation of the agreement. He said the bases not only endangered the country but also violated its sovereignty.

Enrile countered that national sovereignty was "a dream and an illusion," unless the country was capable of repulsing foreign invasion, or both the U.S. and the Soviet Union guaranteed its neutrality.

AQUINO SPEAKS ON COUNTERINSURGENCY POLICY

[By Teodoro Y. Montelibano]

[Text] President Corazon C. Aquino pronounced yesterday her government's policy on counterinsurgency.

Speaking at the closing of two-day peace and order seminar jointly hosted by the Ministry of National Defense and the New Armed Forces of the Philippines, President Aquino said her government will not tolerate torture by the military on apprehended insurgents.

Torture has no place in a democratic government and has "no justification in the accepted wisdom on counterinsurgency," the President said.

In stressing her point, the President cited a book given her by Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile. She quoted passages from the book which henceforth will comprise her government's policy on counterinsurgency.

"While there is a strong temptation in dealing with both terrorism and guerrilla actions for government forces to act outside the law; the excuses being that the process of law is too cumbersome, that the moral safeguards in the law are not designed for an insurgency, and that a terrorist deserves to be treated as an outlaw anyway, not only is this morally wrong but over a period will create more difficulties for a government than what it solves," she said.

The President quoted the book further: "A government which does not act in accordance with the law forfeits the right to be called a government and cannot expect its people to obey the law."

President Aquino reminded participants of the peace and order seminar at Camp Aguinaldo that the direct intervention of the people ousted a repressive dictator and restored democracy in the country.

She said she will not allow the gains obtained in the historical February revolution to be eroded by the same "errors and abuses" committed by the military in the past.

She said the past errors and abuses which also fueled rather than licked insurgency in the country must be reviewed in approaching the insurgency problems.

The February event has given the country a chance to start afresh and now, "we shall be working with a people who have affirmed their faith in the ways of peace and the promise of democracy," she said.

The president said, the battle for the hearts and minds of the people has virtually been won (by the government) and with the advantages gained it would be unforgivable if the government becomes a failure.

"We can only fail if the priciples of democracy, justice, human rights and the rule of law for which our people have fought with such distinction, are betrayed," she said. "I will not let that happen."

The President said, "I stand at the head of this government that was installed by and for the people to make sure that the faith they have reposed in it is not betrayed."

President Aquino then asked the military and the national police, local govenment units and government agencies and instrumentalities to defend democracy in such a way that "enlarges rather than diminishes its meaning for the people."

NPA AMBUSH KILLS 10 SOLDIERS IN ILLOCOS NORTE

[Text] Thirteen more people, including 10 armymen soldiers, were killed in separate armed attacks staged by NPA rebels during the past 48 hours. Nine others were wounded.

In Vintar, Ilocos Norte, NPA rebels ambushed soldiers belonging to the Charlie Company of the 50th Infantry Battalion, killing 10 of them and wounding 4 others. RUC [Regional Unified Command]-2 commander Brigadier General Manuel Ribo told newsmen that the soldiers were crossing the river in Sitio Barbaringuit in Barangay Cabuyo and ambushed by some 60 heavily armed NPA rebels.

Gen Ribo identified the rebel attackers as belonging to the northern Luzon sector guerrila front headed by Ignacio Capigsan. Ribo said that despite their difficulty to fire, some of the troopers were able to fire back. According to him, the group is operating in the hinterlands of Cagayan, Apayao and Ilocos Provinces.

[Begin Ribo recording, in progress] ...in the west, in the Apayao side and in western Cagayan, and they have now tried to move to the east to seek sanctuary and perhaps, since there is no such activities in the east, they feel they have that [words indistinct]. [end recording]

Over in Mindanao, heavily armed dissidents rounded up 40 militiamen in Capatagan. Bigos, Davao del Sur and executed them in public. In a report to AFP [Armed Forces of the Philippines] chief Gen Fidel Ramos, Gen Romeo Recina said he immediately dispatched a troop to track down the rebels numbering some 200.

The miltiamen were first disarmed by the rebels and later gunned down one after the other.

KANEMARU HINTS AT THIRD TERM FOR NAKASONE

OW070621 Tokyo KYODO in English 0610 GMT 7 Jul 86

[Text] Tokyo, July 7 KYODO -- Shin Kanemaru, secretary general of the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party, hinted Monday that Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone may seek a third two-year term as party president when his current term ends in October. He also told a press conference at the party's headquarters in Tokyo that the public preferes one-party rule by the LDP to a coalition of opposition parties. Asked about Nakasone's re-election, he said a party rule limiting the presidency to two consecutive terms could be changed if two-thirds of the party's Diet members agree. Referring to the possibilty of the LDP's continued coalition with the New Liberal Club, Kanemaru said,"We can't answer decide on it immediately. It's a very important matter, which has to be discussed among party executives." The special Diet session to be called soon will be around July 21, he added.

Opposed by 'New Leaders'

[Three 'New Leaders' Rule Out Third Term for Nakasone" -- KYODO headline]

[Text] Tokyo, July 8 KYODO -- All three front runners in the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party's fall presidential race agreed Tuesday that Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone should not be given a third term, but said they would not quarrel with a brief extension. The trio -- LDP Executive Council Chairman Kiichi Miyazawa, Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe and Finance Minister Noboru Takeshita -- outlined their position in a discussion meeting sponsored by KYODO news service a day after the LDP scored a sweeping victory in the Diet elections.

I don't think there will be any change in (the presidential election) schedule," Abe said. "Four years (as party president) is about right," he said. While expressing agreement with Abe's position, Takeshita suggested -- and the other two agreed -- that he would not mind if the election were to take place "on November 10 instead of October 30."

Nakasone's second two-year term as LDP president, and hence prime minister, ends on October 31, and party rules ban a third straight term. The three -- all poised to take over Nakasone's job -- ruled out a substantial extension of Nakasone's term, arguing that would come into conflict with the "no-third-term" rule. Nakasone has said he has no plans to seek a change in the party rule, but hinted of a possible extension of his term so that he can oversee legislation this fall to privatize the Japanese National Railways. Takeshita, who had earlier endorsed the Nakasone view, changed his position Tuesday, arguing that the privatization bills should pass the Diet without much difficulty.

While agreeing that Nakasone would not seek a third term, the three were wary that Nakasone's supporters within the party might wage a campaign to have the party rule changed. I have heard people talking about it," Miyazawa said, with Abe adding that that Nakasone has not discouraged his supporters from campaigning for a third term for him.

Neither Takeshita nor Abe gave any indication whether they would remain in their respective cabinet posts in an anticipated cabinet reshuffle following Nakasone's reappointment as prime minister by the new Diet. The two men have occupied their present posts since Nakasone first came to office in November 1982.

GOVERNMENT, LDP AGREE TO CONVENE DIET 22 JUL

[Text] Tokyo, July 9 Kyodo -- The government and the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party agreed Wednesday to convene the newly elected Diet on July 22, chief government spokesman Masaharu Gotoda said. The date for the special Diet session, which must be called within 30 days after an election, was approved at a joint meeting between principal cabinet ministers and LDP officials, he said.

The session, which is expected to last four or five days, is being held to reappoint the prime minister and assign committee seats to reflect new party strengths following Sunday's general elections. Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone, who as leader of the majority party is certain to retain his job as prime minister, is expected to reshuffle his cabinet following the pro forma reappointment.

Meanwhile, LDP Secretary General Shin Kanemaru made it clear Wednesday the LDP no longer needs the New Liberal Club as its coalition. "The situation has changed," Kanemaru said, referring to the solid, 47-seat lower house majority the LDP captured in Sunday's elections. "If single-party rule is the principle of party politics, I don't think we need the coalition" with the LDP's new strength in the key lower house, he said.

Kanemaru also expressed dissatisfaction over the presence of NLC Secretary General Toshio Yamaguchi in the joint government-ruling party meeting, noting that as far as he was concerned the LDP-NLC coalition ended when the Diet was dissolved on June 2. A formal decision on the LDP-NLC coalition is expected to be made by senior LDP executives Friday, he said.

Leaders of the NLC, which saw its lower house strength clipped from eight to six seats in the elections, have said they would like to work out some sort of policy ties with the LDP short of a coalition. The LDP-NLC coalition was set up after the LDP suffered an upset in the general elections in December 1983. In return fo the NLC's support in the Diet, the Ldp gave the NLC a cabinet seat, with Yohei Kono, the NLC leader, currently serving as the director general of the Science and Technology Agency.

EDUCATION MINISTRY APPROVES REVISED HISTORY BOOK

[Text] Tokyo, July 7 KYODO -- A controversial school history book accused of distorting prewar history was given final approval for publication by the Education Ministry's textbook screening council Monday. The book was produced by the National Council for the Defense of Japan, a group of conservative scholars led by former UN Ambassador Toshikazu Kase. It has been heavily criticized by China and both Koreas on the grounds that it whitewashes Japanese imperialism before and during World War II.

Although it was originally approved in May, the book has since undergone numerous revisions requested by the ministry in response to the international protests. In the approved edition the "Nanjing Incident" has been renamed the "Nanjing Massacre" and other passages glorifying the emperor and depicting the invasion of Asia as a war of liberation have been toned down. The final obstacle to approval was removed Saturday when the conference finally agreed to insert a footnote mentioning the fact that the emperor renounced his divinity after World War II. The book will now appear at an official textbook exhibition starting Thursday, and will be eligible for use in schools from next spring.

RESEARCHERS DECLINE SDI PROJECT PARTICIPATION

[Text] Tsukuda, Ibaraki Pref., July 4 KYODO -- About 1,600 researchers and other people working at institutes here have joined in a signature collecting campaign against U.S. President Ronald Reagan's strategic defense initiative (SDI), a campaign organizer said Friday. They include 1,200 persons, many of them women, at nine research institutes of the agency of industrial science and technology, located at this academic town, northeast of Tokyo. The agency of the international trade and industry ministry is one of the best known research organizations in Japan.

The campaign organizer, Sanae Matsuzaki, said SDI is a project to develop the most advanced weapons systems and that it is nothing but a scheme for arms expansion. The campaign, started June 20, will be continued, Matsuzaki said. The governmental agency is pushing projects in which the U.S. Defense Department has shown keen interest. The United States has invited Japan and other allies to take part in the research phase of SDI, popularly known as the "star wars" project. Britain and West Germany have already decided to participate.

ENVOYS TO KUWAIT, SENEGAL, UN APPOINTED

[Text] Tokyo, July 8 KYODO -- The government decided Tuesday to appoint Tadakiyo Nomura, 49, now consul general in Frankfurt, West Germany, ambassador to Kuwait. Makoto Taniguchi, ambassador to Papua New Guinea, was appointed ambassador (deputy) to the United Nations, and Toshio Oshima, of the Foreign Minister's Secretariat, ambassador to Senegal. The government also appointed Koji Watanabe, chief of the Information and Research Bureau, as head of the economic affairs bureau. The official appointments of Taniguchi and Watanabe were announced Tuesday, while those of Nomura and Oshima will come Friday. Nomura, who joined the Foreign Ministry in 1959, has been consul general in Frankfurt since March 1984. Taniguchi, 56, has served in such posts as consul general in Manila and minister to the U.N. since he joined the ministry in 1959. After joining the Ministry in 1952, Oshima, 59, served as ambassador to Zaire and special adviser to the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD). Watanabe, 52, who joined the ministry in 1956, was minister to China in 1981-84.

WPK COMMUNIQUE ON NONALIGNED MOVEMENT MEETING

[Communique on Joint Meeting of Political Bureau of WPK Central Committee and DPRK Central People's Committee" -- KCNA headline]

[Text] Pyongyang June 21 (KCNA) -- A joint meeting of the Political Bureau of the Central Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea and the Central People's Committee of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea was held on June 20, 1986, with the great leader of our party and our people Comrade Kim Il-song, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea and president of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, in the chair.

The joint meeting discussed a series of problems concerning the Non-Aligned Movement with the 8th Summit Conference of Non-Aligned Countries ahead.

At the meeting the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song scientifically analysed the present international situation and made an important concluding speech on problems of principle in developing and strengthening the Non-Aligned Movement.

Noting that the 8th Summit Conference of Non-Aligned Countries to be convened in the significant year marking the 25th anniversary of the founding of the Non-Aligned Movement should be an important historical meeting in defending the principle and the idea of the movement and further developing and strengthening it, the joint meeting stressed:

Over the past 25 years the Non-Aligned Movement has faced the complicated situation within and without and many difficulties on the road ahead of it but has dynamically advanced, successfully surmounting them.

The Non-Aligned Movement which had 25 newly emerging independent countries when it started its first march 25 years ago has now expanded to be a very broad movement embracing more than 100 newly emerging countries and grown to be an organized political force, thereby exerting a great influence on the process of the revolutionary changes in the world and the international political life.

The whole course covered by the Non-Aligned Movement has clearly proved its vitality as an independent political force outside blocs and the validity of its policy.

Today the Non-Aligned Movement has a heavy duty to discharge its honorable mission by further developing and strengthening the movement in conformity with the demand of the prevailing situation.

It is noble mission set forth by the Non-Aligned Movement since its inception to liquidate imperialism and colonialism, do away with all manner of domination and subjugation, oppose aggression and interference, defend peace and security, realize the sovereignty of the country and the nation and achieve free socio-economic development. This reflects the aspiration and desire of the people to achieve the independence and prosperity of all countries and nations and build a new peaceful world free from war.

Today a situation going against the aspiration and desire of the peoples of non-aligned countries has been created in the international arena and the Non-Aligned Movement is faced with the grave challenge of the imperialists and reactionaries of all hues.

The peoples of Non-Aligned Countries and progressive people of the world hope that the 8th Summit Conference of Non-Aligned Countries to be held in Harare this year will be an epochal occasion in fulfilling important tasks facing the movement and, accordingly, are greatly interested in this conference.

Stressing that the might of the Non-Aligned Movement should be strengthened in every way and its role enhanced in the international arena to cope with the prevailing situation, the joint meeting clarified as follows the stand of the government of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea on the important problems arising in the development and strengthening of the Non-Aligned Movement with the 8th Summit Conference of the Non-Aligned Countries ahead:

1. Present International Situation and Independence Against Imperialism

Today the international situation is very complex and tense.

The main current of the present time is flowing as ever along the road of independence and sovereitnty, peace and progress. On the other hand, there is a counter-current of domination and subjugation, war and destruction.

Aggressive acts and conflicts trampling underfoot the sovereignty of the countries and nations and disturbing peace and security are frequently taking place in different regions of the world and socio-economic stagnation, catastrophe and instability threatening the existence of the people are continuing. The people desire peace but the international tension and the danger of war are daily increasing and various acute and complex problems are continuously cropping up in the international community.

Such situation which goes against the common desire of the progressive people of the world is connected with the imperialists' intensifying manoeuvres of aggression and plunder.

Aggression and plunder are the nature of imperialism and its mode of existence.

Imperialism has emerged as a result of aggression and plunder and fattened on unceasing aggression and plunder. Since the emergence of imperialism, mankind has suffered disasters owing to repeated aggressions and wars, and it has been deprived of immeasurably great wealth and fruits of its labour.

It is an inevitable result and law of capitalist development that monopoly capital stretches its tentacles of aggression and plunder abroad when it grows corpulent.

The ambitions and greed of imperialism know no limits. The further imperialism grows fat and feels heavy in the stomach, the more ambitious and greedy it gets, the more persistent and outrageous its aggressive and predatory acts against other countries become.

The method of aggression and plunder of imperialism has changed as the times develop.

Neo-colonialism is the main method employed by the imperialists in invading, dominating and plundering other countries.

The imperialist colonial system collapsed and the peoples of many Asian, African and Latin American countries freed themselves from the yoke of colonialism and came to advance along the road of independent development after the second world war. In this new age the old method of the colonial rule of the imperialists came to work no longer and it has become impossible for imperialists to maintain their position or dominate and plunder other countries unless they are aligned with each other. Modern imperialism which was reorganized into allied forces led by U.S. imperialism after the second world war has intensified its domination and plunder of newly independent countries and developing countries by a more concealed and crafty method of neo-colonialism.

Today the imperialists have seized the economic arteries of many developing countries by catching them in such a noose of neo-colonialism as "aid" or "cooperation" and reduced them to their sources of raw materials and commodity markets, thereby earning huge profits and amassing wealth.

Owing to the imperialists' neo-colonialist policy of enslavement and the unfair old international economic order forced by them, not a small number of non-aligned countries and developing countries have failed to achieve the independent development and prosperity of the country even though they won political independence, and peoples have not got rid of starvation and poverty. The gap between the western imperialist countries and the developing countries is growing wide and the phenomenon that the rich get richer, the poor poorer more pronounced among countries on a world wide scale as the time flows.

The imperialists are going towards the militarisation of the economy and further intensifying the aggressive and belligerent manoeuvres in order to gratify the endless ambition of the monopolies for overseas expansion and realize their design for world supremacy.

The imperialists direct the spearhead of aggression against newly emerging countries including non-aligned countries.

The U.S.-led imperialists are ceaselessly committing armed intervention, subversion and sabotages against non-aligned countries and developing countries, and craftily using border issues, the consequence of the colonial rule, and various other complicated problems to drive wedges between them and create antagonism and confrontation between them and make them fight each other to fish in troubled waters. The imperialists often use the Israeli Zionists and South African racists and other hand-raised stooges as a shock force in realizing their aggressive designs on the non-aligned and developing countries.

Due to such moves of the imperialists, the peoples of non-aligned and developing countries are undergoing big sacrifices and calamities and facing lots of difficulties and obstacles in the building of a new society.

All facts clearly show that the imperialists are, indeed, the chieftains of aggression and plunder, disturbers of world peace and security and the very ones barring social progress.

It is an urgent demand of our time to fight against imperialism and for global independence.

The Non-Aligned Movement is, in essence, a movement for independence against imperialism. This movement can realize its noble goal and idea only through the struggle for independence against imperialism. Only when the struggle for independence against imperialism is intensified can the world peace and security be defended, the independent rights and interests of the people safeguarded and the consolidation of national independence and social progress realized.

The peoples of the non-aligned countries and all the progressive people of the world should vigorously wage the struggle against imperialism and for independence in firm unity.

Firstly, an anti-imperialist common front should be formed and the struggle against imperialism intensified throughout the world.

Imperialism is the common enemy of the peoples of non-aligned countries and all the progressive people of the world. The imperialist forces, acting in concert, challenge the just cause of the people for independence, peace and social progress. No country in the world is free from the threat of aggression and intervention by imperialism.

Only with their united might can the people win victory over the allied forces of imperialism. The imperialists fear more than anything else the firm unity of the progressive people of the world as one anti-imperialist force. Invincible is the united might of the people.

The people of non-aligned countries and all the progressive people of the world should closely unite in the same ranks of the anti-imperialist struggle for the common cause of independence, peace and social progress and take concerted action in the struggle against imperialism.

Secondly, the struggle against imperialism and for sovereignty should be persistently waged in an all-round way in all fields of politics, the military, economy, ideology and culture.

The manoeuvres of the imperialists to invade and dominate other countries are perpetrated by various methods in different fields. They are trying to realize aggression and political domination over other countries by their military power and conspiratorial method and, at the same time, achieve economic domination and ideological and cultural infiltration with surplus commodities, inequal economic relations, corrupt western culture and the bourgeois way of life as a weapon.

The non-aligned nations and all the progressive countries of the world should heighten vigilance against the open aggressive moves of the imperialists and their crafty design and cunning trick involving various methods, and thoroughly frustrate them at every step.

It is necessary to wage the struggle against imperialism not only in an all-round way in all fields but also persistently, not stopped at halfway.

The anti-imperialist struggle should not be ceased or slackened even a moment. To cease the struggle means retreat and retreat brings defeat. The anti-imperialist struggle should be continuously intensified to give no respite to the enemy and waged till final victory.

Thirdly, a struggle should waged vigorously for the independence of the whole world.

It is the main trend of our time that the people who hold their destiny in their own hands advance along the road of independence against all manner of domination and subjugation and it is the common cause of the peoples of all countries defending chajusong (independence) to fight for the realisation of global independence.

The independent world is a world where all forms of colonialism are totally liquidated and the sovereignty of all countries and all nations is fully realized.

Only when global independence is realized, can the peoples of all countries of the world build a new prosperous society where they enjoy a free happy life free from domination and subjugation and a new world where mankind lives in peace, putting an end to aggression and war.

The struggle for the independence of the whole world is a deep-going decisive showdown between the anti-imperialist independent forces and the imperialist forces of domination in the world.

The peoples of non-aligned countries and those of all countries of the world advocating chajusong should take an active part in the struggle to realize the independence of the whole world.

2. Prevention of Nuclear War and Nuclear Disarmament

It is a pressing problem facing mankind at present to avert a nuclear war and defend world peace and security.

To brandish nuclear weapons and dominate the world with strength is a global strategy persistently pursued by the imperialists since the second world war. Such strategy of world supremacy resorted to by the imperialists assumes increasingly dangerous nature as the days go by.

Now the imperialists are largely increasing armaments and actively stepping up the production and deployment of nuclear weapons. Owing to the war moves of the imperialists, a large number of nuclear weapons are deployed in many countries and regions of the world, nuclear fleets are constantly present on the Pacific, Indian and other oceans. In particular, nuclear armed forces are massively concentrated in the main area of resources and military and strategic importance and new nuclear bases are increasing there. Military exercises and activities which may cause a nuclear war are ceaselessly conducted in and around the territory, airspace and territorial waters of non-aligned countries.

In recent years the United States brought forward even the adventurous "star wars" programme and tries to expand the arms race into outer space and to produce binary chemical weapons and deploy them in many parts of the world.

Dark clouds of nuclear war are heavily hanging over all continents of the globe and they threaten even the existence of the planet itself. The danger of a new world war, a nuclear war exists in Asia, Europe, the Middle East, Southern Africa, the Caribbean region and Indian Ocean and in all other parts of the world.

It is the Korean peninsula where there is the greatest danger of nuclear war.

More than 1,000 pieces of nuclear weapons of all kinds including nuclear bombs are deployed in South Korea and the density of nuclear weapons there is four times that of the NATO nations. A global study suggests that besides the NATO member countries, only South Korea is massively introducing nuclear weapons of the United States. South Korea, a colony and military base of the United States, has turned into a huge "arsenal of nuclear weapons," the largest nuclear forward base in the Far East.

The United States massively deploys nuclear weapons in South Korea and, at the same time, frequently stages nuclear war rehearsals in and around South Korea by mobilizing all kinds of nuclear weapons and large armed forces. As a result, South Korea has today become a most dangerous hotbed of nuclear war.

If a nuclear war breaks out in our country, it will easily expand into a global nuclear wear, and then the Korean nation and the entire mankind will suffer a nuclear holocaust.

Never has the danger of nuclear war threatened the existence of mankind so seriously as today. Now the explosive power of atomic bombs stockpiled on the planet is more than one million times that of the atomic bomb the United States dropped over Hiroshima in the period of the second world war. World public fears that a nuclear war may break out by any accidental factor.

To avert a new world war, a thermonuclear war, and defend peace and security is the solemn demand of the times and the unanimous desire of mankind.

The Non-Aligned Movement is an anti-war peace force and the non-aligned policy is a peace-loving policy based on justice.

The Non-Aligned Movement should take it as its important duty to prevent a new world war, a thermonuclear war, and defend world peace, and strengthen its activity in every way.

Firstly, it should actively fight to put an end to the arms race and realize general and complete disarmament, nuclear disarmament in particular.

The arms race and nuclear weapons deployed in different parts of the world are a main factor aggravating the international tension and increasing the danger of nuclear war. As long as the arms race continues and nuclear weapons exist on the globe, the danger of nuclear war cannot be removed nor can mankind be freed from constant nuclear threat.

The non-aligned countries should give priority to the abolition of nuclear weapons and turn out in the struggle to prevent the production and stockpiling of nuclear weapons and abolish them completely and for good. The existing arsenals of nuclear weapons should be frozen and they be drastically reduced and, furthermore, completely abolished to remove the danger of nuclear war once and for all.

To put an end to the nuclear test is the first step in preventing the nuclear arms race and abolishing nuclear weapons. The non-aligned countries should play a catalytic role in ensuring that international legal steps are taken for totally prohibiting all forms of tests of nuclear weapons.

The outer space should be used only for a peaceful aim and not become a new theatre of the arms race. The non-aligned countries should not allow any attempt to extend the arms race into the outer space.

They should have the countries possessing nuclear weapons make a commitment not to pose a nuclear threat to the countries without nuclear weapons and make efforts for an early adoption of steps for having the abolition of nuclear weapons stipulated in an international law.

To abolish nuclear weapons and prevent a nuclear war nuclear-free zones, peace zones should be built and constantly expanded in different parts of the world.

Today excellent initiatives are put forward on building nuclear-free zones, peace zones, in various parts of the world. The non-aligned countries should actively support all these initiatives. The countries possessing nuclear weapons should respect nuclear-free zones, peace zones, and refrain from deploying nuclear weapons there.

The government of our republic and the Korean people will actively struggle to convert the area of Northeast Asia including the Korean peninsula into a nuclear-free zone, peace zone and make all efforts to build nuclear-free zones, peace zones in various parts of the world and expand them, uniting with the peace-loving people of the world.

In order to prevent the danger of a new world war and defend world peace and security, nuclear weapons should be abolished and, at the same time, the development, production, stockpile and use of chemical weapons be prohibited.

Positive proposals and initiatives have been put forward to realise the general and complete disarnament. Among them are the proposal to gradually and totally abolish nuclear weapons till the end of the present century and the proposal to refrain from the arms race in the outer space. They are significant proposals and initiatives in removing the danger of nuclear war and defending world peace and security. The non-aligned countries should make all efforts to carry into practice the positive proposals and initiatives to prevent the danger of nuclear war.

Secondly, they should struggle against the imperialists' policy of military blocs and policy of building military bases.

Military blocs are a springboard of the imperialists for their aggressive and belligerent moves and the aggressive foreign military bases and foreign troops in the territories of other countries are a means of dominating and controlling these countries. World peace can be a lasting and durable one only when all military blocs and means of aggression and war are completely abolished on the globe.

It is an important duty of the Non-Aligned Movement to struggle against the establishment of foreign military bases and the stationing of foreign troops and for dissolving military blocs.

The non-aligned coutries should strongly demand the withdrawal of aggressive foreign military bases and troops from the territories of other countries and should not offer their territories to big powers as their military bases and supply bases.

The imperialists are now trying to form new military blocs in various places including the Asian and Pacific region, maintaining and strengthening the existing military blocs. The non-aligned countries should resolutely oppose the moves of the imperialists to form new military blocs and fight to disorganize all the aggressive military blocs.

If the aggressive military blocs of the imperialists are dissolved, the military bloc of socialist countries will not be necessary any more.

The non-aligned countries should not involve themselves in any military bloc or military treaty nor allow the imperialists to stage war exercises, notably nuclear war rehearsal in and around their countries.

We strongly demand an end to the nuclear war provocation moves stepped up by the United States in and around South Korea and the prompt withdrawal of the U.S. forces, military bases, nuclear weapons and other mass destruction weapons from South Korea.

The non-aligned countries should extend positive support and encouragement to the people of all countries in the struggle for the withdrawal of aggressive foreign military bases and troops.

Thirdly, an energetic anti-war, anti-nuclear peace movement should be waged.

The anti-war, anti-nuclear peace movement which is being waged powerfully today in various parts of the world including Asia and Europe is dealing a heavy blow at the imperialists' policy of war and nuclear armament.

The non-aligned countries should roundly expose and denounce the imperialists' policy of aggression and war and adventurous nuclear war provocation moves and bind them hand and foot in all parts where they have stretched their tentacles. And they should not follow the imperialists' policy of aggression and war and acts as their war servants.

They should strengthen solidarity with the anti-war, anti-nuclear peace movement and extend all possible forms of support and encouragement to this movement.

All the non-aligned countries should not allow acts violating the publicly recognized norms and rule of action in the international relations but lift higher their voices to check such acts.

This is an international year of peace. The world peace-loving people unanimously for a new advance in easing the tension and removing the root cause of aggression and war in all parts of the world this year.

Though the danger of a new world war, a thermonuclear war, is now greate, war is not fatally inevitable. If the non-aligned countries actively struggle in alliance with all the anti-war, peace forces of the world, they will be able to remove the danger of nuclear war and defend peace and security.

We consider that the non-aligned countries should pay primary attention to realising the disarmament, the abolition of nuclear weapons in particular, in the preparations for the eighth Summit Conference of Non-Aligned Countries and thereby make this summit a new occasion in preventing a new world war, a thermonuclear war, and easing the international tension.

3. Liquidation of Colonialism and racism and accomplishment of Cause of National Liberation.

To liquidate colonialism and racism and accomplish the cause of national liberation is an improtant taks of the struggle for independence against imperialism.

Ours is an era of chajusong. The people who had been oppressed in the past have emerged as the master of the world and are vigorously pushing ahead with history. the colonial system of imperialism is being finally swept off the surface of the globe by the trend of the era of chajusong, and the peoples of many countries in Asia, Africa and Latin America have achieved political independence and are dynamically advancing along the road of building a new life.

But the colonial remnants of imperialism still remain and not a small number of people are subjected to the life of colonial slavery on the globe. This is a serious contradicition intolerable to the era of chajuson. Today the peoples in colonies and dependent countries are dealing a heavy blow at the imperialists and colonialists by waging a vigorous struggle, under the banner of freedom and independence.

The imperialists are suppressing the people's cause of liberation by force of arms and zealously instigating racists to maintain their crumbling colonial system by hook or by crook. They proclaimed South Africa and Israel "friendly countries", "allies" and are strengthening the so called "cooperation" with these countries in political, diplomatic, economic, financial and military fields and nuclear field in particular.

Under the zealous patronage of the imperialists the South African racists and the Israeli zionists doggedly oppose the cause of national liberation, openly pursuing the racist and expansionlist policy of aggression.

The South African racist regime is enforcing the heinous policy of apartheid, racial discrimination and suppressive politics and ruthlessly trampling underfoot the elementary freedom and right of the South African people and keeping them in bondage to the white minority. The South African racists have illegally occupied Namibia and are intensifying the colonial rule and resorting to the bloody suppression of the struggle of the Namibian people for the country's independence and national liberation. The South African racist regime is ceaselessly committing acts of aggression, intervention and state terrorism against front-line states including Angola, Botswana, Mozambique, Zambia and Zimbabwe and persistently scheming the wreck the stability of these countries and overthrow their legitimate governments. The recent military attack made by the South African racist clique and Zimbabwe, Zambia, Botswana and Angola with the mobilisation of air, ground and naval forces fully showed their aggressive and barbarous nature to the world.

The Israeli zionists have occupied Arab countries and are pursuing the policy of building colonial settlements in order to realise their wild ambition to build the "great zionist empire" in the area of the Middle East. Under the zealous patronage of the imperialists they are wantonly trampling underfoot the national rights of the Arab people including the Palestinian people, more openly revealing their ferocious and arrogant nature as the days go by.

The imperialists and the colonialists are barring the struggle of peoples for freedom and independence in Central America and the Carribean region, too. The imperialists are resorting to open militry threat, intervention, subversive activities against the countries in this area which are struggling to defend the political independence of the country and achieve independent development.

Today the world's progressive people are confronted with the weighty task to more vigorously wage the struggle do liquidate colonialism and racism by their concerted efforts as the colonialists and recists are scheming to obliterate the cause of national liberation and strengthen their colonial exploitation and domination. When all forms of colonialism and racism are totally liquidated from the surface of the globe, imperialistic North America, imperialistic Western Europe will no longer exist and the liberation of the people from the yoke of imperialism will become complete and final.

All the non-aligned countries should more powerfully struggle to finally liquidate colonialism and racism and accomplish the cause of national liberation and support and encourage in every way the oppressed peoples in their struggle for national liberation and independence.

Firstly, they should more vigorously wage the common struggle to put an end to the racial system of South Africa.

South Africa is an important stronghold of the colonialists. Racism of South Africa is a most cruel form of colonialism and a main obstacle to the complete liberation of Africa and the process of its decolonisation. The reality shows that if apartheid policy is not terminated in South Africa the cause of national liberation cannot be accomplished nor can the situation in this area be stabilized and world peace and security defended.

The non-aligned countries should strengthen their concerted efforts to support the struggle of the South African people for freedom and liberation, the struggle of the Namibian people against the occupation by South Africa and for national self-determination and independence and the struggle of the peoples of the front-line countries and other neighbouring countries against the aggression and intervention of South Africa and for the defence of the independence of the country.

They should give all forms of support such as political, diplomatic, material, financial and military support to the fighting Southern African peoples including the South African and Namibian peoples and take positive steps to totally isolate the South African racist regime internationally. The non-alignment should make all member nations and international organisations sever relations in all fields including political, economic, cultural, diplomatic and military fields concluded with the South African racist regime.

Secondly, the non-aligned countries should smash the expansionist aggressive ambition of the Israeli zionists.

Zionism is a form of racism and colonialism. The aggressive and expansionist policy of the Israeli zionists is a basic factor barring the victorious advance of the cause of national liberation in the Middle East. If the aggressive ambition of Israel is not smashed, the independence, territorial integrity and progress of the Middle East countries cannot be achieved nor can durable peace and security be ensured in the world.

The non-aligned countries should resolutely denounce the criminal moves of the Israeli zionists to oppose the Arab peoples and trample underfoot the liberation cause of the Palestinian people and continue to express positive support to and solidarity with the just cause of the palestinian and Arab peoples. They should regard the struggle of the Palestinian and other Arab peoples as their common cause and actively take joint action to reject Israel in the diplomatic, economic, military and cultural domains and sea and air transport in accordance with the resolution of the Seventh Summit Conference of Non-Aligned Countries.

The just cause of the Palestinian people and the Arab people to retake the lost Arab land and restore all the legitimate rights of Palestine including the right to found an independent state must be accomplished under all circumstances. The Israeli zionists must discard their policy of expansion and annexation and immediately get out of all the Arab territories they are occupying.

The United Staes must stop giving political and diplomatic support and military and economic aid to the Israeli zionists and take its hands off the Middle East, abandoning its ambition to dominate this region.

Thirdly, solidarity should be strengthened with the peoples struggling for independence, sovereignty and the building of a new society.

It is a common duty of the non-aligned countries to render active support and encouragement to the struggle of the peoples for national independence and liberation.

The people's struggle for independence, sovereignty and the building of a new society is in the relationship of mutual support and replenishment.

When Africa is not free, Asia and Latin America cannot be free. And when the struggle for independence, sovereignty and the building of a new society makes a progress in Asia, it will create a favourable condition for the liberation struggle of the African and Latin American peoples.

The non-aligned countries should powerfully support the colonial peoples in their struggle for the national liberation and independence and express more active encouragement to the struggle of the Asian, African and Latin American peoples to defend national independence and sovereignty against the aggressive and interventionist moves of the imperialists.

They should denounce the maneuvers of the imperialists and their lackeys to crush the people's just cause of building a new life and should isolate them completely.

Under no circumstances should they allow aggression and intervention, pressure and state terrorism against sovereign states.

If the imperialists are left alone to freely violate the sovereignty of non-aligned countries, they will act arrogantly tomorrow and trifle with the destiny of the Non-Aligned Movement as a whole. The Non-Aligned Movement should defend its member nations' cause of independence, sovereignty and the building of a new society from imperialist aggression and intervention.

That imperialism and colonialism go to destruction and the people's cause of liberation triumphs is a trend of history that no force can stem.

When the non-aligned countries wage a powerful struggle to wipe imperialism and colonialism off the surface of the earth, the final victory of the cause of national liberation will be won earlier.

4. South-South Cooperation and Economic Independence.

South-South cooperation is a noble work of the developing countries to increase the independence of the national economy and achieve a complete economic liberation through a close economic and technical cooperation.

Only when the developing countries are independent economically is it possible to free the people from backwardness and poverty, famine and diseases, the aftereffects of the imperialist colonialist rule, and consolidate the political independence already won.

A nation economically dependent on other countries is dependent politically, too. Economic reliance on others inevitably leads to political reliance and economic dependence produces political dependence.

The struggle for economic independence is the second liberation struggle to do away with economic backwardness and poverty and achieve a complete sovereignty of a nation.

Economic independence must be won by the peoples of the developing countries themselves. The imperialists never make a gift of an economic independence to the developing countries. The non-aligned and developing countries should explore the way for their existence and build an independent national economy by materialising South-South cooperation under the banner of collective self-reliance.

Today the international economic situation is taking a course unfavorable to the developing countries. This reality urgently demands South-South cooperation. The developing countries should unite efforts and support and cooperate with each other at present when their peoples are threatened by daily growing disasters from famine and diseases.

Now the leaders of many non-aligned and developing countries propose close cooperation among those countries, stressing that those countries should shape their destiny by themselves on their own responsibility. This is only too natural.

South-South cooperation will open a favourable phase for establishing a new international economic order by cultivating the resisting and negotiating capacity of the developing countries vis-a-vis the developed countries.

There are ample realistic conditions and possibilities to realise South-South cooperation. The non-aligned and developing countries are possessed of a vast territory, rich raw material resources and a wealth of good experiences and techniques attained in the course of building a new life. If the developing countries make maximum utilization of their own manpower and material resources and expand economic and technical cooperation and exchange on the principle of mutual accomodation, they can successfully solve difficult and complex problems in the building of a new society without assistance from the developed countries. Historic experience tells us that even poor and backward countries can do a big job, if they pool efforts.

In order to liberate people from backwardness and poverty, famine and diseases and attain an economic independence, the non-aligned and developing countries should conduct brisk cooperation and exchange beginning with urgent problems which are realistically possible.

Firstly, they should expand and develop South-South cooperation in the food and agricultural domain.

The solution of the food and agricultural problem is a key to the acceleration of the construction of a new society and promotion of the wellbeings of the people.

The cooperation and exchange in agriculture should be focused on building in the developing countries their own solid foundations of agricultural production, which will help them attain self-sufficiency in food in a short span of time.

At present, the United Nations and other international organisations take steps to help a certain famine-stricken country. This is good and necessary.

If the developing countries are to fundamentally solve the food problem, each country should do a good farming and decisively increase grain production. The majority of the non-aligned and developing countries have not yet been freed from famine and poverty left over by the imperialists' colonial rule. This is not because they have little arable land but because they fail to do a proper farming for the absence of irrigation works, shortage of machines and poor techniques.

We consider that cooperation should be strengthened in irrigation construction, first of all.

Irrigation must be carried out in the developing countries, if they are to prevent damages from drought and reap a high and stable harvest. The majority of non-aligned and developing countries including African countries have abundant water resources and a broad prospect of irrigation construction.

In realising cooperation in the building of irrigation setups, it will be rational for the non-aligned and developing countries to jointly work out "a 10-year plan of irrigation construction in developing countries" and "a 10-year plan of irrigation construction in Africa" and the like, set up an organ to coordinate cooperation in irrigation construction and form irrigation construction companies of joint venture.

They should also closely cooperate with each other in improving farming methods.

The greatest reserves for the increased production of grain in the developing countries lie in putting farming on a scientific and technical basis by improving its methods. Improvement of farming methods alone can bring sizable benefits in agricultural production with small investments.

The developing countries should create new farming methods suited to the natural geographical conditions of each region and country and their climate and soil and widely generalize the fine conduct experiences gained in improving farming methods.

The non-aligned and developing countries should also cooperate and conduct exchange with each other on a wide scale in seed selection and production, too.

The countries with good technique and experience in seed selection and production should exchange its technique with other developing countries and send breed strains if they request them.

Joint research and mutual assistance should be intensified in the agricultural scientific researches in order to boost grain production.

The non-aligned and developing countries should actively introduce joint ventures in agriculture.

It is one of the reasonable ways for the developing countries including African countries to solve food problem. The broad joint venture among the developing countries in agriculture will not only help them save the people from famine by rapidly increasing agricultural production but also lay a solid foundation of agricultural production.

It is important in realising agricultural joint venture to form and manage joint venture farms. They can be managed in such a manner that a nation with a backward farming technique offers land and workforce and a nation with developed farming technique offers farming materials and technique such as farming machines, chemical fertilizers and agricultural chemicals.

It will be effective for non-aligned and developing countries to organize joint venture enterprises in the production of farm machines and materials for a sufficient supply of farm machines, irrigation equipment, chemical fertilizers, agricultural chemicals and so on. For the present, it is advisable for the developing countries comparatively lacking technology to build farm machine factories, increase the production of minor farm machines and farming tools and make and use many animal-drawn farm machines with the help of other experienced developing countries.

We will strengthen cooperation with non-aligned and developing countries, African countries in particular, with emphasis on helping them lay solid foundations of agricultural production and attain self-sufficiency in food.

Secondly, extensive cooperation and exchange should be realised in health services.

South-South cooperation in health services should be centered on solving the most pressing problems facing each developing country in promoting the health of its people till the year 2000.

The primary problem to be solved in freeing the peoples of non-aligned and developing countries from diseases is to eliminate epidemics and helminthiasis.

The non-aligned and developing countries should find more effective ways for active cooperation in health services, drawing on the good experiences in cooperation gained in this field in the past.

Above all, medical science should be developed through a proper combination of modern medicine with traditional medicine, and modern remedies with folk remedies and cooperation be strengthened in this field.

Efforts should be devoted to the solution of the problem of medicines for the realization of substantial South-South cooperation in health services.

The non-aligned and developing countries should strengthen cooperation for developing the production of prophylactic medicines and actively develop cooperation for the production of basic medicines. Especially, cooperation should be strenthened in building medicine production bases. To establish pharmaceutical enterprises of joint venture is an important means of realising this cooperation effectively. In order to found and develop pharmaceutical enterprises of joint venture, it is advisable to sign an agreement on specialising medicine production on an international scale, taking into consideration raw material resources, production capacity and demand for medicines in each country.

To open and operate joint venture hospitals can also be an effective means of cooperation in health services.

Thirdly, the work of expanding and developing cooperation and exchange between non-aligned and developing countries should be carried into practical action according to the already adopted action programme of economic cooperation.

A South Bank should be set up to solve the financial problem, a gordian knot in realising South-South cooperation, among other things and to fill each other's need and necessary measures be taken for promoting cooperation in finance and currency and trade.

Establishing a global system of preferential trade among the developing countries is of weighty significance in developing trade among them. The non-aligned and developing countries should make joint efforts to set up this system [on a world-wide scale] at an early date.

To strengthen political support to South-South cooperation is a practical demand for implementing the action programme of economic cooperation. The non-aligned and developing countries should mature relevant conditions for discussing South-South cooperation on a high level and taking practical steps.

The non-aligned countries should pay due attention to coordinating the action programme of economic cooperation of the Non-aligned Movement and the action programme of economic cooperation of the 77-group and to rationally regulating the domains of cooperation in the action programme of economic cooperation of the movement.

The non-aligned and developing countries should constantly explore and develop active forms and methods of widening the scope of South-South cooperation and increasing its effectiveness to meet practical demand.

They should tide over difficulties arising in developing economic and technical cooperation by giving full play to the spirit of mutual cooperation and solidarity.

If they actively conducted South-South cooperation beginning with agriculture, public health and other vital fields, they would make a big advance in the struggle for eliminating famine and diseases and achieving economic independence. And if economic and technical cooperation among developing countries made a successful progress, the universal economic situation of the world would take a turn for the better and then it would have a positive influence on the South-North relations.

5. Establishment of New International Economic Order

One of the momentous tasks facing the non-aligned and developing countries today is to destroy the old international economic order and establish a new fair one based on the principles of independence, equality and mutual benefit.

The non-aligned and developing countries put forward a joint strategy to set up a new international economic order and have vigorously striven for its realisation in the past. Thanks to their active struggle, a declaration and an action programme on establishing a new international economic order were already adopted and relevant measures taken at a special session of the U.N. General Assembly and many other international meetings, and different international organisations have been set up.

But, owing to the wrong stand and attitude of the developed capitalist countries keen on maintaining the old international economic order, a notable advance has not bee made in the struggle of the developing countries to establish a new international economic order.

Developed capitalist countries are unwilling to meekly give away their monopolistic position in the international economic relations and fail to respond the request of the developing for negotiations to establish a new international economic order.

Imperialists, still hanging on the old international economic order, are plundering the developing countries of natural resources and their people of fruits of labour at cheap prices and obstructing the economic development of these countries. The protectionism and high interest rate policy of the developed countries and the steadily worsening terms of trade and the stupendous increment of foreign debts in developing countries exert a serious influence on the socio-economic development in the non-aligned and developing countries. The economy of developing countries is made weaker and brought to stagnancy by the unfair international economic order. Particularly, the economic situation of African countries is getting worse.

The global economic crisis and the difficult economic conditions of the developing countries which have been kept long by the unfair international economic order are rendering the international situation more unstable and threatening justice and peace.

Reality shows that the non-aligned and developing countries cannot be freed from international exploitation and plunder nor can they achieve the prosperity and development of the country and nation as long as the old international economic order, an offspring of the colonial system and imperialists' lever of exploitation and plunder, is left alone.

Only when all the unfair and unreasonable economic relations are reorganized in all fields of trade, finance and currency is it possible to eradicate the root cause of international exploitation and create conditions favourable for the economic development of the developing countries.

The non-aligned and developing countries should actively fight to establish a new international economic order in accordance with the already adopted joint strategy.

Firstly, continued patient efforts are needed to step up negotiations for the establishment of a new international economic order.

What is important in realising the strategy of negotiations is to take a concerted action of the non-aligned and developing countries. They should jointly map out strategy of negotiation suited to the demand of the international economic situation, explore procedures and ways of negotiations so as to place the position of negotiations still higher. A realistic measure for this is to set up a permanent committee of ministerial level of the non-aligned and other developing countries as recommended by the Foreign Ministers' Conference of the Coordinating Committee held in New Delhi.

The establishment of a new international economic order is useful for the developed countries, too. The developed countries should accept the just demand of the non-aligned and developing countries for holding world-wide negotiations to establish a new international economic order.

Secondly, efforts should be directed to establishing a fair and stable international financial and monetary system.

The economic difficulties of the developing countries and global economic crisis are largely related to the unfair international financial and monetary system. This unfair system should be reorganized to suit the requirement of the time and to the advantage of the economic development of the developing countries.

The new international financial and monetary system must be a fair system for promoting world-wide economic cooperation and achieving world economic revival by ending the privileges and arbitrariness of the developed capitalist countries and guaranteeing the stability of currency circulation and financial conditions of international trade. For this, decisions adopted at the international financial organs should guarantee equality of the developing and developed countries. A stable and realistic exchange rate system be established, international circulation be created to suit the demand and serve the fair distribution between the developing and developed countries.

The foreign debt problem of the developing countries should be solved fairly and completely to guarantee the socio-economic development and stability of these countries.

The non-aligned and developing countries should hold at an early date an international conference on international finance and currency for development to provide an occasion for setting up a new international financial and monetary system.

Thirdly, an active struggle should be waged to establish a new trade order.

Non-equivalent exchange still persists in the trade between the developing and developed countries. The developing countries sell raw materials at cheap prices while buying processed goods at exorbitant prices and the proportion of the processed goods in their exports is on a steady decline. As a result, the balance of payments deficit of the developing countries constantly increases and the economic difficulties grow worse.

The non-aligned and developing countries should prevent the fluctuation of the prices of primary products and increase exports revenues by reorganising the unfair price system in trade and establishing a fair and profitable price system for the primary products. What is important here is to organise new producers' associations and enhance their role, while strengthening the existing ones.

The establishment of a joint fund for a general plan of primary products will be an important step for stable prices and income in the export of primary products by the developing countries. The developing countries should accelerate the process of ratification of the agreement on the establishment of a joint fund for an early inauguration of this fund.

The developed countries should discard their protectionist policy and open their markets wider to the developing countries.

Measures should be taken to pull down the tariff and non-tariff barriers in major products of the developing countries and stablize the export revenue of those countries and the developing countries should be given a greater share in processing, sale, distribution and transport of raw materials anad products.

The preferencial treatment of the products of the developing countries should be further improved and international efforts be made to work out fair principle and regulations of trade.

The developing countries should not allow the developed countries to use the ordinary preferential system as a means of putting pressure on them but actively struggle against all manner of encroachment upon the permanent sovereignty over natural resources.

If the non-aligned and developing countries wage a vigorous struggle in unity for a new, fair international economic order, the developed countries will eventually be compelled to respond to the demands ofd the developing countries, whether they like it or not.

6. Strengthening and Development of the Non-Aligned Movement

It is an important guarantee for accomplishing the cause of independence against imperialism to constantly strengthen and develop the Non-Aligned Movement.

The Non-Aligned Movement is a mighty anti-imperialist force of independence of our era standing opposed to imperialism. Only when this movement is strengthened and developed, is it possible to successfully terminate all forms of domination and subjugation, aggressive and interventionist moves of the imperialists, defend the sovereignty of the non-aligned countries and solve all problems arising in the international area, including the problem of arising in the international economic order, in conformity with the independent purpose and demand of the people of the newly-emerging countries. And, only when the Non-Aligned Movement is strengthened and developed, is it possible to prevent a nuclear war, defend world peace and security and powerfully promote the cause of national liberation.

Strengthening and developing the Non-Aligned Movement stands out with greater urgency at present because of the complicated international situation and the undisguised manoeuvres of the outside forces to divert it from its original principle.

All the non-aligned countries should energetically strive to strengthen and develop the Non-Aligned Movement so that this movement may discharge with credit its duty to the time and mankind.

Firstly, the non-aligned countries should remain faithfully committed to the idea and principle of the movement which was confirmed at the previous Non-Aligned Summit Conferences.

Holding fast to the principle and idea of the movement is a fundamental question on which hinge the strengthening and development and future destiny of the movement.

Independence against imperialism is the basic idea of this movement and to advance independently without joining any bloc is its fundamental principle. Only when all the non-aligned countries firmly maintain chajusong can the inherent characteristics of this movement be preserved, its overall might be increased and the noble idea of independence against imperialism be realised. If the non-aligned countries fail to maintain chajusong, the Non-Aligned Movement will unavoidably degenerate.

The non-aligned countries should always stand firm by chajusong in all their activities. They should decisively reject the interference of all shades of outside forces and not follow other countries blindly. They should respect the chajusong of other countries and refrain from interfering in other's internal affairs and encroaching upon other's interests.

They should consistently maintain the basic principle of remaining outside any bloc and resolutely struggle against every attempt to alienate the Non-Aligned Movement from its original principle and purpose.

They should actively contribute to accomplishing the cause of independence against imperialism by vigorously advancing under the banner of chajusong.

Secondly, the non-aligned countries should uphold and develop the tradition of unity.

Unity is the life and soul of the Non-Aligned Movement and the source of its might. Unthinkable are the existence of the Non-Aligned Movement and its might apart from unity. It is a truth proved by history that victory comes when united and defeat when dispersed.

Over the past 25 years since it took its first step, the Non-Aligned Movement has striven for unity and struggled with unity as its weapon. In this course a good tradition of giving priority to unity and subordinating everything to it has been established. By adhering to and developing this tradition, the non-aligned countries should further consolidate the unity and cohesion of the Non-Aligned Movement.

They should bend efforts to foster and develop factors of unity and remove factors of split and do only things useful for unity. They should not antagonize or fight each other, falling a prey to imperialists' instigation and deception, but meet their manoeuvres of division and alienation with a strategy of unity.

The members of the Non-Aligned Movement must not resort to force against each other or do acts leading controversial issues to a military conflict. Today the disputes among non-aligned countries lay a big stumbling block in unity and cohesion of the Non-Aligned Movement. The non-aligned countries should not let the disputes among some non-aligned countries continue indefinitely but take decisive measures to end them.

The disputes between non-aligned countries should be solved by the parties concerned themselves peacefully through negotiations in the national interests of both sides and the universal interests of the Non-Aligned Movement on the principle of unity, free from outside interference.

The non-aligned countries should not support or oppose one side in the disputes between newly-emerging countries but actively help the parties concerned solve the disputes through negotiations on an unbiased stand.

The non-aligned countries should solve all problems arising in their mutual relations on the principle of complete equality, chajusong, territorial integrity, mutual respect and non-interference in other's internal affairs. Only then can the unity and cooperative relations among non-aligned countries be true and solid and the Non-Aligned Movement advance as an undivided force.

Thirdly, ways for further enhancing the action capacity and effectiveness of the Non-Aligned Movement should be explored through joint efforts.

To increase the action capacity and effectiveness of the Non-Aligned Movement is a realistic demand in strengthening and developing this movement. Today the Non-Aligned Movement is expanding into a very broad global movement and cooperation among the non-aligned countries is attaining greater depth and complicated problems awaiting an urgen solution are cropping up one after another in the international relations. The action capacity and effectiveness of this movement should be decisively enhanced to suit this situation.

To this end, it is important to coordinate effectively the activities of the non-aligned countries and complete the method and procedure of activities and proper institutional framework so that the Non-Aligned Movement can participate more effectively in the solution of international issues.

The joint meeting of the Political Bureau of the Central Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea and the Central People's Committee of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea expressed the belief that the Eighth Non-Aligned Summit Conference will be a conference of historical significance in solving important problems arising in the Non-Aligned Movement at present and further strengthening and developing it.

In conclusion, the joint meeting clarified once again that the DPRK Government will as in the past, so in the future, too, remain faithful to the principle and idea of the Non-Aligned Movement and make every possible effort to strengthen and develop this movement.

Delivers Speech

SK081134 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1039 GMT 8 Jul 86

[Text] Pyongyang July 8 (KCNA) -- The great leader President Kim Il-song arranged a luncheon today in honor of the participants in the Second Conference of Ministers and High Officials of Physical Education and Sports of Non-Aligned Countries and made a speech.

He said:

The Second Conference of Ministers and High Officials of Physical Education and Sports of Non-Aligned Countries will mark an important occasion in promoting the physical mark an important occasion in promoting the physical education and sports in the non-aligned countries by sharing each other's success and experience they have gained in physical culture and sports, and by seriously discussing the measures and ways to develop exchange and cooperation in this field, and will make a great contribution to the strengthening of the Non-Aligned Movement as a whole.

At this conference, many delegates from different countries have expressed their firm solidarity with the revolutionary cause of our people and fully supported the proposal of our republic for the co-sponsorship of the 24th Olympic Games by the North and the South of Korea.

I express my warm gratitude to the delegates of various countries for their active support and encouragement and inspiration to our people in their just struggle, and sincerely wish you good success in the conference.

Today, the non-aligned and other developing countries are faced with the urgent tasks of consolidating their already-won political independence and achieving economic self-reliance and at the same time developing physical culture and sports.

Physical culture and sports are very important in training people to be fully developed social beings. The sound physical strength is guaranteed by physical training and sports, and only the people with sound physical strength can become powerful beings with the physical and mental ability to work. To develop physical education and sports so as to get all the people fully prepared for labour and national defence is the way to press ahead with the revolution and construction and achieve national prosperity.

Imperialist colonial rule has had very harmful effects also on physical education and sports in the newly independent countries. The non-aligned countried must work hard to eliminate the backwardness of physical education and sports handed down from the old society as soon as possible and to develop them to meet the requirement of the new society under contruction.

Physical educationl and sports in the non-aligned countries must serve the people and promote the health of the masses. The non-aligned countries must reject professionalism and commercialization in physical culture and sports and develop them on a mass basis so as to let all the people take part in the physical training and sports activities and to make these activities contribute to the realization of the people's cause of chajusong (tr. independence).

For the development of the physical education and sports, the non-aligned countries must strengthen international exchange and cooperation in this field.

If the non-aligned countries share each other's experience and technique, exchange sports teams extensively and strengthen various forms of support and cooperation on the basis of their successes in sports field, they all will be able to develop sports technique quickly and contribute to the promotion of solidarity and friendly and cooperative relations among the non-aligned countries.

It is an important task facing the peoples and sportsmen of the non-aligned countries today to oppose imperialist arbitrariness in the sports field and fight to establish a new international sports order.

The imperialists, still relying on the old and outmoded international sports order, are holding the privileged position and domineering over the field of soports, precipitating the professionalism and commercialization of sports This is absolutely intolerable either in view of the noble aim of sports or from the point of view of the humanitarian principle. Still more intolerable is the fact that the imperialists are trying to use the Olympic Games and other international sports events for an ulterior purpose, a political purpose.

The decision to hold the 24th Olympic Games in Seoul has fully revealed the machinations on the part of the imperialists to use the sports for their sinister political purpose. By holding the 24th Olympic Games in Seoul the U.S. imperialists are seeking to attain their insidious political purpose of embellishing South Korea, their colony, as an "independent state" and fanning discord and confrontation between the North and the South so as to keep our country divided as "two Koreas" forever. By so doing, U.S. imperialism is laying big obstacles to the reunification of our counry, the greatest national desire of our people, and driving the Olympic movement to the crisis of division, contrary to the aspiration of the world people.

We proposed the co-sponsorship of the 14th Olympic Games by the North and South of Korea with a view to saving the Olympic movement from the crisis of division, holding smoothly the forthcoming Olympic Games and creating a favorable environment for the peaceful reunification of our country.

If the 24th Olympic Games are co-sponsored by the North and the South of Korea, the question of participation in the Olympic Games by many countries of the world including those countries rejecting the Seoul Olympic Games will be smoothly settled, the Olympic movement be saved from crisis, and good influence exerted on the settlement of the question of reunifying our country.

For its reasonableness and rationality, our proposal for the co-sponsorship of the Olympic Games enjoys positive support and welcome from the governments and peoples of various countries of the world, including the socialist and non-aligned countries.

An urgent matter now facing the peoples of the non-aligned countries and the peace-loving people throughout the world is to prevent a new world war and safeguard peace. In order to avert a new world war and safeguard peace, all the peace-loving people of the world should form a broad united front to wage anti-war, anti-nuclear, peace movement resolutely. The peoples of the non-aligned countries and all the other peace-lvoing peoples in the world should take a concerted step to hold in check the imperialist policy of arms buildup and their manoeuvres to militarize the outer space and should try hard to establish and expand nuclear-free, peace zones in different parts of the world.

The Eighth Summit Conference of the Non-Aligned Countries is to be held soon in Harare, the capital of Zimbabwe. This conference will mark an important occasion in strengthening unity and solidarity of the Non-Aligned Movement and furthering its development.

All the peoples of the non-aligned countries should strive to strengthen and develop the Non-Aligned Movement, a mighty force against imperialism and for independence in our times, onto a higher phase. They should hold fast to the idea and principle of the Non-Aligned Movement and strengthen unity, and fight to put an end to the privileges and arbitrariness of the imperialists in international affairs and establish a new, equitable international order and system.

Working hard to strengthen and develop the Non-Aligned Movement is an invariable stand of the government of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea. The government of our republic will also, as in the past, uphold the banner of independence, friendship and peace, and unite firmly and cooperate closely with all the non-aligned countries and work together for the common cause.

We extend active support to and firm solidarity with the peoples of all countries in Asia, Africa and Latin America including those in the Middle East, Southern Africa and Central America who are fighting against imperialism, colonialism, racism and zionism and for national independence and the building of a new society.

CORRECTION OF JAPANESE TEXTS GETS MUTED SUPPORT

Although the contents of the corrected parts "fell short of a satisfactory level, it appears to be fairly redressed," a Foreign Ministry spokesman said. "However, since there are still insufficient corrections, including one that failed to describe the process of Japan's invasion of Korea, we urge the Japanese Government to continue to rectify the distorted parts in the history textbook as well as in other textbooks in the future," the spokesman said. The proposed textbook, compiled by the National Council for the Defense of Japan, has drawn sharp criticisms from Japan's Asian neighbors that suffered under its colonial rule and wartime dominations because of alleged distortions and whitewashings in the contents of the book.

Among those passages that Japan says were corrected are:
-- Anchung-kun, the Korean independence fighter, who assassinated Hirobumi Ito in Harbin, Northeast China, in 1909, was described as a "leader." The draft textbook had portrayed him as a "desperado." Ito, Japan's resident-general in Korea, was credited with a drive to annex Korea to Japan in early this century.

-- In reference to the March 1, 1919, independence movement among the Korean populace, the draft's passage that "armed forces were dispatched because of the bloody incidents that had taken place" was amended to "bloody incidents occurred because of the dispatch of the armed forces."

-- On the 1910 Korean-Japan Annexation Treaty, under which Korea became Japan's colony for 35 years, the draft described the signing of the pact as a normal process. It was revised as "Korea was coerced into signing the treaty."

-- In reference to the Koreans forcibly mobilized to join the Japanese armed forces for its war efforts, the draft says they "were assigned" to military units. It was amended to "they were conscripted."

LDP VICTORY MET WITH SUPRISE, ENVY, CAUTION

[From the "Press Pocket" column]

[Text] Both ruling and opposition lawmakers yesterday expressed great surprise at the unexpected overwhelming victory of the Japanese ruling Liberal Democratic Party in the general elections.

In particular, lawmakers of the ruling Democratic Justice Party seemed to be envious of the election results.

Rep. Chang Sung-man, chief policy-maker of the DJP, said, "I was greatly impressed by the Japanese people, who gave power all at once to the government at a time when Japan is suffering various difficulties, including the upward revaluation of the yen."

But, Rep. Pong Tu-wan, chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, commented on Nakasone's landslide victory from a diplomatic viewpoint.

He said, "The victory of Nakasone foretells better relations between Korea and Japan in light of the two nations' current relations, which were further solidified by President Chon's visit to Japan."

Rep. Pak Kyong-sok, a spokesman for the Korea-Japan Parliamentarians League, observed cautiously, "We have to watch closely the possibility that the Japanese conservatives' big triumph may lead to militarism."

SPLIT IN NKDP OVER HOLDING PUBLIC HEARINGS

Yi Min-u: No Need

[From the "Press Pocket" column]

[Text] Opposition NDP president Yi Min-u yesterday showed a cold reaction to a local meeting by the ruling DJP to collect opinions on constitutional revision, which was held at Taejon Saturday.

Meeting reporters at his room in the NDP headquarters, he said in a tone of disinterest, "I heard that about 350 people were present at the meeting and only a few asked questions. Will the public hearings be useful when they (the DJP) hold such meetings among themselves?"

Asked whether or not his party plans to hold similar public hearings across the nation, the party leader replied, "As you know, our party has already chosen direct presidential election as its goal. Why do we need public hearings?"

He went on, "All we have to do is to publicize the direct popular vote for the president through rallies for solidarity at local chapters."

Yi maintained that there is no time to waste. The constitutional amendment and public hearings should be held jointly by rival parties after they start the debates on the amendment at the special House panel, he asserted.

Two Kims Support Idea

[Text] The main opposition New Korea Democratic Party is expected to kick off public hearings on constitutional revision across the country at an early date.

After their weekly meeting at a downtown Seoul hotel yesterday, Kim Tae-chung and Kim Yong-sam said the NDP will hold public debates as agreed upon in Monday's party key officers conference.

"However, we are not doing it in response to the ruling party's latest posture on the revision but for a quest of mustering the general public's genuine opinions," the two opposition leaders said.

NDP president Yi Min-u had had a different idea, however. He told reporters in his office Monday that the public hearing sessions are of little use because the people already have expressed their wishes fully in the last National Assembly election.

As to the recent moves of the government party, Kim Yong-sam said that it is trying to put off the operation of the hard-won Special Committee for Constitutional Amendment at the National Assembly by holding the public hearings to justify their position.

He also alleged that the release of "political prisoners" should come first for the democratization in Korea and anything less may lead to more political turmoil.

Asked to make a comment on the Japanese election results, the permanent advisor to the main opposition party said that the Japanese gave their full support to the ruling Liberal Democratic Party not because of their power but because of their efforts for "a more democratized Japan.

When questioned about the two Kims' possible separation in the future, Kim Yong-sam responsed with a flat "No," adding their cooperative relationship will remain unchanged even after the democratization in the country.

However, Kim Tae-chung, former opposition camp's candidate for the presidency, noted that bona fide competition in politics is inevitable and without competition politics cannot step forward.

Touching on his proposal for talks among the top five political leaders, Kim Yong-sam revealed that he meant nothing more than "sincere discussions for the realization of democracy in Korea."

At the end of the hour-long breakfast meeting with journalists, the two Kims warned the ruling forces to discontinue their political games and to come to their senses for the realization of democracy in the nation. They also stressed that the people have grown disenchanted with political tricks and will not keep silent if the politics get off the course.

KIM TAE-CHUNG, KIM YONG-SAM UNDERSCORE COOPERATION

[From the "Out and About" column]

[Text] Apparently conscious of mounting speculations concerning their estrangement yesterday, Kim Tae-chung and Kim Yong-sam took advantage of a breakfast meeting with reporters to repeatedly underscore their cooperative partnership.

Kim Tae-chung said, "bona fide rivalry is bound to occur in a political party. Can there be a democratic party which is without factions?"

He said, "The opposition has always been somewhat noisy in the process of nominating its presidential candidate. However, it has never failed to pick only one candidate."

Kim Yong-sam, adviser to the NKDP, said that his cooperative relations with Kinm Tae-chung Tae-chung will continue until after the nation has achieved democratization.

He said he hopes people will not view their relationship through tinted glasess.

FOREIGN MINISTRY CRITICIZES U.S. REPORT ON FARM ACT

BK050200 Bangkok BANGKOK POST in English 5 Jul 86 p 1, 3

[Text] The Foreign Ministry will send an aide-memoire to the U.S. Embassy next week to protest against its analysis that the U.S. Farm Act has had little impact on Thai rice exports.

The Ministry's Economics Department chief, Danai Dulalampha, said yesterday the analysis issued by the embassy was a "distortion" of the facts and based on short-term figures.

"I am worried that if the U.S. leadership believe the report, the relations between the the two countries will be affected," said Mr Danai, adding that Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila has also expressed concern over the matter.

The U.S. report, he said, threatened to make futile the attempts by senior officials from both countries to lessen the impact of the U.S. legislation on Thai rice exports.

He said that so far, such attempts have resulted in a more reasonable enforcement of the Farm Act since the end of last month.

Mr Danai said the United States has stopped suppressing the world rice price since May 27 and allowed the rates to float since July 1. The move, he said, has made buyers purchase more Thai rice becuase they believe the U.S. prices will climb further.

Unfortunately, he said, the U.S. analysis came out when the situation was returning to normal.

Mr Danai said the U.S. could not deny that it has subsidised its farmers in order to suppress agricultural imports. The U.S. has spent as much as 1,000 million baht -- more than Thailand's annual income from rice exports -- to subsidise its rice exports, he said.

Mr Danai described as "untrue" the U.S. claim that the Farm Act has no effect on Thai rice, citing as evidence the increase of 69,400 tons in the export volume of Thai rice during the first five months of this year.

Mr Danai argued that the increase was the result of the country's success in obtaining new markets in Brazil and Peru, which agreed to buy 230,000 tons of Thai rice this year.

He said that if the amount of rice destined for these two new markets were excluded, the actual export volume would be only 1.9 million tons, which was a drop from last year's.

Thailand's quality rice market has also been affected by the U.S. competition, he said. The export volume of this type of rice has dropped by 200,000 tons during the first five months of this year.

Mr Danai also described as untrue the U.S. claim that the export value of Thai rice has fallen by 2,500 million baht because the country has sold broken rice at cheap prices. He said that though Thailand has cut the price of rice of this grade by 30 percent, its export volume has risen by 53 percent, which, in fact, has resulted in a rise in export value.

'COBRA GOLD-86' TO MOVE TO RAYONG PROVINCE

[Text] The site of the Thai-U.S. naval exercise, "Cobra Gold 86," will be shifted from the south to the eastern province of Rayong, informed military sources said yesterday.

The sources said the Thai-U.S. marines will stage a beach assault at Phe Beach in Muang District of Rayong. Thepha Beach of Songkhla was orginally chosen as the site.

More than 15,000 soldiers from the two countries will take part in one of their biggest military exercises to be held next month. Sophisticated F-16 jetfighters of the U.S. will also take part in the exercise.

NEW ZEALAND' LANGE VISITS 28-30 JUNE

Arrives for Official Visit

BK281444 Bangkok Television Service in Thai 1330 GMT 28 Jun 86

[Text] New Zealand Prime Minister David Lange and his delegation arrived at 1700 [1000 GMT] for an official visit to Thailand as guests of the Thai Government. He was welcomed by Prime Minister General Prem Tinsulanon at the air force airport. The visit is aimed at strengthening relations between Thailand and New Zealand which have been very close over the past 30 years. Thailand and New Zealand have signed several trade agreements; the bilateral trade volume between the two countries stands at more than 1,000 million baht annually. There has also been technological cooperation and joint projects.

The New Zealand prime minister is scheduled to have an audience with his majesty the king tomorrow, and to hold official talks with Prime Minister Gen Prem Tinsulanon on Monday.

Holds News Conference

BK011331 Bangkok Domestic Service in English 0000 GMT 1 Jul 86

[Feature: "Bangkok AM Special Report"]

[Text] The Right Honorable David Lange, the prime minister of New Zealand, paid a 3-day visit to Thailand 28-30 June after attending the ASEAN dialogue partners' meeting in Manila. Yesterday afternoon, he talked to reporters at the Hilton International Bangkok at Nai Loet Park summing up his visit and discussions held here.

[Begin David Lange recording] I arrived in Manila for the post-ministerial dialogue session there. I left there on Saturday afternoon and came through to Bangkok. I have had an audience with the king. I have met with the prime minister and the foreign minister. I have engaged in consultations with officials. Tonight we leave for Adelaide to open a consulate. I'll be back in New Zealand on Wednesday.

New Zealand's relationship with Thailand is very long-standing. It is interesting how it has been at government-level principally, and the level of exchange of technology, and indeed, for New Zealanders of my generation, a very significant personal connection. Bangkok is one of the few places that I've come to in Thailand time and time again becase I grew up and went to a university with people from Thailand that I enjoy the company of very much, respect, and admire. And that is true of quite a lot of people of my age group. Now we need to make that new relationship expand.

So we talked about regional security because that is critical for Thailand. Thailand has been very influential in leading the ASEAN position on Kampuchea within New Zealand. The diplomacy has been quite dramatic actually because there is a substantial Australia-New Zealand-South Pacific grouping behind the ASEAN position on Kampuchea. We talked about the development, the possible development, of trade and tourism links and in particular the prospects for an air service linking New Zealand and Bangkok. Officials from other countries will meet in September to consider the possibilities of such an air link.

We reviewed some of the technology transfers taking place -- in particular, in an interview. In an audience, with his majesty the king I was able to hear his view of the scale of rural developments in Thailand and to learn of his awareness of the role that New Zealand engineers have played in the development of new water resources.

So in the areas of trade, and security, and travel, they were productive talks. I think overlying it all, however, was the fact that Australia and New Zealand, have a peculiar relationship to Thailand. There is very little that is of bilateral moment in our relationships. We have nothing that we fall out about. We have a lot that we can do together. And it's good to go to a country like that from time to time because the world is not exactly littered with them. [end recording]

New Zealand will be taking part in the meeting here to find a common stand in the next GATT round negotiations. To this, Prime Minster David Lange gave his viewpoints.

[Begin recording] It is extraordinary to come to Thailand to find such a common interest on such an acute subject. The scale however has to be looked at differently. New Zealand has about 55,000 farmers. I've been told that Thailand has about 30 million. Now what it means for our 55,000 is this: That if countries with big industrial economies abroad continue to subsidize their domestic food producers, they will do so not to meet a market, but to meet a price, and the consequence for genuine market-sensitive production will be disastrous. In your case, rice. If another country subsidizes rice production and then unloads their product on our markets, it is very damaging to your rural economy. If a major country or trading group, like the European Community, subsidizes the production of butter, then unloads it on third markets, they rub us out. Now dairy farmers who last year got $4.20 a kilo for butter are looking at a payout of $2.25 a kilo this year. That will put one third of them at risk of having to leave farming. Now we hope it will not be as bleak as that.

On 22 July, we are to be meeting with your country and a further eight countries, including Australia and countries with smaller interests, and we are going to try to formulate an approach to the forthcoming GATT round. I talked about that matter with your prime minister and with your foreign minister and it is clear that your country, Thailand, is going to be a very prominent developer of a genuine move which will not be an anti-American or anti-EEC move but a move to say that the world appreciates that when agricultural production is subsidized by government it damages the interests of the poorest people in the world. Now New Zealand farmers are not the poorest in the world, but they will be if the process continues [apparent break in recording].

The United States keeps subsidizing dairy producers, they will keep accumulating surpluses, and their surpluses then either have to be wasted or placed in the third markets. And that is where we have diversified. You can also have a problem with food aid. You see, if we wanted to [changes thought] sometimes food aid sounds a good idea, and we quite often agree with it if it involved rice to a place where you would hope to sell rice. So those are the risks that we run from the disposal of surpluses and the subsidizing of production by the United States alone. Let it be recorded that it is not just the United States alone. The European Community does it in a huge way: They have 600,000 tons of butter stockpiled in Europe, 200,000 tons of them in the United Kingdom which is our principal butter market. Now that's the sort of insanity which becomes quite gut-gripping when you see photographs and films and news images of famine in Africa -- that we are absolutely wallowing in food in waste and we are preparing to apparently block out smaller countries' economies in a move to dispose of it. [end recording]

An interesting issue concerning New Zealand has been her stand against nuclear armament and a visit of nuclear-powered vessels in her waters. Prime Minister David Lange candidly presented his line of thinking.

[Begin recording] Make one last attempt to negotiate? There has never been a negotiation on it with the United States. [apparent break in recording] That is a consistent principle which we have carried through with some integrity. They do not conceive that the arrangement could work, therefore they say, and have said all the way through, that it is our problem. [apparent break in recording]

So far as New Zealand is concerned, it is over. We are going to put our legislation through. We are going to carry on our defense interaction with Australia. We are having a defense review which is going into the whole question of what New Zealand's security needs are, and how we can best respond to them. Australia has just gone through that reappraisal, and they have gone down the path that I suspect New Zealand will. We will go back to the Guam Doctrine -- the Nixon Doctrine -- which has been a fairly consistent U.S. doctrine that you have as much self-reliance as you can. And so that is what we will be doing in New Zealand just as Australia is. [apparent break in recording]

Well, for many years they have been saying that the battalion in Singapore should go and in fact the last government planned for its removal. There are a number of things against that. It will undoubtedly be the subject of comment by our defense review. And the goverment will have to heed what the defense review says about it. This government has also given a firm commitment that we are not going to make a unilateral decision to withdraw from Singapore; because that could be an adverse signal throughout the area. It's certainly not my purpose to see New zealand as somehow retreating into some isolationist posture. New Zealand is not. If the price of conveying that message to the world is a retention of the existing situation in Singapore, so be it.

New Zealand has never, never welshed on a deal. It was in the war in the Pacific some time before some of our brothers-in-arms were. It has been in regional conflicts in Malaysia and Vietnam, and Korea since the war. It has a battalion in Singapore. It knows what alliance obligations are, and it is proposing to discharge them. Ends Official Visit

Mr Lange was granted an audience with his majesty the king yesterday at Klai Kangwon Palace in Hua Hin. Prime Minister General Prem Tinsulanon yesterday hosted a dinner in honor of Mr Lange at Government House.

The New Zealand prime minister called on Prime Minister Gen Prem and Deputy Prime Minister and Foreign Minister Air Chief Marshal Sitthi Sawetsila today to discuss regional and international issues of mutual interest. The New Zealand prime minister agreed during talks with Thai leaders today to examine Thai request for increase in the trade link between the two countries, the Thai Foreign Ministry spokesman said. Thai Deputy Prime Minister and Foreign Minister Air Chief Marshal Sitthi Sawetsila asked Mr Lange to consider increasing imports of Thai seafood products and tinned food, the spokesman said. Air Chief Marshal Sitthi also suggested developing existing air links between the two countries to promote tourism.

The New Zealand leader expressed willingness to study the proposal, the spokesman said. Mr Lange also agreed to lobby in the South Pacific region for Thailand's stand on the Kampuchean issue. He asked Air Chief Marshal Sitthi for a general assessment of conditions in Kampuchean refugee camps with a view to New Zealand providing financial assistance, the spokesman said. Thailand opposes Vietnam's military presence in Kampuchea, and more than 250,000 Kampuchean refugees are in temporary camps in Thailand along its border with Kampuchea.

LEADERS ATTEND GENERAL'S 6 JULY FUNERAL

[Text] On 5 July, a solemn wake was held for Comrade Senior General Hoang Van Thai by the Ministry of National Defense at the Army Club in Hanoi. Underneath a smoking incense burner, the remains of Comrade Senior Gen Hoang Van Thai lay in state inside a glass casket covered by the determined-to-win army standard. Comrade Le Duan, general secretary of the CPV Central Committee sent a wreath bearing the inscription "boundless love and grief for Comrade Senior Hoang Van Thai."

Comrades Truong Chinh, Pham Van Dong, Nguyen Huu Tho, and many other leaders of the party, National Assembly, Council of State, and Council of Ministers brought wreaths and paid their last tribute to their departed comrade and militant friend -- an elite cadre of the party and army who rendered greate meritorious service to the revolutionary cause of the party and nation and to the development, combat exploits, and glorious victories of our army. Stricken with grief, they offered condolences to the bereaved family.

Delegations of the Ministry of National Defense, the VFF Central Committee, the Democratic Party, the Socialist Party, the Vietnam Women's Union Central Committee, the VCTU Central Committee, and the Ho Chi Minh Communisth Youth Union Central Committee also laid wreaths and paid their last respects to Senior Gen Hoang Van Thai.

More than 200 delegations of the Armed Forces, vairous ministries, public organs, mass organizations, schools, and political parties at the central level and in Hanoi -- including many delegations of the various provinces and delegations of Tien Hai District and Tay An village of Thai Binh, and Bac Son District of Bac Thai -- laid wreaths and paid their last tribute to Comrade Hoang Van Thai.

The members of the Armed Forces' delegations representing the various military regions, army corps, divisional groups, armed services, armed branches, general departments, instituties, and schools deeply grieved for the comrade senior general who had devoted all his life to national independence and freedom and to socialism as an outstanding leader and commander of the Armed Forces during the nation's heroic wars of resistance.

A delegation of retired cadres from the General Staff came to pay tribute with a banner bearing the inscription "loyal citizen, true comrade-in-armes" in honor of the cadre, comrade, and close militant friend who had shared difficulties and danger with them since the early days of the formation of the Bac Son National Salvation Brigade and the General Staff.

Also present to pay homage and lay a wreath before the remains of Senior Gen Hoang Van Thai were a delegation of the LPDR National Defense Ministry; delegations of the embassies of Laos, Cambodia, and the Soviet Union; military attaches of the Soviet Union, Cuba, the GDR, Poland, Bulgaria, Hungary, and Indonesia; and the permanent representation of the French Comunist Party in Hanoi.

At 0630 on 6 July the funeral of Senior General Hoang Van Thai was solemnly held in Hanoi. Attending were Comrades Nguyen Huu Tho, chairman of the National Assembly; Nguyen Duc Tam, member of the CPV Central Committee Political Bureau; Le Quang Dao, secretary of the CPV Central Committee; Vo Nguyen Giap, vice chairman of the Council of Ministers; Hoang Quoc Viet, honorary chairman of the Vietnamese Confederation of Trade Unions; Nguyen Thi Dinh, chairman of the Vietnam Women's Union; Senior General Van Tien Dung, member of the Political Bureau and secretary of the CPV Central Committee's Military Commission and minister of national defense; Senior General Le Trong Tan, member of the CPV Central Committee and deputy minister of national defense and chief of the CPA General Staff; Colonel General Nguyen Quyet, member of the CPV Central Committee and deputy head of the VPA Political General Department; and many Army generals, high-ranking officers, organizations at the central level and in Hanoi; delegations representing various provinces, organs of the Ministry of National Defense, and military units; and acquaintances and close relatives.

A delegation of the LPDR National Defense Ministry and a delegation of the PRK Embassy in Hanoi also attended the funeral of Comrade Senior General Hoang Van Thai -- a loyal comrade and militant friend of the fraternal peoples and Armies of Laos and the PRK.

Senior General Van tien Dung delivered a eulogy, expressing the deep grief over Senior General Hoang Va Thai. The comrade said:

Comrade Hoang Van Thai's Death is a great loss to all of us. This grief is indescribable. Our party has lost an outstanding member; our state and Army have lost an outstanding leader and command cadre; our cadres, combatants, and national defense personnel have lost a comrade-in-arms, an exemplary comrade, and a close elder brother; the armies of our fraternal socialist countries have lost a militant friend noted for his proletarian internationalism; and his family, relatives, and friends have lost an extremely beloved one.

Recalling the revolutionary background of Senior General Hoang Van Thai, Comrade Van Tien Dung said:

As a Communist Party member whose constant revolutionary and military activities spanned more than half a century and who experienced many ordeals and hardships, Comrade Hoang Van Thai always set a bright example through his boundless loyalty to the party, fatherland, and people and through his persistent and indommitable spirit of revolutionary struggle. The comrade led a modest and simple life. He loved studying and took good care of his cadres and combatants, winning their confidence, affection, and admiration.

As a high-ranking military cadre of the party and state who had held a key position in the Armed Forces since its founding, Comrade Hoang Van Thai was always fully aware of the party's military and political tasks. He was noted for his scrupulous and creative guidance in work implementation, his resolute and flexible leadership, and his promotion of collective democracy to generate a combined strength with which to fulfill all missions assigned by higher echelons.

On behalf of the cadres and combatants of the VPA, Comrade Van Tien Dung said:

At this moment of immense sorrow, we vow to further the party's revolutionary undertaking and the cause of unit building and combat in the People's Armed Forces to which Comrade Hoang Van Thai dedicated his entire life.

Leading comrades of the party, state, and Army, and many delegations, friends, and comrades-in-arms escorted the remains of Senior General Hoang Van Thai to Mai Dich cemetery, his final resting place.

CHU HUY MAN SPEECH ON CRITICISM SUMMARIZED

BK051150 Hanoi TAP CHI QUAN DOI NHAN DAN in Vietnamese May 86 pp 11-25

["Summary of speech by Senior General Chu Huy Man, member of the CPV Central Committee Political Bureau, deputy secretary of the party Central Committee's Military Commission, and director of the Political General Department, delivered at an all-Army cadres conference held to disseminate and guide implementation of the party Central Committee Secretariat's directive on conduction the self-criticism and criticism drive and party congresses at all levels in preparation for the Sixth National Party Congress" — date and place not given]

[Text] First, we must make all echelons fully understand the goals and requirements of this party-wide self-criticism and criticism drive which is, considering the actual situation of our country at present, an important step in preparation for party congresses at all levels and for the national party congress.

We all know that self-criticism and criticism is a fundamental principle for party activities and an indispensable system for developing internal democracy; enhancing the leadership and militant strength of the various party organizations; improving the party character of every party member; and generating confidence, positiveness, and creativity among the broad masses. It is the rule governing the development of genuine communist parties and a driving force for accelerating our people's endeavor to build and defend the socialist fatherland.

1. From a party wide and nationwide viewpoint, after totally defeating the U.S. imperialist aggressors and completing the national democratic revolution, our entire country has, for 10 years and more now, embarked on the first stage of the transition period to socialism. It has witnessed the convocation of the Fourth and Fifth National Party Congresses and is now preparing for the Sixth Congress.

It can be said that this has been an eventful and complicated period for the world as a whole as well as for the Pacific, Southeast Asia, and the Indochinese Peninsula. In our country, the struggle between us and the enemy, between the two roads of socialism and capitalism, between the positive and the negative, and between right and wrong still remains fierce and complex; and regarding certain matters, erroneous perceptions and viewpoints still exist.

Under the party's leadership, our people have made extraordinary efforts to overcome the difficulties that have piled up and win great successes in the political, economic, life style, and foreign relations fields as well as successes in building socialism and defending the socialist fatherland and in carrying out both national tasks and internationalist duties. Through exacting trials and with the great successes already recorded, our party, the contingent of our party cadres and members, and our state machinery have taken a new step toward maturity. Such successes and maturity have further proven the inevitable path toward socialism of the Vietnamese revolution and further testified to the correctness of the general line and the economic line adopted by the Fourth Party Congress and concretized by the Fifth National Party Congress.

However, the real socioeconomic situation of our country sitll shows the following striking features:

-- It takes time to overcome the serious imbalances of national economy.

-- The leadership and guidance provided by our party and state over the process of concretizing lines and managing socioeconomic affairs still display weaknesses, shortcomings, and even errors in many respects.

-- The livelihood of the people -- first of all cadres, workers, state employees, and members of the armed forces -- is still beset with difficulties.

-- Negative social phenomena still persist in a complicated manner; party discipline and state law are lax; and a number of party cadres and members have become degenerate in quality and lifestyle, thus weakening he masses' confidence in the party.

-- The enemy has intensively accelerated the multifaceted war of sabotage of our difficulities and shortcomings with their numerous perfidious schemes and tricks.

This objective reality requires our party to strengthen unity and singlemindedness; boldly undertake changes -- in the way of thinking, work methods, and leadership style -- on the basis of the party's lines and strategy; and create a firm basis for developing advantages, overcoming difficulties, stabilizing the socioeconomic situation, and providing our country with the momentum for steady, vigorous, and dynamic development in all respects -- pushing the socialist revolution in our country forward by a new step, consolidating national defense and security, and smashing all of the enemy's perfidious, long-term schemes under all circumstances.

To achieve this, we must unceasingly consolidate the steadfast leadership of the party and enhance its comprehensive leadership capability and militant strength. This is a fundamental and decisive issue in building socialism and defending the socialist fatherland. We must prepare for continuity between generations of cadres and ensure firm continuity and succession in the party.

Building socialism and defending the socialist fatherland, as well as strengthening the party leadership, are indivisible, close, and interrelated tasks.

For this reason, the Sixth CPV Congress, as well as party congresses at various echelons, must objectively and realistically evaluate the socioeconomic situation and other aspects of each locality and the country as a whole during the 1981-85 period, especially on achievements, progress, deficiencies, and shortcomings. They must ~~clearly distinguish right from wrong in various aspects; clearly define problems~~ regarding theory and practice; and discover objective and subjective factors with a high sense of responsibility and in a scrupulous manner, thereby creating a firm basis for designing orientations, strategic targets, and other positive and correct measures. They must also ensure ideological and working unanimity throughout the party; realistically develop the strength of the socialist collective mastery of the working people; firmly maintain socialist ideological concepts; and strive to foil all schemes of the enemy, eliminate negative phenomena and backwardness, and accelerate the revolutionary cause.

They must, during the congress and afterward, continue to enhance comprehensively their leadership capability and the combat strength of various party committee echelons and party basic organizations, firmly consolidate the fighting impetus and unshakable socialist revolutionary characteristics of the party members -- the core force for maintaining political unanimity and the people's confidence.

Past experience has shown that in the process of our revolutionary struggle and patriotic war as well as during the periods of gaining great significant victories or facing acute difficulties, shortcomings, and errors in leadership and supervision, all party organizations and members have realized the need to grasp firmly the revolutionary line and enhance their impetus to advance further bravely and firmly. In such situations, they must conduct scrupulous criticism and self-criticism, promote democracy, develop the intelligence of collectives, formulate correct positions and measures, strengthen internal unanimity, integrate the masses, create new spiritual and material strength, create changes beneficial to the revolution, firmly maintain dynamism, and strive to score ever greater victories, thus strengthening the party's maturity.

In a difficult situation, if the party cadres and members can stand firmly at their combat posts, develop their vanguard and exemplary roles, strive to maintain and resolutely implement the party line, remain ready to assume responsibility, and share weal and woe with collectives and the people, they will surely promote the party's prestige and win increasing love and confidence from the people.

2. From our national defense and our Armed Forces functional viewpoint, 2 years after the total defeat of the U.S. imperialists we again engaged in a new struggle -- a similar ordeal in its complexity -- against the Chinese expansinist-hegemonists in collusion with U.S. imperialism in attempting to weaken and subjugate Vietnam, Laos, and Cambodia.

We regard the result of the situation in the 1981-86 5-year period as an important factor, but we should make a general review of the situation since 1975 to see various problems more clearly. After defeating the wars of aggression at our southwestern and northern borders, our People's Armed Forces have maintained their combat readiness to fight against the land-grabbing war of the Chinese aggressor troops; positively contributed to foiling their multifaceted war of sabotage; continued to carry out their internationalist obligations on the battlefields of Cambodia and Laos; contributed to cosolidating the special relationship to create a base for the militant alliance fo the three Indochinese countries; and strengthened solidarity, friendship, and cooperation with the Armed Forces of the Soviet Union and other fraternal socialist countries while participating in productive labor and national construction tasks and meeting new requirements.

Organizationally, our army was in the process of reducing its personnel strength following the victorious resistance against the United States. However, faced with the new war of aggression by the enemy, we have had to expand expeditiously our force again, both in terms of size and organizational structure, to increase and renovate our technical equipment, and to deploy our troops' operations in all three battlefields. This quick development has generated contradictions between quantity and quality, between the combat requirements of various battlefields and the knowledge of our troops, especially in primary units, and the developmental requirements of the revolutionary and army tasks in the new stage and the politico-ideological knowledge of cadres and combatants, the leadership of party organizatins, and the quality, ethics, and operational ability of cadres. Meanwhile, the country is encountering many socioeconomic difficulties. This is really a new time of trial for our troops.

However, in those 10 years under the leadership of the party Central Committee, especially its Political Bureau, with the cooperation and assistance of various state sectors, party organizations, the administration and mass organizations from the central down to local levels, with the encouragement and care of the people, and with the solidarity, cooperation, and assistance of friends, our troops have scored important achievemens in many fields the most prominent of which were the great victories in the battlefields. Together with the people, they have firmly defended the socialist fatherland and gloriously fulfilled their international duty. Through ordeals in the new situation, our troops have continually and firmly maintained and developed the working class character and glorious traditions that have been nurtured in the long history, in order to deserve being the reliable force of our party, state, and people, and the parties, states, and peoples of fraternal countries. Our troops have made another step toward maturity. Particularly, cadres have matured through ordeals in the new revolutionary state.

However, in that process our troops have definitely been shown to have weakenesses and shortcomings. The overall quality of our Armed Forces remains low. Their progress has not been uniform and steady and they have not met the requirements of the revolutinary people's army's tasks in the new stage.

Our army's experiences in construction and combat over many years have shown that during the resistance struggles when great victories were scored, creating turning points of the war as well as in the cases of unsuccessful campaigns and combat when some of our units incurred losses and towering difficulties, if the leading and command cadres remained steady and alert, truthfully assessed the objective situation, and correctly evaluated the enemy's plots, maneuvers, strengths, and weaknesses; frankly pointed out our difficulties and shortcoming; and resolved to develop victories and overcome difficulties, then they could maintain internal solidarity and singlemindedness, consolidate the confidence of cadres and combatants, consolidate and intensify the unit combat strength, firmly hold the offensive initiative, and create new victories, enabling troops to become more mature and experienced.

3. From the standpoint of party development and building army party organizations, this self-criticism and criticism drive bears a scope of decisive significance to the quality of congresses at varius echelons and the success of the sixth national party congress. [paragraph continues]

This can be said to be an important milestone in defining the correct and positive guidelines, strategic objectives, and measures to overcome difficulties and actually change the situation of the country and army as a whole, and each party organization and each unit in particular.

Organizationally, our army was in the process of reducing its personnel strength following the victorious resistance against the United States. 3. From the standpoint of party development and building army party organizations, this self-criticism and criticism drive bears a scope of decisive significance to the quality of congresses at various echelons and the success of the sixth national party congress. [paragraph continues]

This can be said to be an important milestone in defining the correct and positive guidelines, strategic objectives, and measures to overcome difficulties and actually change the situation of the country and army as a whole, and of each party organization and unit in particular.

Proceeding from the objectives, requirements, and scope of the self-criticism and criticism drive, which are clearly specified in the party Central Committee Secretariat directive, and considering the real situation of our Army in the past years, all the party committees and organizations in the Army's party organization should:

a. Assess primarily the situation from 1981 to 1985, looking back also at the past 10 years (as regards military regions, army corps, armed branches and services, and equivalent echelons) in order to objectively and truthfully check the understanding of party lines and viewpoints, particularly the military lines, viewpoints, and concepts through the performance of various tasks -- mainly the implementation of units' political duty; correctly evaluate victories and maturity as well as shortcomings, deficiencies, and weaknesses; distinguish right from wrong; clearly determine the causes of shortcoming and the specific responsibility of the party organizations and individuals; and derive practical and useful experiences in leadership and guidance of each echelon.

b. Check scrupulously the understanding, observance, and implementation of the party's principles for organization, leadership, and operation; focus on the principles of democratic centralism, collective leadership, and individual responsibility; maintain disciplined democracy, solidarity, singlemindedness, and close relationship with the masses; and conduct self-criticism and criticism. We should proceed from the operational and combat realities of units to correctly analyze what is right and wrong, and the specific causes of shortcomings; draw upon experiences to improve the leadership bearing of party committee echelons and party organizations; turn the party principles into the leadership and combat strength of party organizations, and nurture the principled character of party members.

c. Proceed from the results of implementing assigned tasks to assess correctly the situation of party members and cadres, correctly evaluating the quality, ethics, work ability, bearing, and lifestyle of each individual. At the same time, we should proceed from the vanguard exemplary role and political position of each party member to check his combat will, sense of responsibility, organization, and discipline; his concepts about collectives, democracy, and individual responsibility; his relations with the masses; and his quality, ethics, and lifestyle. In dealing with these issues, we must also clearly determine good points and shortcomings, and the causes of and responsibility for shortcomings, and draw out practical and useful experiences so each organization and each individual can continue to struggle and develop himself.

The results of this self-criticism and criticism drive will facilitate practical and in-depth preparations for the Party congresses at all levels and help make the sixth nationwide party congress a glorious success. These results are also the conditions for satisfactorily accepting and implementing the sixth party congress resolution, for creating vigorous changes in the army as a whole and in each unit, and for meeting the requirements of the revolutionary task. Effective with this congress, we will make self-criticism and criticism a steady pattern.

In the course of self-criticism and criticism to prepare for the party congresses at all levels, we should firmly grasp the party viewpoints, correctly assess the real situation, promote the objective effort, correctly settle the relations arising from realities, define the exemplary vanguard role of all party members, and uphold the title of communist combatant.

1. With respect to assessing the situation of units, we should guide all echelons in profoundly and firmly grasping the real substance in their effort to thoroughly understand, organize, and implement the various party resolutions and directives and the tasks assigned by higher echelons. The struggle between us and the enemy, between the two paths, between negativism and positivism, and between right and wrong is very difficult. If we do not have a correct viewpoint and a right way of examing things, we will be confused by quite a number of issues. During the former resistance, we at least once noted that if a unit overemphasized its achievements -- sometimes not true -- at a certain time, it was clear that the unit could not mobilize the masses and the prestige of leaders declined. Moreover, if a unit assessed the situation at a certain time and only saw shortcomings and weaknesses, pessimism and doubt would prevail, causing combat capability to decrease and causing more difficulties in fulfillment of the assigned mission.

Experience has dictated the following principle for leadership by party organizations: By assessing the situation in an accurate, objective, and faithful manner and by analyzing its causes correctly, they will be able to adopt correct policies and measures, bring about a turn for the better, achieve internal unity, organize the implementation of tasks in a positive and creative manner, and outstanding fulfill their missions.

In evaluating the performance of tasks, we must not only consider format and quantity, but must also pay close attention to quality and efficiency. Many of our comrades often wonder why a number of basic units could only field a small force in combat in spite of their large troop strength, why they scored poor results in combat in spite of their fair and good ratings during training, and why their combat efficiency was not as high as during the war of resistance for national salvation, in spite of the heavy casualties inflicted on the enemy, and no compatible with our army's fighting and winning tradition or with the resourcefulness and experience of our cadres.

In productive labor and economic construction, we must not only evaluate performance based on the quantity of finished products, but must also consider the labor spent by cadres and combatants, the supplies and raw material put into use, machinery depreciation, and production costs. In short, we must examine productivity and quality as well as efficiency. There are also cases in which "profits are false but losses are true;" for the income generated comes not from creative labor but from the profits earned through price differentials in trading ...

In discharging their internationalist duties toward Laos and Cambodia, Vietnamese Army volunteers and specialists have fought valiantly, worked hard to help their friends, and joined the latter in making sacrifices, overcoming difficulties and hardship, and scoring great successes. [paragraph continues]

Nevertheless, in fighting, helping friends, and in working with them, it is necessary to grasp the party's internationalist line and viewpoints together with the strategic goals of our assistance to friends and the requirement to win complete victory both militarily and politically and to fulfill both national and internationalist tasks for both the short and long terms in order to worthily contribute toward enhancing the strength of the strategic militant alliance, solidarity, and special friendship among the three fraternal nations on the Indochinese peninsula.

Regarding party building, the number of pure, firm, and strong basic party organizations has increased in the past few years; but it only accounts for a small percentage of the total and is unstable. The great majority of party members are found to be qualified at assessment time, but the number of exemplary party members who really assume the role as vanguards is few in each unit. There are cases in which party members have violated discipline just like nonmembers.

Upon analyzing causes, it is necessary to correctly recognize objective and subjective factors and correctly resolve the relationship between the two. We realize that objective conditions have a great influence on the activities and lives of soldiers, but this influence is by no means unilateral as we can and must strive with our own efforts to influence objective conditions. We should remember that during the patriotic war, objective conditions were at times very unfavorable, but we did mobilize the will and spirit of soldiers and bring into play the subjective strength of the entire collective to rapidly change the situation to our advantage. This is a valuable experience regarding ideological work and leadership in the Army. On the contrary, if we felt impotent and backed off in the face of objective conditions after assessing the situation, both the spirit and discipline of our unit would sag and its fighting strength would diminish. A number of comrades still mistakenly think that "since the national economy is still replete with difficulties and society is beset with negativism, their localities and units cannot make vigorous changes;" and proceeding from this way of thinking, leaders would easily content themselves with the status quo, slacken their own efforts, and, as a result, lose the initiative.

Also in this sense, upon analyzing causes and responsibility, we must examine both the higher and lower echelons; but it is necessary first of all to fully bear the responsibility of our own echelon. We must urge everyone to avoid the practice of claiming a little "more" credit for our own units or ourselves when assessing achievements and merits and of assuming a little "less" responsibility for difficulties and shortcomings. Each echelon must uphold its own responsibility and efforts. This spirit, if observed at all echelons, will generate a great strength for overcoming all difficulties and fulfilling all missions.

Experience shows that whether or not the evaluation of the situation is correct depends chiefly on the political acumen of the collective party committee echelon, especially of those comrades in charge of a unit. Such acumen demonstrates their thorough understanding of the policies, viewpoints, and principled character of the party and their diligence in undergoing training. In order to have the correct political acumen and attitude, we must make every party cadre and member always uphold a sense of voluntariness in struggling for the lofty cause of the fatherland and the crystal-clear ideals of the party. They must boldly face difficulties, deficiencies, and shortcomings and must develop their subjective efforts and sense of responsibility to overcome all these difficulties and shortcomings. [paragraph continues]

Lenin said: "The attitude adopted by a political party when dealing with its mistakes constitutes one of the most important and correct standards with which to determine if the party is scrupulous and if it has truly performed its duty toward its working class and the laboring masses." (Footnote: Complete Collection of Lenin's Works; Moscow Publishing House 1977; Volume 44; Page 51). President Ho Chi Minh also said: "We do not fear mistakes and shortcomings but only fear a lack of efforts to redress mistakes and shortcomings. And, more than that, we fear those leaders who are unale to find a correct way for their cadres to redress their mistakes and shortcomings." (Footnote: Complete Collection of Ho Chi Minh's Works; Hanoi Publishing House 1984; Volume 4; Page 504)

2. In this self-criticism and criticism drive, all party committee echelons and party organizations must reexamine their observance of those organizational, leadership, and operational principles of the party in implementing the political task of their relevant units and in building party organizations. This is a good opportunity to train party organizations and members on the principled character of the party so that they, in this self-criticism and criticism drive, can distinguish right from wrong and draw on experience to improve their leadership behavior and fighting strength.

The beginning of the party statute dealing with "The Party and the Essential Problems of Party Building" points out systematically and succinctly many essential principles of the party. The principles of democratic centralism, collective leadership, individual responsibility, unity and singlemindedness, democracy and discipline, close relationship with the masses, and self-criticism and criticism are closely related, profoundly reflect the working class nature of the party, and serve as an assurance for the pure Marxist-Leninist party to remain truly steadfast and a bloc with unified will and actions. Here I would like to raise some ideas on a number of principles.

Democratic centralism is an essential organizational principle of the party. In the situation in which the party is a ruling party and a leading nucleus of the dictatorship of the proletariat, the party's principle of democratic centralism is to become an organizational and operational principle of the socialist state and the dictatorship of the proletariat.

We all know that the principle of democratic centralism -- the essence of which is the democratic system and party discipline -- serves as a condition for guaranteeing development of the positiveness and creativity of all party organizations and party members while they are participating in building and implementing party policies and lines and as a condition for ensuring that all resolutions and directives of the party and state are practical, are strictly enforced, and become a vivid reality in social life.

Not only does bureaucratic centralism negate the dynamism and creativity of millions of party members as well as the masses, and various echelons, sectors, and grassroots-level organizations, but it also leads to the adoption of decisions that lack accurancy, are poor in quality, and are less-convincing and less-compelling with the masses. We know that in the operation of party organizations, of the state apparatus, or of the army, when any decision is reached without investigation or consideration, when there is excessive paperwork and too many meetings, when there are indications of exhibitionism and formality, when haughty and officialist cadre attitudes create inconveniences for the masses in any areas or at any time, they are all manifestations under various forms of the ailments of bureaucratic centralism and of aloofness from the infrastructure and the masses.

Lack of democracy or the exercise of democracy for the sake of formality can in no way create high centralism and unification. Experience shows that if we fail to discuss different views meticulously in order to determine whether they are right or wrong and to arrive at a clear-cut, decisive, and unanimous decision, we may find it difficult to avoid coming up with resolutions which are characteristic of harmonizing differing views. This will result in the phenomena of understanding, speaking about, and doing things in a conflicting manner; and centralism will become fragmented.

The party discipline must first of all be demonstrated through the implementation of party policies and lines, resolutions and directives of higher echelons, and assigned political tasks while protecting party lines, organizations, and leadership and preserving unity and unification within the party.

Party members and organizations must develop to the fullest their dynamism and creativity. They must be allowed to speak their views toward the policies, lines, and general work of the party, but this must be done only within the party and in an organized manner.

Dynamism and creativity are needed to implement correctly and effectively all party policies and lines. Abusing the name of democracy and creativity to speak and work liberally, according to one's own desires, and in a departmentalist and sectional manner will willy-nilly weaken party leadership. Failure to observe a democratic system of internal activity and failure to uphold a sense of organizational discipline will lead to the liberal making of statements. Acting according to one's own will when speaking about party policies and lines and when making an appraisal of leadership cadres, the spreading of negative rumors, and the tendency to ignore and the poor sense of responsibility among party cadres and members toward the struggle to curb such attitudes will haphazardly aggravate the complications of the situation and make it difficult to discern right from wrong, fact from fiction. At a time when the enemy is taking advantage of our weaknesses to sabotage the prestige and unity of the party, these party members will be even more disregarded by the people.

The principle of democratic centralism and the enforcement of discipline within the party demand that all party organizations and members speak and act in accordance with the party resolutions. No party members have the privilege of considering themselves an exception and of speaking and acting at variance with the resolutions, directives, and orders of higher echelons.

In case the party is ruling, lack of respect for the principle of democratic centralism; the phenomenon of bureaucratic centralism; and lack of discipline, collectivity, and self-criticism and criticism will aggravate conservatism and sluggishness, and generate arbitrariness, despotic paternalism, and factionalism leading to flattery, deception, opportunism, and time-serving; weaken the class character of the party; and undermine solidarity and unity in the party.

The viewpoint on democracy and discipline within the party is the soul of the democratic and disciplinary scope of the SRV state and our army.

Democracy and discipline in the army constitute a fundamental matter to strengthen internal solidarity, consolidate and develop the glorious traditions, and constantly increase the combat strength of the Armed Forces. The firm base of the relationship between democracy and discipline is the identity of views on lines, objectives, revolutionary tasks, the duties or armed forces, the political and spiritual equality between cadres and combatants and between superiors and subordinates, and affection for ones comrades and colleagues. Political and spiritual equality is reflected by mutual respect for one another and sincerity in learning from one another and helping one another progress and fulfill the assigned missions. Cadres and party members must manifest a high sense of responsibility for the people, show compassion and care for combatants, pay attention to the progress, life, sentiments, and legitimate aspirations of combatants. They must be just and impartial, treat all people fairly, confer proper rewards for achievements, mete out severe punishment for shortcomings, and always set good examples for subordinates.

We should make all cadres and party members clearly realize and truly respect the dignity and personality of each revolutionary soldier. This will enhance the self-respect of each person. This is a factor in motivating all soldiers to voluntarily respect and scrupulously observe Army discipline. Our Army discipline is mandatory but it is based on self-consciousness. It is therefore very severe.

On this occasion, it is necessary to guide troops of all ranks, especially in primary units, in frankly exposing, criticizing, and struggling against those bureaucratic and militarist cadres and party members who live far fron the masses, lack a sense of equality, look down upon subordinates, and impair the dignity of combatants, and in struggling against all other negative phenomena. These phenomena, though rare, are also very serious, because they impair the character and glorious traditions of our Army and adversely affect solidarity, discipline, and the combat strength of units, especially the primary ones.

Collective leadership is the party's highest principle of leadership. We must combine collective leadership closely with individual command and develop individual responsibility.

Through many years of combat, we have all seen that this principle, once observed, has promoted activity and creativity, gathered the intelligence of collectives, created high identity of views among the leadership, ensured the correctness and accuracy of formulated policies, and minimized errors. This principle has been a guarantee for all resolutions, directives and orders to be implemented positively with a full sense of responsibility of individuals. Moreover, individuals with great political ability, a high sense of responsibility, and good aptitude, will actually help comprehensively enhance the leadership of party committee echelons and the combat strength of units.

We should guide all party organizations and party committee echelons scrutinizing and maintaining the system of collective activites, and in enhancing the quality of collective leadership activities. If the relationship between individuals and collectives is settled in accordance with the party viewpoint, there will be no differences nor contradictions between them. [paragraph continues]

On the contrary, they can be unified on the basis of collective leadership.

The system of collective activities must be scrupulously implemented to ensure that the basic and important issues are collectively discussed and decided upon. We must perform according to the sphere of responsibility and authority, must not casually replace collectives with individuals and party committees with standing committees, and should not confuse a conference of cadres presided over by a unit commander with a conference of the party committee or vice versa.

To give some quality to collective activities, we must prevent and overcome the phenomena of nominal democracy and collectivity. The resolution of a party organization must necessarily be the intellectual product of collectives. In collective activities, we must ensure real political quality among members, debate in a truly democratic, open, frank, and responsible manner without smooth talking and trying to change direction with the wind. During debate, if a comrade puts forth a view not totally correct or somewhat conflicting with the view of collectivies, he must be given enough time to present all his view. Then the collective will analyze it and arrive at a clearcut and unanimous conclusion. The conclusion must be based on the correct opinion of the majority or voted for, if need be.

Experience has shown that in a party organization or any given unit, whether the internal ranks are united or not, the performance of duty is successful or unsuccessful, work progresses or retrogresses, the relationship between individuals and collectives is good or bad, the members work together in an open cordial or suspicious atmosphere, and the collective prestige and individual responsibility is high or low. All these things, after all consideration is made, always involve the democratic activities of collectives and the relationship between individuals and collectives and among individuals. The fact the collectives take up everything and individuals rely on collectives is not good and must be overcome. Nevertheless, of more concern are cases in which individuals disregard and place themselves above collectives and become arbitrary and paternalistic, especially when the party is ruling and our army is advancing toward standardization and moderization. Remedial action for these cases will be difficult.

This principle of the party does not permit anyone, including party committee members -- no matter what his position or age, how long or short his time of party membership, how high his knowledge level, how great or little his contributions -- to place himself above the collective and disregard others. If we do not place our small merits and achievements among the great merits and achievements of the collectives, the party, and the people, and if we lack sincerity, modesty, and impartiality we can never gain prestige or enjoy the confidence and love of the masses.

Experience has also revealed that some people in normal situations and under favorable conditions always think of their authority, but when assuming difficult tasks or facing a firece combat situation they rely on the collectives. When their units are praised for achievements and positive points, they see all the merit as belonging to them. When the units are criticized for mistakes and shortcomings, they try to shift the blame and responsibility to the collectives. This is not to mention cases in which some people have relied on and taken advantage of the collectives to make petty decisions aimed at seeking illegal personal profits.

Generally speaking, solidarity, unity, democracy, and discipline in the party as well as other party principles can be built and consolidated on the basis of scrupulously implementing the sytem of self-criticism and criticism. We must firmly grasp the purpose of self-criticism and criticism, which is to enhance comprehensively the leadership and militancy of the party, outstandingly fulfill the political task, and develop the organization and man. In conducting self-criticism and cirticism, we must truly uphold the democratic activities of the party and adopt an objective, loyal, and impartial attitude in enhancing the sense of responsibility to the party and the affection for our comrades and colleagues.

Higher party committee echelons and leading and command cadres should conduct self-criticism first in a scrupulous, loyal, and sincere manner. They should sincerely accept the criticism of their subordinates and set good examples for them. At the same time, they must pay much attention to mobilizing, guiding, and organizing the masses in criticizing party organizations, cadres, and members, thus helping to develop the party and consolidate the relationship between the party and masses.

In a ruling party, there are normally some party organizations and members reluctant to conduct self-criticism and criticism. They like to hear only of positive points and achievements and not shortcomings and deficiencies. It is easy to conduct self-criticism and criticism in a general manner, but difficult to analyze the causes and determine the responsibility of each echelon and individual. General criticism is usually superficial and unclear. It is easy to criticize tasks because "It involves the whole collective, including us," but difficult to criticize the individual and even more difficult to criticize a person's quality and lifestyle. We should also give party members analyses and explanations so they can understand clearly the nature of an individual shortcoming and a shortcoming that exceeds the limit of individuality and impairs the standard, bearing, quality, and ethics of Communist Party members.

Achieving limited results or failing to meet the set requirements in conducting self-criticism and criticism will confuse the organization even more and engender new and more negative phenomena. There might be attempts to hide shortcomings, insincerity and reluctance to accept criticism because of "personal prestige and fear of losing face," or reluctance to admit shortcomings, all of which lead to reprisals to "retaliate against and suppress" critics. In such situations, some cadres and party members have become fearful, face-saving, easy-going, and insincere in their struggle, fearing an "adverse" impact on themselves. There have also been cases of people taking advantage of the occasion to vent malicious attacks. It is truly dangerous to use criticism to exalt and protect some while finding fault with and attacking others, "flattering," and seeking ways of "self-advancement." Moreover, it shows a lack of objectively, fairness, compassion, and responsibility to criticize a certain person with prejudice to the point of denying all positive points and achievements and seeing only the individual's shortcomings or only the present and not the past and then judging in an "abusive" manner without the sympathy and assistance that the collective should have given to that comrade.

3. Also on this occasion we should strive to improve the quality, ethics, and ability of party members, forge their bearing and lifestyle, and uphold the title of Communist Party members. This is the key factor in firmly maintaining and raising the working-class character, capability, and militancy of the party and Army.

Negativism has emerged in our society in the past few years. Although our party has numerous good and fine members, some of them have shown themselves to be losing to varying degrees their combat will and sense of responsibility, organization, and discipline. Some have even degenerated qualitatively and become pragmatists in their lifestyle. This phenomenon has impaired the working class nature, fine traditions, prestige, and reputation of the party. This phenomenon among cadres and party members has also adversely affected youths of both sexes, the purity and simplicity of teenagers, and the self-respect and pride of our nation in the face of our friends. We can see even more clearly that, in developing the contingents of cadres and party members, we must emphasize the projection and preservation of those contingents, primarily by nurturing and forging their qualities, ethics, and lifestyle. The struggle to prevent such a phenomenon has not yielded the expected results. This is a cause of concern for the entire party, especially when the revolutionary struggle is taking place fiercely and complexly, the economy and life are difficult, and the enemies are striving to sabotage us.

Consequently, if on this occasion we raise the sense of responsibility of all cadres and party members; carefully consider the tasks of forging their qualities, ethics, and lifestyle; meticulously analyze what is right and wrong in these tasks; uphold the noble title of a Communist Party member; develop positive aspects; and prevent and overcome negativism in each party organization and individual, our purpose will be mainly to train and forge a core force to secure firmly the growth and victory of our Army.

The paramount requirement of a Communist Party member is to struggle to raise his awareness of communist ideas. This is also the most fundamental point distinguishing party members from the masses. Awareness of Communist ideas demands that party members under all circumstances display consistent ability and not relax the forging of their quality, ethics, and lifestyle. The quality and lifestyle of party and state; and on the people's confidence in our Army.

At present, the laboring people in our country, especially workers, civil servants, and Armed Forces members, are facing many difficulties in life. Overcoming these difficulties is a primary concern of our party and state. No matter what the country's situation -- rich or poor -- and regardless of the position party members assume, the correct attitude they must adopt is one of upholding a sound, simple, and healthy lifestyle and developing the fine traditions and quintessence of our nation in line with the specific conditions and capacity of our country. Every person must live within the standards prescribed by the state, and the level of his legitimate income forms the family economy. But that is not all. Each person must also positively help the state and party resolve our common problems by implementing and mobilizng the people to implement most satisfactorily and effectively all the policies and measures put forth by the party and state. In training, combat, productive labor, capital construction, and all other works we must carefully calculate and practice the utmost thrift to build the Army and country. Each party member and soldier is assigned the political task of protecting socialist assets and state property. This is the ethical trait and noble lifestyle of communist combatants, the glorious tradition of our nations, and the spirit of self-respect of the Vietnamese people, who "remain clean and preserve their integrity in poverty."

It is necessary for us to tell all party cadres and members that, regardless of how difficult the economic and welfare situation may be, they should not allow themselves to indulge in a pragmatic way of life [loois soongs thuwcj dungj]. They should learn how to distinguish the lofty from the mediorcre in everyday life if they are to adopt a correct attitude toward these things. We must guard against and stop the infiltration into our Armed Forces of views and trends that advocate running after money at the expense of the interests of other people and of society and induldging oneself in the pursuit of unethical things. It is necessary to analyze and criticize the views of those who are good at nothing but sophistry. They have spread deceptively subtle arguments such as "when one is hungry, he may steal food to eat;" "when one is hard pressed for money, he may act without thought of the possible consequences", and "Only when one's own stomach is full can he think of ideals." We must expose those sophisticated and wisely covered moves which, made in the guise of such names as "For the Collective"; and "For Everyone," are designed to serve personal gain.

We must not tolerate such arguments as" "Faced with the current difficult economic and welfare situation, we should ignore the wrongdoings of a number of party cadres and members"; "Even if they are wrong, we should not be so stringent", and "We should not idealize the life of communists."

We must oppose the bad tendency to value money above human dignity, material life above ideals, and personal gains above the interests of the collective and society.

While appraising party members and persons not in the party, we should not separate their public lives from their personal lives. We must attach great importance to the requirement that one's words must match his deeds. Renowned for their tradition of respecting ethics, our people will never accept party cadres and members who are not exemplary and whose conduct is poor, no matter how great their contributions to the revolution and how sharp their skills are. The enemy is well aware of our internal ranks. They know how to "neutralize" our party cadres and members and weaken our organizations with occasionally simple but very perfidious measures. The prestige of a party member depends on his ethical qualities and lifestyle. President Ho Chi Minh once advised: "Before the masses, we cannot win their love by just writing the word 'communist' on our 'foreheads.' To guide the people, we must first set a good example for them to follow." (Footnote: Ho Chi Minh; "Concerning Revolutionary Ethics"; Su That Publishing House; Hanoi 1976; Pages 38-39).

The historic mission now being shouldered by our party in the new stage requires our party to uphold its leadership role and effect a vigorous change in its leadership skills and fighting strength if it is to move our entire people steadily forward, develop achievements already gained, overcome difficulties and ordeals in the current situation, and carry out successfully the two strategic tasks -- building socialism successfully and defending the socialist fatherland firmly. For our party, all these are objective demands that also reflect the confidence and hope of our entire people and Army and also our friends, near and far alike.

It is unanimously agreed that this self criticism and criticism drive must be carried out in such a way as to attain highest success to create favorable conditions for the coming party congresses to be held at all levels to achieve the set objectives and for the coming sixth national party congress to score brilliant successes.

Each of our party cadres and members must always remember President Ho's advice: "Along its revolutionary path, our party, Army, and everyone of our comrades have always been noted for their strong points and, of course, for their shortcomings. Only by upholding self-criticism and criticism to distinguish right from wrong, develop what is right, and overcome what is wrong can we help ourselves, the party, and the revolution make steady progress." ..."Thanks to criticism and self-criticism, our party, Army, and regime have been able to make increasing improvements." (Footnote: Ho Chi Minh; "With the People's Armed Forces"; Quang Doi Nhan Dan Publishing House; Hanoi 1975; Pages 303 and 305.)

We -- all the comrades present here today -- are for the most part elderly. We are the ones who have had the honor of being educated by the party and trained in the nation's protracred revolutionary struggle. Everyone among us must realize the need to exert efforts to fulfill his present duties while devoting more of his energy and time to helping the younger generation of party cadres and members take up the cause of the party, people, and Army. In this political drive, we must resolutely ensure that all party organizations and members will not stand aloof from their leadership role, take an incorrect stance or lower the standards and glorious reputation of communist combatants. We must ensure that our comrades uphold their lofty lives as communist combatants by making more and more untiring contributions to the revolution; constantly cultivating their revolutionary ethics and qualities; and remaining loyal to the party, fatherland, and people. Through this political drive we must direct and help party organizations develop their strong points, resolutely overcome weaknesses, and truly generate a change for the better at each echelon and in each basic unit.

All these are the pure sentiments, the joy, and the happiness of a preceding generation. The duty and all these sentiments will certainly be deeply engraved in the minds of every person and will influence the everyday and combat life of succeeding generations. We must help build and firmly protect the contingent of our long-term combatants and respond to the aspirations of party cadres and members and the masses in the current historic juncture.

To achieve these aims fully, I propose that you, comrades, make the necessary arrangements and take time out of your busy schedules to go down to your lower echelons to lend your presence and help then satisfactorily conduct the self-criticism and criticism drive and hold party organization congresses from the grassroots level upward, making sure that they are carried out in accordance with the requirements already set by the party and that they produce significant results.

[Text] Jakarta, Jul 8 (OANA/ANTARA) -- France has offered its Mirage 2000 jet fighters to Indonesia with offset and counter-purchase arrangements, reaching respectively 25 and 80 per cent of the total value of the aircraft. "France has offered us an opportunity for exports amounting to 105 per cent of the aircraft's value," State Minister for Research and Technology B.J. Habibie told ANTARA here Tuesday morning.

Apart from Mirage, which is built by Avions Parcel Dassault-Breguet, Indonesia has received an offer for F-16 fighters made by the U.S. General Dynamics. The U.S. aircraft manufacturer has also offered offset deal to Indonesia, but it has not announced the percentage of components it will order from IPTN (Indonesia's Nusantara Aircraft Industry). Talks on the offset deal with General Dynamics, according to Habibie, are scheduled to start here next July 22. Dassault made its official offer for offset and counter-purchase deals last June 25, while the U.S. competitor last July 2. [sentence as received]

"Indonesia will take the best offers for its own interest and I am not committed to any party, except Indoesia," Habibie stressed, hinting that no final decision on the purchase of the jet fighters for the Indonesian Air Force would be taken in the short time. Habibie corroborated that he would apply similar offset deal for the second batch of procurement for the Rapier missiles built by the British Aerospace.

The British company has won an order worth hundreds of millions U.S. dollars for the procurement of the missile designed for air defence against high speed ground attack aircraft. It is promoted by its manufacturer as a low-level air defence system whose lethality was recognised and proven in the Falklands War. A number of Rapier missiles has been deployed in Indonesia to protect important installations.

Habibie has suggested that the purchase of all high-tech foreign equipment, both for civil and military purposes, by the Indonesian Government should be coupled with offset deal. Indonesia has already industries to produce the offset equipment such as IPTN, Pt Pindad (military industry) and Pt Pal (shipbuilding) and other strategic industries, of which Habibie is the president director. "Offset deal means saving money, creating job opportunities and transfer of technology," Habibie, who is nicknamed by an international news agency as hi-tech guru, advocated.

PRESIDENT SUHARTO FETES SULTAN OF BRUNEI

BK031625 Jakarta ANTARA in English 1548 GMT 3 Jul 86

[Text] Jakarta, 4/7 (ANTARA/OANA) -- The president and Mme Suharto acted as the host of a dinner party held in honour of Sultan of Brunei Darussalam and Mme Hasanal Bolkiah at the Merdeka Palace here Thursday night. The state banquet was also attended by among others Minister/State Secretary Sudharmono; Minister of Tourism, Post and Telecommunication Ahmad Tahir; Minister of Communications Rusmin Nuryadin; Director General for Tourism Jup Ave; the ambassador of Brunei to Indonesia; and a number of Brunei visitors accompanying the sultan.

NUCLEAR POWER PLANT PLANNED, NO ARMS PRODUCTION

[Text] Jakarta, July 6 (AFP) -- Indonesia is going ahead with feasibility studies for a nuclear power plant in the late 1990's but has no plans to produce nuclear weapons, the head of the country's atomic energy agency said. ANTARA NEWS AGENCY this weekend quoted Batan director-General Djali Ahisma as saying Indonesia would not make any nuclear weapons because it is a signatory of the non-proliferation treaty. Mr Ahisma was "apparently referring to fears expressed in certain quarters in Australia," Indonesia's largest southern neighbour, the news agency said.

He described the fears as "unavoidable" because the reality is that in the future Indonesia will be capable of producing nuclear arms. Mr Ahisma went on to say the government was giving the highest priority to safety, and that it would not use Soviet technology in the construction of the 600 megawatt plant which is scheduled to be built on the densely populated island of Java.

The Batan head called the recent Chernobyl disaster in the Soviet Union "a tragedy but a challenge to scientists" and said he was convinced that in the coming ten years reactor safety technology would be much more advanced because of the accident. B.J. Habibie, state minister of research and technology, said in April that in order to have the plant functioning by 1998, construction tenders would have to go out in 1988.

SUHARTO CALLS MEETING TO DENY CORRUPTION

[Text] Jakarta, July 7 (AFP) -- Indonesian President Suharto held an unprecedented three hour long meeting with the country's new young military commanders Monday in which for the first time he personally denied foreign press reports that he was engaged in corrupt business activities.

Armed Forces Commander General Benni Murdani told reporters after the meeting that the Armed Forces "knew what had to be done" about people who spread such stories, and anyone who questioned the president's right to stand for a fifth five year term of office. "What I want to say is that all the writings discrediting the president, as if he was engaged in commerce, or as if he was like the head of state of another country, who has just fallen, all are not true," Gen. Murdani told palace reporters.

Observers saw the comment as referring to Australian and U.S. newspaper articles likening 65-year-old President Suharto, who has been in power since 1967, to former President Ferdinand Marcos of the Philippines. The observers said he was also trying to quash a public storm last month when a local government parliamentarian raised the issue of whether Mr Suharto, a retired general, was entitled under the Constitution to run for a fifth presidential term.

Gen. Murdani told reporters that to question the Constitution on the succession matter would be tantamount to taking the power of the Indonesian people away from the parliament. "The president explained these problems to us, to convince us that they are invented by foreigners or Indonesians and that they are not true," Gen. Murdani said. "The president as a citizen himself, as a man of flesh and blood can be stung (by these accusations)," he said.

"In all the writings discrediting the president ... I as the commander of the National Security Agency cannot but come to the conclusion that they have been handled centrally through the mouths of other people, especially in facing the coming (April 23, 1987) general elections," he said.

Attending the extraordinary meeting were Gen. Murdani, the commanders of the Army, Air Force, Navy and police, their senior officers and the managers of four Suharto foundations all headed by retired military officers. "The president does not do business, but as head of state receives contributions ... and as head of state welcomes these contributions," Gen. Murdani said.

Gen. Murdani quoted the president as saying that "contrary to the conclusions of the foreigners, (the funds) are entrusted to foundations to ensure their good management." On the controversial issue of limiting the president's term of office, raised publicly for the first time since Mr. Suharto came to power by the governement's own party vice chairman, Suhardiman, last month, Gen. Murdani reassured reporters that no action would be taken.

Gen. Murdani said in answer to reporters questions that he was sure the military commanders present at the meeting "knew without having to be given examples" that the issues raised (by the foreign press and some domestic elements) were untrue." He called some domestic critics worse than foreign critics, and also slammed foreign human rights and environmentalist groups who criticised Indonesia's transmigration policy under which millions of Indonesians, most of them Javanese, are moved to remote areas of the archipelago.

MOKHTAR SAYS NO MISTREATMENT OF MUSLIMS

HK240928 Hong Kong AFP in English 0918 GMT 25 Jun 86

[Excerpt] Manila, June 25 (AFP) -- Indonesian Foreign Minister Mokhtar Kusumaatmaja Wednesday dismissed allegations of inhumane treatement of Moslem prisoners in his country as unfounded. He was responding to reports by the London-based rights group Amnesty International that the Indonesian Government had arrested some 200 Moslem activists since 1983 and subjected many to cruel, inhumane or degrading treatment in detention.

Mr Mokhtar told AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE here that he did not know the exact number of Moslems who had been detained, " but they may be Muslim extremists that were playing or engaged in terrorist activity. We should be applauded for that." "It is not our custom to treat our prisoners inhumanely," he added. He denied an allegation in the Amnesty International report that many Moslems had been denied fair trial, saying they were treated with "due process."

Mr. Mokhtar said new reports of human rights abuses in East Timor were unfounded. Moselm detainees were released if there was no evidence found against them, or tried if there was enough evidence, "even in East Timor." [passage omitted]

MALAYSIA

RITHAUDDEEN, CLAIMS SABAH 'AGREEMENT' REACHED

[Text] Kuala Lumpur, July 3 (AFP) -- Malaysia and the Philippines have reached an understanding on Manila's claim to the east Malaysian state of Sabah, Malaysian Foreign Minister Tengku Ahmad Rithauddeen said Thursday. However, Philippine Agriculture Minister Ramon Mitra said in Manila after talks Thursday between a Sabah envoy and President Corazon Aquino that the Philippines was not yet ready to waive its Sabah claim.

Mr. Rithauddeen said that he had reached an understanding on the issue with his Filipino counterpart Salvador Laurel, but had promised not to disclose details to the press, the Malaysian national news agency BERNAMA reported from the minister's hometown of Kota Bahru. Manila has for 23 years claimed the east Malaysian state as a territory once owned by a sultan from the southern Philippines.

The new Philippine Government which came to power in February has said it hopes to resolve the issue, but Mr. Mitra told reporters in Manila Thursday that Mrs Aquino was not yet ready to open a consulate in Sabah because it would mean a waiver of the claim. "The president is not ready to make a decision on whether or not to open a legation there. You understand that if you open a consulate there it will mean a waiver of our claim. We cannot open a consulate in a territory we claim to be our own." Mr. Mitra was speaking after accompanying Jeffrey Kitingan, a special envoy of Sabah Chief Minister Joseph Kitingan, on a courtesy call to Mrs. Aquino.

The dispute over Sabah has been a sore point between the two countries. Both members of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) and Malaysian prime ministers have refused to visit Manila until the claim was dropped. Mr. Laurel has been holding talks with top Malaysian officials to try to resolve the issue. He met Mr. Rithauddeen in Manila during an ASEAN foreign ministers' meeting June 23-24. THey also had a meeting in early April when Mr. Laurel visited Kuala Lumpur.

Mr. Mitra said that Mrs. Aquino had "expressed concern over the quarter of a million Filipinos" living in Sabah in her meeting with Mr. Kitingan. Mrs. Aquino "wished that the (Malaysian) government look after" Filipinos in Sabah, Mr. Mitra said, adding: "Since there is no Philippine representation in Sabah, nobody is looking after them." Many of the Filipino expatriates there were formerly residents of the large southern Philippine island of Mindanao, who had been displaced by a 14-year-old Moslem separatist rebellion. Mr. Kitingan refused to comment on his talks with Mrs. Aquino, which according to Mr. Mitra dealt mainly with expansion of trade between the Philippines and Malaysia.

RADIO COMMENTARY ON MANILA ASEAN MEETING

BK020928 Kuala Lumpur International Service in English 0800 GMT 2 Jul 86

[Text] The meeting of ASEAN foreign ministers in Manila recently was characterized by a new development which has been the subject of comments by a number of observers. Hitherto, the issue of Kampuchea tended to dominate the external relations agenda to the exclusion of all other international problems. This time, however, it became clear that ASEAN in its discussions of world issues was going to take a much broader perspective. In the words of Indonesian Foreign Minister Mokhtar Musumaatmaja, ASEAN is no more a 1-issue organization.

We may be seeing the start of political cooperation aimed at the harmonization of views as well as an alignment of positions in foreign political affairs. The discussions and consultations at Manila took place within the framework of the political cooperation at the ministerial as well as official level. However, they were not in the nature of general discussions about the political situation of the world in a broader sense. Rather, it can be said that this time, at Manila, the six ASEAN foreign ministers focused attention on a number of central foreign political issues to which they have attributed special importance and to which it has been natural for them to seek an alignment of positions.

The Malaysian proposal to hold an international conference on drug abuse and to revolve an ASEAN police viewpoint was well received. Malaysia is happy to note that its deep concern over the drug menace is shared by its ASEAN partners, and it looks forward to a successful UN conference on drug abuse next year in Vienna. Meanwhile, Malaysia will continue the fight against drug abuse and drug trafficking with undiminished vigor.

Yet another area on which there is harmony of views among all ASEAN members is a proposal to declare ASEAN a nuclear-free zone. This will be welcomed by the South Pacific nations who already are committed to such a nuclear-free zone in their part of the world.

It is probable that this start in political cooperation will become a permament feature of ASEAN. A characteristic of ASEAN is that it has developed gradually and pragmatically. It takes up new tasks and new projects only when it appears that they can be better tackled by a common approach than by isolated efforts. Cooperation in foreign policy will enable ASEAN to be even more influential in world affairs.

MAHATHIR ON PEOPLE'S SUPPORT FOR GOVERNMENT

[Excerpt] Datuk Sri Dr Mahathir Mohamed has described the National Front's victory in the Oya state by-election in Sarawak as a clear indication of the people's continued support for the present government. The prime minister said the victory is due to the support of the people for the Parti Bumiputera Bersatu Sarawak in particular, and the National Front in general. Datuk Sri Dr Mahathir who is also chairman of the National Front was proud of the success of its candidate Wan Madzihi Wan Mahadzar and extended his congratulations to Sarawak Chief Minister Datuk Patinggi Haji Abdul Tiab Mahmud.

He was speaking to reporters in Ipoh after a closed-door meeting with chief ministers who are attending the 138th meeting of the conference of rulers. [passage omitted]

On Parliament Session, Election

BK081306 Kuala Lumpur Domestic Service in English 1130 GMT 8 Jul 86

[Text] Datuk Sri Dr Mahathir Mohamed today [8 July] announced the sitting of the next Dewan Rakyat [legislative assembly], scheduled to start on the 14th of this month, has been deferred for a week as several bills are not ready for tabling. He said completion of the bills was delayed to the eve of processing and he decided to defer the sitting to the 21st of this month.

The prime minister was speaking at the press conference in Kota Kinabalu at the end of his 2-day visit to Sabah. Datuk Sri Dr Mahathir said he found it difficult to accept the contention that the people had lost faith in the government because it has not announced the date of the coming general election. However, he agreed with the opinion of the former prime minister, Tun Hussien Onn, and UMNO [United Malays National Organization] Deputy President Datuk Musa Hitam that the people will wonder when the general election would be held and the guessing games should be put to a stop. He, however, declined to give the date of the general election. He also declined to disclose the date of the UMNO Political Bureau meeting, which is expected to fix the date for the general election.

The prime minister, who had earlier attended a meeting with Sabah BN [Barisan National] leaders from the Parti Bersatu Sabah -- PBS -- Berjaya, and USNO [United Sabah National Organization], said the meeting discussed the allocation of seats, Sabah Barisan Nasional strategies in this entire election, and procedures of meeting. He said all decisions, including the allocation of seats to component parties, would be made by the Barisan Nasional headquarters soon. The prime minister also said he had advised all component parties not to field independent candidates for the coming general election, as the Barisan Nasional will certainly not accept independent candidates.

DAILY REPORTS 2 PROMOTED TO BRIGADIER GENERAL

BK060955 Singapore THE STRAITS TIMES in English 1 Jul 86 p 10

[Excerpts] Two hundred and seventy-three men and women moved up the Singapore Armed Forces [SAF] hierarchy at a quiet ceremony last night. They were the cream of the crop, promoted to higher ranks because of their present and potential contributions to the SAF.

Colonels Ng Jui Ping and Chin Siat Yoon became brigadier-generals, joining Lee Hsien Loong [Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew's son -- FBIS] and Tan Chin Tiong in that small circle of men who traded the three state crests on their epaulets for a star and leaf cluster. Brig-Gen (Res) Lee, now Acting Minister for Trade and Industry and Minister of State (Efence), and Brig-Gen (Res) Tan, the Permanent Secretary of the Home Affairs Ministry, received that rank in 1984 and 1979 respectively. Brig-Gen Ng and Brig-Gen Chin, both army men, now outrank the Deputy Chief of General Staff, Colonel Mancharan Singh Gill.

As the present appointments stand, the two brigadier generals report directly to Maj-Gen Winston Choo, the Chief of the General Staff. Col Gill concentrates on working with troops on the ground. But should Col Gill deputise for Maj-Gen Choo in his absence, Col Gill will command the two brigadier-generals. [passage omitted]

Brigadier-General Ng Jui Ping -- as Chief of Staff of the General Staff, Brig-Gen Ng Jui Ping, 38, coordinates the work of the six assistant chiefs of the General Staff. Their portfolios are designated Logistics, Personnel, Intelligence, Plans, Training and Operations. The Operations post is also being held by Brig-Gen Ng himself. He joined the army after leaving Raffles Institution and received his early training in the artillery. Among the courses he subsequently attended was the Advanced Tactical Course for Artillery Officers. The general was later sent by the SAF to Duke University in the United States where he obtained a Masters in military history. He is married with two children.

Brigadier-General Chin Siat Yoon -- Brig-Gen Chin, 37, is the Director of the Joint Intelligence Directorate and Assistant Chief of General Staff (Intelligence). In both posts, which he has held since October 1984, the brigadier-general oversees and directs all military intelligence activities. Brig-Gen Chin was a Colombo Plan scholar in Australia where he obtained a degree in veterinary science. He also has a Masters Degree in logistics management from the Florida Institute of Technology in the United States. He is married and has a child. [passage omitted]

AQUINO NOT TO FILE CHARGES AGAINST TOLENTINO

HK090707 Hong Kong AFP in English 0656 GMT 9 Jul 86

[Text] Manila, July 9 (AFP) -- The Philippine Cabinet Wednesday asked President Corazaon Aquino not to file charges against leaders of an abortive coup if they agreed to swear allegiance to her new Constitution, officials said. "The president is in favour of giving them a certain time within which to pledge allegiance to the New Constitution," Jovito Salonga, head of the Presidential Committee on Good Government, told reporters after the three-hour weekly cabinet meeting.

However, Mrs. Aquino told reporters that she had not yet made a decision on whether to accept the suggestion. "They left it up to me. We'll still discuss it this afternoon," Mrs. Aquino said, adding that she would issue a statement giving her decision later in the day.

A fact-finding committee was also set up to probe the incident, said Mr. Salonga who holds ministerial rank. "No charges will be filed" against Arturo Tolentino and other military and civilian leaders who staged the coup bid Sunday if they swore allegiance to the "Freedom Constitution" proclaimed by Mrs. Aquino in March, he added. The charter abolished the 1973 Constitution introduced by ousted President Ferdinand Marcos and the country's National Assembly, and set up a commission to draw up a new Constitution to be ratified by Plebiscite.

Mr. Tolentino, a close associate of Mr. Marcos, and his supporters seized the five-star Manila Hotel where Mr. Tolentino proclaimed himself acting president under the provisions of the 1973 Constitution, which he said he regarded as still in force. The rebels abandoned their stand early Tuesday after 200 of the 300 troops supporting them quit and the popular support they were awaiting failed to materialise.

Presidential spokeswoman Alice Villadolid told reporters that Mr. Salonga's statements to the press were just "among the recommendations" made by the cabinet. She did not say what other recommendations were made. Justice Minister Neptali Gonzalez said Tuesday that sedition charges would be filed Wednesday against the coup leaders, but a spokesman at the Supreme Court said Wednesday that no charges had been filed with he court so far.

None of the coup leaders were immediately available for comment on the cabinet proposal. Mr. Tolentino's secretary told AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE that he was holding talks with his fellow coup leaders at a secret location, and was not expected to be contactable for several days.

Aquino To Seek Pledges

[Text] Manila, July 9 (AFP) -- President Corazon Aquino said Wednesday that she would not file charges against leaders of a failed coup bid, provided that they pledged allegiance to her new constitution. This decision showed that "I could be magnanimous," Mrs Aquino told a news conference, but she also warned that "I shall not allow anything like this to happen again."

Mrs Aquino had earlier said that she would file sedition charges against military men and civilians who supported Arturo Tolentino when he barricaded himself into a Manila hotel Sunday and proclaimed himself acting president.

Mrs Aquino said Wednesday that a civilian board of inquiry and a separate military panel to be headed by Armed Forces Chief of Staff General Fidel Ramos would be set up to investigate the military aspect of the coup, because the government was "concerned about the military's involvement." She did not explain why two parallel investigations were being conducted, and refused to answer questions after reading a statement.

Mrs Aquino said that she was "compelled by reasons of national interest and unity to require a pledge of loyalty to the Constitution from the leaders of that illegal act of defiance." "Certain people have trifled too long with the dignity and stability of the present government and the new constitutional order," she said. Mr Tolentino proclaimed himself president under a 1973 constitution introduced by ousted President Ferdinand Marcos, which Mr Tolentino said he regarded as still in force.

Mrs Aquino was asking the coup leaders to pledge allegiance to a new constitution she proclaimed in March, abolishing the 1973 Constitution and the National Assembly and creating a commission to draw up a new charter to be ratified by a national plebiscite.

She told the news conference that her decision did not preclude the filing of civil charges against the coup leaders for damages that may have resulted from their action. The management of the five-star Manila Hotel has said that "conservative" estimates for damage, looting and lost revenue total some 500,000 dollars.

Mrs Aquino's executive secretary, Joker Arroyo, told the same news conference that if the coup leaders refused to pledge allegiance to the new constitution "we'll take appropriate action," and said sedition charges "could be one of those options." Mr Arroyo said Justice Minister Neptali Gonzalez would handle details and announce a deadline for the pledging of allegiance.

Mr Tolentio and other coup leaders were not immediately available for comment on the president's offer. Aides said they were in conference at a secret location and did not know when they would be available.

PAPER DETAILS 4 JUL PROTEST AT U.S. EMBASSY

HK080801 Manila THE MANILA CHRONICLE in English 5 Jul 86

[Text] Two demonstrators were shot and about 50 other people were injured when policemen clashed with thousands of protesters at the United States Embassy yesterday afternoon.

The worst injury happened to a 24-year-old unionist, Nelson Mangahan, now lying unconscious at the Philippine General Hospital, paralyzed by a bullet in his spine.

Also shot but not seriously wounded was Armando Astoveza, 57 treated at the UST hospital for a bullet wound in the left foot.

The other casualties among the demonstrators had suffered mostly from truncheon-beatig by policemen.

At least 15 of the policemen themselves required hospital treatment for cuts opened by rocks, bottles and other missiles thrown from among the demonstrators and from wounds caused by shrapnel from home-made bombs.

The 15,000 demonstrators, had come led by the nationalist Bayan [new People's Alliance] to protest the presence of American bases here. They had hardly organized themselves when the trouble began.

At about 3 p.m. the policemen, on orders of their superintendent, Brig. Gen. Alfredo Lim, began pushing protesters off the southbound lane of Roxas Blvd., on the embassy's side. The understanding, Lim said later, was for the protesters to keep that lane clear.

The pushing provoked a hail of missiles from the demonstrators, forcing the policemen, about 300 of them, to retreat.

Having regrouped and now armed with truncheons and shields, tear-gas bombs and in some cases, guns, the policemen charged, some shooting in the air.

But an AGENCE FRANCE PRESSE photographer said he saw a few shooting right into the crowd.

Lawmen chased protesters into United Nations Ave., as far as Mabini, swinging their truncheons. Six of them were observed to have no name patches on their fatigues.

Among those injured was photographer Ariel Antolin, of 'ANG PILIPINO NGAYON.' Antolin was hit by "pillbox" shrapnel in the left leg. He was treated at the Ospital ng Maynila.

Bayan marchers said the cops smashed the windshield of a red van of the marchers and deflated the tires of several cars and Ford Fierra vans.

Some policemen tore up placards or seized banners, streamers and the demonstrators' public address system.

After the clash, the demonstrators regrouped at the Executive House, (the old Congress building), where a public hearing on the U.S. bases was going on.

They talked with Con-Com [Constitutional Commission] commissioners Lorenzo Tanada, Jaime Tadeo, Lino Brocka, and then marched back to the U.S. Embassy, this time with Tanada leading the pack.

Tanda, limping, marched for almost a kilometer from the Executive House to Plaza Ferguzon, where he delivered stinging remarks on U.S. intervention in the country.

The marchers were chanting "Lim, resign," as they again faced policemen armed with truncheons and shields. The chant was aimed at brig. Gen. Alfredo Lim, Manila police chief.

Tanada's speech started a program shortly before 5 p.m., with Con-Com commissioners taking turns addressing a jubilant crowd.

Tanada hit U.S. meddling in the country's political and economic affairs. He said the presence of the two U.S. military bases in the country "had made the mockery of our sovereignty."

Tanada said he would take to the streets again if "what is happening now is similar to what had happened before."

Tanada's five-minute speech drew rounds of applause. Five other members of the Constitutional Commission also attacked the U.S. government and the presence of their military bases here.

Police claimed they recovered several home-made bombs (pingpong balls stuffed with gunpowder) under the car of Jose Castro, a Bayan leader.

Later, Lim told reporters his men were provoked by the demonstrators. He denied policemen used guns in dispersing the crowd.

Castro denied owning the explosives.

Bayan sources said the bombs were planted and that their ranks could have been infiltrated.

CON-COM CONSIDERS RESOLUTIONS ON U.S. BASES

Move To Ban Bases

HK041502 Hong Kong AFP in English 1430 GMT 4 Jul 86

[Text] Manila, July 4 (AFP) -- More than one-third of the members of a commission drafting a new Philippine constitution have backed a resolution which would ban all foreign military bases and nuclear weapons in the country, one of the commissioners said Friday.

Edmundo Garcia, who was among the 17 supporters of the resolution which was filed on Thursday, told reporters they hoped to get eight more votes when the 48-member commission debated the issue. The resolution also proposed including provisions in the new chapter on peace, neutrality, and non-alignment.

Mr. Garcia said supporters of the resolution felt confident it would be passed by the commission, adding that "no one ever thought we'd get 17 commissioners to sponsor a resolution as radical as that."

The Philippines currently hosts two large U.S. military bases. The U.S. government has a policy of neither confirming nor denying whether nuclear weapons are stored at the installations. Philippine President Corazon Aquino has said that she would honor an agreement granting U.S. access to Clark air base and Subic naval base, due to expire in 1991, and that she would keep her options open after then.

Officers Oppose Resolution

[Text] At the Constitutional Commission, ranking military officers yesteraday [4 July] opposed the inclusion in the proposed charter of a provision prohibiting foreign military bases and nuclear weapons in the country. The objection was raised during a Constitutional Commission public hearing by Air Force Chief Major General Ramon Farolan and Navy Flag Officer in Command Rear Admiral Serapiano Martillano. Farolan and Martillano reiterated President Aquino's stand that she will respect the Philippine-U.S. military bases agreement up to 1991, and that she will keep her options open after the expiration day.

Earlier, the constitutional commissioners voted to amend the article on national territory in the 1973 constitution. The commission voted to adopt an amendment proposed by [Father] Joaquin Bernas eliminating the clause on historic right and legal title from the territorial provision which in the 1971 constitutional convention was intended to refer specifically to the claim to Sabah, in addition to the various treaties that established the boundaries of the Philippines.

Ople on Bases Issue

HK080145 Quezon City NEW DAY in English 7 Jul 86 p 2

[By Tara S. Singh]

[Text] The American military bases in the Philippines will be a major issue which will rock the constitutional commission [Con-Com] because various pressure groups will try to influence its decision.

This was predicted by Con-Com commissioner Blas F. Ople saying that the filing of two resolutions on foreign military bases in the Philippines were initiated by clashing schools of thought, making the issue a highly emotional one during the Con-Com debates.

One of the resolutions signed by 17 Con-Com members, among them Ed Garcia, declared that the Philippines must be a neutral and nonaligned country. Ople said this in effect, will abrogate the military bases agreement and "cancel all other options of the Aquino government before 1991, the year the agreement expires."

The other resolution, a bipartisan one, would terminate the agreement by 1991 but preserve the option of President Aquino to abrogate or renegotiate the treaty in accordance with the current situation and sovereignty of the Philippines. In no case would the agreement last beyond 20 years.

The resolution also provides that the treaty should be subject to bilateral review once every five years with each contracting party capable of terminating the agreement upon due notice.

The situation cannot be ignored by the Con-Com even if it wanted to, Ople said, because the deadline of 1991 is imminent and a bilateral review of the agreement is due in 1988.

The proposal for a neutral and nonaligned provision which should be incorporated in the new Constitution, according to Ople, "can with just one sentence in the new Constitution change the general framework of our international relations, reorder our entire security posture in a world marked by many historic discontinuities and unpredictable political turbulence and alter the global balance of power."

It will also be a move that may "foreclose the options of President Aquino" who has repeatedly said that she would like to keep open her options on the bases before 1991.

Ople explained that the specific context in which neutrality can be declared in the Constitution on 1986 will be abrogation of the bases agreement. He said, "I have no objections to its abrogation, as one of the options available to the Aquino government, but why preempt the President, why foreclose one major option of the government, why deny her and the people the freedom and flexibility of choice before the 1991 deadline?"

The former labor minister saw the possibility of President Aquino going to the United States as announced on Sept. 17 without an "option left on the bases, a helpless and powerless leader who has been stripped of her bargaining power by her own appointed constitutional commission."

Ople said that should the government choose the option of a new negotiation towards a new treaty, it can go to the negotiating table with a bargaining clout which it never possessed before.

Ople said that should the Aquino government decide to negotiate a new treaty, "the Philippines will meet the U.S. as a true equal for the first time since 1889, demand the rectification of all unequal treaties, secure an economic quid pro quo through preferential access of our finished goods to the U.S. markets, obtain a Marshall plan to rehabilitate and industrialize the economy and ask the U.S. to make up for all the decades of benign neglect of our national development."

'Compromise' Resolution Proposed

[Text] Over at the Constitutional Commission, 12 members yesterday [8 July] introduced a resolution which would terminate the Philippine-U.S. military bases agreemenmt upon its expiration in 1991 without prejudice to the conclusion of a new agreement. The resolution appears to be a compromise between those who favor the removal of the American bases for reason of infringement on Philippine sovereignty and involvement of the country in case of nuclear war, and those who favor retention.

AQUINO SPEAKS ON ELECTIONS IN TARLAC 1 JULY

REPORT SAYS TRADE SURPLUS 'UP SHARPLY' IN JUN

OW090637 Tokyo KYODO in English 0626 GMT 9 Jul 86

[Text] Tokyo, July 9 KYODO -- Japan's trade surplus totaled 7.37 billion dollars in June, up sharply from 5.02 billion dollars a year ago, the Finance Ministry said in a preliminary report Wednesday. Exports totaled 17.47 billion dollars, up 21.0 percent from June last year and imports stood at 10.10 billion dollars, up 7.2 percent. But in yen-denominated terms, the trade surplus narrowed slightly to 1.24 trillion yen from 1.25 trillion yen the year before, the ministry said.

EC WANTS SWIFT ACTION ON TRADE SURPLUS

[Text] Brussels, July 10 KYODO -- The European Community (EC) Wednesday asked Japan to take swift action to bring down its huge trade surplus with Europe, Japanese officials said. The EC representatives at a Japan-EC meeting expressed strong concern about imports of such items as Japanese automobiles and machine tools in the first five months of this year, which are soaring despite Japan's domestic demand-stimulation measures, the officials said.

The EC side, led by Leslie Fielding, director general in charge of external relations, pointed out that Japan seems to have shifted its export target to Europe, where it is less affected by exchange losses following the rise in value of the yen against the U.S. dollar. In the six-hour discussion with the Japanese side led by Reishi Teshima, deputy foreign minister for international affairs, the EC warned that its member nations would work to oppose Japanese exports if the high level continues, they said.

The EC negotiators said it would be a significant step were Japan to reduce its high duties and taxes on imported wine and other alcoholic beverages, adding this would have a psychological effect on its trading partners, according to the officials. British Foreign Secretary Geoffrey Howe will preside at an EC foreign ministers' meeting July 21 and 22, where trade problems with Japan are to be discussed. EC-Japan trade last year left an all-time high surplus of 12.9 billion dollars (11.1 billion dollars in Japanese statistics) in Japan's favor.

PRC NUCLEAR ENERGY ACCORD TAKES EFFECT

[Text] Tokyo, July 10 KYODO -- Japan and China exchanged diplomatic notes in Beijing Thursday to implement an agreement for cooperation in peaceful uses of nuclear energy. The notes were exchanged between the Japanese Embassy in Beijing and the Chinese Foreign Ministry, confirming the completion of necessary domestic legal procedures in Japan and China for implementation of the agreement signed last summer. The agreement will remain in force for 15 years.

The agreement stipulates that nuclear energy machinery and nuclear fuel exported by Japan to China should not be used for any military purposes.

The agreement also guarantees the peaceful use of nuclear substances and equipment exported by Japan through inspection by the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA). Political barriers have now been removed for Japanese nuclear energy machinery makers to export to China.

MAY STEEL SHIPMENTS TO USSR, TAIWAN UP

[Text] Tokyo, July 9 KYODO -- Japan's steel shipments to the Soviet Union and Taiwan rose sharply in May, showing double-digit year-on-year-gains due to firmly growing demand, according to the Japan Iron and Steel Federation Wednesday. The latest statistics put exports to the Soviet Union, Japan's third largest steel customer, at 270,000 tons, up 59 percent over a year before, and those to Taiwan, its fifth biggest importer, at 142,000 tons, ahead 42 percent. In contrast, sales to China, Japan's largest steel customer, fell 32 percent to 720,000 tons to sluggish demand for electric furnace products, including steel bars and shape steels. Those to the United States, its second largest market, continued to slide due to Japan's "voluntary restraints," -- down 28 percent to 356,000 tons, federation officials said.

SASEBO UNIONS TO PROTEST U.S. SUBMARINE VISIT

[Text] Nagasaki, July 9 KYODO -- A U.S. nuclear-powered submarine, the Tunny, will arrive Thursday in Sasebo, municipal officials of the port city said Wednesday. Labor unions in the Sasebo area are planning a protest rally here Thursday afternoon because, the unionists said, the Tunny is said to have the capacity to be armed with Tomahawk nuclear cruise missiles. Some 300 to 400 people are expected to attend the protest rally at the port, union organizers said. The Tunny, a 3,640-ton Sturgeon class submarine, will be the third U.S. submarine to call at this port this year and the 29th since the visits began in 1964, according to the city officials. The Tunny will take on supplies while its crew has a break, they said.

DEFENSE AGENCY TO ASK FOR 7.5 PERCENT INCREASE

[Text] Tokyo, July 10 KYODO -- The Defense Agency has tentatively decided to call for a defense spending increase of about 7.5 percent for fiscal 1987 despite the budget austerity favored by Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone, agency officials said Thursday. If approved, this will be the sharpest defense budget increase in five years and will probably push Japan's defense spending over the government-set ceiling of 1 percent of gross national product (GNP). The agency started a five-year defense buildup program this year.

The government budgeted 3.34 trillion yen for national defense this year, up 6.58 percent from a year before. This year's budget officially represents 0.993 percent of Japan's GNP projected for the year ending in March next year.

Nakasone has repeatedly said he will "make efforts" to hold down Japan's defense outlays below the ceiling set in 1976. Defense Agency chief Koichii Kato, a cabinet member, and Finance Minister Noboru Takeshita are expected to discuss the matter when they meet July 20, an agency spokesman said.

SATO DROPS LOCKHEED CASE APPEAL; HOLDS DIET SEAT

[Text] Tokyo, July 9 KYODO -- Takayuki Sato, a lower house Diet member and former parliamentary vice transport minister, Wednesday dropped his appeal to the Supreme Court against his conviction and sentence in the Lockheed payoff trial. Sato, 58, becomes the first politician convicted in the case whose sentence is finalized. Former Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka is among those whose appeals are still pending. Sato had been convicted of bribery and sentenced to two years' imprisonment, suspended for three years, and fined 2 million yen by the Tokyo District Court in June 1982.

The Tokyo high court upheld the lower court decision in May, turning down his appeal. Sato then appealed the decision to the Supreme Court. Sato was convicted of taking 2 million yen in bribes from All Nippon Airways (ANA) in October 1972 for using his influence in aviation administration in favor of ANA on introduction of large jets to Japan. The conviction does not affect his Diet membership as the prison sentence was suspended.

Sato, meeting reporters Wednesday, criticized the Lockheed trial and said he will no longer spend time on the trial. He said he does not admit his guild and will continue to work as a Diet member. He also said he will publish a book on the Lockheed scandal, which surfaced in 1976.

Sato, who is close to Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone, was returned to the House of Representatives as an independent conservative from Hokkaido's No. 3 Constituency in Sunday's double elections. Sato's actions shocked the defense counsel for Tanaka and other defendants in the Lockheed trials. Opposition parties reacted against Sato's action and called for his resignation from the Diet as his conviction is finalized. The opposition parties are considering refering Sato's case to the lower house Council on Political Ethics.

TAKESHITA HINTS AT FORM OF INDIRECT TAX

[Text] Osaka, July 9 KYODO -- Finance Minister Noboru Takeshita hinted at the possible introduction of some form of indirect tax Wednesday, while sounding negative about bringing in a broader-based "large-scale" indirect tax. He told a press conference here, "Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone's remarks should be taken at face value." Nakasone has said he will not introduce large-scale indirect tax to which the people and members of the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party are opposed. But Takeshita said, "denying indirect tax is tantamount to denying the tax system itself," suggesting the introduction of some form of indirect tax. He added that the definition of a large-scale indirect tax is ambiguous and that the government-sponsored tax system council is studying the definition and the advisability of introducing such a tax.

NONALIGNED SPORTS MEETING CONCLUDES 8 JULY

SK100510 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0437 GMT 10 Jul 86

[Text] Pyongyang July 10 (KCNA) -- A final report was adopted at the Second Conference of Ministers and High Officials of Physical Education and Sports of Non-Aligned Countries held in Pyongyang over July 5-8.

The introduction of the final report points to the process of the conference.

The conclusions and recommendations of the report stresses in particular as follows:

The conference reaffirmed the commitment of the nonaligned countries to continue their struggle in all spheres -- particularly in sports -- against imperialism, colonialism, neocolonialism, hegemonism, apartheid, zionism, foreign aggression, occupation, domination and all other forms of discrimination.

The conference resolved to continue fighting resolutely and consistently against all forms of discrimination in sports based on race, colour, sex, political beliefs or religion.

The conference called for the adoption of other practical measures in order to obtain South Africa's expulsion from those international sports federations and organizations of which it is still a member and the imposition of strict sanctions against countries and organizations which maintain any kind of sports relations with the apartheid regime of South Africa.

The conference emphasized that, in spite of the achievements that had been scored in cooperation among the non-aligned countries, there was an urgent need to strengthen bilateral and multilateral cooperation so that each of the non-aligned countries might keep up-to-date on all aspects related to the development of physical education and sports.

The conference noted with regret that, during the last five years, very little progress had been made in achieving the non-aligned countries' legitimate aspirations of democratizing the International Olympic Committee and establishing a new international sports order. In this regard, the conference stressed the urgent need to radically democratize the International Olympic Committee's structures, so as to ensure that all countries might have equal rights, participate in decision-making and be represented legitimately.

The conference considered that the strategy for the 1986-1990 period should mainly be aimed at strengthening the position of the non-aligned countries within the international Olympic and sports movement and democratizing the International Olympic Committee and its agencies. The conference expressed its opposition to the draft Athletes' Code proposed by the International Olympic Committee as an amendment to rule 26 of the Olympic charter, for it would give professionals access to the Olympic Games.

The conference categorically rejected this document and recommended that the national Olympic committees of the non-aligned countries take immediate action by presenting their positions to the president of the International Olympic Committee and to the international federations and by expressing their opposition to the draft code.

The conference recommended that the Olympic congresses serve as the highest decision-making body of the International Olympic Committee, meeting once every four years as part of the Olympic Games, so that every country could express its views and suggestions freely.

The conference opposed the International Olympic Committee's and the international sports federations' proposal that extra-official elimination rounds be held -- whose consequences would include the restriction of the number of athletes from the non-aligned countries participating in the Olympic Games, to the detriment of the non-aligned and other third world countries' participation.

The conference reiterated the need to continue concerted actions with a view to democratizing the international sports federations and guaranteeing equal rights in representation, decision-making and voting.

The conference went on record as favouring strengthening the position and role of the association of national olympic committees with regard to the International Olympic Committee and increasing its authority in analyzing and solving the problem of the international Olympic movement.

The conference firmly supported the proposal to have Pyongyang and Seoul co-host the 24th Olympic Games in order to promote friendship among the peoples and make an effective contribution to the peaceful reunification of Korea. Furthermore, it would be a contribution to the successful holding of the 24th Olympic Games and the strengthening of the international Olympic movement.

The conference called on all the non-aligned countries to do their utmost to help achieve satisfactory results in the next meeting, to be held in Lausanne at the initiative of the IOC, in order to make it possible to hold the 24th Olympic Games jointly in the North and the South of Korea. At the same time, it expressed its concern that, if an agreement favouring the co-hosting of the games were not reached, the international Olympic movement could enter a deep and irreversible crisis.

The conference reiterated that the establishment of a new international sports order is one of the basic aims of the non-aligned countries in the sphere of sports. It expressed the conviction that the establishment of a new international sports order would be a contribution to the attainment of the essential objective on the establishment of a democratic system of international relations based on equality. The conference called upon all the non-aligned countries to devote their concerted action for achieving this aim.

In accord with the agreement reached in the Seventh Summit Conference, the conference decided to hold a conference of ministers and other high-ranking officials of physical education and sports once every three years, preceded by a meeting of experts, in order to draw up and adopt common guidelines and plans of action and to examine the progress made.

The conference noted the need for calling a joint meeting of experts and representatives of the national Olympic committees of the non-aligned countries to draw up a strategy for joint action that would make it possible to adopt specific actions in the International Olympic Committee, the Association of National Olympic Committees and the international sports federations and to initiate the preparations for the 12th Olympic Congress, to be held in 1991.

The conference accepted with satisfaction the proposal of the government of the Republic of Cuba of hosting the third conference of ministers and high officials of physical education and sports of the Non-Aligned Movement in the city of Havana, in 1989.

Pointed in the final report is plan of action for cooperation in the sphere of physical education and sports of the non-aligned countries for the 1986-1990 period. Objectives of the plan of action are laid down as follows;

Promote dynamic, energetic, resolute action by all of the non-aligned countries to establish a new international sports order which will end discrimination. commercialization, professionalism and everything else that limits or denies the inalienable right of our peoples and of the peoples that are fighting for their independence to practice physical education and sports and to participate in international decision-making in all matters associtated with or connected to the sports relations among the peoples and the philosophy and practice of world sports.

Join efforts and identify a common strategy for bringing about rapid changes in the present structures of the Olympic movement so they will respond to our peoples' real aspirations, interests and needs. The struggle for democratization, respect for our rights and recognition of the decisive political force we constitute will be an essential objective of the movement's activity in the sphere of sports.

Achieve effective, real cooperation with the specialized international agencies, especially UNESCO's intergovernmental Committee on Physical Education and Sports, the Un specialized agencies and others which will help to achieve our goals in this sphere.

Tasks to carry our the plan of action are;

Strengthening the non-aligned countries' positions in the international Olympic and other sports movement;

Struggling to speedily democratize the International Olympic Committee and its agencies and to place all the members of the International Olympic Committee on an equal footing in decision-making regarding major issues related to world sports;

Struggling incessantly to curb the accelerated trend toward professionalism and commercialization;

Increasing the role of the national Olympic committees within the international Olympic movement and ensuring their right to participate in the solution of all Olympics-related issues, in which the Association of National Olympic Committees should play a decisive role concerning the respect due to each member country;

Increasing the number of non-aligned representatives on the IOC's specialized committees and on the committee for the review of the Olympic charter, exercising our rights and making it possible for the representatives of friendly countries to give us their support;

Rejecting the proposal of the International Olympic Committee which amends rule 26 of the Olympic charter and establishes the Athletes' Code which professionalizes olympic sports and distorts the true essence of sports.

Working for the democratizatidon of the international sports federations' statutes and for the inclusion of a provisicn an equal representation and voting rights, including new representatives of the national federations in the movement's countries and seeking the support of friendly countries in those international federations;

Rejecting the International Olympic Committee's and the international sports federations' proposal that elimination rounds be held prior to the Olympic Games in order to limit the number of participants in those games, in detriment to the non-aligned and other developing countries' athletes' participation in the Olympics (adoption of this proposal would further pave the way for commercialization and would go counter to the tenets of the Olympic ideals);

Striving to implement the proposal of co-hosting the 24th Olympic Games in both the North and the South of Korea;

Achieving more active and influential participation by the Association of National Olympic Committees in analyzing and awarding the candidacies of the cities that want to host Olympic Games and participating in supervising the preparations for the games and the work of the organizing committees for the Olympics, with the power to propose rigorous measures in case of violations of the charter and international regulations;

Ensuring that the Olympic congresses are the highest decision-making body of the International Olympic Committee, to be held once every four years during the Olympic Games.

The conference firmly supports the efforts initiated by member countries aimed at turning UNESCO into an operational mechanism for the development and well-being of mankind as a whole, particularly in the third world. In this context, the conference supports the struggle waged by the general direction of the organization to make UNESCO live up to what is expected of it.

Increase participation in bilateral, multilateral and regional competitions organized by the non-aligned countries and promote the development of sports events and traditional games in each of them.

FOREIGN PAPERS REPORT SEOUL UNFIT FOR OLYMPICS

[Text] Pyongyang July 1 (KCNA) -- The Nicaraguan paper EL NUEVO DIARIO June 11 carried an article titled "The Seoul Olympics May Possibly Lead the Olympic Movement to a Crisis": which said:

The situation is more acute in South Korea than in any other regions of the world. Seoul, therefore, is unfit for the Olympic Games in all respects.

The city is a very dangerous place where the danger of war exists permanently and political confusion and social instability are prevailing. There the safety of young people of the world with differing ideas and political views who will participate in the games cannot be guaranteed.

The Lebanese Paper AL SHARG June 17 wrote that the socialist and many other countries do not recognize South Korea but would boycott the Seoul Olympics.

Holding that the South Korean side should accept the DPRK's Olympic cohosting proposal so that the North and the South may cohost the Olympic Games, the Portuguese Paper DIARIO DE LISBOA June 3 stressed: If a single team representing the whole nation is not formed and the Olympic Games are held in one part of Korea only, they are bound to miscarry.

SRV SPOKESMAN SUPPORTS GOVERNMENT PEACE PROPOSAL

[Text] Pyongyang July 9 (KCNA) -- The spokesman of the Foreign Ministry of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam July 7 expressed full support to the statement of the DPRK Government on creating a nuclear-free, peace zone on the Korean peninsula, according to a VNA report from Hanoi.

The spokesman said that the Vietnamese government and people regard the reasonable and sincere proposals clarified in the statement of the government of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea on June 23, 1986 as an important contribution to the preservation of peace in the world and defence of mankind from nuclear holocaust.

The people and government of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam reaffirm their consistent solidarity with the fraternal Korean people in the just struggle to ease tension on the Korean peninsula and achieve the peaceful reunification of the country, stressed the spokesman.

U.S. COMMANDER'S REMARKS ON NORTH THREAT DENOUNCED

[Text] Pyongyang July 8 (KCNA) -- NODONG SINMUN Today comments on the utterances of the commander-in-chief of the U.S. forces in the Pacific at a press interview on July 4 that the North may "plot something" to obstruct the Asian Games and the 1988 Olympic Games.

In a signed commentary NODONG SINMUN says: His piffle itself exposes that the U.S. imperialists make the Olympiad a screen of the "two Koreas" plot, a lever for pressing ahead their preparations for war in Korea.

By exciting alarm about "threat of southward invasion" they try to keep their aggression forces' occupation of South Korea and continue their colonial fascist rule under the nave of "security commitments".

These days they are casting damper on us because our repeated peace initiatives and proposals are exerting an ever greater influence upon the South Korean people and the anti-U.S. sentiments for independence are running higher than ever before in South Korea. However loudly they may prattle about the "threat of southward invasion", the U.S. imperialists will be unable to cover their criminal nature in resorting to new war provocation manoeuvres, reinforcing their armed forces of aggression in Korea.

KIM IL-SONG INSPECTS KIM MANYU HOSPITAL

[Text] Pyongyang June 30 (KCNA) -- The great leader President Kim Il-song went round the Kim Man-yu hospital on June 28.

He was accompanied by Kim Hwan, member of the Political Bureau, and secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea; So Yun-sok, member of the political bureau of the WPK Central Committee, chief secretary of the Pyongyang Municipal Party Committee and chairman of the Pyongyang Municipal People's Committee; Chong Chun-ki, alternate member of the Political Bureau of the WPK Central committee and vice-premier of the Administration Council; Kang Hui-won, alternate member of the Political Bureau of the WPK Central Committee and chairman of the Pyongyang Municipal Administration and Economic Guidance Committee; and officials concerned.

The hospital built in Munsu street on the beautiful bank of the river Taedong consists of the 16-storeyed main building and two other buildings and auxiliary buildings with a total floor space of 100,000 square metres.

President Kim Il-song went round the computerised tomographic room, operating rooms, intensive treatment rooms, sick rooms and equipment and facilities of the hospital and expressed deep satisfaction over its splendid construction.

Saying that Mr. Kim Man-yu has done a good thing for the homeland and the people, President Kim Il-song highly appreciated his patroitic devotion.

He gave highly important teachings which will serve as a guideline in managing and operating the hospital well so as to actively contribute to the promotion of people's health and in further developing the health service.

KIM TAE-CHUNG INTERVIEWED ON REFORM, U.S.

PM090925 Madrid EL PAIS in Spanish 29 Jun 86 p 6

[Interview with South Korean opposition leader Kim Tae-chung by Ramon Vilaro in Seoul; date not given]

[Text] Seoul Kim Tae-chung, the strong man of the South Korean opposition to President Chon Tu-hwan's authoritarian regime, believes that "The South Koreans are weary of 25 years of military regimes." "Democracy," he adds, "is inevitable." Cautious about the possible results of the Special Committee for Constitutional Reform set up in Seoul this week between the government and the opposition the 62-year-old Kim Tae-chung believes that if there is no direct election of the president, the South Koreans will continue to demonstrate the vitality of "people power," in a clear reference to what happened in the Philippines 5 months ago.

Kim was sentenced to death by the Chon Tu-hwan regime after the 1980 military coup, and his sentence was subsequently commuted to 17 years' imprisonment. Thanks to the U.S. Administration's pressures, he was taken out of Korea and lived in exile in the United States until February 1985. He returned to Seoul a few days before the election of the National Assembly, which ended with a partial triumph for the opposition party the New Korea Democratic Party. The two men called her the "two Kims" Kim Tae-chung, on the more radical wing, and the 57-year-old Kim Yong-sam, who upholds stances more conciliatory with the government are active in it "from the shadows."

Confined to his house in Seoul, deprived of his political freedoms, and in a situation of suspended sentence for the 17 years' imprisonment, Kim Tae-chung is watched by the police. The conversation with EL PAIS took place in the course of a typical South Korean dinner.

"Popular support for democracy has increased considerably in this country over the past few months," he said; "in particular," he added, "since the end of last year, when the government was resisting any attempt to revise the Constitution." "Now, thanks to popular pressure, it has had to agree to set up the special committee for reform"

Question: Does this represent a first step toward change?

Answer: Not really, because the government is attempting to ensure that it remains in power after 1988. In fact nothing has changed in this respect. That is why we ask and will continue to ask the people not to support this government until there are direct and free elections.

Question: Do you believe that the government will agree to such a demand?

Answer: No, I am certain that we will achieve our aim solely through the discussions in the constitutional committee. I am pessimistic, but we need this negotiation, because perhaps it will demonstrate once more this regime's rejection of political reform.

Question: What will be the opposition's attitude if it does not achieve the expected results in this committee?

Answer: In principle, we are giving a vote of confidence and do not intend to disrupt the work of the committee (whose conclusions should be known in September), or to hamper the holding in Seoul of the Asian Games, which will be held in the same month. After that date, if there is no satisfactory agreement, I am convinced that there will be further mass demonstrations.

Political Prisoners

Question: Does the opposition expect to secure an agreement on the issue of the release of the political prisoners?

Answer: I am not too optimistic on that point, either, because dozens of people here are systematically accused of being procommunist, although their ideologies or activities are no such thing. In this country, being an opponent of the regime is synonymous with being procommunist, especially in student or trade union circles. I believe that the Spanish people had a lengthy experience to this effect under Franco's dictatorship.

Question: With the difference that the South Koreans have a peninsula shared with North Korea and that, according to President Chon's government, there are many agents infiltrated into the south. Is this not so?

Answer: There is no evidence that the hundreds of detaninees have connections with North Korea, a regime which we South Koreans repudiate because of its system. It is true that there are also people with communist ideas in South Korea, but not necessarily among the radical groups opposed to Chon's dictatorship. It is the South Korean people's despair which has led to the protest, not the north's communism; it is the corruption, the dictatorship, the abuse of power, the lack of freedom, and the social injustice.

Question: However, it seems that there has been greater political flexibility and open-mindedness over the past few months, both in the press and in the Assembly's debates.

Answer: All the press, radio, and television are under government control. We live under a political system of despotism which engenders a reaction of violence which will not end if there are no political reforms, however much the government continues to detain students and workers.

Question: In Western diplomatic circles in Seoul there is talk of increasing popular hostility toward the U.S. Administration. What is you opinion on the matter?

Answer: The assessment is totally correct. Anti-American feeling is growing in this country, not only among the radical students but also among the people, because the United States supports the regime of Chon Tu-hwan, who would not have triumphed in his 1980 military coup without Washington's support. Many people also believe that the mobilization of Korean troops against the Kwangju demonstrators in 1980 would not have been possible without the consent of Washington (whose military presence in South Korea is 40,000 men comprised in a joint command). Some 2,000 people died at that time in a repression directed by General Chon, who has now become president of this country.

Question: Do you not believe that the Reagan Administration's stance has changed since Secretary of State George Shultz's recent visit to Seoul?

Answer: No, I do not believe that there is really a change of stance. It is true that the South Koreans were surprised by what happened in the Philippines, especially by the U.S. support for the change toward democracy. It is also true the Shultz made a gesture toward the opposition here, but at the same time reaffirming his staunchest support for the Chon Tu-hwan regime. We believe that he was mistaken.

Question: Do you believe that the U.S. stance is due to the danger represented by a possible conflict with North Korea?

Answer: Not completely, because the best way to defend ourselves is on the basis of a free and democratic society not of a military dictatorship. It must be pointed out that even before the war with North Korea we had a society with press freedom and there were direct elections for the presidency. Why have we lost all this now? At that time we had a per capita income of 60 dollars, and now it is over 2,000 dollars. Why should we not recover our democratic society now, with economic growth?

Military

Question: The military will have a considerable say, I imagine, in South Korea's political evolution. What is your opinion?

Answer: This country's citizens now have a high standard of education. We no longer need the military to run political and economic affairs, under the pretext that North Korea represents a constant danger and that we could not defend our sovereignty with a civilian and democratic governmnet. Moreover, the military are well aware that, although we criticize the United States and Japan, we know that they are our allies and that we need them in order to defend ourselves against the North Korean regime.

Question: What kind of political program does the opposition have?

Answer: We are in favor of strong support for the free market system, the basis of our economic development, but we wish to support it within the freedom for civil and political rights, respect for human rights, violated in South Korea today, and social justice, without any need for hundreds for hundreds of political detainees or of the circulation of blacklists among the enterprises which repress workers supporting democracy.

PRIME MINISTER WARNS AGAINST SLACKENED DISCIPLINE

[Text] Prime Minister No Sin-yong warned yesterday against the possible slackened discipline of public officials, who may take advantage of the relaxed social atmosphere amidst the constitutional revision campaigns.

In an instruction to the officials across the nation, the prime minister asserted, "all the officials should accomplish their duties, bearing in mind the significance of the current situation."

No went on, "Easy-going and negative attitudes of officials should be discarded so as not to impair the whole atmosphere of public organs."

No called upon senior officials of the various public organs to take the lead in discarding the negative and negligent attitudes to reform the atmosphere of their work places.

"They also should beef up moral education and scrape out the temptation to corruption and fraud among the officials." No said, "thus gaining public confidence for the officials," No added.

GOVERNMENT SPOKESMAN SUPPORTS DPRK PROPOSALS

OW030143 Ulaanbaatar MONTSAME in English 1734 GMT 2 Jul 86

[Text] Ulaanbaatar, July 2 (MONTSAME) -- Today, the MPR Foreign Affairs Ministry spokesman has made a statement here concerning the recent proposal made by the Government of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea to hold talks with the U.S.A. and South Korea on the issue of turning the Korean peninsula into a zone of peace, free from nuclear weapons. The statement says that "The proposal contains a just demand from the DPRK to the U.S.A. not to build up nuclear weapons in South Korea and to remove weapons already deployed there.

"The DPRK Government has committed itself to not testing, manufacturing and deploying nuclear weapons in its territory, and not permitting their transportation through its territory. In its attempts to gain military superiority over socialism and forces of national liberation, the U.S. administration is known to have a stake in turning the vast Asia-Pacific region into second, after Europe, spring-board of the pre-emptive nuclear-missile weapons. In this regard, special significance is attached to the deployment and build-up of nuclear arsenals in South Korea.

"Due to these circumstance's the making of the Korean peninsula into a non-nuclear zone acquires especial importance for lessening the nuclear menance both in the Asia-Pacific region and the world as a whole," the statement points out.

"The government of the Mongolian People's Republic and the Mongolian people supported and suppor all steps at strengthening peace and stability in Asia and the region of the Pacific Ocean, in particular those aimed at setting up non-nuclear and peace zones. Therefore, we vie the DPRK's new initiative as a constructive and timely move, as yet another telling evidence of its peaceloving foreign policy directed at relaxing the tension in the Korean peninsula, removing the nuclear threat and consolidating peace and stability in Asia.

The DPRK's proposal to hold tripartite talks of military leaders to discuss such questions as the stopping of miltary exercises and of the build-up of armed forces, numerical reduction of troops and armaments, strict observance of the agreement for truce in Korea, constitutes a logical supplement to the abovesaid proposal.

"The new initiatives of the DPRK Government are in the same vein with the peace initiatives of countries of the region, in particular with the proposal of our government to set up an international mechanism that would exclude the use of force in relations among the states of asia and the Pacific.

"The Mongolian people, together with other peaceloving forces, persistently demands from the Washington administration to heed the voice of reason and start, without delay, talks with the DPRK on the questions of withdrawing American troops and nuclear arsenals from the south of Korea and on turning the Korean peninsula into a non-nuclear zone of peace," the statement by the MPR Foreign Affairs Ministry spokesman concludes.

COUNCIL OF MINISTERS DISCUSSES ECONOMIC PLAN

[Text] Ulaanbaatar, 4 Jul (MONTSAME) -- The MPR Council of Ministers' sitting, held on 3 July, discussed the fulfillment of the MPR Economic and social development plan for the first half of 1986. P. Jasray, deputy chairman of the MPR Council of Ministers, chairman of the MPR State Planning Commission; D. Molomjamts, MPR Minister of Finance; and C. Molom, chairman of the MPR People's Control, read reports. Dumaagiyn Sodnom, Politburo member of the MPRP CC, chairman of the MPR Council of Ministers, also spoke at the sitting.

It was pointed out that successes were achieved in economic and cultural sphere and plan targets of the first half year were mainly fulfilled. The MPR Council of Ministers commissioned the leaders Aymag (province) and city organizations, the ministries and other departments to attentively analyse and take into account the businesslike and creative initiatives of the working people aimed at improving the quality and increasing the efficiency of economic planning in the Eighth five-year period.

STATISTICAL ADMINISTRATION NOTES HALF-YEAR GAINS

[Text] Ulaanbaatar, July 7 (MONTSAME) -- The report of the MPR Central Statistical Board (CSB) on the fulfillment of the MPR Economic and Social Development Plan for the first half of 1986 has been published here. It says that as a result of the wider launching of socialist emulation drive and selfless work, the country's working people have fulfilled plan targets of the first half of 1986 on the main indices.

According to CSB, by beginning of this July more than 8.9 million head of youngstock [as received] have been received and reared in the country which is, by almost 6 percent, higher than in the same period of the last year.

At present, about 600 thousand hectares have been sown under grain, 14 thousand hectares under potato and vegetables, and more than 146 thousand hectares under fodder crops in the country. Rural workers have started haymaking, irrigating pastures, and developing new virgin lands, the report notes.

The plan of realizing industrial output has been overfulfilled by 2 percent and the branch's plan on increasing the labour productivity by 6 percent. The production of industrial output has increased by 7.8 percent as against the same period of last year.

Plan targets in the field of transport, trade, and public services have been overfulfilled and work collectives in health protection, culture, and education have successfully worked. Eleven thousand young people graduated from higher educational and special secondary establishments in the 1985-1986 economic year at home and abroad, and 12 thousand girls and boys received workers' certificates at vocational technical schools, the report underscores.

PARLIAMENTARY GROUP FORMED DURING HURAL SESSION

OW070130 Ulaanbaatar MONTSAME in Russian 1406 GMT 2 Jul 86

[Text] Ulaanbaatar, 2 Jul (MONTSAME) -- The Mongolian Parliamentary Group was formed at the first session of the new convocation of the MPR People's Great Hural. At its first meeting Deputy D. Tubed, chief editor of the newspaper UNEN was elected chairman of the Mongolian Parliamentary Group Executive Committee, and Deputy L. Dzantab, chairman of the MPR State Information, Radio, and Television Committee, was elected deputy chairman.

GREAT HURAL ADOPTS RESOLUTION ON SERVICES

[Text] Ulaanbaatar, Jul 4 (MONTSAME) -- A resolution of the MPR Great People's Hural on the "further improvement of public services to the MPR population" has been published here. The document underscores that all-round improvement of the population's public services is one of the key questions of social development, which is in the centre of attention of the party and people's state. Over last 10 years, the basic assets of the branch have increased 4.5 times and the number of public service centres 4 times. At present more than 1,800 big and small centres rendering about 700 kinds of services functioning throughout the country.

The Great People's Hural has entrusted the MPR Council of Ministers to take measures to further expand the public service sphere, ensure an accelerated development of this branch of work. The Council of Ministers is also to take measures to work out the guidelines for the country's consumer service sphere development for the period ending in 2000.

PARTIES GREET HENG SAMRIN ON KPRP ANNIVERSARY

[Text] Phnom Penh SPK July 9 -- Heng Samrin, general secretary of the Peoples Revolutionary Party of Kampuchea Central Committee, has received messages from fraternal communist and workers parties greeting him on the P.R.P.K.'s 35th founding anniversary (June 28).

A message from the Central Committee of the Communist Party of Portugal praised the P.R.P.K.'s role in leading the Kampuchean people to victories over French colonialism, feudal regime, U.S. imperialism and over the cruel dictatorship of Pol Pot.

It says:

"The founding of the Peoples Republic of Kampuchea constitutes an event of great importance and significance not only for the peoples in Indochina and Southeast Asia but for people in the whole world as well."

The message concludes by expressing the Portuguese people's will to further consolidate the friendly relations between the two countries and peoples for the common cause of socialism and peace.

Message from the Central Committee of the Communist Party of Luxembourg highly hail the struggle waged by the Kampuchean communists under the difficult conditions to overcome heavy aftermath left by the barbarous regime of Pol Pot.

"The national revival," goes on the message, "after the horrible genocide of Pol Pot who claimed more than 3 million lives of the Kampuchean innocent people, is today a fact, and is also partly a fruition of the assistance from Vietnam. [no closing quotation mark as received]

A message from the Communist Party of Belgium says: "Our solidarity with the Kampuchean people in their long struggle for independence and freedom has been existed [as received] for a long time. We spare no efforts to promote this solidarity by demanding Belgium and the E.E.C. not support the remnants of Pol Pot clique and their accomplices."

A message from the Central Communist Party of the Socialist Party of Australia says that the contribution of the P.R.P.K. in titanic struggle for the salvation of the Kampuchean people from the murderous schemes of the Pol Pot clique and in building unity and solidarity among the three Indochinese peoples has see feat [as received] of historic significance.

"This unity and the Marxist-Leninist ideology by which the Peoples Revolutionary Party of Kampuchea is guided, provide the solid basis for the development of your state and the defeat of all interventionist plans of the U.S. imperialists and their collaborators," the message concludes.

DEMOCRATS URGED NOT TO NAME PRIME MINISTER

[Text] Democrat Leader Phichai Rattakun yesterday issued a set of election guidelines to all the party candidates, urging them to refrain from pledging support for a particular personality as the next prime minister in their election campaigns.

Phichai Rattakun told THE NATION that he circulated the guidelines just to "reaffirm" the democratic principles. He said it should not affect the election campaign by southern Democrats because, after all, they had promised they would not highlight Gen Prem Tinsulanon in their campaigns.

In Hat Yai, Democrat deputy leader Chuan Likphai said he had not received the circular and added that the southern candidates would adhere to the present campaign strategy.

But he added that emphasis has been placed on the party system.

Chuan and Vira Musikaphong, the party secretary general, chaired a meeting of about 15 southern Democrats to review the campaign strategy at the Sukhontha Hotel last night. The meeting was initially scheduled to start at 7 p.m. but was postponed to 9 p.m. Democrat sources told THE NATION that Chuan complained of the failure of some 30 southern Democrat candidates to show up at the meeting.

Democrat candidate in Songkhla Trairong Suwannakhiri arrived at the meeting as late as about 10 p.m. while PM's Office Minister Banyat Banthatthan failed to show up at all.

Phichai's election guidelines include the reaffirmation of the principle that if any party sweeps the majority House seats, it should take the reins of government and has its leader head the government. But if no party emerged as the majority party, then a coalition government must be formed and the partners will have to jointly choose the head of government in accordance with the Constitution, according to the five-point guidelines.

Southern Democrats have openly voiced support for Gen Prem as the party's choice of the post-election premier drawing critical remarks from Khanin Bunsuwan, a Bangkok candidate of the party and prompting the Bangkok candidates to come up with an agreement that the party must be the core of the coalition government if it emerges the biggest, if not the majority party.

Downplay Prem Ties

[Excerpts] Gen Prem Tinsulanon has become a major campaign theme for the Democrat Party. Party leader Phichai Rattakun was critical of the prime minister's indecisiveness in his campaign speech yesterday while deputy leader Marut Bunnak said that the people want an elected MP to lead the post-election government.

Speaking at a rally in Khon Kaen, Phichai vowed that he is ready to become prime minister if the party sweeps the most seats, though not the majority, in the House of Representatives in the July 27 general election. In an apparent allusion to Gen Prem, Phichai said the country needs strong and decisive leadership.

Democrat sources in Bangkok told THE NATION that many candidates were frustrated when frequently pressed to answer the question on the campaign trail: Will the party support Gen Prem? The party, they said, plans to step up efforts to dismiss speculation that the party will support Gen Prem as prime minister after the election. One move planned in this context is the forthcoming issuance of an official statement to clarify the party's stand on the question. The statement will refute an allegation in a poster put up by another political party which said if voters wanted Gen Prem they should elect the Democrats.

"We will make it clear in the statement that we have nothing to do with the election poster," said a source who asked not to be identified. [passage omitted]

In Bangkok, the Democrats said that the question about the party's stand towards Gen Prem was frequently posed to candidates running in the north, the northeast and the central regions. The south was an exception because of Gen Prem's popularity there and so, the southern candidates have to play on his popularity in their election campaigns, they said.

The sources said that the inquiries had prompted the Democrats to feel that they do not want Gen Prem as the next premier.

In an interview with THE NATION, Marut, a candidate in Bangkok, said the issue had become a serious campaign problem for the Democrats.

As a result, the party had to announce its stand on the question: Phichai must be made prime minister if the party becomes the majority in the House and if it becomes the biggest but not the Majority, the party must serve as the "core" of a coalition government.

"The party leader must negotiate with leaders of the political parties to join a coalition. If they fail to resolve the issue, the Democrats are ready to take the opposition position," he said.

He said that it was the right of the southern Democrats to support Gen Prem, but they had to follow the party resolution on the question as a matter of discipline. The executive committee and new MPS will make a final decision on the question after the election, according to Marut.

Deputy Democrat Leader Gen Han Linanon also supports Phichai's circular instructing Democrat candidates against pledging backing for a particular figure as prime minister during their campaign.

"All the Democrats should follow the instruction," he said.

He side-stepped a question on whether the party had "shut the door" on Gen Prem's rise to the head of government again. "It depends on the future," he said.

Han, a former Fourth Army Region commander, is running in the capital.

DEMOCRAT LEADER PHICHAI ON PARTY PLATFORM

[Text] Democrat leader Phichai Rattakun said last night his party will increase by 6,000 million baht the budget for the development funds.

Speaking on television about his party's platform, Phichai also said his party will try to create more jobs, raise the people's income through tax reduction, increase the budget for technology development to promote productivity and export, as well as improve the social welfare and quality of life.

He said the 34,000 million baht in development fund set by the current coalition government of which the Democrat Party is a partner is too limited. He said if the Democrats form the next government, it will increase the fund by 6,000 million bhat.

He told the audience that the Democrat Party has a policy to reduce the rates of six items: oil, electricity, water, personal income tax, interest on loans and trade deficit.

He said the domestic oil price will have to go down further because of the declining world oil prices.

On the party's farm policy, Phichai said there is a need to set up a national agriculture council to lay down a national agricultural policy.

He said the Democrats want to amend the laws to give more power to the Counter Corruption Commission and the Auditor's General which will be moved to Parliament.

On administrative policy, Phichai said his party will set up a 500-million-baht fund to assist the education for poor children in rural areas.

3 DEMOCRAT CANDIDATES ARRESTED FOR VOTE BUYING

[Excerpts] The son of Democrat Party leader Phichai Rattakun and two running mates have been charged with vote-buying, Police Director-General Gen Narong Mahanon said yesterday.

Dr Phichit Rattakun, Prida Kanoknak and Piam Limthong were arrested by Tha Rua police following a complaint lodged on Saturday by a Rak Thai Party candidate.

The Democrat team have been released on 100,000 baht bail each. [passage omitted]

Contacted last night, Dr Phichit denied he had given the slum dwellers' money. He said he was not carrying any money when he visited the slum last Saturday.

He also said candidates from another party who went to the same site on the same day and gave money to the fire victims had not been charged. [passage ommitted]

CHAT THAI, DEMOCRATS ON POSTELECTION ACCORD

[Text] A leading candidate of Chat Thai Party claimed last night that the Democrats have agreed to form a post-election government with his party under a condition that the prime minister must be an elected MP.

Speaking to THE NATION on the campaign trail in Songkhla, Pongphon Adireksan said the two parties had already made an agreement on the coalition.

Democrat leader Phiqhaw Rattakun, however, did not deny or confirm Pongphon's claim. He told THE NATION in Bangkok that his party does not reject Chat Thai Party in the post-election coalition which he said would comprise no more than three parties.

But he said the Democrats cannot get along with the Community Action Party of former deputy premier Bunchu Rotchanasathian because of the conflicting platforms.

Pongphon, who claimed that the Chat Thai Party would win at least 80 seats in the election, said Democrat and Chat Thai parties will discuss in principle the formation of the coalition after the poll.

He said there is a precondition that Gen Prem Tinsulanon would not be supported as the next prime minister.

Phichai has already started trying to delete the Democrat Party's image as a supporter of Prem. The Democrat leader has repeatedly declared that he was ready to be the next premier if his party won the majority in the election.

PARLIAMENT LEADER ON NAMING PREMIER AFTER POLLS

[Text] A prime minister will be appointed within 15 days after the upcoming general election, Parliament President Ukrit Mongkhonnawin said yesterday.

Ukrit told reporters that he will let political parties nominate the prime minister after the nationwide polls.

He said that in the past, the Parliament president resorted to either formal or informal sounding out of opinions among MPS as a means to pick a prime minister.

Informal sounding out was adopted the last time when all political parties nominated Gen Prem Tinsulanon, he said.

He said he would ask HM the King to consider approving the nomination. He said that the new House of Representatives will elect their speaker within seven days after the election.

Apart from the prime minister and the deputy prime ministers, the Parliament president will also be entitled to counter-sign a royal command. These people are responsible for the consequences of the command because the King can do no wrong, he said.

POLL SAYS BANGKOKIANS DO NOT WANT PREM

[Excerpt] The latest Democrat poll reveals that Progressive, Muanchon and Social Action [SAP] parties have become potential rivals in a race which was seen earlier as almost an exclusive contest between the Democrat and Prachakon Thai parties.

Muanchon candidates appeared to be doing well in Constituency Twelve (Phasicharoen and Bangkok Yai) with party leader Pol Capt Chaloem Yubamrung running neck-and-neck with the Democrat candidates, and Constituency 10 (Bangkhunthian) where the Muanchon candidates are closing up the gap with the Democrat team.

The Progressive Party is making rapid progress in Constituency Six (Yannawa) and Constituency Five (Huai Khwang, Khlong Toei and Klongton). The team in Yannawa is led by Decha Sukharom while the other is headed by Phongsak Raktaphongphaisal.

SAP leader ACM [Air Chief Marshal] Sitthi Sawetsila's popularity, meanwhile, has risen significantly in Constituency Two (Pomprap, Pathumwan Phra Nakhon, Samphanthawong and Bangrak).

Democrat sources who asked not to be identified told THE NATION that the change resulted from the imperssion that the Democrat Party supported Gan Prem Tinsulanon. Muanchon, meanwhile, stressed their opposition to Gen Prem while Progressive and SAP underscored support for their respective leaders as next prime minister in their election campaigns.

"Bangkokians just do not want Gen Prem to continue his premiership after the election," one Democrat said.

The poll was conducted late last month with 7,000 copies of a questionnarie sent out to eligible voters, excluding those residing in military zones. About 6,400 of them were returned to the party in the second poll conducted by the party for the July 27 general election. [passage omitted]

CHAT THAI LEADER ON PREM ECONOMIC PERFORMANCE

BK080911 Bangkok SIAM RAT in Thai 8 Jul 86 p 3

[Text] Speaking to SIAM RAT at the Chom Surang Hotel in Nakhon Ratchasima Province, Chat Thai party chief Major General Chatchai Chunhawan said he sympathized with Prime Minister General Prem Tinsulanon for having an economic team and technocats which are not sufficiently competent to solve national economic problems. Gen Prem was also unlucky, and economic problems will continue to grow for the new government to tackle.

Chatchai said "Prem's economic team solved economic problems by trying to catch up with the world economy, destroying the national economy in the process. A good economic team must lead or keep pace with the world economy to be successful. How could it allow the tantalum plant be set ablaze?"

Chatchai said "It is impossible for a prime minister to be knowledgeable about everything; once he assigns a duty to someone, that person must be held responsible. But the government economic team was incompetent and did not have any luck, which was why the problems occurred."

Chatchai said he thinks a lineup of individuals who could be the next prime minister is Gen Prem, Phichai Rattakun, Air Chief Marshal Sitthi Sawetsila, Buntheng Thongsawat, Gen Thianchai Sirisamphan, and Bunchu Rotchanasathian. Asked if he could be a dark horse in the prime minister's race, Chatchai said "no way, I always make my intentions public. I am not a dark horse."

Chatchai noted history shows that the military has been instrumental in stability of past governments. But he does not know how the military will act after the coming election. It will support a good government but not a bad government.

BUNCHU ANNOUNCES COMMUNITY ACTION PARTY PLATFORM

[Text] Leader of the Community Action Party (CAP) Bunchu Rotchanasathian last night pledged to expand irrigational networks for the whole country, build at least 300,000 housing units for the poor yearly, and create jobs for millions of the rural people.

Speaking on his party's platform on television, Bunchu also proposed what he described as a "weapon-free zone" in the tourist provinces to promote tourism in the country.

The former premier said the most pressing problem facing the country now in unemployment.

"The government may use as much as 10,000 million baht to excavate canals throughout the country to create jobs for the rural people," said Bunchu, who was closely associated with the much-publicized "tambon fund" during the Khukrit Goverment in 1975.

Bunchu said his party has a policy to build cheap housing units for the poor and such a project may require as much as 50,000 million baht annually.

On farm policy, Bunchu said his party will try to help farmers increase their per rai productivity. He said CAP will support a project to build barns to store paddy throughout the country and increase the farmer's bargaining power with the middlemen.

Meanwhile, former House Speaker Uthai Phimchaichon said while campaigning in Chonburi yesterday that he was concerned by what he described as the "financial influence" of some other candidates in the eastern province.

Uthai, who is the leader of the Progressive Party, said money was being used to buy votes in the province by one of the parties.

However, Uthai said he was not afraid of the influence of Somchai Khunplum, better known as "Kamnan Po" who is known to be supporting certain candidates in the election. Somchai resigned as kamnan last week after he was criticized for being partial in his duty.

SOCIAL ACTION PARTY EXPECTS TO WIN 70 SEATS

[Text] A poll conducted by the Social Action Party (SAP) shows that party leader ACM [Air Chief Marshal] Sitthi Sawetsila, Democrat deputy leader Marut Bunnak and former city clerk Chalo Thammasiri are now ahead of the other candidates running in Constituency Two in Chinatown in Bangkok.

SAP sources told THE NATION that the party hopes to win a maximum of five seats in Bangkok in the July 27 general election.

Other hopefuls include Lt Gen Withun Yasawat who is expected to win a sizable number of votes from the military voters in Constituency One. Withun concentrates on campaigning among civilian voters, particularly slum dwellers.

The poll was conducted late last month in certain constituencies.

As for Constituency Two (Pomprap, Pathumwan, Bangrak, Phra Nakhon and Samphanthawong), the poll shows that Sitthi was the most popular candidate, closely followed by Public Health Minister Marut while Chalo, Sitthi's running mate, was rated third and Dr Kasem Sirisamphan, also a candidate on the SAP ticket, came fourth.

The other two candidates on the Democrat ticket are Khanin Bunsuwan and M.L. Seri Pramot.

SAP sources explained that Chalo came third because he has his personal support in Pathumwan. SAP's traditional base of support covers Bangrak, Phra Nakhon and Samphanthawong while the other two districts are regarded as the Democrat's stronghold.

Another poll conducted by Democrat Party late last month, however, shows that Marut, Sitthi and Khanin are the front runners in the constituency. Sitthi dismissed the Democrat poll and told THE NATION that he believed all the SAP candidates stand a high chance of winning.

But he admitted that Marut had solid support in the constituency. Sitthi said that Chalo and he have been campaigning together but Dr Kasem is campaigning separately. "But I don't think the tactic does any harm. Dr Kasem has his own connections and, therefore, it will be useful for him to do so," he said.

Reliable SAP sources also told THE NATION that the party expected to win at least 35 seats in the Northeast and a maximum of nine in the North. For the South, the party expects to win fewer than 10.

But acting SAP secretary general Montri Phongphanit told a news conference that the party expects to win up to about 70 seats in the upcoming general election.

He said that about seven to ten SAP candidates will win in the Bangkok contest. About 20 others running in the South and 15 contesting in the North are expected to make it into the House or Representatives.

DAILY CITES JAPANESE ON MONEY AID TO CANDIDATES

BK031129 Bangkok MATICHON in Thai 3 Jul 86 p 2

[Text] MATICHON has learned that officials at the Japanese Embassy and Japanese journalists in Thailand were excited by a report quoting education Minister Chuan as saying in an interview that Japanese businessmen had provided financial support for some candidates in the general election. Japanese newsmen reportedly called each other to cross-check Chuan's statement and discussed its possible consequences. Japanese news agencies here filed the report to their headquarters in Japan.

JIJI news agency quoted Japanese charge d'affaires (Yamashita) as saying that the matter had nothing to do with the Japanese Government and that the Japanese Embassy here had not received any report from the Thai Government. He added the Japanese Government would not interfere in nor would it provide financial support to any political party in Thailand.

A source said: "Officials at the Japanese Embassy are not happy with the report and they take it seriously because it can affect their country's image."

POLICE TO KEEP PEACE ON ELECTION DAY

BK080115 Bangkok BANGKOK POST in English 8 Jul 86 p 2

[Text] Over 7,000 policemen will be mobilised to maintain peace and order in Bangkok on election day, acting Metropolitan Police Commissioner Pol Lt-Gen Samnao Withitworakan revealed yesterday.

He said a police election centre was set up on May 22 and will remain in existence until the end of the election process to ensure peace and security.

Two policemen will be assigned to man each of the 2,850 election units throughout Bangkok.

A total of 759 policemen will make up mobile teams of about 10 men each. They will be attached to various police stations and will be sent out to trouble spots from there.

A 30-strong special police force and 300 strong Crime Suppression Division unit will also be vigilant and will despatch reinforcements if necessary.

Six bomb disposal units, three from the Border Patrol Police and three from the Police Quartermaster Division, will also be on alert.

Pol Lt-Gen Samnao warned that as part of the preparations for the elections police will set up checkpoints to examine ID cards from July 12 onwards.

Police have been laying down security plans as well as providing protection to candidates and cracking down on criminals and hired gunmen since May 22, he added.

Meanwhile Third Region Provincial Police Commissioner Pol Lt-Gen Niyom Kanchenawat said about 19,000 policemen would be deployed at polling stations in the northern provinces to ensure a clean election.

Rapid deployment units backed up helicopters would also be on alert at police stations to help policemen in the field in case of emergencies on the election day, he said.

Elsewhere provincial governors from the central region have urged the Interior Ministry to study why general election candidates' campaigning tactics have changed.

Interior Minister Sitthi Chirarot was told by governors from eight provinces that they had noted a significant change in candidates' campaigning styles.

Instead of using Hyde Park style rallies, candidates now seem to be trying to reach voters either directly or through their canvassers, the minister was told.

Pathum Thani Governor Chuwong Chayabut told Gen Sitthi a survey should be conducted to find out why this was happening.

He said at least five political parties registered to contest the polls in the province had not launched political campaigns or put up posters. Most candidates preferred to reach voters through their canvassers, he said.

MINISTER DENIES MOVES TO PERSECUTE CANDIDATES

[Text] The United Democratic Party [UDP], claiming to be the victim of harassment and persecution, yesterday threatened to sue Finance Ministry Permanent Secretary Phanat Simasathian for allegedly abusing his authority.

The threat came as a UDP candidate for Chiang Mai was booked on a 3.8-million-baht fraud charge.

UPD leader Buntheng Thongsawat sent a letter to Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanon demanding "justice" and an investigation into the motives behind the Krung Thai Bank's legal action against Tamchai Khamphato and the investigation of dud cheque charges against Col Phon Roengprasoetwit.

The former deputy premier said his party would take decisive legal steps and "fight until the end".

In his letter to Gen Prem, Mr Buntheng claimed that Mr Tamchai and Col Phon, who are running in Uthai Thani Province, were victims of a persecution campaign directed at them.

He alleged that the legal moves had confused the public and fomented hatred against the party, which is fielding 275 candidates.

Mr Buntheng said the legal action, which should have been initiated a long time ago, was the work of certain Finance Ministry officials who were defying Gen Prem's orders to be neutral.

Party spokesman Saman Chomphuthep said that Permanent Secretary Phanat had ignored pleas from the UDP leadership to postpone the legal action.

As a result, he said, election rivals were capitalising on the UDP's problems, but their verbal attacks were being taped in the provinces of Chiang Mai, Chiang Rai, Lampang and Mae Hong Son to be used as evidence in a lawsuit.

Mr Saman claimed that Mr Phanat had abused his authority because his decision to take legal action against the two candidates damaged the party's election prospects.

A lawsuit filed earlier by Mr Tamchai against Mr Phanat was dismissed by the Criminal Court on the grounds that it failed to adequately explain itself.

Mr Saman said a new lawsuit would be filed this week.

Finance Minister Sommai Huntrakun said yesterday that he considered the action against Mr. Tamchai an internal affair of the Krung Thai Bank.

Mr. Sommai said the moves were not an attempt to persecute the former Krung Thai Bank president, nor were they timed to coincide with the election. Investigators, he said, might have only just now gathered enough evidence to make their move.

Meanwhile, Crime Suppression Division police said another UDP candidate and five other people have been charged with swindling 3.8 million baht in government funds.

Superintendent Pol Lt-Col Ongat Narumonrat alleged that sufficient prosecution evidence existed to act against Sayom Ramasut, and five others, and said that arrest warrants could be expected by July 20.

The superintendent said the two-time MP for Chiang Mai faced charges of fraudulently obtaining funds which were intended to enable the Marketing Organisation for Farmers to stabilise prices by buying farm produce.

GOVERNMENT STILL SUPPORTS TANTALUM PROJECT

BK080655 Bangkok BANGKOK POST in English 8 Jul 86 p 3

[Text] The riot-damaged Phuket Merlin Hotel is to get extended investment privileges and special long-term loans, a government team decided yesterday.

PM's (Prime Minister's) Office Minister Michai Ruchuphan said the privileges, under the Board of Investment were to have expired this year. The extension would help the hotel recoup some business.

The Government is to also consider allocating a special budget in addition to low-interest, long-term loans to be considered by the state-owned Krung Thai Bank.

The hotel asked the Government for about 50 million baht in special assistance to repair riot damage but Mr Michai said officials had yet to determine if that amount was "reasonable".

The Krung Thai Bank was assigned yesterday to study the hotel's loan request, and Mr Michai said the loans to be raised from the central fund would be interest-free.

The team yesterday also appointed a working group to consider Thailand Tantalum Industry Corporation Ltd's request for government assistance.

The Boi would consider investment privileges for the firm while the working group would look into details of the company's request.

The minister said the team could not consider the firm's requests yesterday because there were several parties involved in the project.

Mr. Michai said the Government still supported the project, but whether the plant would be allowed to be rebuilt would depend on the outcome of the environmental impact studies now being conducted.

PHUKET RIOT MASTERMINDS TO FACE ACTION

[Text] Authorities have identified the masterminds of the Phuket riot on June 23 and action will be taken against them, Interior Minister Sittbi Chirarot said this morning.

Although Gen Sitthi declined to disclose their identities, he was informed on latest developments in the investigation into the tantalum riot during a meeting with Police Chief Gen Narong Mahanon yesterday morning.

Speaking to reporters, Gen Sitthi categorically denied reports suggesting that Phuket police superintendent Pol Col Amarit Amatayakun and Muang District police chief inspector Pol Lt-Col Thawat Butsai would be transferred.

He expressed sympathy with Pol Col Amarit, saying he was not the only person to blame in that situation.

Asked if the tantalum plant might be relocated in Surat Thani Province, Gen Sitthi said this was the idea of only one person and there was as yet no decision since Industry Minister Chirayu Itsarangkun na Ayutthaya was still consulting with concerned parties.

The question was raised after Suwar Thani Lord Mayor Prawit Ninwacharamani said he would welcome a relocation of the plant to his province.

At the same time, Gen Sitthi said he personally saw nothing wrong with Channel 9's airing of the interview given by the Phuket Merlin Hotel owner Mrs Nanthana Wongsatayanan who gave a moving account of her misfortune.

Gen Sitthi said he had instructed the newly-appointed Phuket; Governor Kat Rakmani to visit Mrs Nanthana to boost her morale.

Governor Kat arrived at the island province yesterday and pledged to restore the peace and good name of Phuket as soon as possible.

Meanwhile, Industry Minister Chirayu said the committee appointed to study the tantalum question yesterday discussed mainly environmental issues with the Thailand Tantalum Industry Corporation Board Chairman B.J. Hill.

During an earlier meeting on Tuesday, Mr Hill submitted a letter to Dr Chirayu asking the Government to help find sources for a 965-million-baht loan with low interest.

He also requested government help to continue to contract to purchase tin slag from the Thailand Smelting and Refinery Col. (THAISARCO) and to obtain permission to sell it so as to generate income to repay debts.

Mr Hill said the company would conduct a feasibility study for the building of a new tantalum plant -- not in Phuket -- that will comply with the Government's policy.

He also asked for promotional privileges for the company to invest in the new plant, including exemption of import duties on raw material and machines.

In Phuket, a group of New Force Party led by Patthalung candidate, Samat Maliloet went to visit Rewut Chindphon a party candidate in Phuket who was arrested over the weekend for alleged involvement in the riot last week.

He said they had come to consult Rewut over a plant to help him campaign as the suspect would have no chance to campaign. He said the rights of police to detain Rewut would expire tomorrow. A group of kamnans and village headmen of Phuket this morning issued a statement expressing regret over the incident.

In the statement it said that there would not be rallies on July 2 and July 6 and there would not be a rally for the release of the riot suspects or an attempt to abduct them.

They also vowed to support the general election and would not become a tool of any political party.

PROBE ON RIOT 'INVALID'; POLICE TO REPROBE

BK070724 Bangkok BANGKOK WORLD in English 7 Jul 86 p 3

[Text] Police yesterday declared invalid the investigation of 53 persons arrested during the riot in Phuket last month and would re-start the interrogation, it was reported.

The report said that head of the investigation committee, Assistant Commissioner of Provincial Police Zone 4 Pol Maj-Gen Suthep Chatana, abolished the previous investigation at a meeting with his team yesterday.

Pol Maj-Gen Suthep reasoned that the file was prepared imperfectly.

One of the main points in the imperfection of the probe was that the investigation failed to identify the policemen who arrested each suspect.

As a result of the abolition of the previous investigation, the investigators will re-start questioning the suspects and make a new investigation file, the report said.

SITTHI DEFENDS REMOVAL OF PHUKET GOVERNOR

BK010245 Bangkok THE NATION in English 1 Jul 86 p 2

[Text] Minister Gen Sitthi Chirarot said yesterday the removal of Phuket Governor Sanong Rotphothong was aimed to end conflicts within the southern province which has been torn by the rioting over the tantalum plant last week.

Sitthi said the governor's removal will not affect the local authorities' preparations for the July 27 general election.

Sitthi said the Interior Ministry had taken into account all aspects concerned before deciding to replace Sanong who is blamed for failing to stop the rioting on Jun 23. But the minister declined to comment on a report that Sanong may resign from the government service.

The minister also said that whether Sanong will be investigated over the incident depends on Interior Permanent Secretary Phisan Munlasatsathon. He denied that Sanong's transfer was made under pressure from the military.

Phisan yesterday had a meeting with Sanong at the Interior Ministry. Phisan said he gave no specific assignments to the former governor who has been transferred to assume an inactive post in the ministry.

Phisan said Sanong did not mention about the report that he was planning to resign. He also said that he had set up a committee to probe the rioting incident to find out its real cause.

Sanong later told reporters that Phisan had asked him to take a rest. "He said we would talk again when my tension eases," he said.

He evaded a question on the report about his plan to resign. "Let me have a rest first," he said.

Stressing that there is an urgent need among all parties concerned to restore tourist industry in Phuket which was badly shaken by the incident. Sitthi said: "What we should immediately do now is to revive Phuket's economy which is important to the country's economic development."

Sitthi said the election in Phuket will be held without any disruption. "From now on, I will devote myself to the upcoming election," he said.

Meanwhile, newly-appointed Phuket Governor Kat Rakmani said he will do his best to bring back the province's image as one of the country's most beautiful and tranquil tourist resorts.

Speaking to reporters after a meeting with Sitthi, Kat said he would join hands with provincial authorities and residents in Phuket to restore normalcy on the island. "I don't expect any troubles with officials in the province because, as a former inspector general, I am not a new comer to them," he said.

He said he had been informed about the tantalum controvery while he was inspector general.

MAGAZINE LINKS PHUKET RIOT WITH U.S. PLANS

BK091022 Bangkok SU ANAKHOT in Thai 2-8 Jul 86 pp 10-13

[Cover story: "The Phuket Riot -- A Plan to Foil the U.S.-Thai Secret Strategy"]

[Excerpts] [Passage omitted] A high-level source in government intelligence circles has disclosed that Prime Minister General Prem Tinsulanon has instructed officials concerned to accelerate the probe into the root cause of the riot in Phuket Province. He said that one theory is that the incident is related to the U.S. plan to use Thailand's Phuket island to serve its defense strategy in this part of the world. He noted that the United States has been lobbying Thailand on three major issues, namely, 1. The setting up of the Thai-U.S. war reserve stockpile [WRS]; 2. The opening of a new rest and recreation area for U.S. navymen in this region; and 3. The tantalum smelting plant, which had direct connections with the U.S. defense strategy.

The WRS scheme was at first believed to have been scrapped. However, there are indications that the plan is still underway. During the meeting of ASEAN foreign ministers in Manila a few days ago, Deputy Prime Minister Air Chief Marshal Sitthi Sawetsila held talks with U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz. The WRS was one of the topics discussed. The U.S. side will send a team here to study the cost and details of the project and Thailand has agreed to pay for the construction of the facility and the land. The site for the WRS was also mentioned during the meeting. It is unlikely that Sattahip would be selected for the WRS despite the good communications and transportation facilities. This is because the place is vulnerable to enemy attack. So, they talked about the former U.S. base, Friendship Camp, in Nakhon Ratchasima Province where the United States once had an ammunition depot.

A top secret report says that the United States had chosen Phuket. However, before the WRS can be built on the island, other projects have to be launched first, otherwise there might be strong objections. The possibility of having the WRS in Phuket must also be considered along with the following issues.

Because of frequent visits to Pattaya resort by U.S. warships, the United States reportedly wants to open a new r&r area for its navy men on Phuket island because the island is more accessible to U.S. warships operating in nearby oceans.

Regarding the tantalum plant, tantalum is a strategic ore which is used to produce rocket parts and weapons. The United States' tantalum consumption is remarkably high.

The aforementioned three issues are obviously related to each other. The United States sees Phuket as the most suitable site for such projects.

Is It a Plan To Foil the U.S. Strategy?

Certain foreign interest groups are believed to be involved in the incident. Various environmental groups participating in the mass protest against the tantalum plant were suspected of having contacts with the German Green Party, a political group active in environmental protection but financially supported by a superpower. In most cases the party opposes U.S. technology and strategy in all parts of the world.

According to a military intelligence report, two representatives, a man and a woman, of the Green Party entered Thailand in early April to work with certain Thai human rights groups in providing assistance for farmers whose farmlands were appropriated by the military in Phayuhakhiri District of Nakhon Sawan Province. The Green Party was reported to have given 5,000 marks to the farmers' struggle against the evacuation order.

It was also reported in early June that an amount of money was brought into the country from the Soviet Union to help Thai farmers who are now facing the problem of falling rice prices. [passage omitted]

The construction of the tantalum plant started with official permission years ago. The multi-billion baht project has received promotional privileges from the government and was about to begin operations. Its destruction has brought about a negative image for the government.

Even before the flames of madness at the plant were extinguished, many observers said that investment in Thailand had come to an end and the impact of the riot would be felt decades from now.

Politically speaking, the incident will affect the formation of the new government after the upcoming general election.

The future of investment in Thailand is as dark as that of Gen Prem's government. The future of the tantalum plant is still uncertain, but with only 60 percent of the plant damaged, it can be revived somewhere else, although certainly not in Phuket.

The riot in Phuket Province, whether it was caused by conflicts at the local or superpower levels, has given off tremendously destructive repercussions. Industry Minister Chirayu said: "They can even destroy the country."

DAILY SAYS SUPREME COMMAND FACES ABOLITION

BK081048 Bangkok BAN MUANG in Thai 7 Jul 86 pp 1, 16

[Text] According to a report from the Defense Ministry, the Supreme Command -- a unit under the Defense Ministry headed by the supreme commander -- will be dissolved at the end of the 1986 fiscal year, leaving the Office of Military Chief of Staff, which is commanded by the military chief of staff, to coordinate the work of the three armed forces.

Units currently under the Supreme Command and the staff of the Supreme Command will come under the Office of the Military Chief of Staff. Dissolution of the Supreme Command will terminate the posts of supreme commander and deputy supreme commander. General Athit Kamlang-ek, the current supreme commander who will retire at the end of Septemer, will be the last supreme commander.

The report said work on the proposed dissolution of the Supreme Command has been going on for nearly a year. Gen Athit was among the initiators of the proposal and agreed that coordination and the task of advising the three armed forces can be effectively performed by the Office of the Military Chief of Staff because the military chief of staff already performs his function for the three armed forces.

The dissolution of the Supreme Command will effectively terminate the posts of supreme commander and deputy supreme commander. The current supreme commander and two deputy supreme commanders will retire this year, leaving only Admiral Supha Kotchaseni, who will probably either receive ministry adviser's post or be attached to the Defense Ministry. The dissolution of the Supreme Command must be approved by the Defense Council and then acknowledged by the cabinet. This process is expected to be completed soon.

Meanwhile, the Army reportedly will make a major reshuffle of its senior officers before the reshuffle season in September. Among those anticipated for promotion in the early reshuffle is 1st Army Region Commander Lieutenant General Phichit Kunlawanit, who will become general as assistant Army commander; Special Warfare Command Commander Lt Gen Sunthon Khongsomphong, who will become general as assistant army commander; 4th Army Region Commander Lt Gen Wanchai Chitchamnong, who will become general as deputy Army commander; 2d Army Region Commander Phisit Hemabut, who will become general probably as deputy military chief of staff; Deputy Military Chief of Staff Gen Suraphon Bannakitsophon will become military chief of staff, replacing retiring Gen Banchop Bunnak; Major General Yutthana Yaemphan, deputy 1st Army Region commander, will be moved up to commander; Maj Gen Sanan Sawetserani, deputy commander of the Special Warfare Command, will be moved up to commander; and either Maj Gen Surat Inthasiri or Maj Gen Itsaraphong Nunphakdi -- both are deputy commanders of the 2d Army Region -- will be moved up to commander.

The Navy, which has never had reshuffle problems, will see most of its admirals retire this year. Adm Thada Ditthabanchong, commander of naval operations, will certainly become Navy commander.

Army Commander Gen Chawalit Yongchaiyut has said often that he was determined to make this year's Army reshuffle fair and that every promotion will be made in accordance with proper procedures. This system of promotion will create confidence among his subordinates. For this reason, this year's Army reshuffle will have no out-of step promotions.

DAILY REPORTS ON UPCOMING ARMY SHUFFLE

BK090219 Bangkok THE NATION in English 9 Jul 86 pp 1, 2

[By Phongsak Sisot]

[Text] Deputy Supreme Commander Adm Supha Khotchaseni is tipped to succeed outgoing Supreme Commander Gen Athit Kamlang-ek in a new military line-up to be announced very soon. The forthcoming announcement on the annual military reshuffle is seen as an unprecedented move and in the light of the upcoming general election.

With the exception of the appointment of the new supreme commander, the announcement will take effect in October as was the case in the previous years.

In a related development, the Defence Ministry last week shelved a proposal to restructure the Supreme Command with the termination of the top posts of supreme commander and his deputies.

Military sources told THE NATION that the sign that Adm Supha will succeed Gen Athit, due to retire at the end of August, came about last month when Commander-in-Chief of the Pacific Area Command (CINPAC) Adm Ronald J. Hays invited him to Hawaii, the seat of the largest overseas combined forces command of the United States.

Military sources said that the Americans told him that the invitation was an exceptional case since it was genuinely an American initiative. Adm Supha was given a warm welcom during the visit from June 8-12.

The list has been put forward to Gen Prem Tinsulanon who is expected to convey it to HM the King, who arrived in the capital from the Klai Kangwon Royal Palace in Hua Hin yesterday, very soon. The announcement is expected either this week or next week.

Military sources told the THE NATION that Deputy Armed Forces Chief-of-Staff Gen Suraphon Bannakitsophon and Gen Wisitphon Wongthai, chief of the supreme commander's staff, were tipped as candidates to take over as armed forces chief-of-staff, replacing Gen Banchop Bunnak, due to reach his mandatory retirement age of 60 in October.

Tipped to take over as deputy army commander-in-chief is either Fourth Army Region Commander Lt Gen Wanchai Chitchamnong or Special Warfare Unit Commander Lt Gen Sunthon Khongsomphong, dubbed "Big George" in the military circles. If Lt Gen Wanchai missed the post, he will be appointed deputy armed forces chief-of-staff. But if it is the other case, Lt Gen Sunthon will be made assistant army commander-in-chief along with First Army Region Commander Lt Gen Phichit Kunlawanit.

Acting Army Chief-of-Staff Lt Gen Wanchai Ruangtrakun has been nominated as army chief-of-staff carrying the rank of a full general.

If Lt Gen Sunthon was made deputy army commander-in-chief, Second Army Region Commander Lt Gen Phisit Hemabut will be named the other assistant army commander-in-chief. Either Assistant Army Chief-of-Staff for Operations Lt Gen Suchinda Khraprayun or Assistant Army Chief-of Staff for Civilian Affairs Lt Gen Charuai Wongsayan or both are tipped to rise to the post of deputy army chiefs-of staff.

In the latter case, Deputy Army Chief-of-Staff Lt Gen Charat Wongsayan will be moved across to the Supreme Command to take over a post carrying the rank of a full general.

Other changes included:

-- First Army Region Deputy Commander Maj Gen Yuthana Yaemphan to succeed Lt Gen Phichit as First Army Region commander.
-- Second Army Region Deputy Commander Maj Gen Surat Inthasiri is tipped to succeed Lt Gen Phisit if the latter is replaced.

-- Third Army Region Deputy Commander Maj Gen Chaichana Tharichat is tipped to succeed Lt Gen Ruamsak Chaikomin, who is due to retire in October from the top post at the regional army.
-- Maj Gen Wisit Atkhumwong or Maj Gen Panya Singsakda are strong candidates to the post of Fourth Army Region commander.
-- Deputy Commander of the Special Warfare Unit Maj Gen Sanan Sawetserani is tipped to succeed Lt Gen Sunthon Khongsomphong.
-- First Division Commander Maj Gen Wimon Wongwanit will be made deputy commander of the Special Warfare Unit while either Second Special Warfare Division Commander Maj Gen Watthana Sanphanit or Deputy First Division Commander Col Bandit Malaiarisun will succeed Maj Gen Wimon.

Deputy Defence Minister ACM [Air Chief Marshal] Phaniang Kantarat told reporters yesterday that he expected the announcement of the annual military shake-up to come about within this month.

He denied knowledge of the reasons behind the early announcement. But military sources said that the move was tailored to ensure that possible political changes after the July 27 general election would not affect military affairs.

The sources also said that Gen Banchop last month put forward a proposal to eliminate the four top posts at the Supreme Command to the Defence Ministry. The proposed restructuring follows the organizational structure of the U.S. armed forces headed by the chairman of the joint chief-of-staff.

In the American system, the president is ex-officio supreme commander.

But the Defence Ministry returned the proposal to the Supreme Command last week for re-consideration. The sources said that the restructuring cannot be effected until Adm Supha retires next year. Such a move, the sources said, needs an amendment of the existing law.

ANNUAL MEETING WITH SRV, LAO AIRLINES HELD

BK040918 Bangkok Voice of Free Asia in Thai 1030 GMT 30 Jun 86

[Text] Thai Airways Company, Vietnam's and Laos' Airlines last week held the 8th annual meeting at the auditorium of the Thai Airways head office. The results of the meeting were satisfactory to all parties. The tripartite meeting is held annually for the three airlines to find joint solutions to any aviation problems in their bid to catch up with the current market demand as well to improve their services.

Thai Airways proposed an additional Bangkok-Hanoi-Bangkok flight every Monday to be operated alternatively with Vietnam's Airlines from November on a trial basis. At present, Thai Airways flies a weekly Wednesday flight to Hanoi while Vietnam's airline flies a weekly Friday flight to Bangkok.

The Lao airline is now flying Bangkok-Vientiane-Bangkok flights every Monday and Saturday. The Monday flight will be moved to Tuesday beginning 5 August. Thai Airways continues to operate its weekly Tuesday Bangkok-Vientiane-Bangkok flight.

The funeral committee includes, among others, Truong Chinh, member of the CPV Central Committee Political Bureau and chairman of the Council of State, and Pham Van Dong, member of the CPV Central Committee Political Bureau and chairman of the Council of Ministers.

The state funeral will take place in Hanoi on 15 July.

Communique on Le Duan's Death

OW101151 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 1100 GMT 10 Jul 86

[Communique on the death of Le Duan, general secretary of the CPV Central Committee, issued by the Communist Party of Vietnam Central Committee, the National Assembly, the Council of State, the Council of Ministers, and the Presidium of the VFF Central Committee.

[Text] The CPV Central Committee, the National Assembly, the Council of State, the Council of Ministers, and the Presidium of the VFF Central Committee are boundlessly grieved to announce that Comrade Le Duan, general secretary of the CPV Central Committee, passed away at 0330 on 10 July 1986 [2030 GMT on 9 July] after a period of serious illness. He was 79. [age as received]

During Comrade Le Duan's serious illness, our party and state cared for him, sending a contingent of competent professors and doctors with adequate facilities to wholeheartedly treat him. But Comrade Le Duan, in advanced age and seriously ill, has departed from us.

During the nearly 60 years of his revolutionary activities, his absolute loyalty to Marxism-Leninism and to the interests of the fatherland and the people, Comrade Le Duan devoted his entire life to national liberation and reunification, and to advancing our entire country toward socialism.

A prominent disciple of President Ho Chi Minh, Comrade Le Duan was an eminent leader of our party and people, and a stalwart combatant of the international communist movement, the workers' movement and the national independence movement.

Comrade Le Duan's passing away is a great loss to our party and people. To show their remembrance of and gratitude to Comrade Le Duan, a joint meeting of the SRV CPV Central Committee, National Assembly, Council of State, Council of Ministers, and Presidium of the VFF Central Committee have decided:

1. To organize national funerals for him with solemn rites of our country;

2. To have our entire party, people, and Army mourn for Comrade Le Duan for 5 days, from 11 July to 15 July 1986.

During these grievous days, the CPV Central Committee, National Assembly, Council of State, Council of Ministers of the SRV, and Presidium of the VFF Central Committee call on our entire party, people, and Army to translate grief into revolutionary actions, strengthen solidarity and singlemindedness around the party Central Committee, and devote all of their spirit and force to successfully building socialism and firmly defending the Socialist Vietnamese fatherland.

Emulating Comrade Le Duan, let all cadres and party members develop their role as exemplary vanguards; endeavor in their work, study, and training; unceasingly enhance their revolutionary qualities and capabilities; and accomplish well all of their duties. Let our entire party make the best preparations for the Sixth CPV Congress. Let our entire people and Army whip up a seething revolutionary movement, promote production, practice thrift, stand ready to fight and fight well, and make worthy contributions to advancing our country's revolutionary undertaking to new successes. Let us commemorate Comrade Le Duan with practical revolutionary actions.

[Dated] Hanoi, 10 July 1986

[Signed] The CPV Central Committee, the SRV National Assembly, the SRV Council of State, the SRV Council of Ministers, and the Presidium of the VFF Central Committee

Funeral Committee Named

BK101130 Hanoi International Service in English 1115 GMT 10 Jul 86

[Text] Special announcement of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of Vietnam, the State Council, the Council of Ministers and the Presidium of Vietnam Fatherland Front Central Committee.

The Central Committee of the Communist Party of Vietnam, National Assembly, the Council of State, the Council of Ministers, and the Presidium of the Central Committee of the Vietnam Fatherland Front is deeply grieved to announce that comrade Le Duan, general secretary of the Communist Party of Vietnam Central Committee passed away at 0330 hours on 10 July, 1986 after a period of serious illness at the age of 79.

During his illness our party and state gave him devoted care and sent a team of excellent professors and physicians with modern medical equipment to take care of him. But because of his great illness and old age, he passed us forever.

In nearly 60 years of revolutionary activities, absolutely loyal to Marxism-Leninism, the interest of the country and people, Comrade Le Duan has contributed his whole life to the cause of national liberation and reunfication, bring [as heard] the entire country to socialism. As an outstanding pupil of President Ho Chi Minh, Comrade Le Duan is an imminent leader of our party and people, a staunch fighter of the international communist and worker's movements, and the movement for national liberation.

Comrade Le Duan passing away is a great loss to our party and people.

In memory of and gratitude to Comrade Le Duan, the conference held jointly by the CPV Central Committee, the National Assembly, the State Council and Ministers' Council of the SRV, and the Presidium of the Central Committee of the VFF decide the following:

1. To organize a state funeral with solemn ceremony of our country.

2. The entire party, people, and Army will observe a 5 day's mourning to Comrade Le Duan from 11 to 16 July 1986.

During these grievous days, the Central Committee of the CPV, the National Assembly, the State Council, the Council of Ministers of the SRV, and the Presidium of the VFF Central Committee call on the entire party, people, and Army to turn grief into revolutionary deeds, strengthen unity and one-mindedness around the party Central Committee, and devote all mind and might to building socialism and firmly defending the socialist fatherland of Vietnam. Following Comrade Le Duan's example, all cadres and party members should bring into full play their vanguard role; try their best to work, study, train; and uphold their revolutionary virtues and capacity to fulfill their duties. The whole party should make steps of preparation for the coming Sixth Party Congress. The entire people and Army should launch a stirring revolutionary movement to boost production, practice economy, and be ready to fight and to fight well, making worthy contributions to bring the revolutionary cause to new victories.

Let us make concrete revolutionary acts in memory of Comrade Le Duan!

On this occasion, a state funeral committee was set up. The committee includes:

1. Mr Truong Chinh, member of the Political Bureau of the CPV Central Committee and president of the State Council;

2. Mr Pham Van Dong, Political Bureau member and chairman of the Council of ministers;

3. Mr Pham Hung, Political Bureau member [and] vice chairman of the Council of Ministers, and Mr. Le Duc Tho, Political Bureau member [and] secretary of the party Central Committee; and others.

PRC RIVER MINES ALLEGEDLY KILL MORE CIVILIANS

[Text] Hanoi VNA July 8 -- The Chinese authorities have recently floated mines downstream rivers in northern Vietnam, killing many civilians. On June 25, a Chinese mine drifting on the Red River at Viet Hung village, Vu Thu District (Thai Binh Province) exploded and wounded an old people. On June 27, three persons including two children at Hai Giang village, Hai Hau District, and at Xuan Ninh village, Xuan Thuy District (Ha Nam Ninh Province) were wounded by Chinese mines. On July 1, two Chinese mines floating on the river were discovered by the population of Hai Boi village, Dong Anh District (Hanoi). On July 7, people picked up a Chinese mine at the sluice-gate no. 52 of the red river in Phu Van village, Vu Thu District (Thai Binh Province). Also during the flooding season from May 1st to July 27, (?last) year, China dropped mines on rivers killing ten and wounding 39 civilians in the provinces of Ha Tuyen, Vinh Phu, Ha Son Binh, Hai Hung, Ha Nam Ninh and Thai Binh, and Hanoi.

The Red Cross chapter has also mobilized its members to contribute hundreds of workdays repairing houses, class-rooms and ricefields damaged by Chinese shellings. Since the beginning of this year, the chapter has cooperated with other services in distributing goods and medicines to people at the border area to help them stabilize their life.

HANOI SAYS PRC HOSTILE POLICY REMAINS UNCHANGED

BK041222 Hanoi International Service in English 1000 GMT 4 Jul 86

["Event and Opinion" program]

[Text] The Beijing leadership has of late paid much [as heard] service to peace.

They claimed that they always advocate the preservation of peace in the region and the world over. It is pitying that their words do not match their deeds.

In April, China fired nearly 20,000 artillery and mortar rounds on northern Vietnamese border provinces; in May the figure was 70,000; and in June, 15,000. More seriously still on International Children's Day, 1 June, Chinese troops fired many artillery shells at summer camps of pupils in Quang Ba District, Ha Tuyen Province. Chinese shellings killed on the spot two pupils: (Vang Thi Kim), 10-year old of the Mnong ethnic minority, and (Tra Vu May) 8-year old of the Yao ethnic minority and seriously wounded five others and teacher (Luu Thinh Phu). Meanwhile, Chinese scouts and commandos made many intrusions into the six northern Vietnamese border provinces for sabotage and espionage activities and abducting Vietnamese civilians.

On 1 May, a platoon of Chinese commandos penetrated into Nghia Thuan village, Quang Ba District, Ha Tuyen Province, 800 meters deep inside Vietnamese territory, abducting three Vietnamese civilians, including a child. These acts of the Beijing leadership have aggravated the tension along the Sino-Vietnamese border. Moreover the Beijing leadership even floated mines downstream of Vietnamese rivers to kill civilians. In the 5 days ending on 17 June, two injured were sent to the Vietnamese-GDR hospital in Hanoi. The victims were Nguyen Ngoc Bien, 22, and little Dinh Thi Hong, 14, both dwellers of Tu Liem District on the outskirt of Hanoi.

This is not the first tie the Beijing leadership committed such crimes against the Vietnamese people. It is reported that from May to December 1985, there were more than 100 mine explosions in varius localities crisscrossed by rivers, killing 30 Vietnamese civilians and wounding 60 others.

This fact proved that Beijing's hostile policy toward Vietnam remains unchanged.

HANOI VIEWS ASEAN REACTION TO CGDK PROPOSAL

OW031043 Hanoi International Service in Mandarin 1130 GMT 2 Jul 86

[Station commentary: "Shielding Criminals Is Undoubtedly a Crime"]

[Excerpts] The Cambodian issue is once again one of the major agenda items of the Manila conference of ASEAN foreign ministers. Referring to the so-called Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea's eight-point proposal, a joint communique issued by the conference stressed that the Cambodian issue must be settled by the Cambodian people themselves.

If this statement that the Cambodian issue must be settled by the Cambodian people themselves were confined to its scope, this view of the ASEAN countries would be wise and conform to international morality and justice and humanitarianism. But the problem here is that the so-called eight-point proposal supported by the ASEAN countries is actually a means with which the Chinese authorities are attempting to strangle the People's Republic of Kampuchea and have the Pol Pot genocidal clique restored.

Therefore, the so-called eight-point proposal was not proposed by Cambodians but imposed on them by the Beijing authorities.

In the face of the three Indochinese countries' sincere proposals for a political settlement of the Cambodian issue and the widespread influence produced by these proposals, the confrontation policy pursued by Beijing and its running dogs has been condemned and isolated to an unprecedented extent. Precisely because of this, the Beijing authorities dished out the eight-point proposal to obstruct and sabotage the trend of dialogue between the ASEAN and Indochinese countries. [passage omitted]

It is truth that the Cambodian issue must be settled by Cambodia itself. The Cambodian people on Cambodian territory are vigorously and effectively solving their own problems. While visiting Cambodia, delegations consisting of thousand of foreign guests from nearly 100 foreign countries have seen with their eyes a vigorous new life in Cambodia. Friends in the world are convinced that the domestic policy of the People's Republic of Kampuchea takes its people's interests into account and that its foreign policy is aimed at achieving peace and friendship. Nearly 40 countries and international organizations have recognized the People's Republic of Kampuchea, a young independent country, with Heng Samrin as its chairman.

Therefore, supporting the so-called Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea's eight-point proposal essentially means restoring the genocidal system of Pol Pot, a running dog of Beijing, in Cambodia and strangling the recovering Cambodian nation. This is a crime that cannot be pardoned by Vietnam and all progressive mankind.

NHAN DAN CONDEMNS U.S. - THAI 'COBRA GOLD' EXERCISE

[Text] Hanoi VNA July 86 — The daily NHAN DAN in a commentary today energetically condemns the joint U.S. - Thai military exercise codenamed "Cobra Gold 86" as another gross provocation to the People's Republic of Kampuchea and the three Indochinese countries as a whole.

The paper says:

"This exercise is part of a U.S. plan of effecting its Asia-Pacific reactionary strategy aimed at forming something of an eastern NATO against the Soviet Union and the other socialist countries as well as the growing movement for peace, national independence and democracy in the region.

"It takes place at a time when the United States is seeking all ways and means to cement its ties with the ASEAN countries politically, economically and militarily and feverishly arming the Bangkok administration by preparing for the reopening of its military bases and building up war reserves stockpiled in Thailand, and colluding with the Chinese reactionaries to oppose Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchea.

"It is by no means accidental that "Cobra Gold 86" is unfolding while the Chinese reactionary ruling circles are hawking the so-called 8-point proposal of the Khmer reactionaries, which is nothing other than an attempt to bring the genocidal Pol Potists back to Kampuchea and to whip up their war of sabotage against the Indochinese nations".

The paper points out: "Vietnam, Laos, and Kampuchea have always tried their best to normalise and even improve their neighbourly relations with Thailand and other ASEAN countries.

However, it is not enough for goodwill to come from only one side. The Thai authorities are acting counter to the interests of the Thai people themselves, and their actions are fraught with unpredictable consequences. [no closing quoation marks as received]

FOREIGN MINISTRY ON DPRK ANTI-NUCLEAR STATEMENT

[Text] Hanoi VNA July 7 -- "The Vietnamese Government and people fully support the reasonabe and well-intentioned proposals made in a statement of the goverment of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea on June 23, 1986, considering it an important contribution to preserving world peace and defending mankind from a nuclear holocaust," said a spokesman for the Ministry for Foreign Affairs of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam today.

The June 23, 1986 statement says that the DPRK Government will refrain from the testing and production, stockpiling and introduction of nuclear weapons, will not premit the establishment of foreign military bases including nuclear ones, and will not allow foreign nuclear weapons to pass through its territory, territorial airspace and waters. At the same time, it demands that the U.S. Govenment stop the introduction of new nuclear weapons into South Korea.

Completely withdraw all already [word indistinct] weapons and abolish all plans on the use of nuclear weapons on the Korean Peninsula. [sentence as received]

The government of the DPRK will respond to any negotiations with the U.S. Government and the South Korean Administration on the said proposals at any time and with any forms.

"It is known to everyone that over recent years, the United States has introduced into South Korea over 1,000 pieces of nuclear weapons of all kinds, thus turning it into a nuclear base in the Far East and posing a serious threat to peace and security in the Korean Peninsula and the Asian-Pacific region", noted the spokesman.

"The statement on June 23, 1986 of the DPRK Government once again manifests the ardent aspiration for peace and the efforts of goodwill of the people and government of the DPRK aimed at turning the Korean Peninsula into a peace and nuclear-free area, thereby contributing to the world people's common struggle for peace and against a nuclear war," he added. "The people and government of the SRV reaffirm their consistent solidarity with the fraternal Korean people's just struggle for easing tension on the Korean Peninsula and achieving the peaceful reunification of the country", stressed the spokesman.

HANOI PRECINCT CRACKS DOWN ON BLACK MARKETEERS

[Text] Comrade (Nguyen Huu La) reports that since 20 June, the public security forces of Hoan Kiem Precinct [Hanoi] have launched a struggle against speculation, smuggling, and the production and marketing of counterfeit goods. As of today, 8 July, after 20 days of combining their investigations with the mass movement, the public security forces of Hoan Kiem Precinct have uncovered 94 cases involving speculation, smuggling, and marketing of counterfeit goods; and confisticated more than 2.5 million dong worth of merchandise, including cultural and art works, construction supplies, gasoline and oil, over 6 kg of silver, and nearly 500 gms of gold. The public security forces of Cua Nam, Cua Dong, Dong Xuan, Hang Dao, Hang Bo, Hang Bac, and Hang Ma wards, and 14 security cadres and combatants have been recommended for commendation and reward in recognition of their outstanding achievements.

At the request of the precinct public security chief, the Hoan Kiem Precinct People's Committee has set up an administrative sanctions council whose members are selected from the people's organ of control, the judicial organ, the financial organ, the trade sector, the industrial and commercial tax service, and the various professional offices. Based on the reports and incriminating evidence produced by the public security forces, the administrative sanction council of Hoan Kiem Precinct decided to confisticate 929.219 dong's worth of goods seized in 78 cases of speculation and imposed fines totaling 47,000 dong on a number of private traders.

Regarding 14 serious cases involving organized smuggling, marketing of contraband and counterfeit goods, and collusion with wheeler-dealers to steal state supplies, the Hoan Kiem Precinct Public Security Service has coordinated with the local people's organ of control in preparing files for trying them before the law.

NHAN DAN URGES ACCELERATED REVOLUTIONARY MOVEMENT

BK011015 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 2300 GMT 30 Jun 86

[NHAN DAN 1 July editorial: "Accelerate the Revolutionary Movement Among the Masses"]

[Text] The 11th session of the Seventh National Assembly has concluded after discussing and deciding important tasks for the country.

Thoroughly understanding the eighth plenum resolution, the conclusion reached by the tenth party Central Committee plenum, and other resolutions of the party Central Committee Political Bureau, the National Assembly affirmed that in the recent past, we have achieved great successes in our revolutionary undertaking. However, the socioeconomic situation is still rife with difficulties and some shortcomings still exist in work related to supervision and management.

The National Assembly pointed out that under the party's leadership, our entire people and Armed Forces are determined to mobilize the country's combined strength to successfully fulfill the 1986 State Plan, gradually stabilize the economy, firmly defend the Socialist Vietnamese fatherland, and pave the way for new progress in the development of the country in subsequent years.

Let us translate that will of the National Assembly into specific revolutionary action through a vigorous mass movement that can bring about practical results. Our entire party, people, and Armed Forces are vested with heavy but eminently glorious tasks.

The recent tenth party Central Committee plenum was a political event of extremely great importance. The plenum vigorously affirmed that the spirit and basic substance of the eighth plenum resolution are correct, as they convey profound revolutionary significance and manifest the strategic determination of our party to eliminate bureaucratic centralism and subsidy-based administration and switch to socialist accounting and business and mark a step of maturity in its leadership over economic work.

The plenum set forth the struggle guidelines for the entire party and defined a number of pressing tasks concerning prices, wages, and money for gradually stabilizing the socioeconomic situation and correctly implementing the party Central Committee's eighth plenum resolution and other resolutions of the party Central Committee Political Bureau. It also called on our entire party, Armed Forces, and people to uphold the revolutionary will in the struggle to overcome difficulties, enthusiastically emulate in poroductive labor, change the system of management, practice thrift, and strengthen national defense and security in order to score practical achievements in honor of the sixth party congress.

The most important thing that decides success in the implementation of various resolutions of the party and National Assembly is the successful launching of truly vigorous mass movement to motivate tens of millions of laboring people to promote their right to collective mastery and embark on revolutionary action.

All sectors, echelons, and grassroots units must provide good guidance for the emulation movement and promptly discover and effectively apply innovations for production rationalization and technical advancement such as those that can curtail the losses of materials, energy, money, and time in a product unit; improve quality; increase labor productivity; and lower production costs. They must also disseminate promptly and widely all new experiences, progressive models, and good examples along with struggling against all manifestations of negativism.

The yardstick to measure the effect of the emulation movement is the obvious results in the struggle to step up agricultural, industrial, small industrial, and handicraft production; satisfactorily manage the market; restore order in the distribution and circulation of goods; stabilize prices; balance budgets; stabilize the people's livelihood; consolidate national defense and security; and maintain social order and safety.

We can also help accelerate the mass movement by satisfactorily conducting the self-criticism and criticism drive, resolutely correcting errors and shortcomings, intensifying the socialist legal system, and satisfactorily holding party organization congresses at various levels and the Sixth National Party Congress.

Upholding the revolutionary will and sense of responsibility, organization, and discipline, let our entire party be determined to encourage our compatriots and combatants to participate in a seething revolutioanry movement and emulate in carrying out the two stratgic tasks of building and defending the socialist fatherland, thereby making practical achievements to honor the Sixth National Party Congress.

HANOI REPORTS DROUGHT HITS NORTHERN PROVINCES

[Text] Various localities in the north are now concentrating on irrigating their rice seedings, early 10th-month rice areas and areas under soil preparation.

Since 24 June, the weather has been hot with an unrelenting sun and insignificant rainfall. The water levels of various rivers have dropped, and only naturally circulating water has been directed into low-lying ricefields.

When water is in short supply as it was in late June, electricity is being cut off to almost all pumping stations. If they can manage to operate, they do so only a few hours at a time on an on-and-off schedule, causing difficulties in cultivation of the 10th-month crop. Certain pumping stations in Ha Bac and Ha Nam Ninh in particular now can get electricity 10-15 hours per day.

According to reports from 10 northern provinces, as of 2 July 210,000 hectares of ricefields needed water. However, as of 4 July 1986 -- 2 days later -- soil had been prepared for planting 10th-month rice in a total of 85,000 hectares of high-lying ricefields in areas in need of water where there are electric pumping stations. In Nghe Tinh alone, 15,000 hectares of summer-fall rice are now short of water. In Ha Son Binh, 2,100 hectares of early 10th-month rice and 4,100 hectares of rice seedlings have been hit by drought. In Hai Hung, 4,700 hectares of early 10th-month rice and 7,600 hectares of rice seedlings have also been drought stricken.

The sowing period for early 10th-month rice -- before the arrival of the winter crop -- is now almost over and the sowing time for the main 10th-month rice crop has just begun. According to a forecast of the Meteorological and Hydrological General Department, the heat wave marked by strong sunshine may be prolonged.

To ensure enough water for sowing the winter-spring and 10th-month rice on schedule, the Council of Ministers has met with three ministries -- namely water conservancy, agriculture, and power -- and decided to provide 70,000 kw of electricity to various pumping stations 20 hours per day, including 20,000 kw 24 hours per day, beginning 5 July 1986.

The Ministry of Water Conservancy has also instructed various localities to follow weather developments and the water levels of various rivers closely, open sluice gates to let out naturally circulating tidal water, channel water from various lakes and dams into 10th-month ricefields, and seek every means possible to obtain water supplies for rice seedings and early 10th-month rice plants and irrigate farm areas so that rice planting can be carried out as soon as the soil has been prepared.

TRUONG CHINH ADDRESSES CHILDREN'S FESTIVAL

OW081306 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 1100 GMT 5 Jul 86

["Text" of address by Truong Chinh, member of the CPV Central Committee Political Bureau and chairman of the SRV Council of State, at the opening ceremony of the Second Congress of Uncle Ho's Good Nephews and Nieces held in Hanoi on 4 July 1986 -- recorded]

[Text] Dear nephews and nieces: On behalf of the party and the state, I warmly greet the Second Congress of Uncle Ho's Good Nephews and Nieces and wish the congress great success. [applause]

I gladly welcome you delegates from the Lao Young Pioneers Organization and the Cambodian Young Pionners Organization and I convey through you my solicitous regards to all teenagers of fraternal Laos and Cambodia. [applause]

Over the past 5 years, under the party's leadership and with the assistance of the Ho Chi Minh Communist Youth Union [HCMCYU] and schools, the Ho Chi Minh Young Pionners Organization [HCMYPO] has achieved encouraging progress in the seething emulation movement to live up to Uncle Ho's five teachings and become his good nephews and nieces.

To my knowledge, since the First Congress of Uncle Ho's Good Nephews and Nieces, more than 5 million teenagers have annually won the title of Uncle Ho's good nephews and nieces. In the past 5 years, more than 2 million outstanding teenagers have been trained and cited and introduced into the HCMYPO, including 931,000 admitted to the HCMCYU. [applause]

Many typical individuals and collectives, such as the Young Pionner intergroups of the Thang Long school in Hanoi, the Tan Thoi Hiep school in Ho Chi Minh City, the Kim Dong school in Quang Nam-Danang, the Thanh Phu school in Thai Binh, the Quang Phuc school in Hai Hung, the Bac Ly school in Ha Nam Ninh, the Sa Dec school, and the Vinh Phu school have remained for years strong ones or collectives of Uncle Ho's good nephews and nieces. [applause]

Duong Trung Dung from Hanoi showed his courage and self-denial when saving a young child from drowning. Hoang Thi Thu Huong, of the Tay nationality in Vinh Phu, has strived to overcome many difficulties in her study to become proficient in Vietnamese literature in the nation's level-II schools. Trieu Thi Luu, of the Dao nationality, a sixth grader of the Van Bang boarding school in Hoang Lien Son, has set an example of solidarity by helping her schoolmates in their studies and by actively encouraging those dropouts to return to school. Nguyen Phu Vinh, a sixth grader of the Giang Vo vocational school in Hanoi, won a gold medal at the fifth international Olympic competition on Russian language held in Moscow in 1985. Pham Van Trung, from Hai Hung, has carried to school on his back a classmate for 7 consecutive years. In Lang Son, Le Van Tien of the Tay nationality and Nong Van Thien of the Nung nationality, after detecting a Chinese scout, promptly guided local militiamen in capturing him. (Kho Manh), (Kho Tang), and (Kho Khao), of the Chau Ma nationality in Lam Dong, sighted many FULRO [United Front for the Liberation of Oppressed Races] members and helped local militiamen apprehend them. [applause]. Nguyen Van Hai in Ho Chi Minh City; (Ca Toa Tuan), Tuan Ngoc, and Le Ngoc Phuc in Hanoi; and many other Young Pioneers have returned lost objects to their owners. [applause]

Today, all basic general education schools have organized their own HCMYPO teams, which have been consolidated through their efforts in developing them, increasing membership, and building them into strong ones. Under the guidance of their brothers and sisters in the HCMCYU and their teachers, the Young Pioneers in these schools can now manage their teams' daily activities, thus turning the HCMYPO into an active educational force and a support of the party while contributing, together with their schools, to forming new socialist people.

On behalf of the party and state, I warmy cite and praise your achievements. [applause]

Dear nephews and nieces: The HCMYPO is truly a direct reserve organization of the HCMCYU and a powerful reserve force of our country's revolution. It is also the first school of patriotism, socialism, and communism for you who are working within it. this is the best way for you to train yourselves as future masters of the country. It is your duty to endeavor to study and train in all aspects at school as well as in society, by participating in the collective activities organized by your schools and HCMYPO teams. You should further associate study and training with building steady, strong teams which can attract increasingly large numbers of teenagers and children. You should further accelerate activities aimed at promoting peace and solidarity and friendship with the teenagers of Laos, Cambodia, the Soviet Union, and other fraternal socialist countries, as well as those all over the world. [applause]

For the sake of the Vietnamese nation's future and for the happiness of every family, I would like to take this opportunity to earnestly propose to all party committee echelons and the administration that there be coordination with various services and social forces, along the line of joint efforts by the state and people, in dividing up the tasks and working out child care and education plans while providing the best conditions, if possible, for the HCMYPO activities so that our children can study and participate in healthy recreational activities.

The HCMCYU should closely coordinate with the educational service in actively selecting and training members in charge of teenagers, consolidating Young Pioneer teams at all levels, concentrating on building the HCMYPO, supporting the initiatives of teenagers, and providing guidance for all of their activities both inside and outside their schools.

Dear nephews and nieces: I wish all of you constant joy, good health, and progress. Continue to accelerate the march in the steps of Uncle Ho and emulate his five teachings and score achievements in honor of the Sixth CPV Congress and the centennial of beloved and respected Uncle Ho. [applause]

HAIPHONG PARTY COMMITTEE CONDUCTS SELF-CRITICISM

[Report by Minh Son]

[Text] The Haiphong City Party Committee has conducted self-criticism and criticism recently. In the field of distribution and circulation, apart from the strong points in implementation of the party Central Committee's Eighth Plenum resolution and various directives and resolutions of the party Central Committee Political Bureau, there are many loopholes in the city party committee's leadership in terms of business organization, management, and methods. Many noncommercial organs and enterprises have engaged in trade activities. The food and beverage business sector has developed rapidly but not in an orderly and healthy way. Those responsible for retail sales have engaged in wholesaling or the exchange of goods for resale to reap profits quickly through price difference. Many individuals and units in the socialist trade sector have established illegal contacts to siphon off state goods for sale at higher prices to amass profits for themselves, and have allocated bonuses not in accordance with the system and policy. So far, administrative and economic measures have not been adopted to severely and promptly deal with various cases involving indiscipline, thus arousing a controversy among the public.

To overcome this situation, the standing body of the Haiphong City Party Committee has guided various sectors and echelons in uniformly enforcing a number of emergency measures stipulated in some recent resolutions of the party Central Committee Political Bureau, especially the resolution of the party Central Committee's Tenth Plenum.

First, continue implementing the party Central Committee Political Bureau's (draft) resolution on guaranteeing the right of autonomy to basic economic units in production and business. Review and allocate in the plan various types of materials -- especially fertilizer, insecticide, and seeds -- for agricultural production as well as for industrial, light industrial, and handicraft production involving mainly energy and raw and other materials. Strive to ensure that some 30 industrial enterprises are fully capable of turning in money to the state budget as planned. In the first 5 months of 1986, all enterprises -- such as the export rubber enterprise, the soft-drink enterprise, and the An Bien engineering enterprise -- have not turned in any dong since early this year.

Second, restore socialist order in distribution and circulation, especially on the organized market. Prohibit all organs and enterprises that are not responsible for distribution and circulation from engaging in business transactions.

Exert control over and severely deal with those retail units seeking to derive profits from wholesale trade, and promptly take disciplinary action against trade sector cadres and personnel who seek to siphon off goods to traders for sale on the free market to derive profits from the price difference.

Third, the city continues selling merchandise under a single-price system in accordance with the prices fixed by the trade sector. With the exception of grain, which is sold at fixed prices and in fixed quantities, other essential commodities such as pork, sugar, and soap can be sold to consumers once a month by directly adding price subsidies to wages.

Experience acquired in the past shows that goods at public places cannot reach consumers directly if they are sold in accordance with the prices fixed by the trade sector. Therefore, the city must instruct trade units and marketing cooperatives to bring goods to various organs, enterprises, schools, and worksites for sale at the prices fixed by the trade sector. Directors, trade unions, and mass organizations of all organs and enterprises have the responsibility of ensuring that goods are sold directly to consumers.

Fourth, although the coupon system and the practice of selling goods at two different prices were terminated, the trade sector, marketing cooperatives, and other distribution and circulation sectors have been authorized to provide a sufficient quantity of grain, foodstuffs, and other essential goods to wage earners and other people with subsidized status so that these people may buy goods under the system of including price differences in wages.

Fifth, along with expanding joint ventures with localities throughout the country to continue exploiting goods -- especially after the success scored by the Hoa Nghia agricultural production cooperative of Don Son District and a subward of Le Chan District in allowing peasants to use marketing cooperatives to bring theri agricultural products to sell to consumers in towns and cities -- the city will encourage 33 subwards to allow these cooperatives to bring their agricultural products to sell to or barter with consumers in these subwards. This task will not only help reduce the number of personnel at vegetable, fruit, and foodstuff shops in the city, but also accelerate cooperatives in reorganizing their labor force, production plan, and the management of their members to meet market demands.

Sixth, along with taking these measures, the city must consistently carry out market reformation and management, especially in big markets and key trade centers. The city meus strictly eliminate speculation, smuggling, illegal trading, and the siphoning off of state goods for sale at free markets. It must reorganize small traders and organize more production and service establishments in order to gradually shift a number of small traders into production and encourage them to engage in service activities under state management.

AQUINO CONFIRMS U.S. VISIT, LOYALIST RALLY BAN

HK100926 Quezon City Radyo ng bayan in Tagalog 0900 GMT 10 Jul 86

[Text] President Corazon Aquino confirmed that she will push through with her scheduled visit to the United States in mid-September. She made the announcement in an open forum following her address before the Association of Roman Catholic Bishops and Businessmen.

At the same time, the president also indicated that she will no longer allow Marcos loyalists to hold rallies. According to her, while rallies are exercises of the freedom of expression, they have also become open rebellion.

The president also said that her visit to the United States would provide her with an opportunity to convice bankers to give the Philippines lenient credit terms. She added that she would use a commercial flight and not a chartered plane for the visit.

AQUINO WINS 'FIRST ROUND' WITH LOYALISTS

[By reporter Marites Danguilan-Vitgu]

[Text] President Aquino has emerged victorious in quelling the loyalists' revolt but this is only the first round in a battle against remnants of the deposed regime out to destablize government.

In taking over Manila Hotel, Arturo Tolentino, who declared himself acting president, and his followers, sent a cutting messge to the Aquino government: They will not rest until they see the government in shambles, ready for their takeover.

But while the loyalist move failed, they did some damage to the new government. An impression of instability was created; President Aquino was perceived to lack a firm grip on government.

However, President Aquino proved her immense popularity and showed that she is in command of the Armed Forces. The loyalists have thus no strong grounds to dissudade mass support from President Aquino and build their own. And there is also the more critical issue: the loyalists do not present a better alternative to the Aquino government.

The unexpected "Manila Hotel problem" could have placed President Aquino in a dilemma, but she avoided it. If she had immediately ordered Tolentino and company arrested, that would have inflamed the situation. But if she had left them alone, and gone slow on them, she would have been considered "too soft."

She tread the middle ground of negotiation and showed a firm stance by giving the loyalists an ultimatum. Deputy executive secretary Fulgencio Factoran, Jr told BUSINESS DAY: "No one is after blood."

This experience has strengthened the President and Government, Factoran added, quite pleased that the incident showed Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile's and Gen Fidel Ramos's "instinctive support" for Aquino.

But Enrile seemed to have played his own game, too, gaining much from the situation. Two messages were clear: he has the support of civilian and military loyalists; and a number of soldiers in the field, exemplified by Lt Col Danilo Venturina's 200 men belonging to the Central Luzon Regional Unified Command based in Pampanga, are ready to rally behing him should he lead a coup against President Aquino.

Enrile has also boosted his stock with President Aquino. In her absence -- she was in Cagayan de Oro -- he held the fort and immediately moved to defuse the situation: he created a team that skillfully effected the surrender of some 200 soldiers.

On both government and loyalist sides, Enrile counts. And this, observers say, he has adroitly expointed to the hilt. "He seems to be quietly playing both sides," said one political analyst, "and may not even be moving to discourage the loyalists."

BUSINESS DAY gathered that some military officers at the defense ministry knew Sunday morning about the loyalists' plan to install Tolentino as acting president and that they would use Manila Hotel as the venue: they reportedly had monitored this religiously.

In retrospect, some questions are not being asked: Why did they not do anything to stop the loyalists? Why were soldiers not posted at the Manila Hotel to prevent armed civilian and military loyalists from entering?

Others argue that they may not have anticipated the seriousness of the loyalists' intent. Every Sunday, loyalist rallies at the Luneta have become much too routine; Tolentino has also always threatened to take his oath of office.

A high-ranking military official added that twice in the last few months, plans to install Tolentino as president had been aborted. This time, he said, when the tip-off came, the defense ministry failed to take it seriously.

Enrile on Monday night told a Rotary Club meeting: "We knew the movement of soldiers from Region 3 to Luneta Sunday morning...when they started to put black bands, we knew something was afoot. We wanted to see wht it was all about. Even some people in the rally did not know the entire situation."

But he said he did not know about Tolentino's plan to install himself as acting president: "I would have dissuaded them (loyalists). Tolentino saw me in my house April 27, Sunday evening. He told me that Marcos instructed him to take his oath... I told him he should not allow himself to be used by Marcos. I reported this meeting to the President. That was the last time I met Tolentino."

An earlier incident also showed that Enrile can play ball with the loyalists. During his visit to Ilocos Norte, he did nothing to shatter the myth of Marcos as their hero, in effect transferring the loyalists support to his side.

The "Manila Hotel problem" may be over but there is concern about the future policy of the Aquino administration of loyalists insisting on destabilizing the government. Enrile said the President has adopted a policy of leniency for now "so as not to fragment the military." But the next time around, he said they will make the loyalists "feel the pinch."

LAUREL INTERVIEWED ON TOLENTINO COUP ATTEMPT

PM100846 Madrid YA in Spanish 8 Jul 86 p 21

[Interview with Philippines Vice President Salvador Laurel by J.V. Colchero in Madrid -- date not given]

[Excerpt] [passage omitted] [Colchero] Is the situation in the Philippines finally under control?

[Laurel] It really was a pathetic attempt. And a failure. I believe that its aim was solely to attract attention and to distract the government from the work to achieve its goal of political stability. But they have failed. President Corazon Aquino has confirmed to me over the telephone that everything has returned to normal, that the situation is completely under control.

[Colchero] Why did they attempt a coup precisely on Sunday, when you were traveling to Madrid? Do you believe that the absence from Manila of the most experienced politician in Corazon Aquino's team could have had an influence?

[Laurel] I do not know whether taking advantage of my absence was part of the plan; perhaps they intended to catch people unawares, when Mrs Aquino was in Mindanao and I was in Madrid, but the fact is that they have failed.

[Colchero] Tolentino sought to involve in the coup Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile, who was also defense minister under Marcos and who swayed the Armed Forces in favor of democratic change last February...

[Laurel] They needed him. Without Enrile and without Chief of Staff Ramos it was impossible to count on the military. And they could not succeed in the attempted coup without military support. They tried to win over Enrile, but he assured them that he remained loyal to the government and laughed at them.

[Colchero] Is Marcos' continued presence in Hawaii a threat to democracy in the Philippines, because the United States exercizes little control over his activity and tolerates his being in touch by telephone with his followers in Manila?

[Laurel] I do not believe at all that Marcos is acting in accordance with U.S. instructions. Quite the contrary. The U.S. stance is that it has told Marcos to desist from making plans to return to power, that he is not feasible for the Philippines because he now belongs to the past.

[Colchero] You told me in Manila a few months ago that it was premature to consider Marcos' return as an ordinary citizen. Has that government stance changed?

[Laurel] Marcos should stay away from the Philippines until we have regained political stability. We cannot tolerate his attempting to destabilize us just now.

[Colchero] Where do you believe Marcos could go in the future?

[Laurel] That is a matter which concerns the United States, because Marcos has no passport. We have canceled the validity of his passport, ans so he can go only where the United States allows him and only after the U.S. Administration supplies him with a document to travel.

[Colchero] Do you still believe that Marcos should not come to Spain at all?

[Laurel] I still believe that he should not. I have been told that he would not be welcome in Spain.

[Colchero] Will not Tolentino's attempted coup change the timetable envisaged for the Philippines' return to democracy?

[Laurel] Quite the contrary. Not only will it not delay the process of a return to democratic normality; we intend to accelerate it. The constitution is being drafted, and its text should be complete by 2 September. Afterward, a 2 month campaign until the holding of the plebiscite will begin. If the constitution is approved there will be municipal and parliamentary elections in February. Then we will have attained democratic normality, and at the same time we will continue to tackle the matters connected with peace of a domestic nature in order to put an end to guerrilla activity, and those of a socioeconomic nature.

[Colchero] Following this attempted insurrection, in which it seems that some generals on active service and on the reserve list could have supported Tolentino, is it possible to regard the Armed Forces as completely loyal? Will there be any purge of high-ranking officers?

[Laurel] I do not believe so, because what happened is something to which it is not worth paying too much attention.

ENRILE WARNS OF LESS LENIENCY 'NEXT TIME AROUND'

HK091550 Manila THE NEW PHILIPPINES DAILY EXPRESS in English 9 Jul 86 pp 1, 7

[By Antero F. Soriano]

[Text] Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile said Monday night the "Manila Hotel Incident or revolt" of former MP Arturo Tolentino was a good experience for the new government but warned that the "next time around, we will not be as lenient, we will make sure that they will feel the pinch."

Enrile said the incident had shown that this government (Aquino government) is no "pushover" because it can handle any crisis.

"This is a good experience because it has shown that we can settle our differences in a civilized and peaceful manner," said Enrile.

Enrile said the crisis ended peacefully because he and other top officials "calibrated their actions".

"We knew all along there was troop movement in the early morning of Sunday as reported by the army headquarters," said the defense chief. He said they also knew that the soldiers from Region 3 were moving towards Rizal Park.

He said their initial interpretation of the movement was that these troops were crowd control units but later they realized something was afoot and allowed the troop movement.

"Even the Marcos Loyalists who were attending the rally were not aware of this. I was told by Dick Sison of Manila Hotel that there were some armed men at the lobby and I told them to leave them alone," said Enrile.

The soldiers, said Enrile, seemed agitated and he instructed Sison to give them anything and not to resist. "Give them vodka or food," was Enrile's instructions.

Enrile said based on estimate, the number of people during the 37-hour drama was from a high 600 and a low of 60 people. Some civilians, he said, were also armed.

Later, Enrile said they decided to cut off the communication lines at the hotel but not water and power.

"That's what I did, calibrate the situation in order to preserve lives," said Enrile.

He said that Tolentino came to see him at home last April 27, and told him that deposed President Marcos suggested to him to take oath as acting president but Enrile said he dissuaded Tolentino from pursuing with his plan.

Enrile said he reported the matter to President Aquino but did not realize the Tolentino would go on with his plan.

He said he cannot warn the Marcos loyalists who are holding rallies that "enough is enough" like what he told former President Marcos in the February revolution because the Marcos loyalists are exercising a basic right of peaceful assembly while in the case of Marcos, he was exercising his awesome powers.

Enrile lashed at forces out to exploit the current hardship and liberalism of the present government.

He said the signs are clear: "political demagoguery in the mass media, agitation and propaganda in the urban centers and terrorism and violence in the countryside."

He also stressed that the military and the defense establishment will always remain neutral and called upon all sectors not to mislead the people about the military and defense ministry's alleged involvement in "these political partisan actions."

Enrile also said intelligence reports reaching him indicate that "there is an incipient threat of urban guerilla activity in our cities and towns including those in Metro Manila".

PROBE OF MILITARY ROLE IN COUP ATTEMPT SET

Inquiry in Pampanga

HK090503 Manila THE NEW PHILIPPINES DAILY EXPRESS in English 8 Jul 86 p 3

[By Roy Ramos]

[Text] San Fernando, Pampanga — Military authorities started Monday an inquiry into the role of some officers here in the "May [as published] 7 rebellion," including the reported movement of troops from this camp to the Rizal Park last Sunday.

Brig. Gen. Romeo David, commander of the Central Luzon regional unified command [RUC] said he will take action against the troops involved "once we have the complete facts of the matter."

Staff officers of the RUC and PC/INP [Philippine Constabulary-Integrated National Police] held a closed-door conference Monday morning wherein the mechanics of the investigation as well as the circumstances of the troop movements were discussed.

"We are trying to find out the motive of the soldiers" Col. Lorenzo Mateo, PC/INP commander said.

Lt. Col. Reynaldo Cabauatan, head of the civil military office of the PC/INP here and one of the leaders of the troops who want to the Rizal Park, had been previously criticizing the government's "soft attitude" towards communists.

Initial investigation showed that the Manila trip of the troops was initiated by an officer of the RUC operations division.

Capt. Rogelio Quikao of the regional security action force said that the order to haul INP members of the civil disturbance force from the training camp in Mexico, Pampanga, was issued by Major Pedro Mendoza of the RUC.

The civil disturbance force was reinforced by PC and army soldiers from this camp before they left for Manila on board three six-by-six trucks and two mini-cruisers.

As of Monday afternoon, Mateo reported that some members of the group have abandoned their officers and have returned to Camp Olivas after realizing that they have been misled.

The returnees told Mateo that their leaders made them believe that they will be sent to Luneta to secure Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and AFP [Armed Forces of the Philippines] Chief of Staff Gen. Fidel Ramos, because the two would be there on that day.

The PC has also established several checkpoints in strategic places in Central Luzon Monday to prevent the movement of Marcos loyalists.

In Zamboanga City, Maj. Gen. Jose Magno Jr. said Monday that the entire armed forces in Mindanao has rallied behind the leadership of President Aquino, Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, AFP chief of staff.

Cleared of Liability

[Text] Military authorities pardoned and cleared of any liability all officers and soldiers who joined the Marcos loyalists' rally in Manila. Central Luzon PC-INP [Philippine Constabulary-Integrated National Police] Regional Commander Colonel Lorenzo Mateo met all the 86 troopers and 6 officers that joined the rally and oath-taking of Former Member of Parliament Arturo Tolentino as acting president of the republic. Mateo told them to forget what had happened last Sunday and not to discuss about it any more, and to continue to be united and dedicated to their task.

Ramos Creates Committee

[Text] Armed Forces chief General Fidel Ramos today [10 July] created a special committee to probe the involvement of police and military personnel in last Sunday's coup attempt. In a hurriedly called press conference, General Ramos said the committee's findings will be the basis of action against those involved in the plot to establish a rebel government.

Enrile Absolves Troops

[By Lito Mangaser]

[Text] Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile, staking his name, honor and office, yesterday absolved of any criminal charges the 500 soldiers who joined Marcos loyalists who rallied around self-proclaimed "acting president" Arturo M. Tolentino in a failed coup Sunday.

Enrile said the soldiers should neither be embarrassed nor punished.

The rebel Tolentino "government" collapsed yesterday morning when about 5,000 Marcos loyalists backed by the soldiers surrendered to military authorities at 5 a.m.

President Aquino had given them until 3 p.m. yesterday to surrender.

Maj Gen Eduardo Ermita, armed forces vice chief of staff, said 277 loyalist troopers surrendered, all of them from Camp Olivas in San Fernando, Pampanga.

A "CHRONICLE" source said however, that 11 of the soldiers came from Camp Aguinaldo, the general headquarters in Quezon City, and 26 from a company detachment of the Philippine Constabulary in Antipolo, Rizal.

Witnesses also told the "CHRONICLE" that batches of soldiers in civilian clothes believed to be among the loyalist force, slipped out of the hotel and took the Light Rail Transit between 10 p.m. Monday and 5 a.m. yesterday.

The "CHRONICLE" had interviewed armed loyalist troops who claimed to be members of the defunct Presidential Security Command and who abandoned their posts Feb 25.

Brig Gen Jaime Echeverria, one of the five loyalist generals, said yesterday that he joined the coup forces to rebel against government's communist leaning.

Ermita said, however, that most of the defecting troops claimed they were made to believe that Enrile and Gen Fidel V. Ramos, AFP [Armed Forces of the Philippines] chief of staff, had joined the loyalist camp.

Asked who he considered president and commander in chief, Echeverria said he was leaving it to Enrile and Ramos to decide.

Echeverria also said that he left the Manila Hotel, which the loyalists declared as a temporary seat of government because "it was Tolentino's decision."

Starlet Annie Ferrer, a loyalist, said yesterday that she felt bad about Tolentino because "he suddenly disappeared from Manila Hotel."

Ferrer said that Tolentino never came back to the hotel after he slipped out late afternoon Monday to meet with a government negotiating team at nearby Army-Navy Club.

But she said the loyalists would not dissociate themselves from Tolentino because "he is the president of the Philippines."

Enrile told members of Raja Soliman Rotary Club Monday evening that the loyalist coup should not distract Filipinos from the "more important problem of insurgency."

He said that communist rebels were taking advantage of government's reconciliation policy and the "atmosphere of liberalism prevailing in the land," to destabilize the government.

He said the vital signs were "political demagoguery in the mass media, agitation and propaganda in the urban centers and terrorism and violence in the countryside."

These signs, Enrile said, "clearly show that the threat that has faced our country for more than half-century is once more staring us in the face with the single objective of overthrowing our democratic way of life through subversion and force."

Enrile said that the actions of communist rebels showed a "clear pattern of deception."

He said the rebels make peace overtures while they engage in violence, and express support for the government while pressing for "unreasonable and unrealistic demands."

Gen Fidel V. Ramos, AFP chief of staff, denied yesterday that enlisted men would be retired.

Ramos was reacting to a newspaper report (not the "CHRONCILE") last June 30 that some 40,000 enlisted men would be "gradually purged" from the AFP.

OPLE COMMENTS ON TOLENTINO'S TAKEOVER BID

HK090451 Manila THE NEW PHILIPPINES DAILY EXPRESS in English 8 Jul 86 p 3

[Text] Former Labor Minister Blas F. Ople yesterday said the revolt of former MP Arturo Tolentino, assisted by some military officers, presents President Aquino with the opportunity to "demonstrate true national reconciliation with erstwhile political enemies."

Ople said the President "should treat the revolt as an extraordinary assertion of the freedom of speech of her political adversaries." But in the event this is not possible, "she should grant them a general amnesty," he said.

Ople said the revolt was an act of "political adventurism" that could have endangered thousands of Filipino lives. Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile's "cool management of the crisis" fortunately prevented a bloody confrontation. He said the revolt was a self-limiting action because it was presented as a bid to reposses state power for Marcos and Tolentino after this was lost in the February revolution. "It did not tap deeper and wider sources of public sentiment against the Aquino regime," he said, adding that disaffected Filipino could look for another opportunity to express themselves.

He said the revolt was merely a symptom of "the instabilities that will persist until we have a new Constitution ratified by the people together with new elections."

"President Aquino should take this as a serious symptom of worsening disaffection of elected governors and mayors by OICS [officers-in-charge] the suspension of tenure of civil servants, and the unabated hostility towards former Marcos supporters," Ople said.

He added: "People also draw a sharp contrast between the continuing political vendetta against KBL leaders and the policy of accommodation with the Communist and the Muslim rebels."

CPP WARNS MARCOS LOYALISTS WILL TRY AGAIN

HK090953 Hong Kong AFP in English 0947 GMT 9 Jul 86

[Text] Manila, July 9 (AFP) -- A failed coup by supporters of ousted President Ferdinand Marcos may be the first in a series of armed attempts to overthrow the government, the banned Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP) has said.

The CPP had alerted "revolutionary forces" to "unite and cooperate with all anti-fascist (government) forces" to stop the coup bid should it become necessary, the CPP central committee said in a press statement dated Tuesday and received by AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE Wednesday.

The statement condemned the abortive coup, during which Marcos associate Arturo Tolentino proclaimed himself acting president Sunday, saying that "once more the Marcos loyalists have been isolated and defeated by their own folly." But it warned that "it is not likely that the... incident is the last and final move that the Marcos loyalists are capable of." "It is the first of a series of armed challenges that they are bound to make. They are far from having exhausted their financial, military and political resources."

The statement also questioned the role of Defence Minister Juan Ponce Enrile, who waited several hours to publicly reject Mr Tolentino's offer of the premiership and defence portfolio in the "new cabinet." It said Mr Enrile had been "maintaining close relations with and encouraging Marcos loyalist forces" and also criticised him for allegedly wanting to retain two strategic U.S. military bases here.

The communists, currently engaged in preliminary talks for a ceasefire with the government, want them removed, but President Corazon Aquino says she is keeping her options open after the current bases treaty expires in 1991. The CPP statement said that the president could count on the support of the communists against "any anti-democratic force" as long as it remained "receptive to the progressive suggestions of the revolutionary movement."

4 RADIO STATIONS SHUT DOWN FOR PART IN CRISIS

HK090407 Manila THE MANILA CHRONICLE in English 8 Jul 86 p 1

[Text] Four Metro Manila radio stations have been closed temporarily for allowing themselvs to be used by people promoting sedition and rebellion, the National Telecommunications Commission announced.

These stations -- DZXL, DZME, DWAD and DZEC -- will be allowed back on the air once the Manila Hotel crisis is over, Commissioner Rosauro Sibal said.

The closure was prompted by complaints from various sectors that the four stations were obviously being used by certain people in a disinformation campaign, Sibal added.

He noted that the stations covered Tolentino's inauguration as "acting president" at the Manila Hotel on Sunday as if the Cory government never existed.

Spokesmen from the stations told the 'CHRONICLE' they presented both sides of the Manila Hotel crisis and were never partisan.

DZME said the program had been paid for by Marcos supporters.

Stations Back on Air

[Text] The four Metro Manila radio stations closed for broadcasting loyalist propaganda from the Manila Hotel, where dissident politicians and soldiers holed out Sunday in a putsch attempt, were allowed back on the air yesterday.

The National Telecommunications Commission (NTC) said the lifting of the suspension was "only a formality." There had been an understanding that once the Manila Hotel crisis was over the four radio stations could resume broadcasting.

The four stations were DZXL, DZME, DZEC and DWAD.

CEASE-FIRE TALKS HIT SNAG DUE TO NO CONTACT

HK100458 Manila MANILA BULLETIN in English 9 Jul 86 pp 1, 5

[By Mike Alunann]

[Text] Ceasefire talks between the government and rebel panels have remained suspended for two weeks now apparently because of internal problems within the National Democratic Front (NDF) and the Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP).

Agriculture Minister Ramon V. Mitra said yesterday that there has been "no contact" since initial talks were held last month with emissaries of rebel negotiators NDF Chairman Antonio Zumel and Satur Ocampo.

Mitra said that former Senator Jose W. Diokno, chairman of the presidential Committee on Human Rights (PCHR), and he have been waiting for over two weeks for the rebel group to get in touch with them.

"They are supposed to get in touch with us, but apparently nothing has happened yet," he said. "We are losing our momentum owing to the delays."

Mitra expressed the belief that the CPP and NDF "have not gotten themselves together. They probably have not resolved their position in negotiating with the government."

He said that a task force he created is now studying specific projects to accomodate rebels who may go down from the hills. It is composed of former MAF [Ministry of Agriculture and Food] regional director Agustin Magoo, as task force head; agricutural special assistant Ricardo Roque, and Virginia Palo.

O CHIN-U SENDS LETTERS TO LIVSEY, YI KI-PAEK

[Text] Pyongyang July 11 (KCNA) -- O Chin-u, minister of People's Armed Forces of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, on June 9 sent letters separatealy to William J. Livsey, commander of the U.N. Forces in South Korea, and Yi Ki-paek, South Korean defence minister, proposing to hold talks between the military authorities in accordance with the peace initiative of the supreme command of the Korean People's Army. Reply letters expressing the stand of avoiding talks between the military authorities for detente on the Korean peninsula came on June 21 and 24 respectively from the commander of the U.N. Forces in South Korea and the South Korean defence minister.

In this connection, the minister of People's Armed Forces of the DPRK demanded them to receive letters at Panmunjon at noon July 11, notifying the opposite side through the secretary of our side to the Military Armistice Commission that our side would send letters again to them expressing our stand. But the U.N. Forces side doggedly refused to receive the letter, groundlessly taking issue with us on the matter of the deputy for the addresser, the minister of People's Armed Forces of the DPRK who is first deputy for the supreme commander of the Korean People's Army. And the South Korean side also refused to receive the letter of the minister of People's Armed Forces of the DPRK.

Such condition compelled our side to send over radio the letters to the commander of the U.N. Forces in South Korea and the South Korean defence minister. The letter dated July 5 sent to the commander of the U.N. Forces in South Korea over radio reads:

I received your reply letter dated June 21. In the letter you interpreted our proposal for the relaxation of the tension on the Korean peninsula merely as a matter of North-South relations and evaded talks between the military authorities for its settlement and expressed the stand that in case of discussing problems related to the relaxation of the tension, it can be discussed at the military armistice commission.

I cannot but consider that such stand of yours stemmed either from your insufficient understanding of our proposal or from your absence of will to solve the problem of easing the tension. I, therefore, think that your letter cannot be a proper reply to our letter.

Your side confined the problem of easing the tension proposed by us to the North-South relations. This is a wrong understanding distorting the reality. The problems of averting war and easing the tension on the Korean peninsula are mainly those arising between us and the United States before they are a matter of North-South relations. In actuality the danger of war of the Korean peninsula is ascribable to the presence of U.S Forces in South Korea and the war policy and the threat of war to which our people are exposed comes mainly from their military action against us.

Now U.S. Forces more than 40,000 strong are present in South Korea, various kinds of U.S. military equipment incuding more than 1,000 pieces of nuclear weapons is deployed and U.S. military exercises for attacking us are being held almost every day there. This reality patently proves that the United States can by no means be ruled out in settling the problem of easing the tension. It is quite natural, therefore, to mention, before anyone else, the U.S. side and call the United States to account when we argue on the problem of detente and peace on the Korean peninsula.

This was why we proposed last time to sit at one table with your side, considering that the U.S. side is the very one responsible for the heightening of the tension on the Korean peninsula and a responsible party which is under obligation to relax the tension there. But you, who hold real military power with U.S. Forces present in South Korea directly under your command and control them, said yourself that the problem of relaxing the tension on the Korean peninsula is a matter of North-South relaxations to be solved among the Koreans themselves. This cannot but be a surprising fact deviating too far from common sense.

Of course, we have matters to be settled separately with South Korea. But your side, mixing the problem to be settled between us and South Korea with those to be settled between us and the United States, tries to shirk your responsibility. No one can say that this is a sincere attitude for detente and peace. If you are so unwilling to come out to the table of dialogue for detente and peace, you should have refrained to begin with from heightening the tension and chosen the road of withdrawing from South Korea.

As your side could not categorically turn down the discussion of the problem of easing the tension, your side said in the letter that the question of detente could be discussed at the Military Armistice Commission. This assertion of your side is, in fact, unrealistic and contradictory to the previous stand of your side.

As you know, the Military Armistice Commission is a mechanism for ensuring the implementation of the Korean armistice agreement. But the Military Armistice Commission has failed to reach any agreement even on trifling matters for the observance of the provisions of the armistice agreement. And it failed to settle even the elementary problems related to security in the headquarters area of the Military Armistice Commission and the joint security area at Panmunjom proposed by our side recently. It is evident to everyone that under such conditions it is impossible to realize our peace proposal containing matters outside the framework of the Military Armistice Commission through this mechanism.

While evading to hold talks between the military authorities which can practically settle the matter, your side called this time for discussing the problem of easing the tension at the Military Armistice Commission which cannot settle the problem, this position cannot be viewed as a true one in every respect. Further, we cannot believe the assertion of your side calling for the discussion of the problem of easing the tension at the military armistice commission.

When we proposed to discuss the problems of suspending military exercises for the relaxation of the tension at the meeting of the military armistice comission, your side opposed the discussion of the matter itself, claiming that it is outside the function of the Military Armistice Commission. This was not long ago.

Your side has forgotten this word given by yourself some time ago and now says as if general problems related to the relaxation of the military tension including the problem of suspending military exercises can be discussed at the Military Armistice Commission. This is nothing but a pretext for evading talks between the military authorities proposed by us.

No one can agree with the whimsical attitude of changing assertion and logic for the convenience of justifying a wrong stand on the matter of same character. When we proposed to have tripartite talks, your side refused to come out to the table of talks, saying that they would deal with the problem of the withdrawal of U.S. Forces and the conclusion of a peace agreement. And now your side refuses even to solve the immediate problem of detente, not the solution of the fundamental problem for peace on the Korean peninsula. Your side talking about "threat of southward invasion" from the North opposes and refuses to accept this and that proposal of ours for detente and peace. We cannot but doubt what your side really wants to do.

This is an international year of peace. Our nation and the world's people earnestly hope to see the danger of war dispelled and the tension eased on the Korean peninsula this year. Our nation and the world's people earnestly hope to see the danger of war dispelled and the tension eased on the Korean peninsula this year. Our initiative on holding talks between the military authorities is the best way of realising the aspiration and desire of our fellow countrymen and the world's people at present and accords with the stand of the United States which professed its desire for dialogue and detente in Korea. Your side should deeply study our new peace proposal again and show a positive response from an honest stand.

We hold that talks between the military authorities should be opened without fail within July as proposed in our letter dated June 9.

In this connection, I, hoping for the realization of preliminary contact as early as possible, entrust the date and venue of preliminary contact to your side.

I hope for your positive reply.

[Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean at 0400 GMT on 11 July at this point adds the letter's signature block as follows: "O Chin-u, First Representative of the Supreme Commander of the KPA, Minister of the People's Armed Forces of the DPRK, 5 July 1986"

The letter dated Jul 5 sent to the South Korean defence minister over the radio reads:

I received your reply letter dated June 24.

As you know, we, out of an earnest desire to remove the danger of war and tension created in the country, had the privilege to advance a peace proposal to your side recently to solve immediate problems awaiting urgent solution in the military affairs.

But your side, contrary to our stand, has taken the stand of categorically refusing to come out to talks between the military authorities, not sensible of its bounden duty to remove the danger of war befalling the nation, and thereby greatly disappointed the entire fellow countrymen and the world's people who had been desirous of detente, dialogue and peace.

This is very regrettable.

Your side, instead of giving a responsible answer to our new peace initiative, has tried to justify your wrong stand in evading talks between the military authorities, shifting the blame for the suspension of the dialogue onto our side.

As for the blame for the suspension of the hard-won north-south dialogues and failure to resume them, we should call your side to account for this.

I am not going to mention the efforts exerted by the delegations of our side for the North-South dialogues here, but you can hardly deny that entering this year the military authorities of our side took a positive step to stop military exercises, large and small, for the purpose of saving the north-south dialogues from the danger and creating a favourable atmosphere for them.

Contrary to our efforts, however, your side has suspended all talks at a time by staging the large-scale "Team Spirit" joint military exercises together with the United States against the other party to the dialogue with the mobilization of armed forces hundreds of thousands strong and military equipment of various kinds. Further, your side has heightened the tension and hindered the resumption of the dialogue by officially stating that it would escalate the military rehearsal in the future.

I think you who have organized together with the United States military exercises incompatible with the dialogue must know well of this.

Your side must realize that it is helpful to the improvement of the present complicated North-South relations and to the relaxation of the tension in our country for your side to take the stand of frankly admitting its responsibility and examining itself.

In the reply letter your side, taking the attitude of getting on our nerves and carping on us from the beginning, failed to show a due sincerity for our constructive peace proposal.

Your side, first of all, slandered without reason our proposal for talks between the military authorities, as one for a "propaganda" purpose.

It cannot be construed otherwise than a very thoughtless assertion reflecting the perplexed position of your side that failed to find any reasonable ground to oppose our peace proposal, reasonable and fair.

Without sitting face to face with us for discussion, your side, on its seat far away slandered at will our disinterested proposal as one for "propaganda". No one can say that this is the proper attitude of observing good manners and solving the problem.

In the letter your side, refusing to accept our peace proposal as one for "propaganda", holds that the problem of easing the tension should be discussed at the Military Armistice Commission.

We cannot but say that your side made such an assertion, unable to see reason and unaware of its position.

As for the Military Armistice Commission, this mechanism as pointed out in the report of the supreme command of the Korean People's Army, is failing to solve even matters for the observance of the provisions of the armistice agreement and to reach agreement upon even problems related to security in the very narrow joint security area under its control.

Further, it cannot but be said that in view of our proposal for settling immediate military problems for detente and peace in a package, the present Military Armistice Commission whose function is limited is too small in scale and low in level.

In connection with your assertion that problems should discussed at the Military Armistice Commission, it is necessary to recall that your side, in actuality, has no competence or say in this mechanism.

The counterpart of the senior member of our side to the Military Armistice Commission is a U.S. Army general and the secretary and joint duty officer are U.S. Army officers and even the post of the language section chief is held by a U.S. Army officer. Under such condition, we can hardly understand where is your seat and who is your partner and what you want to say if problems are discussed at the Military Armistice Commission.

Without taking into consideration its position, your side repeated the assertion of the U.S. side in its reply letter that problems should be discussed at the Military Armistice Commission. This is a wrong behaviour in view of national dignity and a disgraceful behavior affecting its honour.

We would like to add one word more that as for the "proposal for building trust" your side said you brought forward for detente, people clearly know that it is a proposal of the U.S. side, not of your side, and they consider that your side merely issued a statement in support of it.

To all intents and purposes, the stand and attitude of your side is to have a discussion at a place without its seat or the right to settle problems, denying itself to be an independent party to the dialogue and avoiding the place for detente and peace. Such stand and attitude failed to give a proper reply to our peace proposal.

As for "talks between the supreme chiefs of the north and south authorities" your side brought forward in your letter, it is a proposal purely for a propaganda purpose, a claptrap one ignoring the reality.

It does not stand to reason to propose top-level talks without consideration under the present condition in which the multi-channelled dialogues between the north and the south have suspended.

Our proposal for talks between the military authorities reflects the positive stand of resuming the deadlocked north-south talks and realising top-level talks at an early date by taking steps for detente in the military affairs.

If your side is truly interested in the matter of top-level talks, why did it evade in the letter even to make a mention of parliamentary talks which should be taken into account without fail for top-level talks, while talking about Red Cross and economic talks? We cannot but doubt what your real intention is.

All facts show that your side does not want detente or dialogue but seeks only confrontation and war in our country.

In face of the imminent danger of war the entire fellow countrymen watch the military authorities before anyone else. If you who should conduct responsible work for detente and peace turn away from this and avoid the responsibility you assume before the nation, you will be only committing a crime against the nation.

Our peace proposal is not a matter which may be solved or not by any party and whose realisation may be given up by anyone's refusal.

It is a vital question related to the destiny of the whole nation an important matter directly related to world peace.

Proceeding from this, I hold that your side must deeply study again our proposal that those who hold real military power sit face to face to solve urgent military problems waiting for solution in our country, and show an affirmative response to it.

In view of the urgency of talks between the military authorities, we think that they should be opened without fail within July, as already proposed in our letter dated June 9.

In this connection, I, hoping for the realisation of preliminary contact as early as possible, entrust its date and venue to your side.

I hope for an early reply from you.

Letters Refused

SK110540 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 0400 GMT 11 Jul 86

[Text] The DPRK minister of People's Armed Forces [O-Chin-u] has sent letters to the commander in chief of the UN Command in South Korea and the South Korean minister of national defense.

In accordance with the peace proposal of the KPA Supreme Command, Comrade O Chin-u, DPRK minister of People's Armed Forces, on 9 June, sent William J. Livsey, commander in chief of the UN Command in South Korea, and Yi Ki-paek, South Korean minister of National Defense respectively, lettrs proposing holding talks among persons in military authority. However, on 21 and 24 June, the commander in chief of the UN Command in South Korea and the South Korean minister of national defense respectively sent letters of reply expressing the position of shirking talks among the persons in military authority to alleviate tension on the Korean peninsula.

In connection with this, the DPRK minister of People's Armed Forces, through our side's chief secretary of the MAC, informed the opposite side of the fact that he will again send letters revealing our position and demanded that the opposite side receive the letters in Panmunjom at 1200 on the afternoon of 11 July. However, this day, unjustly, the UN Command side persistently refused to receive the letter, finding fault with the question of the title of our minister of People's Armed Forces, the first representative [taeriin] of the KPA supreme commander, who sent the letter. The South Korean side also refused to receive the letter of our minister of People's Armed Forces.

Under these circumstances, our side, against its will, cannot but send the letters to the commander in chief of the UN Command in South Korea and the South Korean minister of National Defense via the radio [pangsong].

NODONG SINMUN ON ROK-U.S. AGREEMENT ANNIVERSARY

SK100158 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2148 GMT 8 Jul 86

[NODONG SINMUN 9 July commentary: "The Relations Between Masters and Servants That Cannot Be Concealed"]

[Text] Presently, by babbling about partnership and being allies whenever they open their mouths, the U.S. imperialists are desperately embellishing South Korea as an independent state. The South Korean puppets are also propagandizing, as if they exercise sovereignty. However, all of this is nonsensical. On the surface, there is a so-called regime in South Korea. At the same time, there is a so-called president. Thus, South Korea appears to be an independent state. However, in actuality, everything is nothing more than a camoflage.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: Today, in South Korea, the U.S. imperialists are playing the role of masters.

The U.S. imperialists are the real rulers who hold all power in South Korea and play the role of masters. The Status-of-Forces Agreement, which was concluded on 9 July 20 years ago between the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets, fully shows this.

This agreement is a completely brigandish and humiliating one which defines that the U.S. military authorities exercise judicial jurisdiction over the crimes of the U.S. aggression troops over the South Korean people. So to speak, the agreement has defined that extraterritorial privileges be allowed for the U.S. aggression forces in South

South Korea has to yield to U.S. pressure for the opening of the South Korea market, which kills South Korean business firms and workers. At the same time, despite the damages to the South Korean farmers, cattle are important from the United States and forcibly sold in South Korea. Moreover, the sacred land of the fatherland has been completely offered as the aggressors' military base, as a powder-reeking war exercise ground, and as a place of testing chemical, and germ weapons. Precisely, this is the reality of the South Korean regime in which traitor Chon Tu-hwan is wearing the cap of president.

Though the U.S. imperialist aggressors commit atrocities such as assaulting the houses of civilians everywhere, plundering the people's properties, raping women, and killing innocent residents, the South Korean puppets can take no punishing measures. At the same time, when a dog was brought into the office of a minister, they could lodge no protest at all.

The U.S. imperialist aggression troops, while participating in the "Team Spirit-86" joint military exercise, killed a pregnant female school teacher. Nevertheless, to continue to wear the cap of president, the people who spoke of this fact were suppressed on the charge of spreading a groundless rumor, and the patriotic students who are unyieldingly turning out in the anti-U.S. struggle are being suppressed on the charge of violating the heinous National Security Law. Precisely, this is the situation of the puppets.

In South Korea, where the aggression troops' violation of sovereignty is openly committed and encouraged, how can an independent state exist? The South Korean regime is completely a colonial puppet regime which maintains its life by eating U.S. bread crumbs.

Gleysteen, former U.S. ambassador to South Korea, said that the U.S.-South Korean relations were not horizontal ones but vertical ones. This is not accidential at all.

The South Korean people have branded the United States as an arrogant neocolonial ruler, and the U.S.-South Korean relations as the master-servant relations. They are raising the torch of the anti-U.S. struggle high.

With nothing can the U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan ring conceal the master-servant relations between the colonial ruler and its stooge.

The anti-U.S. struggle of the youths, students, and people, which is furiously expanding in South Korea of late, is a just struggle to end the U.S. imperialists' colonel rule.

No force can frustrate the aspiration of the South Korean youths, students, and people to recover the violated national prestige and sovereignty with the anti-U.S. struggle for independence.

The U.S. imperialists must abandon the foolish idea to continue the colonial rule by embellishing the South Korean puppet regime as an independent state. They must withdraw from South Korea in accordance with the demand of the era and people.

ROK NOTIFIES NORTH OF REFUSAL TO ACCEPT LETTER

SK110448 Seoul YONHAP in English 0438 GMT 11 Jul 86

[Text] Seoul, July 11 (YONHAP) -- South Korea has refused to respond to North Korea's offer to send a letter from its Armed Forces Minister O Chin-u to Defense Minister Yi Ki-paek of the South, a Defense Ministry source disclosed Friday.

Pyongyang recently notified Seoul that it would had Seoul a letter Friday through the truce viilage of Panmunjom, but Seoul rejected taking the letter, urging instead, that Pyongyang utilize existing dialogue channels between the divided halves of the Korean peninsula.

On June 17, northern Defense Minister O sent a letter to his southern counterpart, calling for a defense ministers conference. The Pyongyang overture was turned down by Minister Yi in his letter sent to O June 24. In the letter, Yui said that inter-Korean military matters can be handled by existing channels such as the Military Armistice Commission. Yi, instead, called upon Pyongyang to "immediately resume the suspended inter-Korean talks" -- Red Cross talks for reunion of dispersed family members and economic talks.

A ministry source said that the maintenance and development of existing dialogue channels with sincerity are more important than the numerical increase of dialogue channels to ease tension between the two Koreas and to restore the lost sense of mutual trust between them.

"Discarding propaganda activities by taking advantage of ususal mail delivery, the North Korean side should show sincerity to resume the inter-Korean dialogue, and we, therefore, have served a notice to North Korea that we cannot afford to receive O's proposed letter," he said.

ROK PROPOSES RESUMPTION OF NORTH-SOUTH TALKS

[Text] Seoul, July 11 (YONHAP) -- South Korea Friday strongly urged North Korea to resume the inter-Korean Red Cross, parliamentary and economic talks next month. In telephone messages to North Korea, South's chief delegates of the three meetings proposed that the 11th red cross main meeting be held on Aug 28 in Pyongyang, the sixth economic talks on Aug 6 in the truce village of Panmunjom, and the preliminary parliamentary talks on Aug 13 in Panmunjom.

The South had proposed on March 26 this year to resume the inter-Korean dialogue which the North unilaterally suspended in January, citing the annual South Korea-U.S. join military exercise, Team Spirit '86. At that time, Seoul proposed that the Red Cross talks be held on May 27 in Pyongyang, economic talks on April 30 in Panmunjom, and parliamentary talks on May 14 in Panmunjom. Pyongyang turned down the bid.

Yi Yong-tok, Seoul's chief delegate to the inter-Korean Red Cross talks, urged that the Red Cross talks be held Aug 26 in Pyongyang saying that it was very regrettable that the Red Cross talks cannot be held for more than seven months despite the repeated calls by the Southern side.

In a telephone message sent to North's chief delegate Yi Chong-yul, Yi said "the two sides achieved substantial progress last year in the discussion of the five-point agenda items through the past three main meetings." The Red Cross talks in 1985 have brightened the prospects for the "family reunion projects" by exchanging home-town visiting groups, "if the 11th main conference were held on Feb. 26 as originally agreed upon and the two sides made progress further in the discussion of the agenda, the solution to the problem of reuniting dispersed families would have been advanced," he said.

Reminding Pyongyang of its previous suggestion that the discussion of agenda be completed by September this year, marking the 15th anniversary of the inauguration of the Red Cross talks, Yi urged that the North Korean Red Cross should come to the dialogue without condition.

Mun Hui-kab, chief delegate to the economic talks, also said that he thinks the economic talks between the two sides should not be delayed any longer, considering the high aspirations and expectations by the entire Korean people. In his message to Yi Song-nok, Pyongyang's chief delegate, Mun stressed that the North Korean side should accept the South's call for the resumption of the talks unconditionally, and proposed that the sixth meeting be held at 10 a.m. on Aug. 6 at the conference room of the neutral nations' supervisory commission in Panmunjom.

Mun said the two sides, through the five past meetings, have reached agreement on the mutual trade and economic cooperation to considerable degree and agreed to establish a joint economic cooperation committee to be headed by deputy prime minister-level officials of the two sides.

Pointing out that the two sides had been ready to start the drafting of concrete agreement document, Mun said that it was "irresponsible and insincere" that Pyongyang unilaterally cancelled the talks and refused Seoul's call.

Kwon Chong-tal, chief delegate to the inter-Korean parliamentary talks, also sent a similar message to his Northern counterpart Chon Kum-chol, proposing that the third preliminary talks be held at 10 a.m. Aug. 13 in Panmunjom.

DJP OFFICIAL ON NEXT PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE

[Text] Seoul, July 10 (Yonhap) -- A key functionary of South Korea's ruling Democratic Justice Party (DJP) said Thursday that his party will consider its candidate for the top office of the next government only after it reaches an accord with the opposition on the projected constitutional revision.

Chong Sun-Tok, DJP's secretary general, told reporters that "in any way, we have to conclude the negotiations for the constitutional revision by the end of this year, and it will be a due course for our party to think aobut the candidate after that." Chong said the government party will decide on the procedures for designation of the candidate depending on the form of government under the new constitition.

The DJP has not yet revealed a clear stance on the form of the new government, but made it clear that it opposes the direct presidential election system demanded by the opposition camp.

When asked whether No Tae-u, chairman of the DJP, would be the candidate, Chung said, "in any party, it is true that the present leader has the edge,"

In regard to the remarks made by No in a meeting last month of DJP lawmakers that the party president has endowed him and the party with the authority and responsibility to take the initiative in the politics, Chong said those could be interpreted as a call on the present party leadership to resolve the constitutional issue with "firm sense of calling." President Chon Tu-hwan concurrently serves as the president of the government party.

Chong said No will disclose his thoughts about the future of the DJP in speeches or lectures he will deliver at the DJP's summer camp beginning on July 21.

Touching on a possible amnesty on the constitution day that falls on July 17, Chong indicated that the possibility has not been ruled out of the opposition demand for the release of dissident detainees in connection with the formation of the special national assembly committee for the constitutional revision.

"Normally there has been no amnesty on the constitution day. But it is clear that the government has an intention to contribute something to the political circle," Chong said.

CONSTITUTION COMMITTEE BEGINS WORK NEXT WEEK

[Text] The special parliamentary committee for constitutional revision which was born through a political resolution by rival parties last month is expected to go into operation next week.

For the past 16 days since the panel came into existence on June 24, the parties have failed to fix the lists of their delegates to serve on the committee because of disagreements over the composition ratio.

However, it was learned yesterday that they narrowed the gap in their positions on the issue through behind-the-scenes contacts.

The composition ratio which the rival parties agreed broadly was 23 for the DJP, 17 for NDP, four for the minor opposition Korea National Party and one for the independent group.

The NDP has argued that the independents or members of splinter groups such as the New Conservative club should not be included in the committee formation because they stand for the parliamentary cabinet system instead of a direct presidential election which it supports.

The DJP presented its list of 20 special committee members to the House speaker on Wednesday and will add three shortly. The KNP submitted the list of four delegates yesterday.

Meanwhile, the NDP plans to announce its line-up list today or tomorrow, party sources revealed.

To consult about the selection of the delegates, NDP president Yi Min-u and his advisor Kim Yong-sam had a breakfast meeting at a Seoul hotel yesterday.

In the meeting, they held the identical view that although the NDP's demand was not accepted by the ruling party, it is desirable to hurry up the operation of the committee, the sources said.

Informed sources said that the NDP's line-up includes Reps. Pak Il, Pak Yong-man, Kim Hyon-kyu, Pak Chan-chong, So Sok-chae, Mok Yo-sang (all of whom are followers of Kim Yong-sam) Yi Yong-hui, Ho Kyong-man, Kim Yong-pae, Cho Sun-hyong, Pak Chong-yul (followers of Kim Tae-chung).

The KNP's delegates to the panel are Sin Chol-kyun, Choe Chae-ku, Yi Pong-mo and Yang Chong-kyu.

The names of the DJP's delegates were Kwan Chong-chol, Kim Chong-nam, Kim Chong-in, Kim Chong-ho, Kim Hyong-uk, Nam Chae-hui, Pak Kyong-sok, Pae Song-tong, An Pyong-kyu, U Pyong-kyu, Yi Chi-ho, Yi Han-tong, Cho Ki-sang, Cho Nam-cho, Chong Tong-song, Chong Chang-hwa, Chae Mun-sik, Ho Chong-il, Hyon Kyong-tae and Hyon Hong-chu.

Yon Kil-chung, Kim Suk-hyon and Ko Kun are expected to be added to the list.

KIM TAE-CHUNG ON IMPLEMENTATING LOCAL AUTONOMY

SK110112 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 11 Jul 86 p 4

[From the "Out and About" Column]

[Text] At a regular meeting of his faction members, Kim Tae-chung said the local autonomy system is "no less important than constitutional reform."

Criticizing an intraparty argument calling for postponed implementation of the local autonomy system till after the next general elections, Kim said. "The NKDP must push for an early implementation of the system along with the revision of the Constitution."

Kim, who leads a powerful NKDP faction, chairs a meeting of his faction lawmakers every Thursday.

At the session, Kim's faction members agreed that elections for local councils should precede the next general elections and that chiefs of local governments be picked by direct elections, according to Rep. Yu Chun-sang.

PARTY, STATE COMMUNIQUE ON LE DUAN'S DEATH

[Text] The KPRP Central Committee, the Councils of State and Ministers, the National Assembly, and the KUFNCD National Council would like sorrowfully to inform party members, cadres, male and female combatants, and people throughout the country that Comrade Le Duan, general secretary of the CPV Central Committee, the famous student of President Ho Chi Minh, the outstanding combatant of the international communist-worker movement, and the great friend of the Cambodian people, passed away at 1530 on 10 July 1986 at the age of 79 after a serious illness.

To express our grievous mourning for Comrade Le Duan, who had accomplished outstanding feats in the cause of the national liberation of peoples in the three Indochinese countries and in preserving and consolidating the special relations between Cambodia and Vietnam, the KPRP Central Committe, the Councils of State and Ministers, the National Assembly, and the KUFNCD National Council have decided the following:

1. To institute mourning throughout the country for 5 days from 11 to 15 July 1986. During this mourning period, all party and state institutions and mass organizations at all levels must fly the national flag at half-mast and suspend all public entertainment.

2. Organize grand memorial ceremonies for Comrade Le Duan in the central sector and provinces and municipalities.

3. Send a high-ranking delegation of the party and state to attend Comrade Le Duan's funeral ceremony in Hanoi.

SIHANOUK: LE DUAN DEATH WILL NOT AFFECT COMBODIA

HK101425 Hong Kong AFP in English 1418 GMT 10 Jul 86

[Text] Beijing, July 10 (AFP) -- Prince Norodom Sihanouk, head of the Cambodian resistance coalition, said Thursday the death of Vietnamese leader Le Duan would not alter Vietnam's policies in Cambodia.

"I think that the death of Le Duan will not bring any change in the colonialist policy of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam in Cambodia. This policy will remain the same," Prince Sihanouk said.

Prince Sihanouk said he had developed a strong friendship with Mr Le Duan and Truong Chinh, now Vietnam's top leader, between their first meeting in 1969 at the funeral of Ho Chi Minh, and their last meeting in September 1975.

"Since then Le Duan and I have never had any contact, even indirect," he said in a statement given to reporters by a member of his staff.

"Le Duan, Pham Van Dong, Nguyen Co Thach and company have turned out to be the enemies of my country since 1979. Consequently they became my enemies," he said.

However, the prince added that in contrast to Pham Van Dong and Nguyen Co Thach, "Mr Le Duan has never pronounced any despising words about me."

"My comment about his death," he said, "is peace to his soul."

Vietnamese forces invaded Cambodia in 1979, and remain there to protect the pro-Vietnamese government in Phnom Penh against resistance guerrillas.

China reported the death of Mr Le Duan without comment in a brief dispatch from Hanoi released by the official NEW CHINA NEWS AGENCY (NCNA) soon after the official announcement was made by Hanoi Radio.

The dispatch, quoting the Voice of Vietnam within two hours of the first broadcast confirming Mr Le Duan's death, gave a brief history of his positions in the Vietnamese Communist Party but made no comment.

Chinese officials could not be reached for China's reaction to the news. China opposes the Vietnamese presence in Cambodia.

VODK REPORTS HU YAOBANG RECEPTION FOR SIHANOUK

BK060316 (Clandestine) Voice of Democratic Kampuchea in Cambodian 2330 GMT 5 Jul 86

[Text] On 3 July, Hu Yaobang, general secretary of the Chinese Communist Party, hosted a reception in honor of Samdech Norodom Sihanouk, president of Democratic Kampuchea, and his wife on the occasion of Sihanouk's birthday.

On this occasion, the samdech said he will continue to unite with Cambodian nationalists and resistance forces in the struggle against the Vietnamese aggressors until the end and that he will not abandon this fight. The samdech also congratulated Hu Yaobang for his successful visit to 4 European countries.

Hu Yaobang praised the samdech's fighting spirit in the struggle against foreign aggression. He expressed his conviction that the Cambodian people will score the final victory in their struggle against the Vietnamese aggressors and for national liberation. The general secretary also briefed the samdech on his recent visit to Britain, West Germany, France, and Italy. He said all these countries have expressed their support for the CGDK's 8-point peace proposal to resolve the Cambodian issue politically.

PRACHEACHON DENOUNCES ASEAN CAMBODIA STATEMENT

BK060747 Phnom Penh Domestic Service in Cambodian 1300 GMT 5 Jul 86

[PRACHEACHON commentary: "It Is an Impasse To Help the Cambodian Reactionary Groups and Encourage Beijing's Confrontation Policy"]

[Text] The 19th annual conference of the ASEAN foreign ministers was held for 2 days on 23 and 24 June in Manila, the capital of the Philippines.

In the conference's statement there are a number of inactive points which interfere in Cambodia's internal affairs by voicing support for the Cambodian reactionary groups and their 8-point proposal, which was mapped out by Beijing and aimed at enabling the genocidal Pol Pot clique -- the clique that caused so much bloodshed and committed so many crimes against the Cambodian people -- to return to power in Cambodia.

The Manila statement attested that the ASEAN countries have not made any initiative for the settlement of the remaining problems between the group of Indochinese countries and that of the ASEAN countries. Moreover, they have helped the Beijing lackeys and followed the confrontation policy of the hegemonist-expansionists and imperialist forces against the PRK and the three Indochinese countries. At the same time, they have blamed Vietnam and the Indochinese countries for not desiring to solve the Cambodian problem through negotiation and said that Vietnam's proposals do not contribute to settling the Cambodian problem.

As a matter of fact, during the past almost 8 years, both in word and deed, the PRK, SRV, and LPDR have sincerely made every effort and set forth various reasonable proposals showing their willingness to hold talks and negotiations for the settlement of problems between the Indochinese and ASEAN countries. The goodwill attitude displayed at the 10th, 11th, and 12th conferences of the three Indochinese foreign ministers have been welcomed and supported widely by public opinion in the region and the world as a positive contribution to stimulating the negotiations between the two groups of countries -- thus contributing to turning Southeast Asia into a zone of peace, stability, cooperation, and friendship -- and to solving the Cambodian problem.

The statement of the 12th conference of the three Indochinese foreign ministers held at the beginning of 1986 had once again displayed the unswervingly good-willed attitude of Cambodia, Vietnam, and Laos toward the settlement of the Cambodian problem. This statement clearly analysed and stressed two aspects of the solution to the Cambodian problem. These two aspects are: 1. The internal aspect that must be solved by Cambodia itself without any outside interference; and 2. the international aspect of the solution to the Cambodian problem, which includes the agreement on withdrawal of the Vietnamese Army volunteers, which must be done simultaneously with the end to all material and military aid to the Pol Pot remnants and other Cambodian reactionary groups, with the end to the use of Thai territory by these elements as their sanctuaries for opposing the PRK, with the end to all outside intervention into Cambodia's internal affairs, and with the end to all hostile, military activities by those countries who oppose the PRK.

This is truly a reasonable proposal for peaceful negotiation of the Cambodian problem to ensure long-lasting peace and stability in Southeast Asia.

The PRK and SRV Governments recently agreed to withdraw another part of the Vietnamese Army volunteers for the fiftn time from Cambodia. This fifth troop withdrawal is another proof of the correct stand and goodwilled attitude of Cambodia and Vietnam in contribution to the cause of peace, stability, and cooperation in Southeast Asia in conformity with the aspirations and genuine and correct interests of the more than 350 million people in the region.

The ASEAN countries still confirm that the threat to them and to the whole of Southeast Asia derives from the Chinese hegemonist-expansionists and not from Vietnam. But during the past almost 8 years, they have turned a blind eye to the perfidious maneuvers and activities of the Beijing hegemonist-expansionists in collusion with the U.S. imperialists and the ultrarightists in the Thai ruling circles in causing continuous tension and confrontation in Southeast Asia and maintaining the state of enmity between the ASEAN and Indochinese countries in an attempt to conceal their crimes against the Cambodian revolution and the three Indochinese countries.

The ASEAN countries' call for withdrawal of the Vietnamese Army volunteers from Cambodia unilaterally and without paying attention to the fact that Thailand is still providing sanctuaries to the Cambodian reactionaries for use in their opposition to the Cambodian revolution is in fact assistance to the Chinese hegemonist-expansionists and the reactionary imperialist forces and an obstacle to the trend of dialogue for settlement of the Cambodian problem. The Manila statement also praised and supported the proposal of the Cambodian reactionaries and called on Vietnam to accept this proposal, which is just a perfidious maneuver concocted by the Beijing hegemonist-expansionists in an attempt to reverse the situation in Cambodia and restore the genocidal Pol Pot regime in Cambodia. Sihanouk himself has admitted that if the 8-point proposal is implemented, the Khmer Rouge will certainly rule Cambodia.

The Cambodian people firmly reject all the erroneous proposals on the Cambodian problem stated in the Manila statement. All these proposals do not contribute to stimulating the negotiations to solve all the remaining problems between the two groups of countries. Moreover, they are tantamount to encouraging the confrontation policy of the Beijing hegemonist-expansionists, thus causing tension in Southeast Asia.

In Southeast Asia, the trend of peaceful coexistence and the constructive proposals made at the 10th, 11th, and 12th conferences of the three Indochinese countries have enjoyed increasing support with each passing day.

Together with Vietnam and Laos, we are ready to hold talks and negotiations to solve all problems between the two groups of countries, thus contributing to turning Southeast Asia into a zone of peace, stability, cooperation, and friendship. However, we resolutely oppose all the perfidious schemes and activities of the Chinese hegemonist-expansionists in collusion with the U.S. imperialists and the reactionary lackey forces, and resolutely pledge to firmly defend our national independence and sovereignty, thus vigorously stimulating the cause of our national defense and construction in order to make each of our countries advance toward firm socialism.

VODK PRAISES ASEAN'S CAMBODIA COMMUNIQUE

BK280403 (Clandestine) Voice of Democratic Kampuchea in Cambodian 2330 GMT 27 Jun 86

[Station commentary: "The Cambodian People Highly Appreciate and Express Profound Thanks for the Just Joint Communique of the ASEAN Foreign Ministers' Meeting"]

[Text] On 24 June, the 19th annual meeting of the ASEAN foreign ministers in Manila issued a joint communique affirming its resolute support for the CGDK's 17 March 1986 peace proposal and demanding that Vietnam reconsider its rejection of this proposal. At the same time, the communique denounces Vietnam for not resolving the Cambodian issue politically and for continuing its attacks to massacre the Cambodian people, particularly civilian refugees along the Cambodian-Thai border and in Thailand. It exposes Vietnam's deceitful partial troop withdrawals from Cambodia and demands that Vietnam withdraw all its forces from Cambodia as prescribed by UN resolutions.

This is a just and common-sense position reflecting the just, correct, and principled stand of the ASEAN countries. Since Vietnam invaded Cambodia at the end of 1978, the ASEAN countries, which constantly adhere to the UN charter and international law governing interstate relations, have adopted a just stand on the issue by firmly opposing Vietnam's aggression against and occupation of Cambodia and demanding that Vietnam immediately withdraw all its aggressor troops from Cambodia unconditionally to let the Cambodian people decide their own destiny without any outside interference or pressure. During the past more than 7 years, all the ASEAN countries have made every effort to conduct activities in the international arena to assist and support the CGDK, both morally and politically, and to seek a political, just, and long-lasting solution to the Cambodian issue.

At every session of the UN General Assembly and in other international forums, as well as at every session of its annual meeting, ASEAN has cooperated with all peace- and justice-loving countries the world over in denouncing and condemning the Vietnamese aggressors and firmly demanding that Vietnam immediately and unconditionally withdraw all its aggressor troops from Cambodia and respect the Cambodian people's right to determine their destiny themselves. And recently, ASEAN has voiced its support for the CGDK's 8-point proposal to resolve the Cambodian issue and demanded that Vietnam accept this proposal by holding talks with the CGDK.

This correct and just stand by the ASEAN countries has heightened their prestige in the international arena. They have also received increasing support from the international community. This is a great encouragment to the Cambodian people, all Cambodian nationalist resistance forces, and the CGDK, who are arduously and persistently fighting the Vietnamese enemy on the Cambodian battlefield. The Cambodian people, the National Army, and the CGDK would like to express their profound and wholehearted thanks for the correct and just stand and activities of the ASEAN countries and the hope that the latter will continue these righteous activities, support for the CGDK's 8-point proposal, and cooperation with all peace- and justice-loving countries the world over to pressure Vietnam to withdraw all its aggressor forces from Cambodia and respect the Cambodian people's right to determine their destiny themselves -- finding a just, long-lasting, political resolution to the Cambodian issue.

SPK COMMENTARY DENOUNCES THAI-U.S. EXERCISE

["Cobra Gold 86" -- SPK headline]

[Text] Phnom Penh SPK July 9 -- The U.S.-Thai joint military exercise "Cobra Gold 86" to be staged near the Thai-Kampuchean border is a direct provocation against, and a threat to security and peace of Kampuchea. According to foreign sources, the U.S.-Thai joint military exercise "Cobra Gold 86" is to be held from July 10 to August 13 with the participation of more than 10,000 men from the three armed services of the United States and Thailand. Thailand has claimed that the exercise would help Thai troops train themselves on the spot in a ground offensive against any intrusions which might take place there to test their fighting capacity.

But it is quite interesting to see the places where such war game would be conducted with sophisticated weapons and in a scale larger than the previous ones. This constitutes not only a direct provocation against, and a threat to security and peace of Kampuchea and other two Indochinese countries but also aggravates tension in the whole Southeast Asia. Moreover, such war game which has existed since 1982 cannot be singled out from other U.S. interference in other parts of the world. It has run counter to the aspirations of peoples in Southeast Asia for peace, friendship and cooperation.

Thailand's deeds and words have once again unmasked its dark schemes and allegations that threat comes from the three Indochinese countries. All Thailand's hostile acts can be easily seen through the purpose of this war game, its continued violations of Kampuchea's territorial integrity, particularly its direct backing of the Polpotist criminals and other Khmer reactionaries, and its ambitions to grab more land from neighbouring countries. In the face of such hostile attitude, the Kampuchean people and army are doubling their vigilance to defend their country and shall foil all hostile moves against their independence and sovereignty.

VIENTIANE CARRIES SRV COMMUNIQUE ON LE DUAN

BK110226 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 1400 GMT 10 Jul 86

[Text] According to reports from Hanoi, at 0330 on 10 July, Comrade Le Duan, general secretary of the CPV Central Committee, passed away after a period of serious illness at the age of 79. On this occasion, the CPV Central Committee, the National Assembly, the Council of State, the Council of Ministers, and the Presidium of the VFF Central Committee issued a special communique, the text of which follows:

The CPV Central Committee, the National Assembly, the Council of State, the Council of Ministers and the Presidium of the VFF Central Committee are boundlessly grieved to announce that Comrade Le Duan, general secretary of the CPV Central Committee, passed away at 0330 on 10 July 1986 after a period of serious illness at the age of 79.

During Comrade Le Duan's illness, the party and state of the SRV cared for him earnestly, sending a contingent of competent professors and doctors with adequate medical facilities to treat him to the best of their capabilities. But due to advanced age and the seriousness of his illness, the comrade has departed from us forever.

During the nearly 60 years of his revolutionary activities, with his absolute loyalty to Marxism-Leninism and to the interests of the country and people, Comrade Le Duan devoted his entire life to the tasks of national liberation and reunification and to advancing the country toward socialism.

As a prominent disciple of President Ho Chi Minh, Comrade Le Duan was an outstanding leader of the Vietnamese party and people and a stalwart combatant of the international communist movement, the workers movement, and the national independence movement.

Comrade Le Duan's death is a great loss of the Vietnamese party and people. To show their fond memory of and gratitude to Comrade Le Duan, a joint meeting of the CPV Central Committee, the National Assembly, the State Council, the Council of Ministers of the SRV, and the Presidium of the VFF Central Committee has decided:

1. To organize national memorial services with solemn rites for him throughout the country;

2. To permit the entire party, Army, and people to mourn for Comrade Le Duan for 5 days 11-15 July.

KAYSONE PHOMVIHAN GREETS KPRP ON ANNIVERSARY

BK281218 Vientiane KPL in English 0859 GMT 28 Jun 86

[Text] Vientiane, June 28 (KPL) -- The general secretary of the Lao People's Revolutionary Party CC, K. Phomvihan sent yesterday a message of greetings to Heng Samrin, general secretary of the Peoples Revolutionary Party of Kampuchea, (KPRP), on the occasion of the 35th anniversary of the KPRPK.

During the past 35 years, said the message having executed the lofty will of the Indochinese Communist Party founded and nurtured by the great Ho Chi Minh, the KPRP had resolutely led Kampuchean revolutionary forces and people in defeating the French colonialists, the U.S. imperialists and their henchmen. They had also smashed the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary genocide, the puppet of the Beijing hegemonists and expansionists, and hence scoring great victory of historical significance, the message stressed.

This victory, the Lao leader continued, opened a new era, and era of independence, genuine self-mastery and national resoration and building on the path of socialism, pointed out K. Phomvihan.

The said victory and success of the Kampuchean people have greatly contributed to the restoration of the traditional solidarity among the three Indochinese countries, and strengthening the alliance among them. So doing, they have contributed to the struggle for peace, stability, friendship, and cooperation in Southeast Asia, K. Phomvihan said.

The Lao said expressed pride over the successes scored by the KPRP and people and considered them as their own.

K. Phomvihan concluded saying.

"On this solemn occasion, I wish the Kampuchean people under the leadership of the KPRP headed by General Secretary Heng Samrin, new and still greater success in their implementation of the resolution of the 5th Party Congress.

GROUPS STUDY LPRP CC DRAFT POLITICAL REPORT

Secretariat Instruction on Study

BK051127 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 0000 GMT 5 Jul 86

[Text] In mid-June, the party Central Committee Secretariat issued Guidance Instruction No. 51/KLSK on organizing study of and contributing opinion to the draft political report of the party Central Committee which will be presented at the Fourth Party Congress. The instruction was aimed at mobilizing our entire party, army, and masses to appreciate the party's line and policy one more step and to study and contribute opinion to the draft political report so that it will be the creative work full of the collective talents of our entire party and people. On this basis, grasping a increasing faith in the party's correct line and leadership will be strengthened while the internal unity and unification will be further enhanced together with the sense of responsibility of all party cadres, members, combatants, and people toward the tasks of defending the country and building socialism. The instruction was also aimed at effecting a new positive change in the ideological line, attitudes, and pattern in working and at creating a new sense of determination and a new posture in order to translate into reality the resolutions adopted at the Fourth Party Congress, thus leading the revolution in our country to march firmly forward.

The instruction also urged that emulation campaigns in the entire party, army, and masses be more vigorously and thoroughly carried out, aimed at fulfilling the 1986 state plan to create achievements to welcome the Fourth Party Congress. In the immediate future, efforts must be concentrated on carrying out production in a timely manner, consolidating cooperatives of all types with new quality, applying the principle of relationship among the state, cooperatives, and producers, fulfilling necessary requirements of the people during the rice growing season, and promoting national defense and public security work in the countryside and at the grassroots level.

The instruction also explained that the study and consideration of each part and problem must be based on the law of socialist revolution and the party's line and policy. The reality in each locality, the nature of work, and the responsibility of each individual must be taken into account. Freedom of expression must be enhanced in accordance with democratic principles. Views must be expressed on general issues, moving down to specific problems and individuals. Everyone must dare to speak the truth and dare to comment on any past shortcomings, and must avoid approaching only subjective and easy issues while trying to stay away from objective ones or merely trying to deal with them superficially.

The instruction stressed: While studying and contributing views on the draft political report, we must review the second 5-year state plan in our respective services, localities, and foundations. If anything is found to be incompatible with the overall orientation, tasks, and objectives, it must be modified and resolved. We must avoid the phenomenon of having one's mouth bigger than one's stomach without realizing one's own capability. At the same time, we must avoid the attitude of seeing only difficulties, making no efforts, failing to find solutions, and lacking a sense of responsibility.

Media Committee Studies Report

[Text] On the afternoon of 7 July, the State Committee for News Agency, Newspapers, Radio, and Television concluded the second political life campaign among committee members to study and contribute views to the draft political report of the party Central Committee which will be presented to the Fourth Party Congress. Son Khamvanvongsa, acting chairman of the committee, noted the outcome of the campaign which allowed all the participants to appreciate the numerous great and firm victories scored by, and the talented and brilliant leadership of, the party in the past 10 years as well as the orientation and tasks of the Lao revolution in the years to come, especially during the Second 5-Year State Plan. Each participant contributed earnest views to the draft political report with a sense of responsibility, while each service closely scrutinized the contents of the draft political report, comparing them with its own Second 5-Year Plan so as to find strong and weak points for modification.

Emerging from this campaign, the participants were able to consolidate their attitudes toward friend and foe and the struggle between the two lines and to understand the success and failure of the plan of their service as well as certain remaining problems which must be resolved. As a result, they will be able to vigorously and actively carry out activities in their office, thus contributing to mobilizing a national campaign to score achievements to welcome the forthcoming Fourth Party Congress.

[5 July PASASON editorial: "Organize and Guide Movements To Carry Out Political Life in Most Effective Manner"]

[Text] The 10th plenary session of the Third Party Central Committee which was held from 15 to 31 May 1986 is of profound revolutionary significance. It was considered a very significant milestone for our party in promoting the creative studies through collective intelligence of the entire party and people to collect views with a high quality and put them in the draft political report of the party Central Committee which will be submitted to the forthcoming Fourth Congress of our party. To translate into reality the spirit, contents, and objectives of the plenary session, the party Central Committee Secretariat recently issued an additional concrete instruction agreeing that political life campaigns be extensively and thoroughly carried out in the entire party, army, and people by putting an emphasis on studying and giving views on the draft political report of the party Central Committee. Since then, the party committees at various levels, various branches, and various mass organizations have enhanced their sense of responsibility, firmly grasped the guidance ideas of the party Central Committee, fully promoted and expanded collective democracy, and encouraged the cadres, party members, workers, farmers, socialist intellectuals, and various classes of the people of various tribes to promote and expand their freedom of thought and freedom to express views openly towards the correct and creative line of our party and towards the great, all-round, and firm achievements scored by our entire people over the past 10 years as well as towards the weak points and remaining problems which are considered objective realities now facing our nation and people.

Through the understanding on the conveniences or difficulties, on the distinguishing of friends from foes, and on the complexities, fierceness, turbulence of the struggle to settle the problem of who will win over whom between the two systems -- socialism and capitalism, in this initial stage, those who join in the political life campaigns have together sought concrete and most appropriate ways and means within the scopes of their responsible work while contributing positive views with a high spirit of responsibility to the political life campaigns which are useful to the nation and themselves. On this basis, our entire party and people have been helped to profoundly understand and firmly grasp the party's line through evidenced reasons and practices, to increase their confidence in the correct leadership of the party, and to reach a unanimity with the party. They have been helped to maintain a sense of awareness and a sense of initiative responsibility, and to be prepared to devote everything for the party's cause and

To achieve fruitful success in carrying out our political life campaigns which are basically aimed at studying and giving views on the draft political report of the party Central Committee, in discussing details of each part and each issue, it is necessary to be based on the law of socialist revolution and on the line and policies of our party and to be in conformity with the practical conditions of each locality, each branch of service, and responsibility of each person. Everyone must maintain a genuine freedom of thought and extensively maintain democracy so as to give views on overall problems down to specific ones.

Each one must dare to discuss the truth and dare to comment and report on any past shortcomings, and must avoid approaching only subjective and easy issues while trying to stay away from objective ones or merely trying to deal with them in a superficial manner. In other aspects, the execution of routine work must be ensured without contradicting the central work and major work of each service and locality. While studying and contributing views to the draft political report, we must strive to review the second 5-year state plan in our respective services, localities, and foundations. If anything is found to be incompatible with the overall orientation, tasks, and objectives, it must be modified and resolved to conform to the reality. We must avoid being extravagant and the attitude of seeing only difficulties, making no effort, failing to seek solutions, and lacking a sense of responsibility.

The decisive significance is that our entire party, army, and people must become more united than ever before and strictly implement every statement contained in the guidance instruction issued by the party Central Committee Secretariat on organizing study of and contributing opinions on the draft political report of the party Central Committee which will be presented at the Fourth Party Congress. At the same time, we must maintain a sense of vigilance, resolutely smash any sabotage or destructive schemes to create disturbances, distort the truth, and sow fabricated rumors employed by the enemies.

It is now more important than ever that the party committees at all levels, all services, and all mass organizations heighten a sense of revolutionary perseverance, the spirit of galant fighting, and the spirit to overcome all difficulties so as to mobilize the masses to enthusiastically carry out the revolutionary movement to make as many effective contributions with high quality, thereby turning the draft political report of the party Central Committee into a creative study genuinely created with the collective wisdom and knowledge of the entire party and masses.

Vientiane Committees Study

[Text] After 5 days of energetic work, on 7 July the party and administrative committees of Vientiane capital closed a successful meeting on political life campaigns held to contribute to the draft political report of the LPRP Central Committee. The meeting was attended by more than 700 key cadres from various branches, factories or plants, and companies in eight districts in Vientiane municipality. The political life campaigns discussed in the meeting on this occasion fell into six categories -- production; national defense; public security maintenance; circulation and distribution; communications, transportation, and foundation construction; and cultural and social categories.

In the meeting, the participants studied the draft political report of the party Central Committee. They have come to understand the great achievements in the political, national defense, public security maintenance, economic, cultural, and social fields made by our entire army and people over the past 10 years. They have also come to understand the clear-sighted and resolute leadership of our party. At the same time, the participants discussed the implementation of the party's line, plans, and policies in Vientiane. Through the meeting, they have seen the achievements and victories that the people of various tribes in the capital have made under the leadership of the party and administrative committees over the past 10 years. They also discussed and criticized the shortcomings resulting from the old mechanism.

In the meeting, the delegates unanimously agreed to the political programs of the party Central Committee. They have reached unanimity on the overall contents, concrete directions, and methods of implementation of the political programs. In addition, the delegates have increased their understanding and further heightened and strengthened their senses and stand to contribute to defending the country and successfully building socialism in our country.

NHAN DAN Editorial Tribute

[11 July NHAN DAN editorial: "Let the Entire Party, People, and Army Remain United and Translate Sorrow Into Revolutionary Actions"]

[Text] Esteemed Comrade General Secretary Le Duan has passed away. This is a great loss to our entire party, people, and Army.

Comrade Le Duan's long life of public service -- spanning nearly 60 years -- was inseparable from the revolutionary background of our country, led by our party since its founding. The comrade was involved in many realistic and diversified activities in various areas across our country; developed close attachments to his compatriots, comrades, and combatants throughout the country; and experienced many ordeals of the revolutionary struggle. The comrade's efforts are part of those of our party and people.

As one of the pioneering comrades following the revolutionary path charted by esteemed President Ho Chi Minh, the comrade dedicated his whole life to the glorious undertaking of our party and nation. One of his lofty characteristics was to be absolutely loyal to the cause of liberating the fatherland and the communist ideals. Simple, modest, and deep affection for his compatriots and comrades were his special traits.

As an outstanding disciple of President Ho Chi Minh, Comrade Le Duan, together with other leading cadres of the party, contributed greatly to leading our people to great historic victories -- achieving national liberation and unification, and advancing our entire country toward socialism.

The comrade was a creative and militant Marxist-Leninist and a great theorist. He made numerous valuable contributions to building the theoretical treasure of our revolution.

Although esteemed Comrade Le Duan has left us forever, his glorious deeds will live forever with our party and people. His aspirations and wishes for building a prosperous, powerful, and socialist Vietnam with its bountiful and happy people as the masters of their country and society will guide the thoughts and actions of each of us in our continual struggle to translate these aspirations and wishes into realities.

At this moment of sorrow, our entire party, Army, and people vow to follow the example and take up the cause of Comrade Le Duan by strengthening unity and singlemindedness around the CPV Central Committee and striving to carry out in a truly satisfactory manner the two strategic tasks -- building and defending the socialist fatherland -- including the current pressing socioeconomic tasks. They must conduct successfully the party congresses at all levels and the Sixth National CPV Congress.

QUAN DOI NHAN DAN Tribute

[11 July QUAN DOI NHAN DAN editorial: "Deep Grief Over Esteemed Comrade General Secretary Le Duan"]

[Text] Comrade Le Duan, our CPV general secretary, is no longer with us. Our entire party, people, and Army deeply grieve the staunch revolutionary fighter who fought constantly for nearly 60 years for communist ideals and our country's independence, freedom, and socialism as well as the success of the revolutionary cause in the world.

Since the early days of the revolution, beside great President Ho Chi Minh, Comrade Le Duan was one of the party's outstanding leaders, whose name and image have been deeply engraved in the hearts and minds of party cadres and members and of our people of various strata.

Aware of the revolution from early on, Comrade Le Duan joined revolutionary activities beginning in the final years of the 20th century [as heard]. He was among the first generation to follow the path of national salvation charted by great Comrade Nguyen Ai Quoc. Although imprisoned several times and forced to cope with numerous hardships and difficulties through the tough ordeals he endured during the struggle against the enemies of the nation and the working class, Comrade Le Duan always showed his absolute loyalty to the party and people. Determinedly and persistently, he moved forward and dedicated his whole life to the revolutionary cause.

As an enthusiastic person, Comrade Le Duan became an outstanding disciple; a kind-hearted, simple, and modest communist; a competent revolutionary fighter; and an outstanding, dynamic, and creative leader of our party who contributed greatly to the Vietnamese revolution both in theory and realistic action.

The comrade joined Uncle Ho and the CPV Central Committee Political Bureau in leading the people to victory in the resistance against French colonialist aggressors, especially in Nam Bo, the nation's heroic land where the comrade experienced many years of hardship mingling himself with the revolutionary movement and attaching himself to the masses in many areas, from the eneme's rear area to the liberated area.

During the protracted, hard, and tough anti-U.S. resistance, taking up the cause of great Uncle Ho as party general secretary, the comrade, together with the Political Bureau and the CPV Central Committee, led the entire people and Army in holding high the nothing-is-more-precious-than-independence-and-freedom determination and in fulfilling President Ho Chi Minh's sacred testament that we must be determined to fight the Americans until final victory, totally liberate the country, an open up a new era -- one of independence and unification in the advance toward socialism.

In international activities, the comrade contributed significantly to building and consolidating the special solidarity between Vietnam, Laos, and Cambodia; strengthening and developing the all-round cooperation and fraternal friendship between Vietnam and the Soviet Union and other countries in the socialist community; persistently preserving the purity of Marxism-Leninism; and strengthening the militant solidarity of the world communists and workers' movement and the national liberation movement.

In the past few years, faced with the new revolutionary situation in which the entire country was striving to build socialism and defend the fatherland, despite his advancing age and his deteriorating health, Comrade Le Duan was concerned day and night about making his contributions to effectively directing implementation of the two strategic tasks to keep our country's revolution moving forward.

To the People's Army, as secretary of the CPV Central Committee's Military Commission, Comrade Le Duan played an important role for a long time in applying the party's correct military lines. He contributed many creative theses on the idea of a people's war and adopted many sharp policies to guide the anti-U.S. struggle for national salvation by our Army and people. Comrade Le Duan reserved for the People's Armed Forces his special attention. He attentively monitored and encouraged our Army day and night to fight and win.

Comrade Le Duan's life was marked by many years and months of attachment to the revolution and his fight and contributions to the party, the fatherland, and the people. His meritorious deeds are inseparable from the great performance of Uncle Ho and our glorious party.

Comrade Le Duan's death is a great loss to our party, people, and Army. The comrade left us his example of the life of a communist fighter who had struggled untiringly for the revolution.

Mourning for Comrade Le Duan, our entire party, people, and Army vow to follow his footsteps by fulfilling the comrade's glowing dreams about the future of the country and its people.

We have our heroic party, heroic people, and heroic Army. By remaining united around the CPV Central Committee, our strength will become invincible.

Regardless of how brutal and perfidious our enemy, we are determined to be victorious; regardless of how great the difficulties, we are determined to overcome. With the whole country of one heart and the entire Army and people of one mind, we are determined to implement successfully the two strategic tasks -- building socialism and defending the socialist fatherland. Translating sorrow into revolutionary action, we must strive in the struggle to score new achievements in productive labor and in safeguarding security and national defense and to do everything well to contribute to the success of our Sixth National CPV Congress.

WA300001 Ulaanbaatar NOVOSTI MONGOLII in Russian 29 May 86 pp 2-7

[Text] Comrade Delegates!

Dear Guests,

The 19th Mongolian People's Revolutionary Party [MPRP] Congress has assembled in an atmosphere of the tremendous political and labor enthusiasm of our people. In the period which has elapsed since the preceding congress the Mongolian people have progressed confidently along the socialist path, successfully accomplished the planned quotas of the Seventh Five-Year Plan, and thereby taken one further major step forward in the creation of the material-technical base of socialism.

In the course of the nationwide struggle for realization of the decisions of the 18th congress and the accomplishment of the tasks of the party's domestic and foreign policy the working class, cooperative herdsmen, and working intelligentsia of our country rallied more closely around the MPRP, and the unity of party and people strengthened even more. Becoming conditioned increasingly in the ideological and organizationl respects, the party is honorably performing its role of tested Marxist-Leninist vanguard of the Mongolian people and their political leader.

The 19th Party Congress has to sum up the results of the work of the party and the people in the period under review, formulate the course of domestic and foreign policy for the next few years and determine effective paths of the country's socioeconomic development and increased public well-being.

Now, when the communists and all working people have with inspiration and enthusiasm launched the Eighth Five-Year Plan and when life dictates the need for us to attune ourselves and work in a new way, the party is confronted by an urgent task -- a fundamental improvement in its political, ideological, and organizing activity and an enhancement of the role and responsibility of the party organizations of all levels. We must display an exceptionally businesslike approach to the urgent problems of society's development, reveal shortcomings and oversights with all due candor and stringency and with scrupulous and party-minded honesty, and completely forswear all that is obsolete and impedes progress.

An inspiring example for us here is the experience of our friends, the Soviet communists. We are all witnesses of how the CPSU at its 27th congress approached problems of the development of Soviet society and international life with Leninist boldness and innovation and of what titanic, truly creative work it is performing to embody practically the program of an acceleration of the USSR's socioeconomic development and ensuring lasting peace in the world.

The CPSU Central Committee Political Report delivered at the 27th congress by Comrade M.S. Gorbachev, general secretary of the party Central Committee, the new version of the CPSU Program and other political documents were a major contribution to the creative development and enrichment of Marxism-Leninism under the new historical conditions.

Comrades,

Our people's achievements in building a new life are indisputable and tremendous. But we are faced with tasks which far surpass the frontiers which have been reached.

The party sees it as its duty, unswervingly implementing its program designs, to reach new heights in the country's socioeconomic development and the further upsurge of public well-being.

I. The International Situation and MPR Foreign Policy

Comrades,

The international situation has remained highly complex and tense in recent years. These have been years of abrupt exacerbation of the political climate in the world and the increased threat of nuclear war.

What is the reason for this dangerous development of events? The fact that aggressive imperialist circles, primarily the United States, rejecting the policy of detente, have embarked on the path of breaking up the military-strategic parity which had evolved in the world, intensifying the nuclear arms race, and militarizing space. The United States and its leading allies in Europe and Asia have set themselves the goal of exacting social revanche: rolling back socialism as a social system and suppressing the national liberation movement of the peoples.

In their attempts to establish hegemony in the world the imperialist forces are persistently accelerating the militarization of society and the economy as the principal means of accomplishing a "crusade" against world socialism and against the revolutionary and progressive forces.

The United States is pursuing an unbridled policy of power pressure, blackmail, and threats, blatantly interfering in the internal affairs of peaceable countries and peoples, and impudently flouting their freedom, independence, and sovereignty. From positions of neoglobalism Washington is pursuing on the international scene a policy of state terrorism. In implementing plans for super weapons and the militarist "star wars" program, bellicose U.S. circles are guided merely by imperial ambitions and the interests of the military-industrial complex.

The imperialist policy of total opposition and military confrontation and the unchecked buildup of the race in nuclear and other types of weapons of mass annihilation are creating a direct threat to the very existence of mankind and human civilization.

All this ensues from the nature of present-day imperialism,which is attempting to solve internal problems on the paths of permanent confrontation with the socialist system.

The course of world events convincingly confirms the law-governed nature of human society's progressive development. Socialism, as a dynamic social system, is scaling increasingly new heights in its development. Personifying the future of mankind, socialism is continuing to have a gigantic revolutionary impact on the course of world development. Many peoples which won political independence in grim battles are now struggling successfully to overcome backwardness and for the independent determination of their own destiny on the path of social progress.

The most urgent, burning problem of the present day is that of war and peace. Never before has the question of the impermisibility of war, survival of the human race, and the preservation of civilization been so acute. It is the historic calling of socialism and all forces of peace and progress to preserve people from thermonuclear self-annihilation. Under conditions where the world is on the verge of this critical line, particular urgency is attached to the need for the recognition by all and the establishment everywhere of Lenin's idea of the peaceful coexistence of states with different social systems. There is no other intelligent alternative, just as there is not fatal inevitability of world war.

It may be said with complete justification that the past years have been ones of a peace offensive of the socialist community countries and their active efforts in defense of peace and life on earth. This has been specifically embodied in their constructive initiatives and practical deeds aimed at fundamental recovery of the international situation, a curbing of and halt to the arms race and the restoration and consolidation of the detente process.

Among the USSR's peace initiatives and proposals, the wide-ranging set of specific measures for the gradual elimination of weapons of mass annihilation advanced in the 15 January 1986 statement of Comrade M.S. Gorbachev, general secretary of the CPSU Central Committee, occupies a special place. This realistic program puts on a practical plane the problem of the deliverance of mankind before the year 2000 from the nuclear threat and guaranteed equal security for all.

Exceptionally important practical steps en route to the prevention of nuclear war and a halt to the arms race were the commitment made by the Soviet Union not to be the first to use nuclear weapons and also its unilateral moratorium on all nuclear tests, which had been observed for many months and which was recently extended to 6 August of this year. If the United States follows this example of the Soviet Union, appreciable improvements in a lessening of the danger of nuclear war could be achieved.

However, the U.S. Administration is not listening to the voice of reason and not heeding the persistent demands of the world community. On the contrary, with the explosions in Nevada, the bandit attack on Libya, and numerous other provocative actions Washington is deliberately torpedoing the spirit of Geneva and blocking the way to an improvement in international relations.

The Soviet Union and the socialist community countries are doing everything in their power to radically change the international situation for the better and develop equable and civilized relations between states.

The 27th CPSU Congress, which was held at a critical and pivotal moment in history, subjected to in-depth scientific analysis the complexities and basic contradictions of the modern world and revealed the main directions of its development. It advanced an integral concept of acceleration of the USSR's socioeconomic development and adopted a comprehensive program of struggle for peace and social progress and general security.

The permanent significance of the 27th CPSU Congress is the fact that it determined, as the main direction of the foreign policy activity of the CPSU and the Soviet state for the coming years, consistent realization of the program for the elimination of weapons of mass extermination and prevention of the threat of nuclear war. The "Principles of the Creation of an All-Embracing System of International Security" put forward by the congress are designed to consolidae peaceful coexistence as the highest universal principle of interstate relations.

The new initiatives which the Soviet Union has presented recently, particularly the proposals pertaining to questions of a reduction in conventional arms in Europe and the establishment of the broad, equal cooperation of all countries of the Asia-Pacific region, correspond fully to the interests of ensuring security over vast expanses from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

From our congress' platform we once again express complete approval of and support for the historic decisions of the highest forum of Soviet communists, the new version of the CPSU Program and the other political documents adopted thereat. Implementation of the decisions of the 27th congress and the provisions of the said documents will lead to a fundamental turning point in the acceleration of the USSR's socioeconomic development, a further increase in the might and magnetic force of socialism, a strengthening of its international positions and the consolidation of peace and general security.

The Soviet Union and the socialist countries are approaching creatively and in a new way the accomplishment of the urgent tasks which confront them at the present pivotal stage. The congresses of the ruling parties of the fraternal countries testify to this. They have demonstrated convincingly that real socialism is scoring impressive successes in its development and that a qualitative breakthrough in the socialist society's economic and scientific and technological development will serve as the material basis of a turnabout in international relations in favor of peace and creative cooperation.

In this noble cause the decisive role belongs to the great Soviet Union, which is the vanguard of world social progress and the dependable bulwark of all revolutionary, democratic forces.

An important international political and military instrument in defense of the gains of socialism and general peace is the Warsaw Pact. The unanimous decision of the participants to extend the pact confirmed anew their resolve to increase interaction in order in the name of the cause of socialism to prevent a disruption of the military-strategic parity, which is an historic gain of the forces of peace and social progress.

In the struggle for a lasting and just peace in the world the interests of our fraternal countries fully coincide with the cherished hopes and aspirations of the peoples, which are increasingly assertively opposing the war preparations of imperialism.

The role of the Nonaligned Movement in the defense of peace and the easing of international tension is growing. Its efforts to ensure the rights of the emergent countries to independent development and establish a new, just economic order are being stepped up.

The democratic movement of the people's masses, particularly of an antiwar, antinuclear focus, has assumed extensive proportions in recent years. The mass and organized nature of the present-day antiwar movement and the diversity of the sociopolitical forces participating therein are a distinctive feature thereof. The situation which has currently taken shape in the world insistently demands a further tightening of the unity of all peaceable and progressive forces and the consolidation and stimulation of their actions to avert the nuclear threat.

Comrades,

The Central Committee reports to the congress that in the period under review the practical activity of the party and the state in the sphere of international relations was channeled toward the accomplishment of the foreign policy tasks outlined by the 18th MPRP Congress and subsequent party Central Committee plenums.

Our country's policy, which has been coordinated with the fraternal socialist community countries, has been aimed at securing the external conditions conducive to socialist building in the MPR, the consolidation of its international positions and the utmost assistance to the cause of peace and international security. Pursuit of this policy has led to a considerable expansion of our country's external relations and a pronounced stimulation of its international activity.

The MPRP and our people's state have always attached paramount significance in their foreign policy activity to relations of fraternal friendship and international alliance with the great Soviet Union. As Comrade M.S. Gorbachev said, "the close cooperation bequeathed us by the great Lenin and Sukhe Bator, leader of the Mongolian revolution, is constantly developing in line of ascent. It now embraces literally all walks of life." Growing dynamism, scale, and fruitfulness and profound mutual trust -- this is what characterizes our relations currently.

The creative force of Mongolian-Soviet cooperation in the business of accelerating the MPR's socioeconomic development is growing. Our cooperation today means new cities and villages and new industrial enterprises and agricultural complexes. It means new facets of the burgeoning of science and culture and growth of the people's well-being.

The foundation of the entire complex of Mongolian-Soviet relations is the close fruitful cooperation of the militant vanguards of the Mongolian and Soviet peoples -- the MPRP and the CPSU. It is based firmly on the principles of Marxism-Leninism and socialist internationalism and the unity of views on questions of socialist building and international life. Our meetings and talks with Comrade M.S. Gorbachev, general secretary of the CPSU Central Committee, are of exceptional importance in determining the main directions and prospects of Mongolian-Soviet cooperation and increasing its efficiency. In particular, the signing of the Long-Term Program of the Development of Economic and Science and Technology Cooperation Between the MPR and the USSR for the Period Ending the Year 2000 reveals new, broad prospects in the socioeconomic development of our homeland.

The great material-technical and financial assistance of the Soviet Union is, as before, of decisive significance in the accomplishment of the tasks of our country's socioeconomic development. Given the fraternal aid and technical-economic assistance of the USSR, hundreds of industrial agricultrual, and cultural-social facilities were built in the Seventh Five-Year Plan or are under construction, which is contributing to a considerable extent to a buildup of the MPR's economic potential.

The assistance and support of the Soviet Union are, as before, contributing to a tremendous extent to the development of science, culture, education, and health care in our country and the training of national personnel for all sectors of the economy.

The cooperation of the MPR and the USSR in the defense sphere is not only of importance in the business of defense of the socialist gains of our country but also corresopnds to the wider interests of ensuring peace and security in the Far East.

Permit me, dear comrades, from the high tribune of our congress to express to the Communist Party, government, and people of the Soviet Union profound cordial gratitude for the all-around assistance and support in the MPR's socialist building.

The utmost strengthening of the indestructible alliance and fraternal friendship between the MPRP and the CPSU and between the MPR and the USSR will continue to be the pivotal direction of the MPRP's foreign policy activity. Close, internationalist cooperation with the Soviet Union has always served and will continue to serve as a reliable guarantee of the MPR's successful advance toward new heights of peaceful creation.

The past 5 years were marked by the further all-around development of the MPR's relations of friendship and cooperation with the other fraternal countries. We note with profound satisfaction the progressive and fruitful nature of our mutual relations with the CEMA members: Bulgaria, Hungary, Vietnam, the GDR, Cuba, Poland, Romania and Czechoslovakia. Our relations with Cambodia, the DPRK, Laos, and Yugoslavia were further developed.

The friendly meetings and talks with the leaders of the fraternal states serve the aims of the building of a new society and contribute to their increased interaction on the international scene.

The MPR's cooperation within the CEMA framework is developing successfully. In the period under review the MPR participated actively in the further extension of socialist economic integration and the implementation of long-term target cooperation programs. Key significance for the MPR is attached to participation in realization of the Comprehensive Program of Scientific and Technological Cooperation for the Period Ending the Year 2000, the purpose of which is the CEMA countries' transition to a concerted scientific and technological policy. The MPR's economic relations with the socialist community countries are being perfected unswervingly and enriched by new forms, in particular, such an efficient form as the creation of joint enterprises and the coordination of long-term programs of the development of economic and scientific and technological cooperation.

We value highly the socialist community countries' assistance in the construction and operation of a number of facilities of the national economy and their contribution to the development of the MPR's economy and culture.

The party will continue to unswervingly pursue a policy of a strengthening of relations of fraternal friendship and close cooperation with the socialist countries on the principles of Marxism-Leninism and socialist internationalism.

The MPR is consistently pursuing its scrupulous policy pertaining to the normalization of mutual relations with the PRC. We proceed from the fact that the development of good-neighborly relations and mutually profitable cooperation between the two countries based on strict obervance of the principles of equality and noninterference in one another's internal affairs corresponds to the interests of the Mongolian and Chinese peoples and the interests of peace and socialism.

Comrades,

The MPR invariably supports the national liberation and revolutionary movements of the Asian, African, and Latin American peoples and their struggle against imperialism, colonialism, neocolonialism, apartheid, and racism and for national freedom and social progress.

Despite the global offensive of international imperialism headed by the United States and individual setbacks, the national liberation movement is developing in breadth and in depth. The strengthening of the revolutionary-democratic system in a whole number of emergent countries, the fall of reactionary and antipopular regimes and the growth of the struggle of the peoples of many developing states to secure their political and socioeconomic rights and exercise sovereignty over their natural resources and against the domination of the transnational corporations testify to this.

The choice of a socialist orientation has become a growing trend in the development of the emergent countries. The close ties and cooperation of the countries of a socialist orientation with the socialist world werve as a guarantee of their successful development. These countries' creative application of the experience of noncapitalist development could facilitate their socioeconomic progress considerably.

In the period under review the MPR considerably expanded relations of friendship, cooperation, and solidarity with the emerging countries, particularly with countries of a socialist orientation.

The MPR is firmly on the side of the Afghan people, who are conducting a selfless struggle for defense of the gains of the April revolution and against the incessant armed encroachments of imperialist and reactionary forces.

The victory of the Sandinista people's revolution and Nicaragua's embarkation on the path of democratic development denotes yet another major event in the history of the anti-imperialist revolutionary-liberation movement in Latin America. Expressing ardent solidarity with the heroic Nicaraguan people, we emphatically condemn the undeclared war which is currently being waged by the United States against revolutionary Nicaragua.

The MPR warmly welcomes and supports the tireless efforts of the Ethiopian people which they are making to further extend the socioeconomic transformations under the leadership of their newly formed Marxist-Leninist vanguard -- the Ethiopian Workers Party -- begun by the revolution.

The Mongolian people will continue to strengthen their solidarity with the peoples of Angola and Mozambique in their struggle for the consolidation of independence and territorial integrity and defense of their countries' democratic gains against the joint encroachments of imperialist and racist forces. The MPR resolutely supports the peoples of Namibia and Southern Africa fighting for liberation from the yoke of colonialism and racism.

The United States' recent aggression against sovereign, independent Libya evoked the profound anger of the Mongolian people. It showed that the imperialist policy of neoglobalism, flouting the generally recognized rules of international law, entails a serious threat to peace and the security of the peoples.

The intensity of the people's demonstrations for freedom, democracy and social progress in Chile, El Salvador, and other Latin American countries is growing. The MPR is invariably on the side of Latin America's patriotic and revolutionary forces and firmly believes that their just struggle will be crowned with complete victory.

The MPR consistently advocates the affirmation in international relations of the principle of the peaceful coexistence of states with different social systems. On this basis it maintains normal relations with many capitalist countries.

Currently Mongolia maintains diplomatic relations with 99 states and actively cooperates with many of them in the political, trade-economic, cultural, scientific and technological, and other spheres, which testifies to the further growth of the MPR's international authority.

Comrades,

A most important direction of the foreign policy activity the party and state is assisting in every possible way the cause of the strengthening of security on the Asian continent and the development of mutual understanding and cooperation between states of the region. The MPR advocates the continent being freed from sources of tension and conflicts.

Meanwhile a tense and at times even explosive situation continues in a number of parts of Asia. The military presence of the United States is being stepped up increasingly in this part of the world. It is setting as its goal conversion of the vast Asia-Pacific region into the second field after Europe of concentration of nuclear weapons targeted against world socialism and the peoples' national liberation movement. Japan, South Korea, Pakistan, and other accomplices of the United States are being pulled increasingly actively into the orbit of this dangerous policy.

The bloodshed in the Near East has lasted for almost 20 years. The "strategic cooperation" of the United States and Israel is aimed at turning the Near East into a military-political springboard against socialism and suppressing the forces of national and social liberation in the region.

The senseless war between Iran and Iraq is not only complicating the problem of a Near East settlement but also facilitating the imperialist presence in the Persian Gulf.

The cohesive actions of all Arab peoples, including the PLO, on an anti-imperialist basis are urgent under these conditions. The speediest and all-embracing settlement of the situation in the Near East should be achieved on the basis of exercise of the Palestinian people's right to self-determination, the liberation of all occupied Arab territory, and recognition of the right of all states of the region to a secure existence.

The active, enterprising foreign policy of the Soviet Union and other Asian socialist countries aimed at a peaceful settlement of contentious problems and the elimination of centers of military conflicts on the continent is a decisive factor of peace and security throughout the Asia-Pacific region.

Broad international support is enjoyed by the peace initiatives and active efforts of Vietnam, Laos, and Cambodia pertaining to the normalization of the situation in Indochina and all of Southeast Asia and the development of political dialogue with the ASEAN countries for the purpose of establishing an atmosphere of trust and good-neighborliness and the conversion of this region into a zone of peace, stability, and cooperation.

The struggle of the Korean people and the constructive proposals and initiatives of the Korean Workers Party and the DPRK Government aimed at the peaceful, democratic unification of the motherland are contributing to the cause of strengthening all-Asian security.

We attach great significance to the traditionally friendly relations with the Republic of India. The realistic, peaceable policy of the Indian Government headed by Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi serves as an important factor in strengthening peace and security in Asia and throughout the world. We support the Indian Government's efforts to secure national unity and the country's territorial integrity.

The present complex situation on our continent insistently demands that all Asian states, large and small, join actively in a joint quest for ways to ensure security and that they work in unison in the interests of a political settlement of crisis situations and urgent problems. No state and no politician can remain aloof from this noble cause, for the problem of halting the arms race, averting the threat of war, and ensuring reliable security affects the interests both of each individual country and all states of the continent together.

The idea advanced by Comrade M.S. Gorbachev concerning a comprehensive approach to the problem of ensuring security in Asia presupposes precisely the unification of the Asian states' efforts and a joint search for ways to consolidate the foundations of peace in the region. It serves as the basis of a solution of the continent's difficult problems in the interests of the peoples which inhabit it.

The proposal put forward by the MPR concerning the creation of a mechanism precluding the use of force in relations between Asian and Pacific states is consonant with this approach. We will continue to make active efforts to promote our proposal in close connection with the constructive initiatives of other states of the region.

We proceed from the fact that the way toward firm and secure peace in Asia lies through the strengthening of mutual understanding, good-neighborliness and cooperation, the development of wide-ranging political dialogue, and the peaceful solution of contentious problems. The attempts being made by imperialism to knock together in the Asia-Pacific region military-political blocs or an exclusive community are contrary to the peoples' fundamental interests and their peaceful future.

Removal of the nuclear threat is a general concern. The Asian and Pacific states should strive by joint efforts for a halt to nuclear tests, promote a reduction in and the liquidation of nuclear and other types of weapons of mass annihilation and actively support the initiatives pertaining to the creation of nuclear-free zones and peace zones. Declaring the South Pacific a nuclear weapons free zone merits approval in this connection.

In the business of averting the nuclear threat, a big role belongs to the political parties, parliaments, and various mass organizations of Asian countries, which are called on to contribute in every possible way to the expansion and stimulation of the antiwar movement on the continent and the enlistment of broad public strata of their countries in the struggle against the revival of militarism and the arms race. The results of international meetings of representatives of parliaments and trade union, youth, and women's organizations of Asian countries which have been held in our country in recent years correspond to this. We advocate an all-Asia forum for peace and cooperation with the participation of representatives of the broad public of Asian countries.

The MPR values highly the role and activity of the United Nations and attaches great significance to its increased efficiency and influence in ensuring international peace and security. Our activity in the United Nations and its bodies was stepped up considerably in the period under review. A number of important resolutions on problems of peace and disarmament, including the Declaration on the Peoples' Right to Peace, was passed on the initiative of the MPR.

Comrades,

The ranks of the international communist and workers movement continued to expand and its authority grew constantly in the years which have elapsed. The all-conquering ideas of Marxism-Leninism are winning the minds and hearts of millions and millions of people throughout the world. The theory and practice of scientific communism reliably serve as the guiding star in the struggle of the communists and working people of the whole world for national freedom, democracy, and social progress and peace and the security of the peoples.

The most progressive and influential force of the present day -- the world communist movement -- and its national detachments are marching in the vanguard of the working class, working masses, and progressive forces in the struggle for peace and socialism, for averting the danger of thermonuclear war looming over mankind, and for curbing the arms race.

Our party unswervingly advocates a strengthening of the unity of the international communist and workers movement on the basis of the permanent principles of Marxism-Leninism and proletarian internationalism.

The MPRP's contacts with the communist, workers, and revolutionary-democratic parties and movements expanded in the period under review.

Our cooperation with the fraternal parties of the socialist countries was considerably enriched. It developed particularly intensively in the spheres of party-organizational and ideological work, the training and education of the personnel and party leadership of economic and cultural building and also in the sphere of international activity.

The MPRP's fraternal friendship and close interaction with the CPSU and the other Marxist-Leninist parties of the socialist community countries and the study and adoption of their wealth of experience are of great significance in tackling our party's program task pertaining to completion of the building of the material-technical base of socialism in the MPR.

The MPRP will continue to exert efforts for the development of ties to the communist and workers parties of the capitalist and developing countries for the purpose of supporting their struggle for the interests of the working class and working masses and the preservation and strengthening of peace in the world.

We express our ardent solidarity with communists, revolutionaries and patriots, who are conducting a selfless struggle for the fundamental interests of the working class and working masses and for peace, democracy, and social progress. Mongolian communists emphatically demand the release of all freedom fighters languishing in the torture chambers of reactionary, fascist regimes.

Our party attaches great significance to participation in the work of the journal PROBLEMY MIRA I SOTSIALIZMA, which performs an important role in the business of the exchange of experience of the activity of the communist and workers parties and illustration of the problems of the strategy and tactics of their struggle for peace and socialism.

Nontraditional parties and public movements have emerged and are strengthening in the capitalist countries currently as a manifestation of the ever-increasing protest of various public forces against the yoke of capital and its inhuman exploitation and injustice and against the unchecked arms race, nuclear particularly. In cooperation with the communists they can really make an appreciable contribution to the struggle for peace and against the nuclear arms race.

We express a readiness for a further expansion of our ties to the national-democratic, socialist, and social democratic parties and also other progressive parties and movements. Our party attaches particular significance to a broadening of cooperation with the communist and workers parties of Asian countries.

Practice shows that regional and broader international meetings of representatives of the communist and workers parties play a positive part in the exchange of experience and determination of the urgent tasks of our movement. At its 18th congress our party supported a proposal concerning a meeting of representatives of communist and workers parties of Asian countries on questions of ensuring peace and stability on the continent. The development of events in Asia convincingly confirms the insistent need for such a meeting. The MPRP expresses its readiness to participate actively in the preparation and realization of a meeting of representatives of communist and workers parties of countries of the Asia-Pacific region.

II. Basic Questions of the Party's Economic and Social Policy

Comrades,

The production of material assets is, as you know, the main front of socialist building. Striving for an increase in the country's economic potential, an unswerving growth of labor productivity and an improvement in quality and production efficiency, our party is invariably guided in its activity by the goals of a constant increase in the well-being and culture of the people.

Proceeding from this high-minded party policy, the draft Guidelines of the MPR's Economic and Social Development in 1986-1990 were drawn up. They have been actively discussed by the communists and all working people of our country and earned their unanimous approval, as a whole. The proposals, desires and observations received in the course of the discussion were taken into consideration at the time the document was put into final shape. There are also many proposals which the party, state, and business organizations in the center and locally should attentively study and take into consideration when working on the 5-year and annual plans. Inasmuch as a separate report on this draft will be presented to the congress I will dwell briefly merely on certain fundamental issues.

Main Results of the Seventh Five-Year Plan

As a result of the party's active political and organizing activity and our people's selfless creative labor in the name of the successful realization of the decisions of the 18th MPRP Congress and also thanks to the fraternal assistance and support of the socialist community countries, primarily the Soviet Union, and all-around cooperation with them, our country scored new successes in socialist building in the Seventh 5-Year Plan.

Viewing the results of the Seventh Five-Year Plan as a whole, we note with complete justification the appreciable growth in the country's economic potential. The social production growth rate was relatively high. The people's material well-being and cultural level rose in line with the increase in social production.

The fixed capital of the economy increased by a factor of 1.7. Produced national income grew 37 percent. The scheduled task of securing approximately four-fifths of the increase in national income thanks to increased labor productivity was accomplished, in the main.

In the period under review questions of the development of agriculture were central in the party's economic policy. As a result of the measures adopted by the party and government average annual agricultural production grew 18 percent compared with the past 5-year plan. There was a marked increase in the production of grain, potatoes and vegetables. Nonetheless, the quotas outlined by the 18th party congress in the sphere of agriculture were not met in full.

In the Seventh 5-Year Plan the fixed capital of industry doubled, and the average annual increase in the gross product secured the rate outlined by the decisions of the 18th party congress.

Qualitative changes are under way in the sectoral structure of industry. The production capacity intended for strengthening the fuel-energy and raw material base of the economy, increasing its export resources, and improving the population's provision of food and consumer goods grew appreciably. The degree of processing of agricultural raw material is growing.

The design capacity of the joint Mongolian-Soviet "Erdenet" Mining-Concentrating Works was assimilated and new capacity for the treatment of ore in the "Mongolsovtsvetmet" joint industrial association was created.

The amount of capital construction increased markedly in the Seventh Five-Year Plan. Its industrial base was reinforced even further. Mongolian and Soviet construction workers put up a large amount of housing, industrial and agricultural complexes and social and cultural-everyday facilities.

Measures were adopted in transport and communications for an increase in capacity, the gradual replacement of the engineering stock in all forms of transport and an improvement in repairs and maintenance. Work continued on the creation of the country's uniform communications system. As a gift the Soviet Union built hundreds of kilometers of radio relay line from Ulaanbaatar in the direction of the cities of Olgiy and Choybalsan.

The Mongolian people are tackling the economic and social tasks of their country's development succesfully thanks to the fraternal assistance and support of the Soviet Union. This truly internationist assistance has been and continues to be of decisive significance in the socialist industrialization of the MPR.

Despite certain difficulties, the party achieved the consistent accomplishment of the main tasks advanced at its 18th congress in the sphere of a rise in the people's living standard. Real income per capita grew 12 percent, which corresponds to the task set by the 18th party congress. Retail commodity turnover grew 24 percent. The volume of consumer services increased.

The housing conditions of the urban and rural populations are improving tha[illegible] fact that considerably more housing was built in the Se[illegible]h Five-Year Plan [illegible] the preceding 5-year plan. Nonetheless, the housing [illegible] remains acute.

The higher and secondary specialized educational institutions trained 48,000 specialists, and the vocational-technical schools trained [illegible] skilled workers. Our young people 30 years and under now have, in the main, education above the 8th grade, and this points to the pronounced growth of the educational level of the working people.

The Years of the Student conducted in our country in the last 3 years have contributed to an improvement in the quality of teaching-educational work in the high schools and a reinforcement of their physical plant. The scheduled tasks pertaining to a strengthening of the physical plant of the preschool establishments were accomplished successfully. However, the creation of children's establishments is, as before, among the urgent problems of the social sphere.

A number of large hospital complexes furnished with modern medical-diagnostic equipment has been erected in recent years. Some of them have already been commissioned. The network of medical establishments in the countryside has been expanded. The country now has 24 doctors and 111 hospital beds per 10,000 of the population.

Science, culture, art and literature developed successfully.

In a word, comrades, the economic and social tasks set by the 18th party congress were tackled successfully, as a whole. The results of the economy's development in the past 5-year period confirm the soundness and practicability of the party's economic strategy.

Permit me, from the high tribune of our congress, to warmly greet our glorious working class, cooperative herdsmen and working intelligentsia, whose labor in ensuring the progressive development of the country's economy and multiplying its material and spiritual values.

Comrades, there is no doubt of our successes. But this by no means signifies that all went smoothly here, without mistakes or shortcomings, and that everything that was intended and planned was accomplished. Evaluating the true state of affairs objectively, it has to be acknowledged that our successes would have been greater had we been able to make full use of the country's growing economic potential and completely ascertain and mobilize available potential. We did not succeed in making full use of the possibilities for an increase in quality and efficiency in each sector of the economy.

Mention should be made primarily of the fact that large-scale resources are being lost owing to oversights in management and organization and indiscipline and irresponsibility. Certain sectors and many production units and bays failed to fulfill the 5-year plans. As a consequence the planned balances in a number of components of the economy were disrupted and interruptions occurred in catering for the working people's need for certain commodities and services. It needs to be said particularly that in the main sector of our agriculture -- animal husbandry -- the plans for an increase in the numbers of livestock were not fulfilled. Certain improvements were observed in the first 2 years of the 5-year plan in animal husbandry, but it was not possible to consolidate them. Big losses of livestock were allowed to occur particularly in 1983 and 1984, when many aymags, inadequately prepared for the winter, encountered weather and climatic difficulties 2 years running. Arhangay, Bayanhongor, Bogi-Altay, Dornod, Dornogobi, Gobi, Dzabhan, Oborhangay, Omnogobi and Hentiy aymags were responsible for the predominant part of the disruption of the plan for the development of animal husbandry.

Granted all the positive changes, in capital construction the plans for the introduction of fixed capital were, however, unfulfilled, although capital investments in the 5-year period were appreciably in excess of the originally planned amounts. There was an increase in incomplete construction, and production and construction operations were insufficiently balanced.

Although capacity grew considerably and there was an increase in the manufacture of products in industry in the last 5-year plan, incomplete use was nonetheless made here of the available fixed production capital, the plans for the production of certain important types of product were disrupted, defective work was permitted, on which valuable physical and raw material resources were squandered, and labor and technological discipline was breached. Such serious oversights have continued to occur at certain enterprises of the ministries of fuel and power industry, forestry and wood-working industry and light and food industry, construction and construction materials industry, municipal services, and the service sphere. It should be noted that such unfinished business is encountered in other sectors also.

As has been said, retail commodity turnover increased in accordance with the plan. However serious shortcomings occurred, as a consequence of which interruptions are arising in the provision of the working people with certain important types of foodstuffs and consumer goods. An irresponsible attitude toward the study of demand and the compilation of requests for commodities and their allocation and sale has not disappeared and shortages and backlogs are allowed to occur in trade. The supply to the public of a broad selection of prepared foods with high culinary properties has not been organized. This is on the one hand, connected to a certain extent with the objective factor of production lagging behind the growing requirements of the market. But, on the other, it is explained mainly by the fact that the work and interaction of foreign and domestic trade establishments and light and food industry and public catering enterprises are organized unsatisfactorily, supervision and verification of performance have not been elevated to the due level and the personnel are not always selected or assigned correctly. It is essential to do away with such miscalculations in the work of organizations of industry, trade and public catering and radically improve the standard of service.

Both in the city and in the countryside municipal and consumer services lag behind the public's growing requirements. The main efforts should be channeled primarily into ensuring the accessibility, promptness, and quality of the priority types of the basic services for which all working people have a need, and their expansion thanks to new and really essential services would seem expedient, given due preparation.

It is appropriate to mention here that certain party and state organizations in the center and locally, confining themselves unduly to economic matters, are relegating to the background problems directly connected with service of the working people, that is, trade, public catering, everyday and cultural service, public transport, health care, the schools, kindergartens, nurseries, and residence schools. This, it has to be said, is a direct infringement of the working people's interests. It is necessary to draw from this fundamental conclusions and strive to ensure that the main thing in our work be concern for man and attention to him.

The measures to increase discipline, order, and organization, perfect the style of work, and strengthen socialist legality which were adopted at recent party Central Committee plenums and at worker meetings in the party Central Committee were aimed at overcoming the said shortcomings. They have produced the proper results and contributed to a certain change for the better in the country's socioeconomic development.

Consolidating the positive atmosphere which has emerged thanks to these measures and cardinally improving and largely reorganizing the forms and methods of work of the party, state, and social organizations -- such is our exceptionally important task today.

Main Tasks of Economic and Social Development in 1986-1990

Comrades,

The main task of the party's economic policy for the coming years was formulated by the MPRP Central Committee in the draft guidelines of the MPR's economic and social development in 1986-1990. It consists of ensuring the ongoing development of social production and its increased efficiency and the achievement on this basis of a further growth of the people's well-being. The main ways and means of its realization are outlined also.

In determining the economic and social tasks for the coming years the party Central Committee is oriented toward an intensification of economic development. The foundations for such an orientation have been laid in the course of the country's development.

Twenty years have elapsed since the adoption of the Fourth MPRP Program. Continuing to strengthen the fraternal friendship with the socialist community countries, primarily the Soviet Union, and extend and deepen all-around cooperation with them, in this time the MPR has scored major new successes in strengthening and developing the material-technical base of the economy and enhancing the well-being and culture of the people.

The process of the country's industrialization is intensifying. Besides Ulaanbaatar, such new industrial centers as Darhan, Erdenet, Choybalsan, Baganuur, Bor Ondor, Hotol and others have arisen. Farming has developed rapidly. With the creation of mechanized dairy farmsteads and fattening and fodder farms the foundations are being laid for the application in animal husbandry of intensive methods.

Compared with 1960 the fixed capital of the national economy has increased by a factor of 10.5, production of the national income by a factor of 3.2, industrial output by a factor of 9.3 and social labor productivity by a factor of 2.8. National income per capita has grown by a factor of 1.6, although the population has practically doubled. Whereas in 1960 industry catered for 14.6 percent of the production of the national income, its share has now risen to 32.6 percent. The industrial product now predominates in the aggregate product of industry and agriculture.

Real income per capita and the consumption funds have grown by a factor of 2.2. Big successes have been scored in the sphere of training personnel for the national economy.

Socialist production relations based on state and cooperative ownership of the means of production have strengthened and developed unswervingly.

The people's state has strengthened, and socialist democracy has been further developed and deepened. Pronounced changes have occurred in the social structure of society. The working class has grown quantitatively and qualitatively, and its leading role in society has intensified. The alliance of the working class, cooperative herdsmen and people's intelligentsia has strengthened. The moral-political unity of society has been consolidated.

The international positions of the MPR have strengthened, and its authority on the world scene has grown.

These results bespeak the successful accomplishment in our country of the task of the creation of the material-technical base of socialism. On the other hand they show that there has been an appreciable growth of the economic and social possibilities for the more efficient realization of the party's program policy based on an acceleration of the country's development.

There is an urgent need today to evaluate the level of development which the country has reached objectively and concentrate the attention of the party and the people on the key problems and tasks which have to be tackled in the immediate future.

The country has scored big successes in socialist building, but, nonetheless, the level that it has reached in terms of production of the gross social product and per capita national income, labor productivity and other basic economic indicators is considerably below the level of the highly developed fraternal socialist countries. Despite the development of modern industry, in agriculture and, particularly, in animal husbandry extensive methods of management predominate and there is insufficiently broad application of extensive methods of labor. For the utmost reduction in the said difference in development levels it is extraordinarily important to accelerate the rate of socioeconomic progress and increase the efficiency of social production.

A process of the country's gradual conversion into an industrial-agrarian country is under way in the course of its socialist industrialization. However, neither the industrialization of the republic nor its conversion into an industrial-agrarian country are ends in themselves. They are subordinate to the goal of completion of the creation in the optimum complex of the material-technical base of socialism, that is, formation of the optimum sectoral and territorial structure of the economy determined in the MPRP Program. The Long-Term Program of the Development of the Economic and Scientific and Technological Cooperation of the MPR and the USSR up to the Year 2000 will contribute to the achievement of this goal.

In order to realize the party's program aims, it is necessary to boldly channel the creative energy of the working masses, fully mobilize the economy's intrinsic potential and participate actively in the international socialist division of labor. It is necessary to use the advantages inherent in socialism and contemporary scientific and techological progress as efficiently as possible. It is just as important to make rational use of the country's economic, spiritual, and personnel potential and its natural resources.

The party Central Committee took account of these demands, which are dictated by the course of the country's development, when determining the economic and social tasks of the Eigth 5-Year Plan.

Development of Agriculure -- Main Condition of Improvement in the Population's Food Supply.

The MPRP Central Committee 10th PLenum (1985) approved the Target Program of the Development of Agriculture and Improvement of the Population's Food Supply as an integral part of our party's economic and social policy. It sets quite intensive, but perfectly feasible tasks. The Eighth 5-Year Plan which is just starting is to be a most important stage of realization of the program.

The essence of the party's agrarian policy consists of overcoming as quickly as possible the negative trend of a lag of agricultural production behind the growth of the population, which is proceeding at quite a fast pace, preventing a disproportion between the production of foodstuffs and the demand for them and improving the population's food supply. It is necessary to steadily increase agricultural production and unconditionally ensure the level of per capita production of meat, grain, milk, potatoes, vegetables, flour, grits, eggs and other basic foodstuffs outlined for 1990.

In order to tackle this task it is necessary to perfect more persistently the system of management, planning, and stimulation of agricultural production and strengthen economic independence and enhance the responsibility of the agricultural enterprises in te interests of achieving higher end results.

For the purpose of realization of the program the party Central Committee and Council of Ministers have adopted a number of important decrees. They determine specific measures pertaining to such central questions as improvement of the management and planning of agriculture, economic stimulation of the growth of production, the strengrhening of the farms' financial position and economic possibilities and an improvement in the housing conditions and cultural-everyday service of the rural population.

Thus as of 1986 substantial incentive additions to the basic procurement prices are being introduced for all types of agricultural product for an increase in production over and above the average annual level of the preceding 5 years. This will stimulate interest in the achievement of the steady growth of both the gross product and productiveness per unit of area and livestock. The purpose of such measures is to make material stimulation direcly dependent on the final results of the work and, particularly, on their qualitative indicators. On the other hand, this will enhance the responsibility of executives, specialists, and the labor collectives for the results of economic activity.

It is well known that it is on their assertiveness and creative initiative that successful work and its results largely depend. I shall cite an example. In the Seventh 5-Year Plan the plans for an increase in livestock were fulfilled from year to year, the breeding herd grew 8.2 percent and the quotas for the state procurement of meat were notably exceeded in Hobsgol Aymag as a result of the persistent work of the stockbreeders and all working people and the great efforts of te party, state, and industrial organizations. The aymag coped successfully with the plan quotas in respect of other sectors also. As we can see, sound experience has been accumulated here. There is a totally different picture in neighboring Arhangay Aymag, where the natural and climatic conditions are similar and there were no particular complications of an objective nature. This aymag, as a consequence primarily of the complacency and weakness in political-organizing work of the party and state authorities and the leadership of economic building, not only failed to fulfill the plan quotas pertaining to the main sector of the economy -- animal husbandry -- but also permitted pronounced backsliding from the 1980 level. Such is the difference in the style of work and its results.

It is important to perfect the methods of management and the organization of production on the state farms and in the agricultural associations and strive for firm implementation of the principle of the profitability of management. It is necessary to struggle in every possible way against lax management and extravagance by way of an enhancement of the role of cost accounting. In the future it is necessary to stimulate in every possible way the best farms in identical natural and climatic conditions and restrict to the utmost such an unacceptable practice as lagging farms proving dependent on the state but obtaining great privileges many times over.

In this 5-year plan the emphasis will be put on utilizing the forces and resources allocated agriculture with the greatest returns. At the same time we need to make fuller use of the capacity of enterprises and farms which have already been built.

We must, as possibilities allow, introduce intensive methods in agricultural production. Together with the development of interfarm cooperation and agro-industrial integration and a strengthening of the operating modern specialized forms new ones will be built. The level of mechanization and electrification of agricultural production will rise.

It is necessary to expand measures to perfect the techniques of pasture stockbreeding and improve the stock of livestock on the basis of the scientific organization of pedigree breeding. It is essential to continue to display concern for an improvement in management and organization and the increased efficiency of work on the expansion and reinforcement of animal husbandry's fodder base, the irrigation of the pasture, prevention of animal disease and its treatment.

The organization of labor in animal husbandry is not being improved quickly enough. The attention of the appropriate ministries and departments and local party and state authorities and also the state and cooperative agricultural enterprises should be concentrated on elaborating on a scientific basis and tackling this task in connection with an increase in the end results of production, the correct distribution and rational use of labor resources and an improvement in the rural workers' work and social conditions. The most fruitful path of an increase in end results in farming is an intensification of the struggle against wind erosion, an improvement in the operation of agricultural equipment, the development of irrigated farming and the mass application of those progressive agricultural technology methods whose introduction recently has commended itself in the shape of positive results.

We have accumulated certain experience of the development of virgin land. The development of virgin land will continue in the new 5-year period also. In this connection the Ministry of Agriculture and the appropriate aymags are obliged to avoid former mistakes and organize this serious work on the basis of the thorough analysis of feasibility studies and the prior preparation of the farm and training of personnel.

The way to realization of the agricultural and food program lies through an appreciable reduction in unproductive losses of livestock and an increase in the productiveness of the animals and the yield of the fields.

It is common knowledge that the rational use and waste-free storage and shipment of the products already produced have no less an effect than an increase in production. And, consequently, it is thus necessary to organize the work and interaction of the corresponding organizations and perfect the economic mechanism.

In this 5-year plan there will be an improvement in the provision of elevators and, for potatoes, vegetable repositories. We should support in every possible way the initiatives which have been developed in recent years of the aymags, cities, somons, farms, establishments, and citizens creating, thanks to the mobilization of their potential, the simplest stores and cellars for the storage of the quantity of potatoes and vegetables which they need.

The fate of the agricultural and food program is determined primarily by people, by whose labor it is realized. It is essential to improve considerably the quality of the training and retraining of specialists in various agricultural occupations and make better use of them according to their specialties. Attaching exceptional significance to the consistent implementation of the scheduled measures to improve the work and social conditions of those employed in agriculture, the party deems it necessary to concentrate on this the attention of the central and local party, state and industrial organizations. Despite all the difficulties concerning manpower, resources and materials, such measures must be fulfilled unswervingly. There simply is no other way.

The main thing in party policy pertaining to the development of socialist agriculture has always been the strengthening in every possible way of the economy of the state and cooperative agricultural enterprises and, primarily, ensuring the steady growth of the agricultural associations' public farm. And this policy will continue to be pursued unswervingly.

The overwhelming proportion of the agricultural product in our country is produced on the public farm. However, as statistics show, in certain agricultural associations and, more, in individual aymags the public herd is growing comparatively slowly. This cannot fail to cause concern. For this reason I would like to observe particularly that it is essential to considerably enhance the responsibility of the local party, state, and industrial organizations for an increase in the public herd, an improvement in the structure of the herd, and an increase in the productiveness of the animals.

The aymags, cities and somons must be oriented toward sulf-sufficiency in food. Private and subsidiary farms for raising hogs and poultry and the cultivation of vegetables and potatoes are an important source of an improvement in food supplies to the population. It is expedient to support and encourage in every possible way, the working people and also enterprises and establishments in the creation of such farms and to increase their output. It is important that the local party, state, and industrial organizations render due assistance in this useful cause in the established procedure and achieve tangible results.

Quality and Efficiency -- the Main Task

At the present stage of the building of the material-technical base of socialism, the main source of growth of social production efficiency is the rational use of capital investments, production potential, and available material and labor resources, and an increase in labor productivity. I believe that in the new 5-year plan we should put forward as the main problem of the party's economic policy the commissioning of major potential and possibilities in order to save material resources in all sectors of the economy, make efficient use of fixed and working capital, reduce prime costs and multiply profit and savings, improve the quality of the product, operations, and services, and increase labor productivity.

In posing the question thus the party Central Committee took account of the actual situation that has taken shape in the country's economy.

First, in the past several 5-year plans in our country capital investments have increased considerably and many new enterprises and farms have been built, and as a result the fixed production capital of the national economy has grown rapidly. It will continue to grow. However, we cannot fail to be disturbed by the low efficiency of the use of capital investments and fixed capital.

In the Eighth 5-Year Plan, channeling 24.7 billion tugriks of capital investments into the development of the economy and increasing fixed capital by a factor of approximately 1.5 is contemplated. The scheduled amounts of capital investments exceed the level of the preceding 5-year plan, although their growth rate will not increase but decline somewhat even. The party's fundamental policy in respect of capital investments is an increase in the returns from the invested capital. This formulation of the question would appear correct even in the light of the lessons of past years. Attention and efforts will be focused on an increment in the production of national income per tugrik of increased capital investments and an increase thereby in their efficiency. For this purpose we should orient ourselves toward an improvement in the reproduction and technological structure of capital investments.

The bulk of capital investments is concentrated at construction projects of the 5-year plan nearing completion, and there will simultaneously be marked increase compared with the preceding 5-year plan in the proportion of resources channeled into the expansion, modernization, and retooling of operating enterprises and farms.

However, instances of the unwarranted prolongation of the expansion and modernization times continue. The expansion and modernization of the Ministry of Forestry and Wood-Working Industry Tosontsengel Wood-Working Works, the date of whose introduction has been deferred for the third time until 1988 now, have been under way for almost 10 years. In the time that has elapsed the original estimated cost has risen by 20 million tugriks plus. This runs counter to the ultimate goal of expansion and modernization, which are being undertaken to economize on forces and resources, gain time and increase efficiency.

Better use of the production potential which has been created is a task of no less significance than a further increase therein. Consequently, it is essential to mobilize all possibilities in order to bring the machinery and equipment load to the design parameters, increase the shift-work factor of their operation, expand and modernize operating production on the basis of new equipment and technology, enhance the professional skill of the workers and provide production with intermediate products and raw materials without interruption.

Second, material-intensiveness is comparatively high in our social production. Utterly inadequate use is being made of the possibilities for increasing production and catering for the working people's growing requirements thanks to economies in material resources.

The resources which we squander to no purpose owing to remiss management and the power, heat, and water which are consumed uselessly at work or lost in everyday life are incalculable! So much brick, cement, glass, paint, metal, lumber, and other resources squandered in the construction organizations! How much timber is not transported from the felling areas and used at forestry and wood-working industry enterprises! How great the overconsumption of propellant, fuel, and lubricants and spares and how many various commodities and materials go to waste and scrap or are not made use of in industry, trade and public catering, transport and material-technical supply! How much in the way of labor and valuable material resources is taken from us by shoddy work in all sectors of the economy! And if we add here the unabating losses of livestock and animal husbandry and farming products? This means, after all, tremendous wealth and colossal resources. It is essential to advance economies in intermediate products, raw material and fuel, energy and other material resources, the use of secondary raw material and the application in production of waste-free technology as a major economic problem whose solution should be provided for detail in the 5-year period and the annual plans.

Third, the country's labor resources are growing from year to year and will continue to grow. But their distribution and use is largely irrational. The proper job training of the young people and the due conditions for retaining workers are not yet being catered for.

In all sectors of the economy there are tremendous opportunities for steadily raising labor productivity, but the majority of them are currently being let slip. An improvement in the use of labor resources and increased social labor productivity should be posed not only as an economic but also serious social problem.

Our policy in respect of labor resources should be geared to the rational distribution of the growing labor resources primarily in the most important sectors of material production and raising the cultural-technical level and vocational skills of the workers.

There is tremendous potential in the use of work time. Economies and thrift signify primarily saving time. "Gaining time means gaining everything," V.I. Lenin said, putting a high value on the time factor ("Complete Works," vol 44, p 50). But owing to losses of work time our national economy annually lets slip opportunities to produce a large quantity of products. This is connected for the most part with the organization and planning of labor and production, the supply of raw materials, and intermediate products and the provision of work and social conditions for the workers. It is connected equally with the organization of the work of the enterprise and farm administration and the party and social organizations under their auspices. In the light of what has been said an important task at all levels of management is striving for the better use of labor resources and work time.

Fourth, production efficiency depends directly on the quality of the product, operations, and services. Quality defects create obstacles in catering for the growing requirements of the economy and the population, hold back the expansion of exports, and ultimately do serious damage to the country's entire economy. For this reason we are obliged to regard an increase in quality as an important criterion of the development of the economy and a most important source of an increase in output.

It would seem correct in this connection to set the task such as to raise the qualitative indicators of the products of the most important sectors of our industry in order that they approximate the level of analogous enterprises of the socialist countries. We must simultaneously achieve a radical improvement in the quality of agricultural and other types of raw material. It is natural that in tackling these tasks we should rely on direct ties to the related ministries of the socialist countries, primarily the Soviet Union, and direct cooperation with these countries' enterprises and research establishments and make extensive use of their wealth of experience.

Fifth, the role of science in increasing production efficiency and the solving urgent problems in the social sphere is becoming even greater. We are building socialism in the era of the scientific and technological revolution, when no production or social problem may be solved if not connected with the use of scientific and technological achievements.

What is the conclusion ensuing from this? It means primarily that there is no way other than strengthening science's ties to production. It means the intelligent concentration of the powers of scientists and research establishments on the development and solution of the questions which life itself puts in the priority category. On the other hand, when elaborating and resolving questions of the development of this sector or the other our ministries, enterprises and farms must rely precisely on scientific and technological achievements. And this makes it incumbent upon them to maintain permanent business relations with scientists and research establishments.

The reasearch potential of academy and sectoral research institutes, planning organizations, and higher educational institutions has increased considerably in our country recently. Their experience and ability are being enriched, and there is a growing interest in the elaboration and solution of problems which are of both theoretical and practical use. This direction merits the utmost support.

But the same time, however, the results from the application to production of scientific and technological achievements and advanced experience are extremely few, although we talk about the business of pioneering a great deal.

In addition, certain ministries and departments are wresting sectoral research forces away from their main work, enlisting them in insignificant technical work in the petty interests of their personnel. This applies primarily to the ministries and departments which, while having research organizations at their disposal, have in practice achieved no tangible results.

The facilities for performing research work are also very inadequate in some institutions. I shall give just one example. The Ministry of Agriculture system has the J. Sambuu Stockbreeding Research Institute -- the biggest agricultural science establishment in our country. Through the tireless efforts of many scientists of this institute in recent years new, highly productive livestock breeds have been raised and needed veterinary resources and preparations and new fodder crop varieties have been created and are undergoing tests or being applied in production. But the institute still lacks its own farm, either experimental or base. The scientists and associates of the institute travel to study stockbreeding and pastures only on short assignments. This situation needs to be rectified. I believe that where the possibilities exist we should set up science-production associations, which are an efficient form of integrating science and production.

It is necessary to put a stop to the dispersal of forces and resources on a multitude of petty insignificant subjects and direct the planning and organization of research and the activities of the research personnel toward the comprehensive elaboration by collective efforts as quickly as possible of major economic problems awaiting priority solution and, applying in production the developments thus obtained, the achievement of the best end results.

It is necessary in the research organizations to hold the associates more accountable and make the just principle of their competitive selection the rule. Questions of the grades of the research associates and their material stimulation also must be decided in connection with the actual results of scientific research, the scientific and methodological growth of the scientists, and their interest in an increase in their erudition and capabilities.

We have to raise the returns from the great forces and opportunities of higher educational institution science, being guided on the one hand by the requirements of the economy and, on the other, by the goals of an improvement in teaching-educational work with the students and the inculcation in them of the skills of research work.

It is important to support and encourage in every possible way the creative movement of efficiency promoters and the development of the technical thinking of the youth. Sectoral ministries and departments should render this material assistance, and the research establishments should render theoretical and methodological assistance.

We need to remove the various barriers impeding the rapid application in production of the results of research and development and the organization of work on the creation and testing of new models, designs and techniques. The State Committee for Science and Technology should, in conjunction with the central economic authorities, elaborate and implement the necessary measures for improving management and the economic mechanism in order to increase the mutual interest and responsibility of the research and production organizations in performing such work.

Particular attention should be paid to the timely and in-depth study of scientific achievements and the latest modern equipment and technology of the Soviet Union and the other socialist countries, and we must endeavor to employ them as efficiently as possible with regard for our conditions and possibilities.

For the successful accomplishment of the tasks of the economic and social development of our country and the accelerated upsurge of national science it is essential to creatively study the wealth of experience of the research establishments of the fraternal countries and expand and further intensify integration cooperation with them. It is important that our research organizations responsibly fulfill their commitments within the framework of the comprehensive program of scientific and technological progress.

The problem of conservation of the natural environment is becoming increasingly acute. Soil, water, and air pollution are being permitted in places as a consequence of insufficiently strict compliance with current MPR legislation in this sphere, and there are instances of a callous attitude toward flora and fauna, which is fraught with the danger of disturbing the ecological balance. In eradicating such intolerable phenomena it is necessary to enhance the responsibility of the industrial organizations for fully implementing the planned measures to conserve the environment, in particular, to protect the waters and pastures, restore forest resources, and intensify supervision on the part of the party and state organizations and also the public.

Comrades,

The preferential development of the fuel-energy industry will, as before, be a subject of the party's particular attention in the Eighth 5-Year Plan. It is essential to unconditionally implement the planned measures pertaining to increasing the reliability of fuel and energy supplies to local consumers, particularly the electrification of agriculture. A certain proportion of the planned increase in consumption has to be secured thanks to economies in fuel-energy resources.

A set task is that of expanding and reinforcing the mining industry and increasing production. There will be an increase in the capacity of the Mongolian-Soviet "Erdenet" Mining-Concentrating Works and also of the mining and treatment enterprises of the "Mongolsovtsvetmet" industrial association. Prospecting for various nonferrous metals, coal, phosphorites, construction materials, and other basic types of minerals will be extended.

Metal working and repair industry, the base of which has lagged in its development, has become the biggest bottleneck in our economy. For this reason, implementing measures to develop the most expedient forms of this industry is contemplated.

In the light and food industry the set task is that of increasing capacity, being oriented toward the extensive industrial processing of raw materials of stockbreeding origin, and manufacturing the finished product, broadening the selection of foodstuffs and consumer goods, and improving their quality and finish.

The development of our diversified economy depends directly on the state of affairs in capital construction. Together with the growth of capital investments in the development of the economy, the resources which will have to be assimilated by the forces of the national construction organizations will increase at a faster pace in this 5-year plan. This will make it incumbent upon them to introduce new fixed capital in a shorter time, concentrating forces and resources primarily at the construction projects which are of decisive significance for an increase in production of the national income, a rise in public well-being and an improvement in the provision of the population with food.

For all forms of transport and communications the task of catering more fully for the economy's growing need for freight and passenger transportation and other services of these sectors moves to the forefront. The introduction of scientific and technological achievements, the better maintenance and operation of the rolling stock and other engineering facilities, and an unswerving rise in the quality and efficiency of work will serve as the basis for its accomplishment. At the same time ruling out cross and parallel transportation, eliminating the underloading of means of transport and freight losses and spoilage and strictly complying with flight and traffic schedules and safety demand special attention and increased supervision.

It is essential to the extent possible to concentrate the motor vehicle fleet in motor pools specialized in terms of the nature and directions of the transportation and expand the sphere of service by general motor transport.

It would be expedient to draw up a master outline of the highways, specify the system of roads of state, local, and intrafarm significance and concentrate forces and resources on the installation and repair of the roads which are a prime necessity.

Work on the creation of a uniform communications network will proceed more vigorously in this 5-year plan. We have to extend the communications network between producton components of agriculture and introduce a semi-automatic long-distance telephone communications system. We must ensure the dependable operation of all means of communication.

New radio relay lines, which will expand considerably the opportunities for introducing the population to TV programs, will be built with the help of the Soviet Union.

Comrades,

All-round rapprochement and consolidation with the Soviet Union and the other socialist community countries is the arterial course by which our party invariably abides in the sphere of foreign economic relations.

Our relations with the fraternal countries are developing successfully on the principles of socialist internationalism and in the spirit of the basic documents of the top-level CEMA economic conference.

In our times, each socialist country is confronted with the task of achieving the maximum mobilization of internal efforts in order, combining them with use of the advantages of the international socialist division of labor, to accelerate economic development and multiply thereby its contribution to the strengthening of socialism's international positions. This today is an important criterion for realizing the principles of socialist internationalism. Actively participating in socialist economic integration and expanding and intensifying economic cooperation with the fraternal countries, the MPR endeavors as far as possible to take more fully into consideration both the country's interests and the common interests of the socialist community.

The decisions of the top-level CEMA Economic Conference to the effect that the European socialist countries would, as before, assist in accelerating the MPR's development are regarded by our party as socialist internationalism in action and a manifestation of genuinely fraternal relations.

The Long-Term Program of the Development of Economic and Scientific and Technological Cooperation between the MPR and USSR up to the Year 2000 provides for a strengthening of the material base of agriculture, industry, and other sectors of the economy, an improvement in the structure of the economy, a buildup of production and its increased efficiency, a strengthening of operating and the creation of new joint enterprises, an extension of the training of personnel, and the fruitful development of scientific and technological cooperation in many sectors and fields.

On the basis of bilateral cooperation programs for the period up to the year 2000 the MPR will expand and intensify interaction with the other CEMA countries also.

It is essential to strive for even greater returns from the realization of the economic and technical assistance granted by the Soviet Union and other fraternal countries, completely fulfill the commitments assumed in accordance with bilateral and multilateral programs, agreements, and contracts and enhance the quality of export products. This is currently a task of growing importance requiring our daily attention.

Tasks of an Increase in Public Well-Being and Social Development.

The ultimate goal of the party's economic and social policy is a rise in the level of the people's material well-being and culture.

No social question connected with an improvement in people's work and social conditions and satisfaction of their spiritual requirements must be beyond the sphere of our concern of the party and government.

In the Eighth 5-Year Plan the social consumption funds will increase 20-25 percent, and the population's monetary income will increase 20-23 percent. You know, comrades, that the draft guidelines provide for measures to raise the salaries of certain categories of workers and the income of members of agricultural associations from the public and private farm and to increase their minimum pensions 30 percent. It is planned lowering by 25-30 percent for charge for the population's domestic power consumption.

Retail commodity turnover will grow to the same extent as the population's monetary income, and the stocks of various foodstuffs and industrial commodities will come to be supplied accordingly.

The sphere of consumer services will expand, and the volume of available services will increase. In particular, the material base of the services sphere will be reinforced, and there will be an increase in the number of service outlets and shops for the rural population, the stockbreeders particularly.

Approximately 1.2. million square meters of living space will be commissioned in the 5-year period. It is necessary to support in every possible way citizens' construction of individual housing. Yurt production will grow together with the increase in the construction of housing in the countryside.

Available housing is being supplemented step by step, but its upkeep and maintenance and repair and servicing are improving far more slowly. It would seem advisable in this connection to implement additional measures and improve the repair of housing and the provision of the cities and inhabited localities with amenities.

Public education is developing constantly. The party pays tribute to the people working in public education, who are making a contribution to the tuition and upbringing of the younger generation.

There is a logical demand for a more persistent improvement in the public education system in order that the students, while being introduced to scientific learning, acquire labor and industrial education and vocational training at the same time. It cannot be forgotten that it is a question of teaching and training people who will be living and working in the coming 21st century. This is an important, albeit both difficult and complex, task, on whose development and gradual accomplishment it is necessary to embark without losing time. It has to be observed that in the public education system as a whole the quality of teaching-educational work is lagging behind somewhat.

The party Central Committee has deemed it advisable to embark in the current 5-year plan even on the accomplishment of the task of the tuition in school of children who have reached the age of 7. Questions of an improvement in the educational process in the general schools are being studied in this connection. It is also important to implement in good time and in full the planned measures to reinforce the schools' physical plant.

In perfecting the public education system it is necessary first of all to correctly decide questions of strengthening tuition's ties to production. An entirely new problem is being raised in practice whose essence is familiarizing the students with the fundamentals of computer technology.

It is necessary to carefully study and resolve questions of the continuity and interconnection of teaching-educational work in the general schools, higher and secondary specialized educational institutions, and vocational-technical schools.

The activity of the public education authorities and the party, state, and public organizations should be channeled into ensuring that together with an improvement in the structure of the educational institutions active forms of teaching-educational work be employed as extensively as possible, the students be prepared for work and life more effectively and that they be given vocational guidance, the base enterprises and the public at large being enlisted better and more actively in this work.

It is essential in the light of the demands that are made to unite the efforts of the educational institutions, the family, the labor collectives and the entire community in the tuition and upbringing of the younger generation.

The role of the vocational-technical schools is growing increasingly.

It is the direct duty in this connection of the sectoral ministries and departments, party, and public organizations and enterprise and farm administrations to provide the educational institutions of this profile with knowledgeable, capable, and experienced skilled workers and lecturers, strengthen the teaching facilities in every possible way, strengthen tuition's ties to the production of the corresponding sector, provide the graduates with jobs and retain them on the job, creating the proper conditions for work and everyday life.

It is necessary to display particular concern for an increase in the standard of teaching of the social sciences in educational institutions of all levels in order to arm the students with a Marxist-Leninist scientific philosophy of life and foster in them communist beliefs. Teaching-educational work should be subordinated to raising the youth in the revolutionary, combat and labor traditions of the party and the people.

In the light of the important task of training highly skilled personnel it is necessary to raise to a new level teaching-educational and research work in the higher and secondary specialized educational institutions, reinforcing their physical plant and improving the availability of lecturer personnel. The integration of science, education, and production must become more intensive.

The students and young people are obliged primarily to increase exactingness toward themselves, devoting their powers and capabilities to the acquisition of profound and firm scientific erudition and labor skills.

The planning of the need for highly skilled personnel and its training in accordance with contemporary scientific and technology progress need to be improved. Limiting the enthusiasm for quantitative indicators, it is essential to establish the rational correlation ok specialists with higher and secondary specialized education, correctly determine the economy's need for essential personnel and the future areas of their training and raise the vocational training, practical skills, and professional attributes of the higher and secondary specialized educational institutions to the level of today's demands. This is a very important task of the central economic authorities, the State Committee for Higher and Secondary Specialized Education and the corresponding educational institutions and sectoral ministries and departments.

An important task of the social sphere in need of the party's daily concern has been and remains the protection and strengthening of the working people's health. The annual population growth in the republic currently amounts to 2.6 percent. Our country occupies one of the highest places in terms of population growth. This is an indisputable achievement of real socialism and an obvious indicator of a significant improvement in the people's life and health. Great credit in the protection of the population's health is due the people working in public health care.

But, nonetheless, there continue to be serious shortcomings and oversights in the work of the public health authorities. There is no pronounced reduction in morbidity from certain diseases. Because of this there is no reduction in the number of those temporarily unfit for work owing to illness. We cannot be reconciled to the oversights in the protection of the health of children, particularly infants. I consider it unjustified that the number of pediatricians and hospital beds per 10,000 children is considerably lower than such an indicator per the whole population.

It is essential to pay exclusive attention in the coming years to the expansion and improvement of medical services for the rural population.

Disease prevention is inadequately organized. Work on the gradual transition to the medical examination of the entire population and public health-hygiene propaganda is lagging behind. The treatment and care of patients and concern for them have not improved in all medical establishments. This situation is legitimately giving rise to the working people's complaints.

The most crucial task of the collectives of health service establishments, which are called on to permanently and vigilantly guard the health of their people, is to overcome the existing shortcomings as quickly as possible, enhance discipline and responsibility and worthily perform their duty, making effective use of the growing physical plant and applying in practice the achievements of modern medical science and advanced experience.

The population's health naturally depends to a large extent on work and social conditions. For this reason it is important that the local party, state, and industrial organizations display daily concern for an improvement in the working people's work and social conditions and their intelligent use of their leisure time.

The party attaches importance to introduction of broad strata of the working people to physical culture and sport, regarding this as an essential condition for people's fruitful labor and life and the strengthening of their health. As yet, however, physical culture and sport have not gone in our country beyond the confines of a circle of enthusiasts and assume at best the form of periodic temporary campaigns. It is necessary to rectify this and strive to ensure that physical culture and sport assume mass proportions and enjoy general and constant interest. It is necessary to make sporting-health improvement measures part of the plans of the social development of the enterprise and farm labor collectives and render financial and material assistance in their realization.

As before, the party attaches great significance to a broadening of the sphere of the extension to the population of the services of the culture and art establishments to ensure that they become increasingly accessible to the working people in accordance with their growing spiritual requirements. The physical plant of the cultural-educational establishments: clubs, libraries and motion picture outlets will be expanded and their provision with personnel will be improved.

Improvement of the Planning and Management of the Economy

Comrades,

The party displays constant concern to ensure the unity of political and economic leadership and perfect the methods of control and management, bringing them into line with the demands of the country's economic and social development.

On the basis of the decisions of the 18th MPRP Congress a master outline of the development and location of the country's productive forces for the period ending with the year 2000 was drawn up with the participation of scientists and research organizations of the Soviet Union. Other target programs pertaining to central questions of the development of the economy were prepared also.

Economic experiments on improving planning and the economic mechanism are being conducted in a number of material production sectors. Measures have been adopted for the purpose of introducing in the most important sectors of the economy, the brigade form of organizing and stimulating labor, improving planning in construction and agriculture and also introducing a differentiated practice of extending credit to enterprises and industrial organizations.

Nonetheless, it has to be said plainly that, owing to an oversight in management and organization, big potential for increasing production and its increased efficiency and improving consumer service is being lost.

Enterprises and farms have not yet rid themselves of outmoded approaches, preferring plan fulfillment at any price instead of correctly selecting and making skillful use of progressive methods of efficient and farsighted management. I believe it would be advisable to set as a practical task the transition to economic methods of management at all levels of the economy. Our planning work, the criteria and mechanisms of the evaluation of economic activity and the essence of the economic experiments being conducted currently should be geared to precisely this.

The choice of the most efficient methods and organizational forms of control must begin with the improvement and strengthening of centralized plan-oriented management.

It is necessary to expand the functions of the State Planning Commission and increase its responsibility for enhancing the role of the 5-year plans, improving the substantiation and balanced nature of the plans, the guaranteed interconnection of sectoral and territorial plans, and extending the sphere of application in planning of progressive quotas.

In strengthening centralized plan-based management it is important to combine it flexibly with an increase in the role of the sectoral and local authorities, a strengthening of enterprise and farm independence, a stimulation of the creative independent activity of the labor collectives, and their increased interest in the elaboration of counterplans and responsibility for their realization. It would be expedient to perfect the procedure of the planning and evaluation of the final results of the activity of ministries and departments, aymags and cities, production associations and enterprises and farms by taking as the reference point the streamlining of the range of indicators and reducing the number of those confirmed from above.

When drawing up and implementing plans it is necessary to struggle resolutely against all attempts to achieve a downgrading and adjustment of confirmed plans, to give preference to selfish departmental interests to the detriment of public and state interests and to obtain alleviated plans and fulfill them thanks to a surplus of material, financial, and labor resources. It is essential to tighten the discipline of planning and plan fulfillment.

When evaluating the activity of enterprises and farms it is necessary to accord preference to indicators of quality, product list, and efficiency, cutting short the chasing after gross figures in an endeavor to end up among those who have fulfilled the plans.

It is essential to increase the interest of ministries, departments, aymags, cities, enterprises and farms in the adoption and fulfillment of taut plans, increase the mutual responsibility and obligations of industrial organizations to one another and rationally combine public, group and personal interests. For this reason it is necessary, I believe, to collate the positive experience of the experiments being conducted currently and switch industry, construction, transport and communications, and also the service sphere to the new methods of management in the Eighth 5-Year Plan.

It is essential to properly introduce in all production subdivisions and the service sphere the principles of financial autonomy as the tried and tested method of control of the economy.

It is important to continue to perfect prices, the finance-credit mechanism and distribution. Well-foundedly reflecting socially necessary expenditure, the system of wholesale prices and tariffs must ensure for the enterprises and farms the possibility of operating profitably under normal conditions and at the same time stimulate them economically to constantly lower production costs. Proceeding from these requirements, a reform of wholesale prices has been undertaken as of this year. Under the conditions of economically substantiated prices and tariffs, there should be no loss-making enterprises or farms relying on state assistance and budget resources.

Mobilizing intrinsic potential and possibilities, each enterprise and farm is obliged to strive not only for a growth in profits and savings and the complete satisfaction of its need for financial resources but also to unfailingly contribute to the centralized funds. It is essential for this purpose to perfect financial-credit levers in order that they be flexible, serve as a powerful factor for an increase in the end results of production and exert an active influence on a strengthening of financial autonomy.

It is no secret that our central economic authorities pay lipservice to the need for the independence of the enterprises' economic activity, but that as soon as the time comes to act practically, they attempt to take out insurance, strewing instructions and regulations with every conceivable impediment and reservation. It is necessary to emphatically abandon the rooted habit of the higher authorities exercising petty tutelage over the industrial organizations, attempting to determine and direct their activity in detail, and the lower authorities awaiting decisions and instructions from above, believing in their own helplessness. Naturally, this by no means signifies a slackening of supervision of the activity of the industrial organizations on the part of the higher authorities. The essence of the question is merely having a well-developed and adjusted economic system and financial mechanism.

The procedure of the distribution of profit and savings is in need of improvement. The point of departure here should be the principle of the evaluation and stimulation of the activity of the labor collectives with regard to their actual contribution to the increase in the production of national income and provision of the economy and the population with high-quality products of the appropriate product list. Stable and rational norms of the distribution of profit and the deduction of income into the budget should be established. It is important to apply just as stable norms in respect of the wage fund also. It is necessary to ensure unswerving observance of the economically essential demand for the production of the gross, including net, product to outpace the growth of the wage fund.

It is also necessary to continue to improve the system of socialist distribution, taking as a basis the principle of the dependence of the working people's well-being, particularly their wages and income, on the actual results and quality of work. It is necessary to encourage conscientious active and productive work in every possible way. Leveling in the distribution of wages and bonuses cannot be allowed. The socialist principle of distribution "from each according to his capabilities, to each according to his labor" must be firmly observed everywhere. Sueprvision of the extent of labor and the extent of consumption needs to be tightened up in this connection. Thought could also be given to an improvement in the use and distribution of the social consumption funds in close linkage with the task of an increase in the end results of work, discipline and responsibility. For the practice of our country's socialist building permanent significance is attached to Lenin's proposition that "...only the careful organization of accounting and control, only the strictest organization and labor discipline will lead us to socialism. There will be no socialism without this" ("Complete Works," vol 36, p 258).

The party Central Committee deems it important to spread more extensively the brigade form of the organization and stimulation of labor, having in mind the utmost invigoration of the working man and an increase in the collective interest in the final results of work. The creation of a creative, healthy atmosphere in the collective is a guarantee of success in the struggle for an increase in production, a rise in productiveness and a strengthening of discipline, responsibility and order.

An important place in the system of management and planning belongs to the business contract. The fulfillment of contractual commitments should obligatorily be taken into account upon an evaluation of the end results of the activity of enterprises and farms and their stimulation. The role of contract-orders should be higher in planning and the organization of plan fulfillment.

The main task of the material-technical supply authorities is an improvement in the substantiation of requests for and balances of supplies of industrial engineering products and prompt service of the consumers. It is essential to put a stop to the irresponsible transference of requests for commodities and materials through channels without due examination, which leads either to the piling up of costly equipment and materials in the guise of "surplus" or to their artificial shortage.

The material-technical supply organizations must introduce substantiated quotas for requests for industrial engineering products and consumption norms, strive for their undeviating observance, organize work on economies and thrift in the national economy and establish effective supervision thereof.

The requirements of certain industrial organizations and small-scale consumers could be satisfied via wholesale trade.

A considerable amount of time has elapsed since the system of quality control was established, but the quality of products, operations and services is only improving slowly. It is necessary in the future to improve quality control, raise the level of standards and specifications and perfect the product-quality certification procedure.

As before, the party attaches considerable significance to an improvement in accounting and accountability and official statistics. State accountability at all levels of management must correspond to the demands of optimum decision-making and be meaningful and analytical, prompt, concise and clear.

It is important to continue to strengthen sectoral management and bring it closer to production. The efforts of ministries and departments should be concentrated on the elaboration and implementation of a uniform technical policy with an orientation toward the future, the introduction of S&T achievements, the intensification of production and its increased efficiency. It is necessary subsequently also in all tiers of management to endeavor to improve the interconnectedness and coordination of work, ensure promptitude, reduce superfluous components, remove duplication and strive for the compact and economical nature of the administrative machinery.

Great significance for the efficient organization of production and maintenance is attached to the development of the proprietory thinking, initiative and enterprise of executives and engineering-technical personnel and the workers.

It is necessary to continue to expand the sphere of activity of the assemblies of people's deputies and increase their responsibility for the accomplishment of tasks of economic and social development, the full use of labor resources, an improvement in the supply of consumer goods, the guaranteed accessibility of all types of service and the mobilization of potential and opportunities.

The purpose of our party's economic policy and the basic function of the people's state has been and remains the utmost strengthening and multiplication of state and cooperative ownership as the very basis of the socialist society.

Proceeding from the fact that the role and significance of the contribution of the small works and self-help joint-labor brigades and groups are growing in satisfaction of public demand for foodstuffs and consumer goods, the party Central Committee considers it correct to consistently support useful initiatives in this sphere.

Today, when modern S&T progress, new equipment and consummate technology are dynamically becoming a part of production, it is vitally important to continuously raise the professional skills of all workmen, develop the creative thinking of the engineers and technicians, strengthen technological discipline and increase the competence of the management of production.

III. The Party

Comrades,

The Marxist-Leninist vanguard of the Mongolian people -- the MPRP -- arrives at its 19th congress with the growing unity of its ranks and a further strengthening of the broad ties to the people.

Our country's working people are actively implementing party policy and fully support its political course and practical activity within the country and on the international scene. The people believe undividedly in the party, and the party relies on the people.

The precongress report meetings of the primary party organizations and the aymag and city party conferences demonstrated the communists' high political and social assertiveness. They were held in a new atmosphere of professionalism and under the conditions of a deepening of intraparty democracy and a strengthening of the collective nature of leadership. The communists sharply criticized the shortcomings and oversights in implemention of party policy and party decisions and expressed many valuable proposals. The main thing now is converting them into living practice.

The new tasks of the country's economic and social development advanced for the coming years demand a funamental improvement in the forms and methods of the party's organizing and ideological work.

After the correct policy line has been formulated and the priority tasks have been determined, success is decided by the personnel and party political-organizing and ideological work. It is on this that the congress' attention is being concentrated in the examination of questions of party life.

Perfecting the Style and Methods of Party Leadership, Enhancing its Efficiency

Our party is constantly growing and strengthening as a living organism. In the period under review the party ranks expanded considerably, and its qualitative composition improved. Today there are 88,150 communists in the party ranks, which is 15.6 percent more than on the eve of the preceding congress. Workers constitute 33.2 percent of the communists, members of agricultural associations 16.8 percent and employees and representatives of the intelligentsia 50 percent.

Women constitute 30.3 percent of the total composition of the party, which is more than at the time of the last congress. The decision of the 18th MPRP Congress on replenishment of the party ranks with the best representatives of the youth was fulfilled successfully. Almost 70 percent of those who joined the party were young people 30 years and younger. Approximately two-thirds of them were members of the Mongolian Revolutionary Youth League (MRYL).

The party ranks are strengthening, being supplemented by representatives of all strata of the working people. This is good. It is necessary here to firmly pursue a policy which prevents a weakening of the party's qualitative composition owing to undue enthusiasm for growth of its ranks. It is essential to put a stop to irresponsible instances of admitting people to the party who have not distinguished themselves in terms of their political, professional, and moral qualities.

The interests of ensuring communists' vanguard role make stricter demands on those being recommended for the party, the responsibility of party candidates and the molding and conditioning of the young communists' political, professional, and moral attributes.

Being a party member does not mean enjoying special rights or privileges, it means merely bearing greater responsibility for the cause of party and people. Life makes it incumbent upon party members to set an example always, and in all circumstances, to actively support the creation in the collective of an atmosphere of scrupulousness, professionalism, and creative questing and struggling against bureaucreatism, complacency, window-dressing, a dishonest attitude toward socialist property and labor, indiscipline, and other negative phenomena. Undeviating implementation of the principles of democratic centralism and the collective nature of leadership is the primary condition of an enhancement of the leading and organizing role of the Marxist-Leninist party and a sure guarantee of the prevention of shortcomings and blunders.

The party Central Committee has devoted much attention to the consistent implementation of the Leninist principles and rules of party life. An important place in this respect is occupied by the MPRP Central Committee Special Eighth Plenum (1984), which demonstrated the continuity of party policy and its firm unity and high sense of responsibility. The spirit of this plenum is materialized in the directions of subsequent party Central Committee plenums and the decisions of its Politburo and in a number of meetings of party and state executives organized by the party Central Committee. These decisions and measures embody the collective thought and collective efforts of the party Central Committee, which made a truthful and critical analysis of our work. They concentrate anew the attention of party members and the working people on unsolved and urgent problems, contributing to the unfolding of their assertiveness and initiative. Under present conditions, when complex new tasks of party leadership of social life have come to a head, it is insistently necessary to undertake a rebuilding of the party work style. This applies primarily to questions of intraparty relations, party leadership of economic building, work with personnel, and communication with the masses. It needs to be noted specially that for us inestimable significance is attached to the experience of the large-scale activity of the CPSU pertaining to the in-depth mastery of the Leninist style of party work and leadership of the state and industrial organizations and to the establishment of an innovative, creative, and businesslike approach and thinking.

The main direction of the rebuilding of work style in intraparty relations consists of the removal of cliches, bureaucratism, formalism, oversimplification, and other phenomena incompatible with the rules of party life. V.I. Lenin wrote that "neither stereotyping nor establishing uniformity from above have anything in common with democratic and socialist centralism. Unity in the basic, the fundamental and the essential is not disrupted but ensured by diversity in details, in local singularities, in methods of approach to business, and in the modes of exercising control..." ("Complete Works," vol 35, p 203). Consequently, it is important to afford the party organizations the possibility of displaying assertiveness and initiative and assuming responsibility for independently and professionally implementing the basic line and decisions of the executive party authorities. This means that it is necessary to put an end to excessive memo-writing engendered by endless trifling instructions from above and demands for unnecessary reports and information, and to abandon the bureaucratic practice of dispatching to the localities a succession of inspection boards. On the other hand, it is necessary in the lower party organizations to have done with a formal attitude toward matters expressed by waiting for instructions from above, ostentatious promises, superficial reports, and substituting bureaurcratic bustle and the elaboration of a multitutde of various measures for live organizing work on fulfilling directive decisions. The party organizations are obliged to themselves monitor the fulfillment of their adopted decisions and measures and evaluate their fulfillment in terms of specific results and improvements. The party Central Committee deems necessary reorganizing, in this spirit, the whole style of activity pertaining to leadership, evaluation, and supervision at all levels of party work.

Leadership of economic and cultural building is a primary task of the party organizations. As political leaders, they are called on to perform this responsible assignment by way of specific work with people. The party organizations must emphatically abandon the useless practice of substituting for and duplicating the state and industrial organizations in questions within their field of competence, which leads to a weakening of their leaders' responsibility. The activity of the party organizations should be geared to supporting and encouraging the assertiveness and initiative of the industrial organizations and culture establishments, enhancing their responsiblity for the fulfillment of plans and the realization of the party's socioeconomic policy, exercising supervision of the final results of their activity and opportunely ascertaining and removing the reasons for shortcomings and backsliding.

The 18th MPRP Congress set the task of perfecting, on the basis of the Leninist principles, the selection, assignment, and training of the personnel, the forms and methods of work therewith, and making upgraded demands on executives and striving for their retention.

It has to be said that certain shortcomings in implementing the party's personnel policy were permitted in the period that has elapsed. A superficial attitude toward work with the personnel leads both to frequent changes and transfers and the promotion of incidental people. This has happened in our practice. We must put an end to unscrupulous, narrow-departmental, localistic, and buddy approaches to personnel issues.

The measures pertaining to personnel issues adopted by the party Central Committee are aimed at eradicating such serious shortcomings. Many new workers have been promoted to executive positions recently. The party will continue to adhere to a policy of combining the experience of the senior workers with the energy of the young personnel. Having extended the rights of the aymag and city party committees and ministries and departments when deciding personnel questions, the party Central Committee adopted measures to enhance their role and responsibility. Women are being promoted to executive work on the basis of a special decree.

It is extraordinarily important today to adopt, on the basis of Leninist principles, a thoughtful approach to questions of the selection and promotion of personnel to executive work. Success in any sphere of party and state activity, the economy, and culture largely depends on the political and ideological maturity of the executive personnel and its competence, moral attitudes, feeling for the new and ability to communicate with people and listen to them.

For this reason we must pay particular attention to the professionalism of the executive personnel. The party organizations' work with the personnel must be geared to ensuring unity between a decision and its fulfillment and between word and deed. It is not inappropriate to mention here the big discrepancy between word and deed in certain leaders. Personnel must be evaluated in terms of final work results and the actual fulfillment of adopted decisions.

Today one out of every five persons working in our country has higher or secondary specialized education. This is tremendous potential for ensuring the skilled management of production and training executive party and state personnel. More extensive use should be made for promoting capable and gifted young workmen to executive work in all sectors and components of methods of certification.

In training personnel and improving party work style it is essential to make make full use of the proven weapon of criticism and self-criticism. V.I. Lenin regarded criticism and self-criticism as a permanent law of the life, activity, and development of a revolutionary party. He pointed out that criticism must be "comradely, direct, and free of diplomacy and trifling calculations" ("Complete Works," vol 15, p 245).

Where criticism and self-criticism have been closed off, manifestations contrary to the principles of socialism and the interests of the party and people are, as experience shows, encountered: abuse of office, arbitrariness and the holding back of honest people, nepotism, unscrupulousness, liberalism, concealment of shortcomings, and window-dressing. The party Central Committee and the party Control Committee recently adopted the appropriate measures in respect of a number of workers who had permitted such breaches of party and state discipline. Self-adulation and show engender indifference and passiveness, fetter the initiative of the labor collectives, and weaken discipline and organization.

It is the duty of all party organizations to draw strict conclusions from this and create normal conditions for the free development of criticism and self-criticism, particularly criticism from below. Such an atmosphere is created by resolute struggle against all manifestations of resistance to just criticism, the exposure of anonymous letter writers and slanderers, and the prompt adoption of measures in the wake of criticism and notification of the masses of their results. The party will never retreat from its high-minded position of a responsive attitude toward criticism and self-criticism.

The significance of party information is growing. Abiding consistently by the principle of publicity in party work, the party Central Committee considers it important to promptly and comprehensively notify the communists and the body politic of questions of substance of the party's domestic and foreign policy and its activity. Intraparty information is an important means of enhancing the efficacy of party decisions and measures, perfecting the style of work, studying public opinion, and strengthening the party's ties to the masses. For this reason it is necessary to display particular concern for an improvement in information and its truthfulness, congency and timeliness.

An ever increasing number of letters and recommendations on many questions of party life and the work of the state organizations are received from the communists and working people. Warnings are also being received containing complaints and observations. This is a striking expression of the further strengthening of the connection of party and people. Our task is to promptly examine the letters and warnings, proposals and complaints and adopt substantial decisions in respect of them. Under no circumstances must the party organizations be reconciled to a negligent and inert attitude toward the working people's letters, proposals and requests. It is necessary to constantly be in the thick of the masses, and utilizing all channels and possibilties of communication with the working people, chat and consult with them and listen to their opinions and requirements. It would be advisable to disseminate the best experience of sociological studies conducted by some party organizations.

In the period under review the party organizations performed a considerable amount of work on an improvement in the content and perfection of the organization of party supervision and the verification of performance and the coordination and increased efficacy of the work of the party, state, and social organizations in this sphere. A number of inspections conducted along Party Control Committee lines was useful.

Recently the party adopted measures for strengthening party, state and labor discipline, order, and organization, strict observance of socialist legality and the increased responsibility and performance discipline of party, state and industrial personnel at all levels. But a great deal of work lies ahead in this field. Party control and the verification of performance should be directed primarily toward persistent struggle for conscious discipline. The party Central Committee performed a considerable amount of work to enhance the role of the primary party organizations.

Zonal meetings of primary party organization secretaries and party group organizers were held. Measures were adopted to strengthen party influence in the production units and for the rational assignment of party forces. An all-party review of the militancy of the primary party organizations was organized for the first time in 1984. It contributed to a large extent to an enrichment of the experience and methods of party work, the ascertainment and removal of shortcomings and oversights, and the creation of a new atmosphere in the practice of party work. Together with collective forms of work, personal meetings and conversations, which extended to 31 percent of party members, were conducted in the course of the review. It was significant that the review encompassed not only the party organizations; all labor collectives prepared for it in detail and took part in it.

The material and spiritual values of our socialist society are created in the labor collective. The personality and its positions in life and society are shaped here. A decisive role here belongs to the primary party organizations as the political leader of the labor collective.

I deem it expedient in this connection for the stimulation of the activity of the primary party organizations and the upsurge of their militancy to be advanced at the congress as a key all-party task.

The level of work of the party organization is largely determined by the role and professionalism of the party meeting and depends on its leaders, primarily the secretary, and on their knowledge and ability to assume responsibility and enterprise, innovation and executive efficiency. For the purpose of providing the primary party organizations with personnel with party-political education, the primary department of the Higher party School consisting of a 4-year term of tuition has been restored. The party Central Committee will continue to keep questions of the training and retraining of party organization executive personnel at the center of attention.

Proceeding from the current requirements of intraparty life, the party Central Committee deems it advisable to make certain changes to the party rules concerning admittance to the party and the imposition of penalties for violations of party discipline. It would seem correct to increase to 3 years the party probationary period of nominees and decide the question of admittance to the party by a two-thirds majority vote of party members present at the meeting. The question of the expulsion of a communist from the party ranks should also be decided by a majority of no less than two-thirds of party members present at the meeting.

Strengthening Socialist Democracy, Enhancing the Role of the State and Social Organizations

Comrades,

The working people's active participation in the development of socialist democracy and the control of social, state, and economic affairs is of paramount significance. In the period under review the MPRP displayed constant concern for the development of socialist democracy by way of an improvement in the work of the state and social organizations, thereby strengthening the political system of society. The party will continue to abide by this policy unswervingly.

The assemblies of people's deputies, which are the basis of our socialist stae, enlist the broad masses in matters pertaining to leadership of society and economic and cultural building and serve as the main connecting link between the party and the people. The activity of the MPRP People's Great Hural is aimed at perfecting socialist legislation and its observance, the elaboration and confirmation of plans of the development of the economy and the socio-cultural sphere and the implementation of other measures expressing the working people's fundamental interests.

Measures were implemented in the period under review to consolidate the legal principles of the organization and activity of the assemblies of all levels and their executive-administrative bodies. Laws were enacted on the aymag and city assemblies, the MPR Council of Ministers, and public education.

The law on the local assemblies broadened their powers in the settlement of multifaceted questions of economic, social and cultural building on territory under their jurisdiction. It also regulates relations between assemblies with enterprises and farms of a higher sectoral subordination located on territory under their jurisdiction and provides for their increased influence on the results of the work of these farms and enterprises.

Importance was attached to the first all-republic meeting of representatives of assembly executive committees of somons, horoos, rayons, and cities of local jurisdiction in 1983.

The local assemblies' field of activity in the domain of the solution locally of questions of the social sphere and a strengthening of discipline, order, and organization is expanding increasingly. The assembly executive authorities and the deputies must regularly render account to the working people and treat with the utmost attention and in businesslike manner the electorate's instructions, proposals, and desires.

Big efforts from the executive-administrative authorities of the assemblies of all levels are needed in order to ensure practical efficiency in the work of the assembly sessions and standing commissions. The assembly executive authorities must fulfill the decisions of the sessions more responsibly and study more carefully the recommendations of the standing commissions and the proposals of the deputies.

The party unswervingly demands of the assembly executive committees and ministries and departments and also the local components of the managerial machinery under their jurisdiction that they work efficiently and professionally and adopt a responsive attitude toward the working people's requirements and needs, maintaining close daily communications with them. Each official of every management body is obliged to firmly grasp the fact that in the working people's requirements and desires there are no trifling matters which may be overlooked. He must examine these questions free of red tape.

It is essential to mobilize and target the entire mechanism of socialist democracy toward a ruthless struggle against all manifestations of bureaucratism and complacency in the work of the machinery of state. The tasks of the people's contrôl authorities in the rational and skillful organization of state and social control and an improvement in its efficacy and fruitfulness are growing.

It is necessary to broaden in every possible way the working people's participation in the exercise of supervision and the verification of performance for this fosters in people the ability to approach any matter from the standpoints of state interests, is an important school of political conditioning and serves as a foundation of the development of democracy. The people's control authorities need to sharply improve the work of the people's control committees, groups, and posts, which are the main bulwarlk of their activity.

It would be expedient to exercise stricter supervision on the part of the party organizations of the unswerving observance of the provisions of the character of the agricultural associations to ensure that the principles of democratism with the emphasis on the assertiveness and initiative of the labor collective be implemented consistently in the management of cooperative production.

The MPR Armed Forces have been comprehensively reinforced. Under the conditions of the exacerbation of the international situation the party Central Committee has constantly paid unflagging attention to questions of strengthening the country's defense capability and a further improvement of military organizational development and consistently adopted the measures necessary for this.

It has to be noted with satisfaction that today the fighters of our armed forces, worthily performing, as before, their duty to the party and the people, are reliably standing guard of the motherland and participating actively in the country's socialist building.

It is the sacred task of the personnel of the armed forces to zealously study modern military science, constantly raise combat readiness, adroitly mastering modern arms and combat equipment, and irreprochably observe military discipline and exemplary order.

The political directorate and army political departments and party organizations must exert even greater efforts to ensure in the life and activity of the People's Army a growth of the role of political leadership and a strengthening of party influence and that the entire personnel be raised in a spirit of communist morality.

The long-standing class alliance of the Mongolian and Soviet peoples, the combat community of their illustrious armed forces and the fraternal assistance and support of the Soviet Union have been and will continue to be a reliable guarantee of our country's security.

Under the leadership of the MPRP and relying on the constant assistance and support of the people, the state security authorities are successfully performing their responsible duties to them.

The central task of the state security authorities should be the timely exposure and curtailment of the intrigues of hostile forces against our country. The party is sure that our security officers, border guard soldiers, and militia will continue to consciously, firmly, and vigilantly stand guard over the peaceful life and security of their people.

The strengthening of democracy is inseparably connected with unswerving observance of socialist legality. The party Central Committee has in recent years adopted the necessary measures pertaining to strict observance of socialist legality, having revealed a serious slackening of exactingness which had been allowed to occur in this sphere and which had caused the state and society considerable harm.

An urgent and important task is, without slackening the intensity of these measures, to perform work more efficiently on the prevention of crime and all violations of the laws and public order and increase the legal education of the working people, striving for profound recognition of the indivisible unity of the citizens' rights and duties. It is important to enlist the public more extensively in this work and increase the efficacy of the influence of the labor collectives.

It is necessary to raise even higher the responsibility of the law enforcement authorities for increased efforts to strengthen socialist legality and consistently protect the interests of society and citizens' rights and render them legal assistance. The militia authorities, prosecutor's office, judicial and other law enforcement establishments must direct the main attention toward stepping up the struggle against drunkeness, which is the most prevalent cause of offenses and crime, avoidance of socially useful labor and all attempts to derive unearned income. It is necessary to perform individual work with people who might relapse.

In accordance with their powers, the Mongolian trade unions made a considerable contribution in the period under review to the management of production, the stimulation of the labor collectives and the incorporation of broad strata of the working people in the accomplishment of social and cultural tasks. The party appreciates this contribution at its worth.

A most important task of the party is to strengthen in every possible way and raise even higher in the public-political life of the country the role of the trade union organizations, which possess the greatest opportunities for the development of democratic principles in the management of production and social affairs.

The tasks and responsibility of the trade union organizations are growing increasingly at the time of the elaboration, solution and realization of the most diverse problems affecting the vital interests of the labor collective and the worker. These are, in particular, active assistance in the fulfillment of plan quotas, dissemination of the brigade form of the organization and stimulation of labor, the adoption of counterplans, a strengthening of discipline, increased labor productivity, the utmost stimulation of socialist competition, an improvement in people's living and work conditions and a broadening of the opportunities for fruitful and cultured recreation and leisure.

Executives of sectors of the economy, enterprises, and farms need to adopt an attitude of the utmost attentiveness to all the proposals and initiatives of the trade union organizations on these questions of social life and regard this as their most important duty.

It also has to be mentioned that in terms of the scale of today's requirements there is still much unutilized potential in the unions' activity. The forms and methods of work of the primary trade union organizations are in need of further improvement. They need to be geared more firmly to the successful accomplishment of the production and social tasks confronting the labor collective.

A quantitative approach still predominates, and formalism continues to exist in the organization of socialist competition. This, of course, needs to be rectified. Socialist competition must be oriented primarily toward the dissemination of progresive experience, the introduction of new equipment and technology, the use of potential, savings of time and reduced outlays, and the development of efficiency promotion.

Supervision of the undeviating observance of labor legislation on work safety and safety equipment must be stricter. It is important to strive for the greater professionalism of the worker meetings and production conferences and make stricter demands on the organization of the fulfillment of the decisions adopted threat.

Uniting in its ranks the most progressive part of our youth, the MRYL participates actively at the party's call in the socialist building of the motherland. It needs to be noted with satisfaction that in the years of implementation of the decisions of the 18th MPRP Congress the MRYL assumed at its own initiative patronage of most important national economy construction projects and worked to reinforce the physical plant of animal husbandry. It fulfilled its obligations with honor, sending student-youth detachments to these construction sites.

The party endeavors to raise each young person as one who is boundlessly devoted to the cause of socialism, in a spirit of patriotism and internationalism, industrious and educated, physically developed, and an honest and modest citizen of the socialist motherland. The mentors of the children and the youth, our older generation, are called upon to make, and are making, a major contribution to this most important matter.

The ideological-educational work of the MRYL and the activity of the mongolian pioneer organization which it leads should be directed in full toward the accomplishment of this task. The MRYL organizations are obliged to actively assist each young person right form the outset to choose his path in life and work correctly to determine his place in society. Their activity should be vital and specific, taking into consideration the interests of the young men and women and their aspirations to make and create.

A tremendous field of creative work for the good of the motherland awaits our illustrious youth today. There is much for it to do for realization of the Target Program of the Development of Agriculture and an Improvment in the Population's Food Supply and for the development of industry and capital construction.

The party is convinced of the MRYL's capacity for raising and preparing a worthy young replacement shift for the older generations of workers and construction workers, stockbreeders and farmers. Roads for testing its powers and knowledge, gifts and capabilities in the field of science and technology have been opened to the youth. The MRYL must pay more attention to the development of the youth's creative thinking.

The MRYL is assigned an important role in ensuring that cultural-aesthetic requirements, sport, and physical culture become a need of the day-to-day life of a person of any occupation, and even more, of the young person.

The party will adhere invariably in its activity to the policy of enlisting the youth even more extensively in the control of society and the state.

The MPRP places large hopes in the youth. And this is understandable, they are after all, our future. The party has complete faith that our younger generation will honorably justify the confidence and hopes of the party, the people, and the older generation.

Measures were adopted in the period under review pertaining to the organizational strengthening of the organization of Mongolian Women. Our glorious women are making a great contribution to the Mongolian people's tremendous creative labor.

The Organization of Mongolian Women should direct its work toward implementation of party policy on the broad range of issues concerning the active enlistment of women in the country's social and political life, care of mother and child, the raising of the younger generation, and the spread of culture in everyday life. The party believes that this organization, having noticeably improved the style of its work in accordance with the new demands, will enterprisingly and broadly perform work which is all-embracing and necessary to society which corresponds to the desires and interests of our women.

The Soviet-Mongolian Friendship Society is an authoritative social organization which encompasses the broadest working people's strata and is making a worthy contribution to the strengthening of the traditional fraternal friendship of the people of two countries.

The society's noble mission is the continued strengthening of the inseparable bonds of friendship between the MPR and the USSR, inculcation in the working people of a spirit of internationalism, extensive propaganda of the magnificent achievements of the Soviet people and the Soviet state's Leninist policy and continued stimulation of its activity geared to assistance in the creative application of the Soviet experience.

We are sure that the friendship societies, peace and solidarity organizations, Veterans of the Revolutionary Struggle Committee, Defense Assistance Society and other social organizations will do much that is useful for the extensive enlistment of all strata of the working people in implementation of the party's domestic and foreign policy.

The Party's Ideological-Political and Educational Work at the Level of Current Requirements

Comrades,

The party's ideological work plays a determining part in realization of the MPRP's economic and social policy and the mobilization of the working masses for active socialist building.

The party has evolved a system of ideological influence composed of a large army of cadres and activists. The material conditions for poliical-educational work are being increasingly improved.

Under current conditions the scale and complexity of the tasks of socialist building are growing. The population's educational level is rising rapidly, people's spiritual requirements are growing, the urgency of timely practical application of the achievements of scientific and technological progress is increasing and the struggle between capitalism and socialism is intensifying in the world on all fronts. The need for a surge in the party's ideological work to a new level has risen acutely.

All means of ideological influence, be it propaganda, agitation, the press, radio and television, or literature and art, are designed to carry new knowledge to the masses, contribute to their spiritual enrichment, orient the working people correctly, and strive for their profound comprehension of the essence of party policy and the events occuring in the country and the world. They should actively influence people's minds and their labor and social activity.

In the period under review the party Central Committee adopted a number of important decisions for a further improvement of party training, the increased efficacy of political-mass work, and the cogency of mass media publications and broadcasts. Improvement in cultural service of the rural population and an intensification of foreign policy propaganda is also sought. It has to be noted that our ideological work was definitely reinvigorated in the course of implementation of these decisions.

However, it would be wrong to suppose that all is well on the ideological front and that there are no difficulties and shortcomings.

Our ideological, moral-educational work does not always have sufficient ability to penetrate to the thick of life, keep pace with social practice, win people's minds, and influence them. Many measures suffer from a hackneyed approach and a schematic nature and fail to reflect the new conditions and requirements. We have still not succeeded in ridding ourselves of formalism and pretentiousness.

It is necessary to reorganize the style of the party's ideological work in order to contribute to the formation of the political-ideological and moral-psychological conditions for the active realization of party policy.

The party believes that a central element is a strengthening of the scientific basis of educational work and the inculcation in the working people, primarily the youth and younger generation, of the spirit of the ideals of socialism and devotion to the cause of the party and the people.

It is essential to raise people and, particularly, the youth in a spirit of the best revolutionary, labor, and cultural-moral traditions of our people, and in a spirit of socialist patriotism and internationalism. With a feeling of pride in his socialist motherland and its revolutionary gains each citizen should work honestly and conscientiously in the name of a multiplication of the achievements of real socialism in the MPR and the consolidation and growth of its prestige. A constant concern of the MPRP has been and will continue to be the raising of our people in a spirit of strong friendship with the Soviet Union and the other fraternal socialist countries.

Questions of labor education remain at the center of the party's ideological work. The whole purpose thereof is to firmly inculcate in people a socialist attitude toward labor and strive for their clear recognition of the need for conscientious work for the common good. Life shows that where the collectives are imbued with a realization that the good life is created by good labor, and where it is known in practice how to create for people and make efficient use of favorable material, social, and spiritual conditions, high results are achieved. Consequently, it is extraordinarily important to ensure the unity of moral-educational work and actual practical activity. Socialist beliefs are formed by the results of practical work and not just by slogans and appeals.

Life demands the molding in members of society of the sense of a proprietory and zealous attitude toward all material and cultural values, national possessions and public property, affirmation of the socialist way of life, and undeviating observance of discipline, order, and organization. It has to be said that the squandering of public property, a dishonest attitude toward labor, parasitism, drunkenness, and other negative phenomena are connected not only with vestiges of the past but also in many instances with shortcomings and omissions in our work, including education.

For this reason ideological work must be closely combined with an uncompromising and aggressive struggle for the ascertainment and eradication of the causes of all kinds of negative phenomena which are impeding our forward progress.

Overcoming outdated habits of life and thinking demands painstaking work and constant efforts. This question cannot be solved by either short-term bursts of effort or superficial methods.

The MPRP attaches paramount significance in its ideological activity to the development of the party 's theoretical thought on the basis of the principles of Marxism-Leninism and its creative methodology.

Work on publication of the works of the classics of Marxism-Leninism, the theoretical elucidation of certain problems of socialist building, the organization of scientific-theoretical and practical conferences, and the elaboration of the history of the party and the state is contributing to a stimulation of theoretical thought in society and a rise in the level of socialist consciousness of the people's masses.

Nonetheless, the theoretical comprehension and collation of the practice of socialist building lags behind modern requirements. It would be no exaggeration to say that the development of social science in our country currently does not go beyond the framework of the simple propaganda of generally known truths.

It is necessary to approach in a new way questions of analysis and collation of the experience of socialist building and the elaboration and solution of many problems of the social, political, economic, and cultural sphere ensuing from the life of the country. The time has come to direct the efforts of social science scholars and establishments toward the transition to a more complex stage of creative scientific search. It is necessary to stimulate in scientific circles the method of creative discussion contributing to the finding of truth and inculcating of a taste for theory.

Particularly pertinent now is comprehensive study of central problems of the development of our society, particularly questions of the formation of the optimum structure of the economy, the interaction of the economic, social, and spiritual spheres of social life, the increased role of the human factor, the improvement of social relations, the economic mechanism, and the expansion and intensification of socialist democracy. The party awaits from the social scientists serious scientists serious scientific research which could contribute to the country's ongoing socioeconomic development. The party Central Committee emphasizes the importance of an improvement of the system of party political education and economic studies.

We have many propagandists of the first rank who have for many years devoted their knowledge and indefatigable efforts to propagandizing among party members and the working masses of Marxist-Leninist ideology and the party's domestic and foreign policy.

However, the system of party political education has not succeeded in ridding itself of passive methods of scholasticism and a hackeneyed approach. It is necessary in this sphere to increase the orientation toward the combination of studies and practice, and endeavor to increase its influence on the life, activity, and mentality of the students. Proceeding from this, the party organizations must concentrate on an elevation of the theoretical and practical training and methods skill of the propagandists. The extensive use of active methods of conducting political training classes and seminars: dialogue, free exchange of opinions, and discussion of issues from the life and activity of a given collective are a most important condition of their increased attractiveness and results.

The lecture propaganda conducted by the party and social organizations, including the Mongolian Society for the dissemination of knowledge contributes to a considerable extent to an explanation to different strata of the population of the essence of the domestic and foreign policy of the party and the state and the central problems of real socialism, and to the popularization among them of scientific and technological and cultural-aesthetic knowledge.

Only live information-packed and meaningful lectures and colloquia concerning the most important questions troubling a given audience are capable of enriching people's spiritual world and developing their assertiveness and initiative. It is these requirements which should determine the party organizations' approach to the performance of lecture propaganda.

Political-mass work, which extends to all strata of the population, is designed to serve as a means of strengthening the ties of the party and the people. It has an important place in the arsenal of the party's ideological activity.

Certain changes in our agitation-mass work are coming to light in connection with the party Central Committee decree concerning an improvement in the effectiveness of oral propaganda. Nonetheless, it is insufficiently current, flexible, and intelligible. Because of this, decisions and specific directions of the party descending through channels lose their intensity, and acquire the form of trite and hollow demlands. In many instances, precisely those with whom it is most necessary to work remain beyond the field of vision. State and industrial organization executives are as yet participating inadequately and formally in political-mass work among the population.

Skillfully and promptly conveying to each worker the party's truthful words and providing a convincing answer to questions of day-to-day life--such is the main demand made of agitators, political information workers, and rapporteurs. An important place should be occupied by the efficient organization of political-mass work among the rural workers, the stockbreeders particularly.

Under the conditions of the acute confrontation of the two systems our party is paying due attention to ensuring that within the framework of foreign policy propaganda we step up the struggle against bourgeois ideology, consistently reveal its antipopular essence, expose the mendacity and reactionary thrust of imperialism's "psychological warfare" against the socialist countries, and resolutely combat attempts to falsify history, incite nationalism and erode and split the unity and cohesion of the socialist community.

A most important condition of success in the struggle against bourgeois ideology and morality is the inculcation in the working people, particularly the youth, of high political vigilance and an ability from class standpoints to evaluate social phenomena and champion our ideological convictions and socialist principles.

A current direction of foreign policy propaganda is to convey to the public of nonsocialist and, particularly, developing countries in an accessible and intelligible form, truthful information about the MPR, the achievements and experience of real socialism, its peaceable foreign policy, and the socialist way of life.

The mass information organs are a powerful medium of the party's daily communication with the people's masses on questions of party policy and activity pertaining to its implementation. Our press, radio, television, and journalists are called on to fittingly perform the honorable and responsible duties entrusted to them and give to this work all their knowledge and capabilities..

It may be said that we have today in our country per capita and per family a perfectly sufficient volume of printed products, broadcasts, and publications. Radio and television's coverage of the population expanded considerably in the last 5-year plan. In the Eighth 5-Year Plan the majority of aymags and cities will be linked by radio relay line and together with this a new radio and television center will be commissioned. This expansion of the base of the information media demands an improvement in the quality and methods of work.

Each publication in the newspapers and journals and each radio and television broadcast must satisfy the aspiration of the readers, listeners, and viewers to grasp opportunely and in depth the key issues of the life of the country and the most important international events, supplement their political and scientific and technological knowledge and enrich themselves intellectually. It is the duty of our mass media to influence the formation of public opinion, a creative atmosphere in society and the individual's active position in life. They can perform these duties only by becoming a tribune which actively raises burning issues of life, organizes an exchange of opinions on them in a businesslike manner, and scrupulously sums up the results.

The mass media are a powerful instrument of publicity and social control. It is of fundamental importance that the newspapers, journals, radio and television persistently castigate on the basis of incontrovertible facts all that is impeding our advance. They must continue to display due concern for the end resuts of their protests. And the party, state, social, and industrial organizations must adopt a responsible attitude toward their duty, react opportunely and responsibely to the protests and criticism in the information organs, and organize work in the wake of them in a businesslike fashion.

The process of book publication, particularly the publication of political, economic and scientific and technological books, group works, and children's literature, is being held up through the fault of the Ministry of Culture Main Editorial Board and other concerned establishments. The capacity of the printing enterprises and their use, and the quality and appearance of the printed product are unsatisfactory.

It has to be said that for a variety of reasons periodical press and book products reach subscribers and readers only after a great delay, which is giving rise to the public's justified complaints. It is essential that the Ministry of Culture and the other corresponding establishments implement the outlined measures to update printing facilities and improve publishing and the delivery of book products to the readers.

The spiritual requirements of our society based on the development of artistic culture are growing from year to year. The rise in the ideological standard and artistic skill of works of literature and art is contributing to this.

The activity of the professional are establishments is expanding, and their repertoire is being enriched by national works and the works of world classics. The traditional nationwide art festival and the republic review of folklore creativity lend great impetus to the spread of amateur artistic activity and the use of the treasure house of folk art.

However, as a hole the level of accessibility of artistic culture is not yet satisfying the population's rapidly growing spiritual requirements.

The quality of works of artistic creativity, particularly literature, fine art, and motion pictures, is markedly lagging behind their quantity. Artistic creativity is penetrating the phenomena of life in insufficient depth, creating too few striking and typical impressive characters and suffering from shallowness of subject matter and a schematic and descriptive character. Such a situation demands a significant reinvigoration of artistic criticism, and literary and art criticism and a stimulation of the activity of the creative unions.

The party will continue to adopt a respectful attitude toward the activity of literature and art, and support their talent and search for what is new. But at the same time, however, the party expects from works literature and art on a contemporary ideological-aesthetic level.

The permanent party line in the sphere of literature and art remains an affirmation of the principle of socialist realism and the promotion on this basis of high moral content, party-mindedness, popular spirit. It is important to channel the efforts of our writers, artists, and all figures of art toward elevation and exaltation of our contemporary--the builder of the new society.

The Central Committee considers it important to adopt the appropriate measures to reinforce the material base and equipment sufficiency of the culture establishments and creative unions, provide them with qualified personnel and thoroughly improve cultural-mass work in the countryside, particularly among the stockbreeders.

It is necessary to approach questions of the development of culture with an understnading of its true purpose. We must emphatically change the rooted practice of work both in culture establishments and the planning and financial authorities of, considering monetary proceeds the most important thing, actually seriously weakening cultural service of the population.

In the light of the new wide-ranging tasks outlined by the party it is necessary to rebuild all ideological work on the basis of a comprehensive and professional approach. This demands new creative initiatives and efforts of the party organizations and all workers of the ideological front.

Comrades,

Such are the basic tasks of our ongoing development for the years to come which are submitted for examination by the 19th MPRP Congress. The tasks we have outlined are substantial and complex. Their accomplishment is designed to raise all aspects of the development of society to a new level.

Where does the practicality of the plans advanced by the party lie? In the fact that they are based on the country's increased economic and spiritual potential, and the advantages of the socialist system, which are being revealed increasingly extensively in our society. We are implementing our plans in close cooperation with the Soviet Union and the other fraternal socialist states, relying on their wealth of experience and powerful support. Our conviction and resolve are based on the fact that party policy corresponds to the fundamental interests of the country's working people and enjoys their complete support.

In outlining the plans for the near future the party is profoundly aware of its high responsibility for the future of our socialist motherland and for its crossing the threshold of the 21st century in step with the countries which are marching in the vanguard of the struggle for the building of a new society, and for lasting peace in the world.

Evaluating our achievements with a feeling of pride, our party and people are entering the latter half of the 1980's with optimism. We see clearly and know what we have to do. The accomplishment of all the scheduled tasks will require of us a new approach and persistent creative efforts.

The MPRP Central Committee expresses the firm belief that having rallied even more closely around their party, the working people of our country will, with great enthusiasm, devote their energy, knowledge, and labor to the cause of the successful fulfillment of the decisions which will be adopted by the 19th party congress and the great cause of building a socialist society on Mongolian soil.

(The MPRP Central Committee report to the 19th party congress delivered by J. Batmonh, general secretary of the MPRP Central Committee, was listened to with great attention and received with tremendous enthusiasm by the congress' delegates and guests. Comrade J. Batmonh's report was repeatedly accompanied by lasting stormy applause and an ardent ovation.)

Central Auditing Commission Report

WA010010 Ulaanbaatar NOVOSTI MONGOLII in Russian 29 May 86 p 8

[Report of R. Dagbadorj, chairman of the MPRP Central Auditing Commission, at 19th MPRP Congress on 28 May 1986]

[Text] Comrades!

The report of the MPRP Central Committee to the highest forum of Mongolian communists -- the 19th party congress -- just delivered by Comrade J. Batmonh, general secretary of the MPRP Central Committee, sums up the work on realization of the decisions of the 18th party congress and makes an in-depth, realistic and scrupulous evaluation of the present state of the country's socioeconomic development.

The leading and directing role of the party in the life of society is growing constantly, and practical activity to implement its policy line is being enriched with new content and a new approach. In ensuring the continuity of party policy and raising party leadership to a new level a particularly important part was played by the special MPRP Central Committee Eighth Plenum held in 1984.

The Central Committee report advanced large-scale tasks of the new 5-year plan to ensure the ongoing development of social production, enhance its efficiency and achieve on this basis a further growth of public well-being and precisely determined the main ways of tackling these tasks. It emphasizes that primarily essential for the accomplishment of the new tasks are an improvement in the style of leadership and the increased responsibility and discipline of the personnel, a strengthening of order and organization at work and a reorganization of the party's ideological and organizing work.

All this is a manifestation of the fact that the party evaluates the state of affairs objectively, always serves the interests of the people and inspires and organizes them for the accomplishment of the new tasks. This is the main essence of the party's political course and its practical activity.

The draft Guidelines of the MPR's Economic and Social Development in 1986-1990 determine the immediate tasks of our country's socialist building. The preparations for the congress and the entire course of nationwide discussion of the draft guidelines strikingly demonstrated once again that the communists of socialist Mongolia and all the country's working people fully support the country's domestic and foreign policy and have initiated great creative work with inspiration and high political and labor enthusiasm.

The 27th CPSU Congress formulated the strategy of acceleration of the development of Soviet society and the all-around and plan-oriented improvement of socialism and provided exhaustive answers to topical problems of the modern world. The political documents adopted at the congress, particularly the new version of the CPSU Program, represent a valuable contribution to the creative development of the theory of scientific communism.

The businesslike and creative spirit of the 27th congress of Soviet communists is of inestimable significance in the life and activity of our party and is for us an inspiring example.

Comrades,

In the period under review the MPRP Central Auditing Commission organized its activity guided by the provisions of the MPRP Rules and the decisions of the 18th party congress. The MPRP Central Auditing Commission regularly conducted a check of the rapidity and soundness of the conduct of business in the central party authorities and the coordination of the work of the machinery of the party Central Committee Secretariat. The Central Auditing Commission conducted checks on these questions in the party Central Committee machinery annually and in the bodies accountable to the Central Committee once every 2 years.

Permit me to report to the party congress that the machinery of the MPRP Central Committee -- the combat headquarters of our party -- is coping honorably with its duties pertaining to fulfillment of the instructions of the Politburo and Secretariat, the elaboration of draft party Central Committee documents on political, economic and social problems and also the solution of questions received from the local party, state, social and cooperative organizations.

The directions of Comrade J. Batmonh, general secretary of the MPRP Central Committee, issued at the start of 1985 at the meeting with party Central Committee workers served as new impetus in enhancing professionalism and promptitude in the work of the Central Committee machinery, raising the responsibility of its workers and developing their creative initiative and improving performance and discipline and now serve as a guide in the business of the continued stimulation of the activity of the party organizations in the center and locally.

The Central Auditing Commission paid particular attention to an improvement in the organization of work with the working people's letters received by the party Central Committee and the bodies accountable to it.

In the period under review the party Central Committee received more than 4,800 letters from the working people. 2,300 persons visited the party Central Committee Reception Room and shared their opinions and desires.

In the working people's letters and warnings an important place is occupied by proposals aimed at an improvement in the work of this sector of the economy and specific labor collective or the other, and also critical observations concerning instances of bureaucratism, red tape, indiscipline, irresponsibility and lax management and also the lagging of the methods and style of work of the leaders of individual party, state and industrial organizations; that is, everything impeding our forward progress. This is confirmation that the working masses are devotedly true to their party and rallied around it and that their social-political assertiveness is high.

A great deal of work is being performed by the party Central Committee machinery and the local party organizations for fulfillment of the provisions of the MPRP Central Committee decree on further improvement of work with the working people's letters which was adopted in 1978.

A uniform system of business correspondence and work with the working people's letters has been established for the party organizations of all levels.

The Central Committee machinery attentively studies the working people's letters and submissions and adopts measures to resolve the practical proposals and desires which they raise. With regard for the proposals from the communists and working people on such questions as a strengthening of labor discipline, an improvement in food supply and medical and public transport services, and an improvement in the pension system for members of the agricultural associations and teachers and lecturers, the party Central Committee has adopted special decrees.

Such forms of hearing and studying public opinion as the reports of executives at meetings of the working people, open-letter days on one specific issue or another and question-and-answer evenings are practiced in the work of many party organizations.

At the same time individual shortcomings in business correspondence and in the work with the working people's letters were ascertained at the time of the inspections conducted in the party Central Committee machinery and the organizations accountable to it. There are still instances of a formal, disdainful and bureaucratic attitude toward the working people's proposals and complaints.

It has to be mentioned that the proposals prepared by our commission on the basis of the results of the inspections were supported by the party Central Committee Secretariat and that specific measures have been adopted aimed at removing the causes of the shortcomings which were ascertained and perfecting the work of the machinery.

The central party newspaper and journal editorial offices also receive numerous letters from the working people. The bulk of the proposals and desires expressed therein is published in the press and prompt measures are adopted in the wake of them, which serves as a powerful lever of the removal of shortcomings and oversights in work. However, it has to be emphasized that the examination of readers' correspondence is sometimes delayed in the party newspaper and journal editorial offices, owing to which the urgency of the issues raised therein is lost. Together with this, the party press editorial offices are monitoring insufficiently the work performed by the appropriate organizations in the wake of press publications and failing to make the due demands of them.

It is essential to continue to enhance the level of work with the working people's letters in all party organizations. The voice of all those who have public interests and social justice at heart should be supported. Their practical proposals and justified requests must be studied attentively and resolved promptly.

Comrades,

The MPRP Central Auditing Commission annually inspected fulfillment of the party budget and the work of the party cashier's office. Financial-economic activity is being exercised correctly and properly in the party Central Committee and the organizations accountable to it. Party budget resources are being spent in accordance with the purposes established by the Central Committee. The proposals of the Central Auditing Commission were considered by the party Central Committee at the time of confirmation of the annual party budget.

The party's monetary resources increased 27.1 percent compared with the preceding accounting period, including a 25.4-percent increase in the proceeds from membership dues. The newspaper UNEN is constantly profitable. The party's budget expenditure increased 15.3 percent. A considerable part of the party budget goes on the financing of the party organizations.

There has been a considerable increase in expenditure in recent years connected with the measures adopted by the party Central Committee to improve the organization of the work on training and retraining party personnel, in particular, with the reorganization of the system of tuition in the Higher Party School.

I would like in this connection to mention with gratitude that the CPSU Central Committee constantly renders the MPRP Central Committee tremendous assistance in the training and improvement of our party and state executives.

As a result of a number of measures adopted by the Central Committee for the economical and rational use of party resources and the improved supervision of their expenditure, the annual economies in budget expenditure constituted 6.8-8.8 percent.

At the same time instances are encountered in certain aymag party committees of a breach of budget discipline and overexpenditure of the approved budget in certain items. Serious violations in the custody, safekeeping and expenditure of party resources were permitted owing to a slackening of vigilance and internal control in the Social Sciences Institute, the Higher Party School and the Bayan-Hongor Aymag Party Committee.

Enlisting members of the auditing commissions of the local party organizations and party militants, the Central Auditing Commission carried out inspections of the correct payment of membership dues. The inspections covered 77.7 percent of primary party organizations. The overwhelming majority of party members correctly pay their dues monthly and in the statutory amount. Work on receiving membership dues entirely in accordance with the instructions governing party membership dues is well organized in the party committees of Bayanhangay Somon of the Tob Aymag, Altanbulag Somon of Selenge Aymag and in many other primary party organizations.

However, the above-mentioned inspections ascertained that there was a shortfall in the primary party organizations in the payment of dues from supplementary earnings and other income of party members and candidates totaling over 160,000 tugriks. The payment shortfalls in membership dues which had been uncovered were paid into party funds. Deviations in the work on receiving membership dues were noted in the party organizations of Bulgan, Bayan-Olgiy, Dornogobi, Omnogobi and Suhbaatar aymags and of the border and internal forces.

The secretaries of some primary party organizations do not transfer to the cashier's offices the membership dues received from the communists for a long time, which is a serious breach of the instructions governing party membership dues. There are also party members who for no particular reason do not pay the membership dues on time. However, as the inspections showed, such breaches of party discipline are rarely examined by the corresponding party organizations.

It is essential that the aymag, city and district party committees draw the proper conclusion from the above-cited facts and adopt vigorous measures to step up control of strict observance of the statutory procedure of the payment of membership dues.

The high-minded and consistent struggle conducted by the party for the establishment in all walks of life of our society of conscious discipline and strict order must be embodied primarily in intraparty life.

Comrades,

The formation in 1984 of the Central Auditing Commission Bureau was an important measure aimed at ensuring promptitude in the commission's work and the increased efficacy of auditing work and responsibility of the commission members.

Permit me to report that in the period under review the Central Auditing Commission members, justifying the high trust placed in them, participated actively in the work of the commission.

The Central Auditing Commission, maintaining work contacts with the auditing commissions of the local party organizations, paid great attention to rendering them practical and methods assistance in their work. A conference-seminar of chairmen of the local party organization auditing commissions was organized and their work experience was exchanged with the direct participation of the party Central Committee.

The main criterion of the work of the auditing commissions consists not only of the ascertainment of shortcomings but also of ensuring the factors which gave rise to them be removed and the same shortcomings not be repeated and that each inspection be conducted fruitfully and contribute to an improvement in work. We realize that not every inspection conducted by the Central Auditing Commission corresponded to this requirement.

The MPRP Central Auditing Commission has strengthened its practical relations with the central auditing commissions of the CPSU and the other fraternal parties and taken advantage in its activity of their work experience.

Comrades, the successful accomplishment of the major new tasks advanced by the 19th party congress demands of each party organization the maximum efficiency, high organization and purposefulness in work. This demand applies fully to the activity of the auditing commissions of all levels. Rendering the party organizations timely and effective assistance in realization of the congress' decisions is the direct duty and main task of the auditing commissions' work.

Permit me to express the confidence that each auditing commission and every communist elected thereto will lend all their powers to an improvement in the forms and methods of auditing work and a constant increase in their efficacy.

Sodnom Details 5-Year Plan

WA010008 Ulaanbaatar NOVOSTI MONGOLII in Russian 29 May 86 pp 9, 10

[Report of D. Sodnom, chairman of the MPR Council of Ministers, at 19th MPRP Congress]

[Text] Comrade Delegates!

Dear Guests,

The 19th MPRP Congress is a major and important event in the life of our party and people.

The report on the MPRP Central Committee account and subsequent tasks has been delivered at the congress by Comrade J. Batmonh, general secretary of the MPRP Central Committee and chairman of the MPRP People's Great Hural Presidium. The report made a Marxist-Leninist analysis and evaluation of the current state of the country's economic and social development. The guidelines of the activity of party and state for the immediate future have been determined in accordance with the tasks of building socialism. Our party's foreign policy course has also been formulated.

The draft Guidelines of the MPR's Economic and Social Development in 1986-1990 are, following their nationwide discussion and specification, being submitted by the MPRP Central Committee for examination by the congress.

More than 550,000 persons participated in discussion of the draft guidelines. The bulk of the working people's proposals pertains to problems of production, its increased efficiency, the mobilization and use of available potential, the application in production of scientific and technological achievements, perfection of planning and management, and also a strengthening of discipline, order and organization. The working people adopted a critical approach to existing shortcomings and advanced many material proposals aimed at improving the activity of ministries and departments, aymag and city executive committees, and other specific organizations. Having attentively studied the proposals, the central and local party, state, social, and industrial organizations are elaborating and promptly adopting the appropriate measures.

Mongolian communists and our entire body politic received the draft guidelines with warm approval and are unanimously expressing their firm resolve to accomplish the outlined tasks. This is convincing testimony to the monolithic cohesion and unity of the MPRP and our people's consistent support for party policy.

The discussion of the draft guidelines graphically demonstrates the assertiveness of the masses and their aspiration to approach the determination of the ways of tackling the tasks and urgent problems confronting the country in a new, creative way.

The 27th CPSU Congress and its historic decisions and the experience of organizing work on their implementation lend our party and people a new charge of energy and are exerting a salutory influence on a further upsurge of the political and social assertiveness of our country's working people.

Together with determination of the tasks of the new 5-year plan the draft guidelines sum up the fulfillment of the Seventh 5-Year Plan and also point to the existing shortcomings which need to be removed.

As a whole, the results of the Seventh 5-Year Plan are convincing testimony that as a result of the creative labor of the working class, cooperative herdsmen and working intelligentsia our country took a further major step forward along the path of creation of the material-technical base of socialism.

I would like to mention particularly that friendship and close cooperation with the Soviet Union and the other fraternal countries and their all-around help and support played, as before, a decisive part in the accomplishment of the outlined tasks.

The conclusions and directions contained in Comrade J. Batmonh's report on the MPRP Central Committee account and subsequent tasks will be made the basis of the activity of all party, state, social and industrial organizations and labor collectives.

I. The Eighth Five-Year Plan -- Important Stage in Realization of the Party's Program Task Pertaining to Creation of the Material-Technical Base of Socialism in the MPR

Comrades,

The draft guidelines were drawn up in accordance with the party's strategic course toward creation of the material-technical base of socialism, an improvement in social relations and establishment of the socialist way of life.

Ensuring the ongoing development of social production and its increased efficiency and achieving on this basis a further upsurge of public well-being is advanced by the party as the main task of the Eighth 5-Year Plan.

The average annual production of national income will increase by 1.7-1.8 billion tugriks compared with the past 5-year period. For securing the planned growth it is contemplated increasing average annual production of the gross agricultural product 18-20 percent compared with the preceding 5-year plan, and industrial production in the 5-year period 30-31 percent.

Together with the maximum mobilization of all potential and possibilities for an increase in social production efficiency, an important factor of securing a growth thereof at the present stage of the development of our country's economy is a further strengthening of the material-technical base of the economy. In this 5-year plan it is envisaged channeling approximately 35 percent of utilized national income into the formation of the accumulation fund. Some 24.7 billion tugriks of capital investments will be allocated for the expansion and strengthening of the material-technical base of the economy. It is envisaged creating more than 80,000 jobs. The fixed capital of the national economy will increase by a factor of 1.5.

It is planned to channel into the development of the material production sectors 17 billion tugriks of capital investments. One-fourth thereof will be invested in agriculture, almost half in industry and one-fifth in the development of transport and communications.

In the new 5-year plan investment policy will be geared to the accomplishment of the priority tasks of the Target Program of the Development of Agriculture and Improvement of the Population's Food Supply, an improvement in the country's energy supplies, a strengthening of the industrial engineering base of construction, an increase in production capacity for processing animal husbandry raw material, the creation of new metal-working and repair capacity, and also ensuring the proportional development of sectors of the production infrastructure.

The draft guidelines provide for a number of measures pertaining to the rational location of the productive forces.

The western part of the country will be switched in to the Soviet Union's power system. The construction of a meat-packing plant, brick works, cloth and sheepskin-fur coat factories and certain other facilities is planned for this area. An intensification of geological prospecting is envisaged. Virgin land will be developed in the Halhin Gol region. It is planned expanding the industrial complexes of Darhan, Erdenet, Baganuur and Bor-Ondor and developing their social infrastructure.

The structure of capital investments will improve, and their efficiency will increase. Whereas in the past 5-year plan 24 percent of capital investments was used for the expansion, modernization and retooling of operating enterprises and industrial organizations, in the new 5-year plan this proportion will increase to 35 percent. It is envisaged concentrating approximately 80 percent of total capital investments at facilities nearing completion and on the acquisition of equipment.

Provision of sectors of the national economy with skilled personnel will improve. It is planned in 1986-1990 to train and send into the national economy 52,000 specialists with higher and secondary specialized education and 61,000 skilled workers.

As the country's economic potential grows, there is an increasingly insistent need to improve its use and strive for an increase in the end results of production. Social labor productivity in the new 5-year plan will grow no less than 10 percent. It is planned to secure no less than 80 percent of the increase in output thanks to increased labor productivity at operating enterprises. Upon determination of the level and growth of labor productivity account was taken of the need for the rational use of labor resources and provision of agriculture with manpower.

The draft guidelines advance important tasks pertaining to economies in material resources. In the new 5-year plan it is intended to economize on material resources to the extent of roughly half a billion tugriks or 1.7 times more than in the past 5-year period. It is planned having increased the volume of the industrial product made from the material thus saved by a factor of 2.2 by 1990 compared with 1985.

Decisive significance in the accomplishment of the tasks pertaining to economies in material resources will be attached to the application in production of waste-free and low-waste technology, an improvement in the primary processing and storage of raw materials, intermediate products, and product models, and improvement of styles, along with increasing quality and making the fullest use of secondary raw materials.

An improvement in product quality is an important source of satisfying social requirements, economizing on resources and also multiplying the national wealth. Production of products of the first quality category will increase by a factor of 1.4.

The manufacture of products failing to satisfy quality requirements leads to the loss of considerable potential and possibilities. I shall cite an example. The possibility of the production of approximately 1 million woolen sweaters and as many pairs of felt boots is let slip annually as a consequence of the procurement of yellowed and matted fleece. It is necessary in this connection to concentrate attention on preservation and improvement of the quality of products at all stages of their manufacture -- the procurement, processing, storage and shipment of raw material and finished products.

The production of high-quality products will be stimulated more strongly on the basis of correct use of the stimulating levers of a quality increase contained in the new wholesale prices which are being applied as of this year. Together with this it is necessary to step up the struggle to eliminate the shortcoming where fulfillment of the plan pertaining to quantity, given the manufacture of substandard products, makes it possible to obtain wages and bonuses in full.

The draft guidelines plan the realization in full of the priority measures of the Target Program of the Development of Agriculture and Improvement of the Population's Food Supply.

Average annual production of the gross animal husbandry product will increase 10-12 percent and the production of meat (liveweight) in 1990 will have been raised to 530,000 tons, milk to 350 million liters and butter to 5,300 tons. It is planned to obtain the bulk of the scheduled growth of the animal husbandry product through a reduction in livestock losses, the raising of the breeding herd to 11.3-11.6 million head and the rearing of an annual 9-9.2 million head of young stock. This will require of us even more strenuous work.

An important condition of the growth of the animal husbandry product remains an increase in livestock productiveness based on an improvement in pedigree breeding. It is intended to have raised the number of heads of highly productive pureblood and crossbred livestock by the end of the 5-year plan to 2.2 million and having increased the numbers of the best offspring of local breeds by a factor of 1.5-1.6.

It is envisaged organizing new fattening yards, dairy farms, and farmsteads, making fuller use of their capacity and developing hog raising and poultry breeding. It is planned to expand the mechanized dairy farms and increasing their milk herd by a factor of 1.7. A considerable proportion of the increase in meat production will be secured thanks to an improvement of the buildup of the livestock on pasture and its intensive fattening and the development of hog raising. Egg production will increase by a factor of 2.3.

A further expansion and strengthening of the material-technical base of animal husbandry are envisaged together with an improvement in its use. By the end of the 5-year plan small cattle will have been provided with 1.7 removable barns and horned cattle with 1.3. Ten million hectares of pasture will be irrigated additionally.

An improvement in the organization of animal husbandry production and the stockbreeders' work and social conditions is a basic question requiring immediate solution. Certain aymags and agricultural associations are adopting definitive measures for an improvement in the stockbreeders' work and social conditions and performance of as many basic production operations as possible by collective efforts based on the organization of stockbreeding groups and consolidated camps with the construction of bases for the acceptance and rearing of young stock and the fattening of livestock and other production-social facilities. Such undertakings and positive experience will be supported and disseminated to the utmost.

The production and procurement of fodder for the livestock will increase 30 percent, and the relative significance of fodder crops will rise. It is planned to raise the irrigable areas sown to fodder crops to 36,000 hectares. It is intended to create a number of new fodder farms and reequipping and expanding the capacity of the operating enterprises and shops. For the purpose of improving the shipment of fodder it is envisaged to considerably expand the pool of existing service stations and create a large-scale specialized service station in the western region.

The increased demand for fuller use of the existing possibilities of fodder procurement on their territory and self-sufficient in fodder and also the more efficient consumption of fodder resources will be made of all aymags and farms.

It is planned to implement measures to further strengthen the zoo-veterinary service and material-technical base of the agricultural research establishments.

The average annual farming product will grow 42-44 percent. The task being set here is that of securing no less than 40 percent of this increase through to increasing yield.

An important task of farming is creating the conditions for obtaining stable harvests based on the production of high-yield seeds of cereals, potatoes and vegetables, refining agricultural technology and improving in the use of irrigation systems and agricultural machinery and equipment, under the conditions of our country.

It is planned in the new 5-year plan to build irrigation systems on 30,000-plus hectares, of which the engineering type will be built on more than 20,000 hectares. We plan to assimilate over 120,000 hectares of virgin land. Supplies of mineral fertilizer will increase by a factor of 1.6 compared with the preceding 5-year plan.

Agriculture will be suppplied with 5,900 tractors and 1,800 combines. Together with the modernization, expansion and construction on the state farms of repair-tractor workshops and service centers it is planned to build in Darhan a large-scale plant for major repairs of tractors and agricultural machinery.

It is important to improve the degree of provision with repositories and reduce losses of agricultural products. Elevators and mechanized repositories with a total capacity of approximately 260,000 tons will be commissioned, improving the degree of provision of grain stores considerably. It is planned to build stores for commodity and seed potatoes and vegetables with a total capacity of approximately 40,000 tons. This is twice as much as in the past 5-year plan.

It is planned to invest 4 billion tugriks in agriculture. The high demand that aymag, and city executive committees, as well as the Ministry of Agriculture make rational use of the resources allocated to agriculture, commission the planned facilities in good time and ensure the assimilation of their capacity in full is being made.

In the course of discussion of the draft guidelines the working people put forward proposals concerning an increase in the resources allocated for the mintenance and replacement of animal husbandry premises using stronger materials, the repair of wells and the restoration and increased displacement and good working order of the shaft wells. It was also suggested that attention be paid to the optimum location of the animal husbandry premises and watering places and the rationalization of the plans thereof.

It is planned to adopt measures to improve the provision of the state farms and agricultural associations with stockbreeders, specialists and executive personnel, efficiently develop agricultural science and strengthen its ties to production and also perfect the organization of labor and its remuneration and stimulation systems.

In the new 5-year plan industry will develop at a fast pace, and its role in the country's economy will increase. By the end of the 5-year plan it will be producing 35 percent of the national income.

The gross industrial product will increase by 2 billion tugriks and will amount to 8.6 billion tugriks. Half of this increase will be secured thanks to the improved use of available capacity.

Some 8.3 billion tugriks will be invested in industry in the 5-year plan.

Fuel-energy industry will enjoy preferential development; it is contemplated channeling into this sector 44 percent of the resources allocated industry as a whole.

The new 5-year plan is designed to be an important stage in an appreciable increase in the country's power supply. In the 5-year plan power generation per capita will increase 20 percent. The sphere of centralized power supply will be extended. It is planned to expand and modernize major individual power stations, commission the Erdenet plant and embark on the construction of a major power station in Baganuur. The construction of 1,700 km in single-circuit terms of 110- and 220-kilovolt power lines and an increase by a factor of 3.2 compared with the preceding 5-year plan in the amount of work on the construction of 35-kilovolt power lines are envisaged.

It is planned to concentrate attention on ensuring the engineering readiness of the power stations and systems, saving fuel and energy and also ensuring the commissioning of the power lines under construction within the scheduled times.

Coal production will increase by a factor of 1.4, and the solid fuel requirement will be satisfied in full. The Ministry of Fuel and Power Industry is faced with the crucial task of eliminating the lag in stripping and fundamental and preparatory mine operations and ensuring the rhythmic nature of production at the Sharyn Gol strip mine and the Nalayh mine. Measures will be adopted to increase the capacity of the small local open pits and create and work new ones.

It is contemplated channeling 1.7-1.9 billion tugriks into the development of ore-mining industry. Measures will be adopted to expand the "Erdenet" Ore-Dressing Works and the concentration works in Bor-Ondour and develop certain new mineral deposits. The product of this sector will increase 17-20 percent.

An intensification of geological prospecting and the concentration of exploration in the zones of the operating ore-mining enterprises and in promising areas are planned.

The product of the metal-working and repair enterprises will increase 22-26 percent. It is envisaged increasing the volume of repair-restoration operations and the production of spares, broadening the range of consumer metal products, and improving the quality of repair work by way of extending the specialization and cooperation of the enterprises of this sector and improving the use of machinery and equipment capacity.

Together with the reinforcement of the repair base for agricultural equipment the capacity for the repair of equipment of the construction materials and fuel and power industry enterprises will be increased.

The light industry product will be increased by approximately 440 million tugriks. Conditions will be created for ensuring, in the main, the complete processing of animal husbandry raw materials by way of an expansion of capacity for the production of leather, fur and sheepskin-fur coat products, carpets, cloth, nonwoven materials, woolen cloth, knitwear, felt and felt footwear. It is planned to improve the quality, style and outward appearance of the products, ensuring the preferential rate of growth of the production of consumer goods in extra demand and also broadening their selection.

It is planned to increase food industry products 22-25 percent.

A meat-packing plant will be built in Ulaangom. Packing houses in Olgiy and Altay will be commissioned, and the construction, expansion and modernization of food-preparation plants is planned in certain aymags and cities. Food-preparation shops and also oil mills and shops will be built and reequipped in the somons.

Work will be performed on a broadening of the selection and an increase in the gustatory and nutritional properties of foodstuffs, an increase in the manufacture of packaging products and an improvement in the quality and outward appearance of packaging and wrapping. The manufacture of children's foods will increase, and their structure will be improved.

The production of construction materials will increase by a factor of 1.6-1.7. Provision of the planned construction program with materials will thereby be achieved. A number of new construction materials enterprises furnished with modern highly productive equipment has been built. Particular attention will be paid to the full use of their capacity on the basis of an improvement of the operation and maintenance of the machinery and equipment and timely provision with the necessary qualified personnel, materials and spares.

Capacity for the production of wall materials will increase by more than 60 million standard bricks. In addition to this it is planned expanding the production of wall materials by a simpler method based on local raw material resources.

There will be virtually no increase in the procurement of timber. However, it is planned here to increase the production of wood-processing industry products by a factor of 1.4 on the basis of an improvement in the use of materials and the quality of the product.

A wood-processing works in Erdenet will be commissioned.

It is planned to expand tree planting and afforestation and improve the conservation and protection of the forests against fires and pests and also tending the forest.

Wide-ranging measures are envisaged to strengthen the material-technical base of transport. The volume of transportation of freight will increase 32-34 percent and of passengers 37-40 percent. The task of enhancing the quality and efficiency of service based on the increased coordination of the operation of all forms of transport, the increased productivity of the rolling stock and the introduction of progressive freight-shipment methods is being set in addition to an increase in the fleet of transport facilities.

Some 2.5-2.6 billion tugriks will be channeled into the strengthening of the material-technical base of transport, which is more than 1 billion tugriks more than in the preceding 5-year plan. An integrated works for diesel engine motor vehicles, a passenger car service station and the first stage of a trolleybus line will be commissioned in Ulaanbaatar. A motor vehicle service station will be built in Darhan.

The carrying and traffic capacity of the railroad will increase. The stations of Darhan, Suhbaatar, Erdenet and Dzamyn-Ud will be expanded and the Ulaanbaatar junction and locomotive depot and the depot in Erdenet will be modernized.

In coordination with the task of ensuring the conditions for the normal funtioning of means of transport it is planned to increase the length of the hard-surface highways approximately 40 percent and of ferroconcrete bridges 25-27 percent and the capacity of fuel dumps by a factor of 2.5.

It is planned to continue implementation of measures pertaining to the creation of a uniform communications system.

As a gift to our people, the Soviet Union will build radio relay communication lines 1,200 km long. Radio relay communication lines will connect the cities of Suhbaatar, Saynshand, Mandalgobi and Dalandzadgad with Ulaanbaatar. The number of relay transmitters will increase. An important social task -- catering for the reception of television transmissions in all somon centers and inhabited localities of the country -- will have been accomplished, in the main, as a result of this.

Accomplishment of the scheduled tasks of economic and social development will largely depend on the state of affairs in capital construction.

As a result of the wide-ranging measures implemented with the assistance of the Soviet Union, the material-technical base of the construction organizations has strengthened and their provision of skilled personnel has improved. This is enabling us to increase construction-installation operations in accordance with social requirements. In the past 5-year plan alone the fixed production capital of the capital construction sector doubled. The aymag and city construction organizations have been provided, in the main, with the corresponding production facilities. The sector currently employs 34,000 persons, 4,200 of whom are engineering-technical personnel.

In the new 5-year plan total construction-installation work will increase by 3.1 billion tugriks. In connection with the appreciable expansion of large-panel housing construction and the construction of power supply networks, roads, bridges and fuel-lubricant dumps it is planned to increase by a factor of 1.7 the amount of work of the specialized construction organizations. The volume of rural construction will also increase rapidly in connection with the implementation of the priority measures of the agricultural and food program.

It is planned to invest 1.1 billion tugriks in the construction industry. Great attention will be paid to an improvement in the provision of construction organizations, primarily the specialized and rural organizations, with equipment. It is planned to create and re-equip 30 mobile construction-installation mechanized columns.

In the new 5-year plan it is contemplated to train 13,000 skilled construction workers.

The construction by the direct-labor method of facilities and accommodations of simplified designs using local materials will be supported in every possible way. Measures will be adopted to extend assistance on the part of the construction organizations in this sphere.

It is important to continue to improve construction. The amount of 2.1 billion tugriks or 11.6 percent over and above the planned volume of capital investments in the last 5-year plan was partially connected with the increase in foreign trade prices, but was caused mainly by the prolongation of the construction times and the fact that the optimum designs were not implemented.

A reduction in the length of time for construction of facilities based on an improvement in planning-estimates work and improved coordination of the activity of the clients, contractors, and foreign economic and supply organizations is an important condition of an increase in the efficiency of capital investments.

It would be expedient to study questions regarding the concentration of forces and resources at facilities of decisive significance for an acceleration of the country's economic and social development and bringing closer the time of the commissioning of new capacity and fixed capital to that indicated in the guidelines, elaborate proposals in connection with them and incorporate them in the measures pertaining to fulfillment of the 5-year plan.

The successful accomplishment of the tasks of economic and social building will largely depend on the application in production of scientific and technological achievements and advanced experience.

It is planned to strengthen the pilot-experimental facilities and improve the degree of provision of the research establishments with qualified personnel. Particular attention will be paid to an enhancement of the role and responsibility, and an improvement in the coordination of the activity of the State Committee for Science and Technology, the Academy of Sciences, the State Committee for Higher and Secondary Specialized Education, the industrial ministries and departments and the research organizations under their jurisdiction. It is necessary to improve their joint activity in the efficient performance of research work at a high level, the prompt application of scientific and technological achievements in production, and the development and implementation of a policy of technical progress.

II. Program of an Upsurge of Public Well-Being and Social Development

Comrades,

The draft guidelines provide for a system of measures pertaining to an unswerving rise in the well-being and cultural living standard of the people.

Particular attention will be paid in the new 5-year plan to an increase in the wages of those employed in agriculture, particularly members of the agricultural associations. The wage fund of the workmen of the agricultural cooperative organizations from public farming will increase 25-28 percent, and their average pay will increase 14-15 percent.

Together with this the income of members of the agricultural associations and citizens with private livestock will increase considerably thanks to the purchase of animal husbandry products from them at the new procurement prices introduced as of 1986.

The average wage of workers and employees will increase 3.5-5 percent.

It is necessary to increase the dependence of the population's main sources of monetary income -- the wages, pay and bonuses of workers, employees and agricultural workmen -- and their amounts on the contribution of the labor collective and each worker to an increase in production and its increased efficiency and also on labor productivity growth. Particular attention will be paid to the selection and establishment of the optimum system of indicators characterizing end work results and to the elaboration and application of the simplest and most comprehensible forms of pay and stimulation.

The draft guidelines plan the implementation of a number of additional measures aimed at an increase in the population's real income.

The pensions and benefits granted the population will increase by roughly 680 million tugriks in the 5-year plan.

The population's monetary income will increase 20-23 percent, and its purchasing power will rise. In coordination with this there will be an intensification of the demand for an improvement in the provision of the population with consumer goods.

In 1990 the retail commodity turnover of state and cooperative trade will have increased by approximately 850 million tugriks compared with 1985 and market allocations of consumer goods will have increased 21-24 percent, including an increase of no less than 23 percent in foodstuffs.

Retail prices will remain stable, in the main, under the 5-year plan. The proportion of alcoholic beverages in total commodity turnover will decline, as also will the volume of their per capita sales.

The structure of consumption will improve thanks to an increase in the sale of such types of foodstuffs as milk, eggs, potatoes, vegetables, fruit and berries and also ready-to-wear clothing, furniture and consumer durables.

The practice of deciding questions of the bulk, structure, outward appearance, style and dimensions of manufactured consumer goods in accordance with the requests of the trading organizations and business contracts concluded at wholesale fairs will be expanded.

A set of social measures is envisaged aimed at an improvement in the working people's living and work conditions, primarily at an expansion of the sphere of cultural, medical and consumer service, an improvement in the population's housing conditions, satisfaction of its effective demand, improvement of the public education system and the harmonious development of the personality.

In the 5-year period the resources allocated to finance socio-cultural measures will increase 22-26 percent or by approximately 2.2 billion tugriks compared with the preceding 5-year plan.

In the program of social development a significant place is assigned measures for an improvement in consumer service and the development of housing-municipal services. Some 5 billion tugriks of capital investments will be channeled to this end.

The material-technical base of consumer service will be reinforced. In the aymag and somon centers it is planned to build over 30 consumer service centers and outlets. Measures will be implemented also to strengthen the physical plant of the dry cleaning and laundry centers and household appliance and radio-television repair workshops.

Apartment houses with a living space of 1.1-1.2 million square meters will be commissioned with the resources of state and cooperative organizations, which is 30 percent more than in the preceding 5-year period. However, the need for housing will remain high.

The working people's initiative pertaining to the construction of individual and cooperative housing will be supported in every possible way, and measures to grant them preferential credit and sell them construction materials and also assistance to be rendered them on the part of their enterprises and farms will be expanded.

It is planned building thanks to state capital investments kindergarten and nurseries with 17,000-19,000 beds. Together with this there will be an expansion of the construction and organization of kindergartens and nurseries through the powers and resources of the enterprises, industrial organizations and establishments themselves. Measures will be implemented consistently to extend the operating hours of the children's preschool establishments attached to large-scale industrial enterprises and industrial organizations.

It is planned to build and commission more than 140 general schools for 60,000-62,000 students, of these more than 90 schools for almost 30,000 students in the countryside. The conditions will thereby be created for a lowering of the shift-work factor of classes in the general schools. The construction of residence schools will continue.

It is planned to increase the number of places in vocational-technical schools 14 percent and beds in the residence schools 17 percent, and strengthen the material-technical facilities of the secondary specialized educational institutions.

It is intended to commission educational blocks of the higher educational institutions for 2,300 students and student hostels with 1,800 beds.

A set task is that of reinforcing the physical plant of health care, improving the degree of provision with personnel and expanding the types of medical services. More than 60 facilities, in particular, medical posts, intersomon children's hospitals, maternity homes, infectious disease and specialized hospitals and clinics, will be commissioned in the new 5-year plan.

There will be an intensification of measures pertaining to the preventive treatment and clinical examination of the whole population and the expansion of specialized medical assistance for the rural population. Together with the reorganization of individual intersomon hospitals into clinics and the expansion of their servicing sphere there will be an improvement in the degree of provision of the medical establishments in the somons and inhabited localities with pediatricians, gynaecologists and dentists. The aymag hospitals, state specialized centers, specialized clinics and clinical hospitals will expand medical services to the rural workers at their place of residence. It is intended to increase the number of comprehensively equipped mobile out-patient clinics.

Particular attention will be paid to protection of the health of mother and child, and it is planned to draw up and begin the implementation of a special program in this sphere. The number of beds in children's specialized hospitals will increase 15-17 percent and the number of pediatricians 30 percent. There will be an increase in the number of children's medical sections and an expansion of the maternity departments in the aymags and cities.

Together with an improvement in the operation of sports installations there will be an expansion of the construction of sports halls and sports grounds of simplified design through the powers and resources of state, cooperative and social organizations. The construction of a sports complex in Ulaanbaatar will begin.

For the purpose of satisfying the population's growing intellectual requirements it is planned to reinforce the physical plant of the cultural-educational establishments, expand the sphere of their services, particularly in the countryside, and also improve the degree of provision with qualified personnel.

A set task is that of improving work on protection of the environment and expanding measures to safeguard water and forest resources and flora and fauna and protect the soil and pasture.

III. Improvement of Management and Planning and Their Enhanced Efficiency

Comrades,

A most important condition of the successful realization of the program of the country's economic and social development is improvement of the management and planning of the economy and their enhanced efficiency.

A considerable amount of work is being performed in this field in accordance with the decisions of the 18th MPRP Congress.

The elaboration of a master outline of the development and location of the productive forces and the target programs of the development of individual sectors and also guidelines of the country's economic and social development for a 10-year period is contributing appreciably to an improvement in the substantiation of the state plan.

The 5-year plans have been coordinated with the Soviet Union and the other CEMA countries, and cooperation with them in the planning sphere is expanding.

The party Central Committee and the Council of Ministers adopted a decree on questions of a refinement of the management and planning of agriculture. In accordance with this decree there has been a reduction in the number of plan indicators of agricultural production established for the aymags and farms. Such indicators as the volumes of the basic types of procured resources, capital investment and construction-installation work quotas, and stocks of machinery, equipment and other material resources allocated in centralized fashion are now determined for them. Together with a broadening of the economic rights of the state and cooperative agricultural organizations and the aymag and city executive administrations of the hurals of peoples' deputies, measures are being implemented on this basis aimed at an increase in their responsibility for the end results of production and at securing the conditions for independent work.

The procedure of the payment to the state and cooperative agricultural organizations of 50-200 percent additions to the procurement prices for animal husbandry and farming products supplied for state procurements and aymag needs over and above the average annual level of the preceding 5 years has been established also.

Measures have been adopted to improve the coordination of the activity of clients, contractors and the supply organizations and also to enhance the responsibility of the ministry, department and aymag and city executive committee clients for ensuring that the plan incorporate construction projects in respect of which the conditions have been created for their complete provision with planning-estimates documents, materials, equipment and financing.

Considering the need for the full reflection of expenditure and costs in prices, a reduction in the number of planned loss-making organizations and stabilization of the profitability level, a reform of wholesale prices was conducted, which has contributed to securing the conditions for strengthening financial autonomy in all sectors of the economy and increased economic stimulation.

An economic experiment is being conducted in organizations of the Ministry of Light and Food Industries and the Ministry of Communications systems to perfect planning and the economic mechanism. The experiment is aimed at the elaboration and implementation of measures to perfect the system of planning and the managerial and organizational structure of production, enhance the role of economic stimuli and levers, and ensure the labor collectives' active participation in the control of production activity.

According to the results of the first year of the experiment, it can be seen that a movement for the adoption of taut plans, the mobilization of potential, economies in the staff units and the wage fund, the economical consumption of intermediate products and raw material, an increase in the quality of the products and services and the better use of fixed capital has become widespread in organizations of the said ministries. Introduction of the brigade form of the organization of labor and pay is broadening. In the Ministry of Light and Food Industries system the labor productivity growth rate in 1985 was 1.2 points higher than the average annual growth rate in the preceding 4 years, production costs declined 1.2 percent compared with 1984 and the annual plan for accumulation was overfulfilled by more than 4 percent. The enterprises and industrial organizations operated rhythmically, contract discipline rose and output quality improved.

In the Ministry of Communications system, annual income increased 8.6 percent compared with the preceding year, and the 1985 plan targets for profit and labor productivity were appreciably overfulfilled. For these ministries as a whole, deductions from profit into the state budget and the enterprise and industrial organization stimulation funds increased considerably.

However, the work of perfecting the system of control and management methods is being performed within a limited framework, and the comprehensive nature of the current experiment has not been secured.

Rebuilding the system of control and management methods is becoming an important political issue requiring an improvement not only of economic relations but also social relations as a whole. Comrade J. Batmonh observed in the report delivered at this congress that shortcomings in management are holding back the realization of considerable potential in the increase of production and an improvement in service, and determined the specific directions of future work.

The decisions pertaining to an improvement in the system of the planning of agriculture and stimulation of the growth of its products will be implemented consistently. It is planned to establish a procedure of issuing to executive personnel, specialists, farmers and stockbreeders of the agricultural associations and state farms wages, extra payments and bonuses in close connection with the end results of production, an increase in the manufacture of products and their improved quality.

It is intended in the Eighth 5-Year Plan to transfer enterprises and organizations of industry, construction, transportation, communications and consumer service to the new methods of management. The interaction of all components of the economic mechanism will be checked out and developed, economic levers and methods will be perfected and the sphere of their application will be gradually expanded in the course of this work.

Questions demanding special attention arise at the time of introduction of new methods of management and planning.

Proceeding from the need to solve central problems of the country's economic and social development and ensure the proportional and balanced nature of the economy, we will have to strengthen and perfect centrally planned leadership of the economy and tighten plan discipline.

Measures will be adopted to perfect the system of plan indicators in the direction of an increase of the interest of ministries, departments, aymags, cities, enterprises and industrial organizations in the adoption of intensive plan quotas and also to extensively employ economic quotas in planning and ensure the stability of the established quotas throughout the 5-year plan.

Clearly, a change merely in the system of plan indicators and methods of evaluating their fulfillment will not accomplish the task of ensuring the independence of the industrial organizations, broadening their rights, or enhancing their responsibility. Measures will be stepped up in this connection together with the corresponding changes to current normative-economic enactments to perfect the style and methods of work and develop creative activity aimed at the bold and managerially enterprising solutions of urgent questions.

It is planned to expand the introduction of financial autonomy and on-farm accounting and step up the demand for paying one's own way and increasing savings. In addition, considerable attention will be paid to the creation of the financial, price and other economic-legal conditions for the exercise of enterprise and industrial organizational activity on a financially autonomous basis.

It is envisaged to increase economic stimulation for the achievement of high end results of production. The possibility of the creation of economic incentive funds based on stable norms will be expanded and measures will be adopted to develop production and solve questions of social development through to the resources of these funds.

It is essential to strive for the active and creative participation of the labor collectives in the elaboration and implementation of plans of economic and social development. It is planned in this connection to support and develop in every possible way the brigade form of the organization and stimulate labor.

Economic relations between enterprises and organizations will be perfected. It is planned to consistently introduce the procedure of the concluding business contracts between organizations with economic relations and also the evaluating and stimulating their activity with regard for the fulfillment of contractual commitments.

An inalienable part of an improvement in the system of management is refinement of the organizational structure and strengthening of sectoral management. Questions connected with the development of the specialization and cooperation of production, an improvement in the coordination of the activity of interconnected enterprises and farms, a cutback in and reduction of the costs of the managerial machinery, the removal of parallelism and the bringing closer of management to production will be studied and resolved. It is important to elaborate and apply measures pertaining to the creation of territorial and scientific-production complexes.

Measures are planned for the precise delineation of the functions, rights and duties of the management authorities on all levels. It would be advisable here to adhere to a direction ensuring that the efforts and attention of the ministries and departments be geared to the pursuit of a policy of long-term development of the sector, production, scientific and technological progress, the determination and realization of efficient paths for the fuller satisfaction of social requirements. Enterprises and industrial organizations should exercise their activity independently to the fullest extent and be responsible for their results.

On the other hand, the policy of enhancing the role and responsibility of the local management authorities in deciding questions of the region's economic and social development, the mobilization of potential and improving service of, and food supply to, the population will be pursued consistently.

The problem of a refinement of management methods demands an increase in the erudition and organizing capabilities of the personnel at all levels and an improvement in their style of work. It is first of all necessary to pay serious attention to an increase in economic learning and the development of economic thinking in managers and engineering-technical personnel. On the other hand, high demands will be made of personnel. It is important to render those who are boldly tackling urgent problems in the interests of society, skillfully organizing the collective and working decisively, fruitfully and enterprisingly all-around support. At the same time it is necessary to create an atmosphere of intolerance of passive and unenterprising personalities and those who fail to display a creative approach to questions whose solution is demanded by the interests of society and the collective.

IV. Foreign Economic Relations

Comrades,

Economic and scientific and technological cooperation with the Soviet Union and other socialist community countries will be further developed in accordance with the strategic line aimed at all-around rapprochement with them based on the decisions of the top-level CEMA Economic Conference and the long-term cooperation programs coordinated with the fraternal countries.

The Long-Term Program of economic and scientific and technological cooperation between the MPR and the USSR for the period ending in the year 2000 will be implemented consistently, which will be of decisive significance for our country's accelerated development.

Our country will participate actively in the realization of the comprehensive program of the CEMA Countries' scientific and technological progress up to the year 2000.

On the basis of cooperation with the CEMA countries it is envisaged in the new 5-year plan to implement wide-ranging measures aimed at the buildup of our country's production and export potential, the introduction of scientific and technological achievements, and an acceleration of social development.

The construction, expansion, and modernization of hundreds of important national economic facilities will be carried out with the technical-economic assistance of the Soviet Union. A considerable proportion of the construction-installation operations scheduled for the 5-year plan will be performed by the powers of the Soviet construction organizations operating in the MPR. The numbers of Mongolian workers working in these Soviet construction organizations will increase almost threefold. This will not only increase the efficiency of cooperation but also render real assistance in the national training of highly skilled construction workers.

The creation and development of joint enterprises and farms with individual CEMA countries is making an important contribution to the development of the country's industrial and export potential. Subsequently, together with the expansion of the activity and increased efficiency of the joint enterprises and farms, importance will be attached to direct relations along sectoral ministry, enterprise and industrial organization lines.

The country's foreign trade turnover in 1986-1990 will increase by 1.1. billion rubles compared with the preceding 5-year plan, including an increase of more than 940 million rubles in commodity turnover with the Soviet Union. Qualitative changes are occurring in the structure of our country's exports. In connection with the development of the ore-mining industry and the increased capacity for the processing of agricultural raw material there will be an increase in the proportion of finished industrial products in the country's exports. Measures are envisaged for increasing export resources and enhancing the quality of export commodities in accordance with foreign market demand and also for improving the use of imported commodities and substantiation of the requests for supplies thereof.

Economic, scientific and technological and cultural cooperation with other countries will develop on a mutually profitable and equal basis. Our country's economic and social development program is one of peaceful creation. The MPR will continue to consistently support the progressive forces' struggle for the preservation and strengthening of general peace.

The MPR wholly supports the constructive proposals put forward by the Soviet Union on questions of vital importance for the fate of peace and aimed at delivering mankind from nuclear, chemical and other types of weapons of mass annihilation by the year 2000, a halt to nuclear testing and a relaxation of tension on all continents, including Asia.

Comrade Delegates,

The tasks outlined by the draft guidelines of the country's economic and social development for the Eighth 5-Year Plan fully correspond to the fundamental interests of the Mongolian people and the program aims of the MPRP pertaining to a rise in public well-being based on the achievement of new frontiers in the buildup of the country's economic, scientific and technological and intellectual potential.

We express the firm belief that all party, state and industrial organizations and the labor collectives will exert the maximum efforts for implementation of the historic decisions of the 19th party congress.

(Comrade D. Sodnom's report was received by the congress' delegates and guests with great attention and was repeatedly interrupted by stormy, prolonged applause)

OW311451 Ulaanbaatar MONTSAME in Russian 1415 GMT 29 May 86

["Full text" of speech by B. Altangerel, member of the MPRP Central Committee Politburo and first secretary of the Ulaanbaatar City Party Committee, at the 19th MPRP Congress -- date not given]

[Text] Ulaanbaatar, 29 May (MONTSAME) -- Comrade delegates! Our party, in greeting its scheduled 19th Congress, has become even stronger organizationally; the unity of the party and the people has strengthened and the enterprising nature and creative character of the party work have been enhanced.

We have listened with great attention to the report of Comrade J. Batmonh, general secretary of the MPRP Central Committee, "The MPRP Central Committee account to the 19th MPRP Congress and future goals," and the report by J. Sodnom, chairman of the MPR Council of Ministers, on the main directions in the MPR's economic and social development for the period of 1986-90, and the Ulaanbaatar party organization delegation fully approves the conclusions drawn in them and the goals put forward.

Comrade J. Batmonh's report reflects a profound objective evaluation of the huge, multifaceted organizational and ideological work unfolded by the party's Central Committee during the period in question. The successes are a result of the tireless work of Communists and all the working people of our country. The ways and methods in overcoming shortcomings and solving actual problems, and the goals of socialist construction and the foreign policies of the party are clearly defined.

The decisions of the 8th and subsequent MPRP Central Committee plenums, which examined most important social and economic problems and put forward actual goals for raising the effectiveness of production and quality, mobilizing reserves, improving the methods and style of work, improving discipline, order, and self-discipline, have served as an important stimulus for achieving the goals of the 18th Party congress. They have received the full support of Communists and the working people.

The strengthening of the principles of collective leadership, the principled approach in working out and solving pressing problems of party life and national development, and the continued perfection of organizational and ideological work of the party are reflected in the activities of the party's Central Committee. All this contributes to raising the work enthusiasm of the local and primary party organizations, to perfecting the forms and methods of leadership in economy and culture, and to enhancing the influence and authority of the party in workers' collectives.

During the period under discussion, the authority of our party has risen in the international arena. Our friendship and cooperation with the Soviet Union and with other socialist countries have been enriched with new forms and contents. The party has successively fought for strengthening the unity of the communist movement and ensuring the peace and security of peoples.

Communists and all the working people of our country highly value the results of the successive meetings between comrade J. Batmonh and M.S. Gorbachev and the signing of the long-term program of economic, scientific, and technical cooperation between the MPR and the USSR for the period up to the year 2000, and view them as the beginning of a new stage in the development of friendship and cooperation between the Mongolian and Soviet peoples.

The recent 27th CPSU Congress was an event of world and historic significance. It enriched the treasury of Marxist-Leninist theory, and put forward the concept of accelerated development of Soviet society. It reflected the urgent need to achieve a radical change as demanded by life, determined the main principles for the creation of a universal system of security, and showed new prospects for the development of all mankind. The historic resolutions of the congress, its new, businesslike, and creative approach to problems, the very rich experience of the CPSU, and its devotion to Bolshevik traditions are an inspiring example and an inexhaustible source of knowledge and study for Mongolian Communists.

The MPRP, and the workers of our country, while summing up the results of every stage of development, deserve to be proud of their friendship with the great Soviet people -- a reliable guarantee of freedom, happiness, development, and prosperity for our country -- and consider it their sacred duty to preserve and strengthen this friendship.

From the bottom of our hearts we greet the CPSU delegation which is taking part in the work of our congress and express our sincere gratitude to V.I. Vorotnikov, member of the CPSU Central Committee Politburo and Chairman of the RSFSR Council of Ministers, for his interesting address; to the CPSU and its Central Committee led by Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbachev; to our tried friends, the Soviet people, for their solicitude and attention to the welfare of the Mongolian people and the development and prosperity of our country's capital.

Comrades: The capital's party organization has mobilized and guided the efforts of communists and workers in the consistent implementation of the resolutions of the 18th party congress and of the 8th and subsequent plenums of the party Central Committee. As a result, we overfulfilled the seventh 5-year plan for industrial production by more than 200 million tugriks. The average annual growth of production reached 8.4 percent. Labor productivity in various branches of industry increased by 13.1 percent; gross output increased by 49 percent. Expenses per 1 tugrik of commercial production dropped by 2.9 percent; the output of first-quality goods reached almost 30 percent of the total certified output.

During the Seventh 5-Year Plan period the state provided twice as much investment capital as in the preceding one for the development of Ulaanbaatar city. A considerable part of these funds were used for raising the technical level and the reconstruction of industrial enterprises, for the building of the city's socialist infrastructure, and the expansion of its service facilities. Housing construction is being expanded. Construction of a trolleybus line and a depot has begun. There has been an improvement in the supply of fuel, electricity, heat, and drinking water; sources and capacities have been increased and operations have become more reliable. Ulaanbaatar now accounts for almost half of the country's total industrial output and its Gross National Product.

On the basis of ideas expounded at the congress, where a creative and fighting spirit prevails, we reach the conclusion that if we had managed to fully mobilize production and technical, scientific, and cultural potential of the capital, made better use of the human factor, and reorganized work methods, our successes would have been considerably greater.

The capital's party organization will continue to focus its attention on ensuring the conscious participation of the workers in the implementation of party congress resolutions, and on actively instilling in all city residents such qualities as political orientation, professional skills, proper attitude toward work, collectivism, and proper behavior and observance of socialist morality in everyday life.

In the current 5-year plan period, it will be necessary to switch over to comprehensive planning and ensure the best possible matching of branch and territorial principles on the basis of the draft of the social-economic development of Ulaanbaatar up to the year 2000, which is an integral part of the general scheme of the development and relocation of productive forces, in addition to amending and concretizing the city's general development plan for the purpose of implementing the new law on local Hurals of people's deputies.

Comprehensive territorial planning will contribute to the proportional development of the city's economy, improvement of the social infrastructure, the best possible combination of civil engineering and service branches, better balancing of the labor force, funds, and materials, and efficient solving of social problems in the city.

This means transition to a qualitatively new level of management of economic and cultural construction in the city, and provides to city party and state organizations new opportunities for improving land use in the city, protecting the environment, increasing the effective use of investment capital, using labor resources efficiently, and limiting and controlling population growth in Ulaanbaatar.

In the long term, it is important that the planning organizations, ministries, and administrations adhere to the line of refraining from creating new educational establishments, enterprises, and economic organizations that have no direct relation to the capital.

Local party and state organizations must ensure strict observance of passport regulations, strictly implement the established rules on population migration, and sharply increase control over their implementation.

We are now building a great deal. Ensuring efficient and effective use of completed projects is a no less important problem. And it is precisely here that we have a considerable amount of unused reserves. It is necessary to create conditions for improving the use of completed projects and taking appropriate measures in good time.

It is necessary to increase the responsibility of branch ministries which follow a single technological policy in providing enterprises with the necessary raw and other materials; in strengthening the material base of enterprises; in ensuring services, especially in the repair and operation of housing; in the training of qualified workers; and in the supply of machines and mechanisms. It is necessary to create, in Ulaanbaatar, regional organizations for city improvement and the use and repair of housing, and to increase their facilities in a planned manner.

Comrade J. Batmonh's report indicates the need to raise the role of science in socialist construction, in strengthening its ties with social production practice, and in introducing scientific and technical accomplishments and discoveries by integrating science and production. That is the demand of the day.

It is necessary to outline a national program for the development of science with clearly defined priorities in view of our country's limited manpower and material resources in order to implement the long-term comprehensive program of scientific-technical progress. It is necessary to pay attention to the introduction of scientific-technical accomplishments in the national economy, the intensive use of the human factor, and the rebuilding of equipment, technology, and methods of work and human thinking.

At the same time it is necessary to increase the role and yield of social sciences, improve the scientific-technical level of research, systematically and more deeply study the level of development of society and its basic characteristics; and to publicize the practical experiences gained in socialist construction in our country. In the field of raising the effectiveness of party work, especially ideological work, and improving its forms and methods, great attention must be paid to sociological research and the application of its results in practice.

It is necessary to raise the quality and the effectiveness of instructors' work, study more thoroughly the questions connected with the growth of the party organization itself, and perfect the methods and style of ideological and organizational work. We have to do away with excessive document writing in our work and the frequent yet scarcely effective checks and inspections.

It must be said that some central organs negligently examine problems submitted by lower organs before taking decisions on them. At times their help does not go beyond giving general instructions.

Local officials await effective help in their work; mainly they strive to improve their work on the basis of specific answers to problems they cannot solve themselves. There still are instances of checks and inspections being limited to defining defects without giving effective aid or adopting appropriate decisions for solving problems that have arisen.

It is necessary to eliminate decisively defects existing in work methods in the field of instruction, control, and verification, and give effective aid to the local officials in solving the acute issues worrying the masses, and to eliminate defects in mastering new work and ways of thinking.

The currently-operating economic mechanisms, norms, and legislation have been worked out for the purpose of using extensive methods of development. Quite understandably they orient the activities of organizations and collectives along extensive methods of economic management. Life however is changing quickly, the scale of economic activity is expanding, the role of intensive factors is growing and many new problems are arising. Naturally skill is required for working in a new fashion.

Because of imperfections in the economic mechanism, the new potential capable of producing maximum yield is used unsatisfactorily. At times work does not go beyond empty talk, some cadres, instead of solving problems on their own, push them aside, and sometimes the same problem is often examined by many departments, resulting in red tape. Most elementary problems that can be solved on the spot are criticized repeatedly. There are frequent instances where the replies from central organs are awaited to solve insignificant problems.

The major economic experiments conducted during the last few years at light and food industry enterprises and communications establishments have made it possible to considerably raise the activity and independence of the workers' collectives and the quality of work. The activity and the independence of working people have risen, efficiency and quality indicators have improved, the potential for solving the social problems of workers' collectives has grown, and the human factor has become more effective in places where the experiments have been conducted. At the same time, life insistently demands examination of results of the experiments and a fundamental study and effective solving of problems arising during the experiments. Most of the opportunities, that, with skillful mobilization of internal reserves and effective use of newly-created potential, could have produced better results than those achieved, have been missed because of our obsolete methods and style of work. For this reason, the party Central Committee recently set for the party, state, and public organizations the task of rebuilding their style and methods of work, paying special attention to increasing independence, responsibility, and initiative; tightening discipline, order, and organization everywhere; and perfecting planning, management, and the economic mechanism. This party line is of great significance for the socioeconomic development of the country.

The recently held [word indistinct] city party conference noted the successes of Ulaanbaatar communists and working people in constructive work. At the same time there was critical, busineslike, and frank discussion of tasks ahead and the need for qualitative changes in work in conformity with the requirements levied by the party. Ways for eliminating defects and omissions were indicated and future tasks were outlined.

The implementation of the tasks outlined by Comrade J. Batmonh at the city party conference is now the main focus of the activities of all the party, state, and public organizations and all the communists and working people of our capital. Active work has now been undertaken for rebuilding the style and methods of the work of the city and rayon party committees, the primary party organization, and state and public organizations; for fulfilling plans with quality indicators and improving city facilities and services for the population.

The industrial enterprises, construction organizations, and establishments serving the city overfulfilled this year's 5-month plan for gross production by 46 million tugriks; successfully fulfilled the plan for commissioning projects; carried out comprehensive improvements at 20 important projects; and saved 8 million tugriks' worth of raw and other materials, fuel, and power.

Strictly observing the party instructions that Ulaanbaatar city must have prestige and serve as an example in all respects, the party organization, the communists, and the working people of the capital will, through selfless labor, make a worthy contribution to the implementation of the party congress resolutions and will strive for more and more new labor successes.

JOINT DUTY OFFICER HOLDS MEETING WITH PRESS

[Text] Our side's joint duty officer to the MAC met with reporters at Panmunjom. The officer met with reporters at noon on 11 July in connection with the UN Force's Refusal to accept the letter of the DPRK minister of people's armed forces, the first deputy of the KPA supreme commander which is addressed to the commander in chief of the UN Forces in South Korea.

He said: At a meeting of the joint duty officers held at noon today, we handed over to the joint duty officer of the UN Forces side a second letter to William J. Livsey, commander in chief of the UN Forces in South Korea, from the minister of people's armed forces of the DPRK, the first deputy of the KPA supreme commander, after the reminding him first of the fact that the letter from our side is a reply to the reply letter of the commander in chief of the UN Forces dated 21 June.

The joint duty officer of the UN Forces duly received our letter and then opened it, saying he was authorized to do so. However, he preposterously said he could not receive the letter, which he had already opened with his own hands, babbling about a matter concerning a signature. The joint duty officer of our side sternly held the opposite party accountable for this rude deed. After noting that it was not only unreasonable, but also unjust to say that he would not receive the letter which he had already taken and opened, babbling about the name of the sender, he said: In terms of names, the KPA supreme commander or his first deputy are the same.

Your side already received on 17 June the first letter signed by the first deputy of the KPA supreme commander, just like the current one, which is signed by exactly the same person. Now, you took the first letter and you refuse to receive it this time. It is an act that runs counter to reason and propriety.

As for the name of the sender of the letter, the letter can be sent in the name of the Supreme Commander or sometimes in the name of his first deputy, depending on the occasion. Also, the issue of in whose name the letter is signed is a problem to be decided by us, not a problem to be decided or intervened in by your side receiving the letter. Frankly speaking, our side can call your side's commander the commander of the U.S. Eighth Army or commander of the ROK-U.S. Combined Forces [hanmi yonhapkun]. However, we went so far as to show your side our generosity in taking into consideration your views regarding the use of his official title. This notwithstanding, your act of refusing to accept the letter which you took here today and which you had even opened not only runs against international norms, but is also an impudent act of impropriety.

If you side does not receive the letter here, we will take measures to deliver the letter in different ways. As has alreadyt been related to the UN Forces side on 11 July, we will convey the text of this letter to the commander in chief of the UN Forces in South Korea by way of airing it via broadcasts. I now make it clear that we will make known to the world your side's rude act of refusing to receive the letter.

After stating the above, our side's joint duty officer noted that this fact alone has once again clearly laid bare the bellicose stand of the U.S. side, which is not interested in easing tension on the Korean peninsula, in ensuring peace there, or in resuming the North-South dialogue, and that it is pursuing confrontation and war only.

In the meantime, the joint duty officer of our side mentioned the fact that the South Korean side also refused yesterday to receive the second letter from the DPRK minister of people's armed forces to the South Korean defense minister. Saying that on 10 July the South Korean side had already been served notice to receive the letter through the senior secretary of the UN Forces side, he noted: By refusing nevertheless to receive the letter at the scheduled time on 11 July, the South Korean side set for the first time a not-so-good precedent, unprecdented in North-South relations. He then noted that it is ludicrous that the South Korean ruling clique, which even refuses to receive the letter, should babble about dialogue and peace.

MAC SPOKESMAN'S STATEMENT ON U.S. RESPONSE

SK130240 Pyongyang Domestic Service in in Korean 2300 GMT 12 Jul 86

[Text] The spokesman of our side to the MAC issued the following statement in connection with the fact that the U.S. side, in turning down our proposal for holding talks among military authorities, is insisting, without justification, on discussing the problem of alleviating tension within the framework of the MAC. The statement by the spokesman of our side to the MAC is as follows:

The KPA Supreme Command has put forward an epochal proposal that talks among mililtary authorities be held to discuss pressing military steps needed in alleviating the acute tension prevailing on the Korean peninsula. Our new peace initiative on holding talks among the military authorities is a most reasonable and realistic proposal to prevent the danger of a thermonuclear war on the Korean peninsula and to open a breakthrough for the alleviation of tension there. This peace proposal calls for holding talks among those responsible authorities who hold real power in military affairs and who are capable of practically resolving the problem of alleviating tension. Great expectations and concern have been aroused among our people as well as the peace-loving people of the world.

To our regret, however, the U.S. side, turning down our proposal holding talks among military authorities, is insistiung that the problem of alleviating tension be discussed within the framework of the MAC. This insistence is incorrect, lacking feasibility or reasonableness [Tadangsong]. The authority and functons of the MAC are so limited that it cannot discuss or resolve general problems for the alleviation of tension on the Korean peninsula. As its name denotes, the MAC is an organ supervising the implementation of the Armistice Agreement.

Paragraph 24 stipulates that the general mission of the MAC shall be to supervise the implementation of the Armistice Agreement and to settle through negotiotions any violatons of this Armistic Agreement. The Armistice Agreement provides no stipulations concerning important problems awaiting resolution in the military field, including the problem of reducing the number of troops and armanents that we want to discuss at talks among military authorities. It is evident, therefore, that the MAC cannot deal with problems which are outside its authority. At present, the MAC cannot discuss or resolve even problems related to the implementation of the Armistice Agreement much less problems outside its authority.

The U.S. side in June 1957 unilaterally abrogated paragraph 13-D of the Armistice Agreement, which prohibits the introduction from outside the Korean peninsula of operational equipment and weapons, and it has continuously introduced nuclear weapons and other new-type weapons. At meeting of the MAC, our side has repeatedly demanded the withdrawl of all new-type weapons and operational equipment illegally shipped into South Korea.

However, the U.S. side has refused to comply with this demand and has gone so far as to oppose the discussion of this problem at the MAC.

The fact that the MAC cannot smoothly discuss and resolve the problem of alleviating tension can be vividly proven by recent experiences. Through the MAC we have advanced a series of proposals to create conditions favorable for the alleviation of tension and dialogue. However, none of them has yet been realized. When our side advanced the proposal on restricting military exercises at the 431st MAC meeting on 6 December 1985, the U.S. side avoided discussion of the basic problem, claiming that it has nothing to do with the Armistice Agreement, and brought up the problem of prior notification for military exercises and an invitation for their observation in a bid to counter our proposal. At the same time, the U.S. side is laying artificial obstacles in connection with problems which can be easily settled at the MAC.

In an effort to prevent an armed conflict in the conference site area in Panmunjom and to find a clue to the alleviation of tension, we advanced a proposal on guaranteeing safety in the Headquarters area of the MAC and withdrawing arms from there at the 429th meeting on 29 July 1985, and a proposal on taking perfect measures for guaranteeing safety in the Joint Security Area in Panmunjom at the 432d MAC meeting on 3 January 1986. Our overtures proposed that the two sides equally reduce the number of their security guards in the Headquarters area of the MAC in Panmunjom, which is only 2 square km, and in the Joint Security Area in Panmunjom, which is less than 8,000 meters in diameter, restrict their arms in these areas, and remove their respective military facilities and guard posts from these areas. They called for taking these most basic and simplest measures.

However, the U.S. side turned down our proposals, claiming that it could not accept them in accordance with instructions from its higher organ and insisting that a joint check should be conducted first. This shows that due to the unwarranted attitude and stand of the U.S. side, the MAC is unable to resolve even simple problems that it could easily settle within its authority. Such being the situation, it is all too evident that our peace proposal containing questions outside the framework of the MAC cannot be resolved through the MAC. We cannot but express great doubt and surprise over the fact that the U.S. side is insisting on discussing the problem of alleviating tension on the entire Korean peninsula at the MAC, which has failed to resolve even the problem of taking measures on safety in such a confined area as the conference site area in Panmunjom.

Speaking of the so-called proposal for alleviating tension that the U.S. side is insisting on discussing at the MAC, its limitedness, unreasonableness, and unfeasibility were laid bare to the world long ago. This notwithstanding, the U.S. side is insisting that this problem should be discussed first at the MAC. This is nothing but a trick to shirk its responsibility for refusing to hold talks among military authorities and to mislead world public opinion by making it appear as if it were interested in the alleviation of tension.

Furthermore, we can hardly understand why the South Korean military authorities, which are not a signatory to the Armistice Agreement and have no say at the MAC, are calling for discussion of the problem of alleviating tension at the MAC. All facts vividly show the justness and reasonableness of our proposal that those who hold real military power meet at one place and discuss the problem of alleviating tension. If the U.S. side truly desires the alleviation of tension and peace, it must positively respond to our proposal on holding talks among the military authorities.

MINISTRY OF PEOPLE'S ARMED FORCES ON TALKS

[Text] The Ministry of People's Armed Forces held a press conference on 14 July at the People's Palace of Culture for domestic and foreign reporters. A portrait of the great leader of our party and people Comrade Kim Il-song was respectfully placed in front of the press conference site. The press conference was participated in by reporters of NODONG SINMUN, KCNA, Korean Central Broadcasting Committee, MINJU CHOSON, KPA newspaper, and other publication and news media organizations in Pyongyang, by foreign reporters, and by publication functionaries of many foreign embassies in our country. At the press conference, KPA Major General Yi Hong-sun spoke.

In connection with the unjust stand of the United States and the South Korean side which refused the proposal for talks between military authorities put forth by the KPA Supreme Command to alleviate tension on the Korean peninsula, and in connection with the unjust act which they committed by refusing to accept even the letters of our side on 11 July, he released a statement of the spokesman of the Ministry of People's Armed Forces.

In addition, with regard to the refusal, with various excuses, of our new peace proposal for talks between military authorities by the United States and the South Korean side and to the systematic hindrance of our delivery of letters, he fully disclosed the truth with specific information. The statement of the spokesman of the Ministry of People's Armed Forces of the DPRK:

Our sincere efforts for paving a way to detente and peace in our country are now facing a grave challenge due to the United States and the South Korean side. As has been already reported, after they adopted a negative stand toward our first letters for holding the talks between military authorities, the U.S. forces in South Korea and the South Korean side have even refused to accept our second letters for taking practical measures for detente and peace.

This act of the U.S. Forces and the South Korean side, which runs counter to the ideal of peace and common sense, is now arousing great indignation and deep concern by all Korean people and the peace-loving people of the world. In the name of all Korean people, we sternly denounce the act of the United States and the South Korean side opposing dialogue and peace.

Our new peace proposal for talks between military authorities is a rational and opportune measure to eliminate the danger of war on the Korean peninsula, eliminate the state of tense military confrontation, and urgently provide an atmosphere for dialogue, which is now in a state of suspension, by all means. If the question of practically halting military exercises and military buildup on the Korean peninsula, the question of reducing troops and armaments, and the question of honoring the Korean Armistice Agreement as demanded by its original content are settled through the realization of our proposal for talks between military authorities, this will undoubtedly turn the situation on the Korean peninsula, which is approaching a dangerous phase of war, toward the direction of detente and peace. This will create a favorable atmosphere for North-South dialogue as well.

This is precisely why our new peace proposal has earned active support and welcome from the entire nation and the peace-loving peoples of the world.

Nevertheless, from the beginning, the United States and the South Korean side have adopted extremely irresponsible and insincere attitudes toward our constructive peace initiative. When it received our first telephone message for the acceptance of our letter of a new peace proposal, the U.S. Forces side made various excuses in vainly attempting not to accept the letter. However, when it had become unable to retreat anymore before our patient efforts and generous stand, it helplessly accepted the letter after 10 days.

The wrong attitude of the U.S. Forces and the South Korean side toward our proposal for talks between military authorities has been more clearly disclosed by the reply letters they sent. The U.S. Forces side has extremely distorted the fact, as if our proposal were a matter pertaining only to North-South relations. Moreover, it said that the question of alleviating military tension should be discussed by the Military Armistice Commission, thus avoiding talks between military authorities.

Meanwhile, the South Korean side has defamed our peace proposal as a propaganda-oriented one, and has adopted a stand of refusing talks of military authorities in the same voice as the U.S. Forces.

The remarks by the U.S. Forces aide that our proposal was a matter only pertaining to North-South relations are shameless sophism to shirk the responsibility as the ringleader of aggravating the situation through the illegal occupation of South Korea and to refuse to discuss the question of alleviating tension and the question of peace. The remarks by the U.S. forces and the South Korean side that the question of alleviating military tension should be discussed at the Military Armistice Commission are also a wanton assertion which is entirely unrealistic and illegal.

It is a stark reality, undeniable even by the U.S. side, that the existing MAC has not been able to solve even basic problems involving the guarantee of security in the joint security area in Panmunjon, let alone problems concerning the observation of the armistice agreement in our country. The preposterous assertions by the United States and the South Korean side are nothing but a poor excuse for refusing talks among military authorities.

The United States and the persons in authority in South Korea have brazen-facedly schemed to avoid talks among military authorities at all costs. In the end, they committed the outrageous act of refusing to even accept our second letter this time. By doggedly refusing to accept our proposal for holding talks among military authorities, the United States and the ruling clique in South Korea have laid bare for the whole world that their babbling about detente [wanhwa], dialogue, and peace is false and that they pursue only confrontation and war.

The act of the United States and the persons in authority in South Korea who have refused our new peace proposal has once again clearly demonstrated that the advertisement about the so-called threat of southward invasion which they brandish is only a falsehood and that it is nothing but a production of a machination designed to justify the occupation of South Korea by the U.S. imperialist troops for aggression and to bring the internal crisis under control by intimidating the South Korean people.

All facts show as clearly as day that what the United States and the persons in authority in South Korea want now are not detente and peace, but confrontation and war. Not once has the United States hoped for peace on the Korean peninsula. The U.S. imperialists have consistently pursued aggression and war in South Korea and their extremely adventurous military acts have in recent years reached a graver stage.

While systematically increasing the means of war of various descriptions -- including nuclear weapons -- and troops, and endlessly conducting provocative military exercises in South Korea, the U.S. imperialists are even attempting a preemptive strike against us. Not only is the South Korean ruling clique strengthening antinational war maneuvers following the U.S. imperialists' reckless policy of confrontation while crying anticommunism and the annihilation of communism, they are also trying to bring the current political crisis under control by harshly suppresing South Korean youths, students, and people who call for the anti-U.S. cause for independence and the antifascist cause for democratization, linking them to us.

The U.S. imperialists and the persons in authority in South Korea, however, are making a miscalculation. They should know that those who challenge the people's desires and aspirations while whetting swords of aggression and war will consequently find themselves in traps of their own making. We will never allow the rivers and mountains of our fatherland to be turned into a nuclear battlefield by outside forces, not will we allow our people to be made the victims of the aggressors' policy of confrontation.

The United States should abandon its policy of aggression and war in South Korea without condition and immediately withdraw from South Korea, taking along all of the aggressive forces, including U.S. troops and nuclear weapons, all after abandoning its bellicose stand of opposing both tripartite talks and talks among military authorities.

The persons in authority in South Korea should abandon their dispositions of running dogs bent on living indefinitely in the bosom of the United States as well as their criminal maneuvers for controntation and war through which they are attempting, in union with outside forces, to plunge their fellow countrymen into the calamities of war. The dark clouds of war should be eliminated from the Korean peninsula and a new phase of peace should be unfolded without fail. Today's grave development in our country urgently requires that all of the country to join in the pan-national struggle to eliminate the danger of war and to defend peace in unity.

We express our firm conviction that the people of all walks of life in South Korea, including workers, peasants, youths, students, and intellectuals, will actively join, together with compatriots and brethren in the northern half, in a patriotic struggle to resolutely oppose the aggressive and traitorous maneuvers to provoke a war of a U.S. imperialists and the South Korean ruling clique and in a patriotic struggle, to turn our country into a nuclear-free zone of peace. Peace in Korea is immediately linked to peace in Asia and the world. We express our expectations that all governments and people in all countries in Asia and the world will pay deep attention to the grave situation created on the Korean peninsula and will continuously lend firm solidarity with our people in their just struggle for detente and peace.

["Text" of Condolence Message from KPRP Central Committee and PRK Council of State Chairman Heng Samrin -- date not given]

[Text] On behalf of the KPRP Central Committee, the Council of State, the National Assembly, the Council of Ministers, and the KUFNCD National Council, we would like to express deepest condolences over the demise of Comrade Le Duan, general secretary of the CPV Central Committee. In his nearly 60 years of activities, Comrade Le Duan was always loyal to Marxism-Leninism and the interests of his fatherland and people. He sacrificed all his life to the cause of national liberation, national reunification, and the socialist construction in Vietnam.

A splendid and loyal son of the Vietnamese People, a brilliant student of the late President Ho Chi Minh, an outstanding leader of the Vietnamese people, and an architect of the special ties of militant solidarity between Cambodia, Vietnam, and Laos, Comrade Le Duan made noble contributions to the revolutionary cause of the Cambodian people. He was a valiant fighter of the international communist and workers movment and of the national liberation movement. His glorious name will be deeply engraved in the hearts of the entire Cambodian people.

Comrade Le Duan's demise is a great loss not only for the fraternal party and people of Vietnam but also for the Cambodian party and people who have always considered him their closest and best comrade-in-arms as well as for the international communist and workers movement.

We are all determined to follow the noble heroism of Comrade Le Duan, carry forward his noble revolutionary ideal, and incessantly develop and strengthen the special ties of immortal militant solidarity among Cambodia, Vietnam, and Laos.

We would like to express our deepest condolences to the CPV Central Committee, the Council of State, the National Assembly, the Council of Ministers, the Vietnam Fatherland Front, the Armed Forces, and the entire fraternal people of Vietnam as well as the bereaved family.

The delegation, led by Heng Samrin, general secretary of the People's Revolutionary Party of Kampuchea Central Committee and State Council president, included all Politburo members of the party Central Committee.

Its wreath bore the inscription: Profound Grief Over the Death of Comrade Le Duan, General Secretary of the Communist Party of Vietnam Central Committee, a Great Friend of the Kampuchean people."

President Heng Samrin wrote in the mourners book: We share profound grief with the party, the State Council, the Front and the people of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam, over the death of comrade Le Duan, general secretary of the Communist Party of Vietnam."

Comrade Le Duan was a splendid son of the Vietnamese people, a brilliant student of President Ho Chi Minh, an outstanding leader of the Vietnamese people, who sacrificed all his life for the cause of the national liberation, the national reunification and the national construction on the path of socialism who was a valiant fighter of the international communinsts and workers movement, and an architect of the special ties of militant solidarity among Kampuchea, Vietnam and Laos.

He made noble contributions to the revolution of the three Indochinese people.

His merits will remain for ever. We follow his bright examples to further consolidate the special ties of solidarity among Kampuchea, Vietnam and Laos."

In the same morning delegations of the National Assembly, the government, the National Council of the United Front for Construction and Defense of the Kampuchean Fatherland, the Kampuchea-Vietnam Friendship Association, and various ministeries also paid last respects to Comrade Le Duan.

Bou Thang Message

BK140230 Phnom Penh Domestic Service in Cambodian 1200 GMT 12 Jul 86

[Text] After learning the sad news that Comrade Le Duan, general secretary of the CPV Central Committee, had passed away on 10 July at the age of 79 following a serious illness, Comrade Bou Thang, minister of national defense of the PRK, sent a message of condolence to Comrade General Van Tieng Dong, minister of national defense of the SRV. The message reads:

Dear Comrade General: I am very distressed to learn of the demise of Comrade Le Duan, general secretary of the CPV Central Committee, on 10 July 1986. Comrade General Secretary Le Duan was a prominent figure of the CPV and a valiant fighter of the international communist movement, of the workers movement, and of the national liberation movement in the world. He fought tirelessly and braved all hardships against the French colonialists and dedicated his entire life to the struggle against the U.S. imperialists in the cause of national liberation, national reunification, and socialist construction in Vietnam. Although he has left this world, his rare and precious example of heroism is engraved forever in our hearts, for he made great moral and ideological contributions to the liberation of the entire Cambodian people from the genocidal regime.

On behalf of the central Army party committee and all combatants of the KPRAF and in my own name, I would like to express deepest condolences to the party, government, people, and People's Army of Vietnam and the bereaved family over the loss of an outstanding leader as we consider this loss as one for our own.

Dear comrade minister, please accept our sincerest regards.

PRACHEACHON on 'Great Loss'

BK140339 Phnom Penh Domestic Service in Cambodian 0430 GMT 12 Jul 86

[PRACHEACHON editorial: "Eternally Lament the Loss of Comrade Le Duan, Close Friend of the Cambodian People"]

[Text] The entire Cambodian party, army, and people boundlessly lament the loss of Comrade Le Duan, general secretary of the CPV Central Committee, outstanding disciple of President Ho Chi Minh, famous leader of the Communist Party and people of Vietnam, valiant fighter of the international communist and workers movements and national liberation movement, and closest friend of the Cambodian people. The death of Comrade Le Duan is a great loss for the Vietnamese Communist Party and people and a loss for all communists, the working class, and the progressive people of the world. Our entire party, army, and people express most grievous condolences to the fraternal Vietnamese Communists and people over this great loss.

Born out of a worker's family, well known for his sense of patriotism, for nearly 60 years very much active in revolutionary endeavors, unquestionably loyal to Marxism-Leninism, and ever-fighting for the interest of the fatherland and people, Comrade Le Duan sacrificed all his life for national liberation, national reunification, and socialist construction in Vietnam. A famnous and close student of the late President Ho Chi Minh, Comrade Le Duan was a theorecitician ful of lively and all-sided skills in ingeunity. He was generous and humble.

During the decades as the paramount leader of the party and nation, Comrade Le Duan together with the Political Bureau and Central Committee of the party mapped out a line of independence and self-reliance while attracting assistance and solidarity from foreign countries, wisely leading the people and the revolutionary armed forces throughout the country toward achieving victory over the U.S. aggressors and lackeys, liberating the south, reunifying the fatherland, and setting the whole country on the road toward socialism. Afterwards, they mastered socialist collectivism in the political, economic, cultural, and social fields and won two wars of national defense against the Chinese expansionist-hegemonists and lackeys at the southwestern and northern borders, firmly protecting the socialist Vietnamese fatherland.

United around the party Central Committee with Comrade Le Duan as the paramount leader, the fraternal Vietnamese people recorded important achievements in economic and cultural restoration, modification, and development. Comrade Le Duan made great contributions to the founding and strengthening of the special militant solidarity among Cambodia, Vietnam, and Laos as he stressed in his speech at the Fifth KPRP Congress in October 1985 that the CPV pledges to make every effort to shoulder the bonds of great solidarity and friendship among Vietnam, Cambodia, and Laos and to fulfill its noble internationalist obligations toward the fraternal Cambodian and Lao peoples in the cause of national reconstruction and defense.

Comrade Le Duan also made important contributions to strengthening and expanding comprehensive cooperation and fraternal friendship between Vietnam and the Soviet Union and other countries in the socialist community in preserving the authenticity and purity of Marxism-Leninism and enhancing militant solidarity within the international communist and workers movement and national liberation movement. Comrade Le Duan achieved his noble mission and left us forever. But his image and his ideal live forever in the glorious cause of the entire Vietnamese party and people. His hopes and aspirations to build a prosperous socialist Vietnam and to give the people a plentiful and happy existence will certainly come true.

On this most sorrowful day, the CPV Central Committee, the National Assembly, the Council of State, the Council of Ministers, and the Presidium of the VFF Central Committee appealed to the entire Vietnamese people and army to transform this deep grief into revolutionary activities, to enhance solidarity and unity under the Central Committee of the party, to spare no efforts to successfully build socialism, to firmly defend the Socialist Vietnamese fatherland, and with the entire party to make best preparations for the Sixth Party Congress.

Deeply lamenting the loss of Comrade Le Duan, our party, army, and people express most sincere condolences to the fraternal Vietnamese Communist Party, government, and people and the bereaved family. Our people firmly believe that under the correct leadership of the CPV, the Vietnamese people will surely turn this current national grief into revolutionary will and achieve more and greater successes in the reconstruction and defense of the socialist Vietnamese fatherland.

Longing for and engraving forever in their hearts all the great and far-reaching services of Comrade Le Duan and the Vietnamese Government and people, the entire Cambodian party, army, and people pledge to spare no efforts to further strengthen and expand the militant solidarity and comprehensive fraternal cooperation between Cambodia and Vietnam and among Cambodia, Vietnam, and Laos in the revolutionary cause of the peoples of the three countries and the revolutionary cause of each country.

[11 July communique on the death of Le Duan, CPV Central Committee general secretary, issued by the LPRP Central Committee, the SPC, and the LPDR Council of Ministers]

[Text] The LPRP Central Committee, the SPC, and the LPDR Council of Ministers wish, with utmost grief, to inform cadres, party members, combatants, and people of all ethnic minorities throughout the country that Comrade Le Duan, general secretary of the CPV Central Committee, passed away at 0330 on 10 July in Hanoi. Comrade Le Duan was an outstanding leader of the CPV, a beloved son and valuable nephew of the Vietnamese people, a loyal successor of the great cause of President Ho Chi Minh, a staunch fighter of the international communist and workers' movement and the national independence movement, and a tireless activist for peace, friendship, and international cooperation.

Comrade Le Duan was a great and most intimate friend of the Lao people. He always paid attention to nurturing, strengthening, and building the great friendship, special solidarity, militant alliance, and all-round cooperation between the two parties, states, and peoples of Vietnam and Laos.

The death of Comrade Le Duan is a heavy loss for the Vietnamese party, state, and people; for the communists of various socialist countries; and for all progressive mankind throughout the world. It is also a great loss for the Lao communists and people. Comrade Le Duan's name and fame will always remain in the minds of the Lao people of all ethnic minorities forever.

Leaders' Condolence Message

[11 July message of condolences on the death of Le Duan, CPV Central Committee general secretary, from Kaysone Phomvihan, general secretary of the LPRP Central Committee and chairman of the LPDR Council of Ministers, and Souphanouvong, president of the LPDR and chairman of the SPC and of the Central Committee of the Lao Front for National Construction, to the CPV Central Committee, the National Assembly, the Council of State, the Council of Ministers, and the Presidium of the VFF Central Committee]

[Text] Beloved comrades, we are extremely grieved after learning of the passing away of Comrade Le Duan, general secretary of the CPV Central Committee. On behalf of the LPRP Central Committee, the SPC, the Council of Ministers of the LPDR, the Central Committee of the Lao Front for National Construction, and all Lao people, we express profound sorrow to the comrades, communists, and fraternal people of Vietnam.

Comrade Le Duan was an outstanding leader of the CPV; a valuable son of the Vietnamese people; a successor who was loyal to the great President Ho Chi Minh's honorable and glorious revolutionary cause; a staunch and persistent fighter of the international communist movement, the workers' movement, and the national independence movement; and a determined activist for peace and friendship among nations. For nearly 6 decades Comrade Le Duan dedicated his pysical and spiritual strength, intelligence, knowledge, and capability to the national liberation cause, unifying the country and leading all of Vietnam toward socialism. Throughout his revolutionary activities, regardless of the conditions of the difficult and hard struggle, during which he was arrested and imprisoned by the enemy and during the period of shouldering the party's lofty tasks, Comrade Le Duan always clearly demonstrated his staunch revolutionary perseverance and absolute loyalty to the party and the interests of the nation and people.

Comrade Le Duan was a leader of the CPV, who made a very important contribution to outlining the strategy and policy of the Vietnamese revolution and, together with the CPV Central Committee, led the Vietnamese people to win great victories of profound historic and epochal significance in the resistance against the French colonialists, the U.S. imperialists, and the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists. Comrade Le Duan was a creative theoretician. He always resolutely struggled to preserve the purity of Marxism-Leninism and strengthen the might of socialism and the militant solidarity of various revolutionary forces in the world.

Comrade Le Duan was a great, intimate, and loyal friend of the Lao people. He always paid close attention to supporting and assisting the Lao revolution and made very important contributions to nurturing, strengthening, and building the special solidarity and all-round cooperation between Laos and Vietnam. This has become a fundamental factor deciding the successes of Laos, Vietnam, and Cambodia. The Lao party, state, and people will remember forever the great meritorious deeds of Comrade Le Duan.

While mourning the death of Comrade Le Duan, on behalf of the LPRP Central Committee, the SPC, the LPDR Council of Ministers, the Central Committee of the Lao Front for National Construction, and all Lao people, we express grief and share the sorrow with comrades and the family and relatives of the deceased Comrade Le Duan. We are convinced that the fraternal Vietnamese people, under the wise and clear-sighted leadership of the CPV, will translate this sorrow into material strength in order to jointly advance to win new, greater victories in the cause of building socialism and defending their beloved socialist fatherland and to score outstanding achievements to welcome the forthcoming sixth CPV Congress.

PASASON Editorial

BK121310 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 0000 GMT 12 Jul 86

[12 July PASASON editorial: "With Loving Affection and Gratitude to Comrade Le Duan, the Lao People Share deep Sorrow with the Fraternal Vietnamese People"]

[Text] On 11 July the LPRP Central Committee, the SPC, and the LPDR Council of Ministers, with the utmost sorrow, announced to cadres, party members, combatants, and peoples of all ethnic groups throughout the country that Comrade Le Duan, general secretary of the CPV Central Committee, passed away at 0330 on 10 July in Hanoi. The Lao people of all ethnic groups are overwhelmingly grieved over the loss of Comrade Le Duan, a most intimate friend who performed numerous meritorious deeds for the Lao communists, our country's revolutionary cause, and our people. With this boundless loving affection, the Lao people of all ethnic groups wish to share the grief with the fraternal Vietnamese people and the family of Comrade Le Duan.

Comrade Le Duan was an outstanding student of President Ho Chi Minh, an eminent leader of the CPV, a beloved son and valuable nephew of the Vietnamese people, a loyal successor of President Ho Chi Minh's great cause, a staunch fighter of the international communist and workers movement and the national independence movement, and a tireless activist for peace, friendship, and international cooperation.

To our country, Comrade Le Duan was a great and most intimate friend of the Lao people. He always paid attention to nurturing and building the great friendship, special solidarity, militant alliance, and all-round cooperation between the two parties, states, and peoples of Vietnam and Laos. Therefore, the death of Comrade Le Duan is not only a heavy loss to the Vietnamese party, state, and people, but also a great loss to the Lao communists and people, to the communists of various socialist countries, and to all progressive mankind throughout the world.

During his life, particularly over the nearly 60 years of his revolutionary activities, with absolute loyalty to Marxism-Leninism and to the interests of the country and people, Comrade Le Duan devoted all his life to the national liberation cause, from the days he joined a revolutionary youth association in 1928 and from the days he became a member of the first group of members of the Indochinese Communist Party in 1930 until 1957 when the party Central Committee appointed him to lead the party's overall tasks side by side with President Ho Chi Minh.

Despite the fact that he was twice arrested by the enemy and tortured at various prisons in Hanoi, Son La, and Con Dao, nothing could shake his fighting spirit. While in prison, he led struggles against cruel imprisonment systems and organized political study. After being released, Comrade Le Duan continued to persistently lead the struggle.

At the third party congress in 1960, representing the party Central Committee, Comrade Le Duan read a political report outlining two revolutionary strategies -- that is, to carry out the socialist revolution in northern Vietnam, fulfill the popular national-democratic revolution in the south, coordinate the revolutions in both parts of the country with the overall objective of fulfilling the national liberation and carrying out the unification of the fatherland. At this congress Comrade Le Duan was elected to the party Central Committee Political Bureau, assuming the posts of first secretary of the former Vietnam Workers Party or the present Communist Party of Vietnam and secretary of the Military Commission of the party Central Committee.

Throughout his 15 years in these posts, Comrade Le Duan displayed his ability. Together with other comrade leaders of Vietnam, he fulfilled the cause of liberating the southern part of Vietnam, unifying the Vietnamese fatherland, and advancing toward socialism.

In the past 10 years alone, uniting around the party Central Committee led by Comrade Le Duan, the Vietnamese people and army won victories in defending the country and heroically resisting the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists and their lackeys at the southwestern and northern borders and accomplished important successes in restoring, transforming, and developing the economy and in developing the culture in accordance with socialism.

Comrade Le Duan, general secretary of the CPV Central Committee, and a great and most intimate friend of the Lao people, has left us. Nevertheless, his fame and name will remain in the hearts and minds of the Lao people of all ethnic groups forever.

At this moment of grief, let our party, army, and people strengthen our unity and the great friendship, special solidarity, militant alliance, and all-round cooperation with the SRV and other fraternal socialist countries, heighten vigilance, resolutely smash all the enemy's sabotage and divisive schemes, turn the grief into revolutionary action, positively carry out and fulfill all party and state tasks, and score new, greater achievements to welcome the forthcoming fourth LPRP congress and the sixth CPV congress.

Wreath-Laying at SRV Embassy

BK140352 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 1400 GMT 13 Jul 86

[Text] On the morning of 13 July, our party and state leaders led by Comrade Souphanouvong, member of the LPRP Central Committee Political Bureau, president of the LPDR, and chairman of the SPC of the LPDR, laid a wreath at the SRV Embassy in Vientiane to mourn for Comrade Le Duan, general secretary of the CPV Central Committee, who passed away in Hanoi at 0330 on 10 July 1986.

Accompanying Comrade Souphanouvong to lay the wreath to mourn for Comrade Le Duan were Comrade Nouhak Phoumsavan, member of the party Central Committee Political Bureau and first vice chairman of the Council of Ministers; Comrade Phoun Sipaseut, member of the party Central Committee Political Bureau, vice chairman of the Council of Ministers, and foreign affairs minister; Comrade General Sisavat Keobounphan, secretary of the party Central Committee and of the party committee of Vientiane municipality; Comrade Maichantan Sengmani, secretary of the party Central Committee and chairman of the party Central Committee's Party and State Control Commission; Comrade Boualang Boualapha, member of the party Central Committee and vice chairman of the Lao Front for National Construction Central Committee; comrade members and alternate members of the party Central Committee; ministers and deputy ministers; and several members of the SPC Standing Committee.

At the wreath-laying ceremony, after our party and state leaders bowed their heads to express their profound and fond memory and affection before the portrait of Ccmrade Le Duan as a Vietnamese mounring song was played, Comrade Souphanouvong wrote in and signed the gilded condolence book, saying: The Lao party, state, and people of all tribes are boundlessly grieved by the passing away of Comrade Le Duan, an outstanding disciple of the great President Ho Chi Minh, an outstanding leader and creative theoretician of the CPV, and a determined and steadfast fighter for communist ideals, who was absolutely loyal to the interests of the country and people. Comrade Le Duan was the gallant combatant of the international communist and workers movements and the movements struggling for national independence. He always fought resolutely to safeguard the purity of Marxism-Leninism and to strengthen the cohesion of the socialist community and the militant solidarity of all revolutionary and peace forces in the world.

The condolence message reaffirmed that Comrade Le Duan always enchanced the pure proletarian spirit and was concerned with, followed, and assisted the Lao revolution at all times. The comrade paid attention to educating and guiding the entire Vietnamese party and people resolutely to defend and strengthen the special solidarity, militant alliance, and all-round cooperation between Laos and Vietnam, which were diligently nurtured by the great President Ho Chi Minh. The name of Comrade Le Duan will remain in the hearts of the Lao communists and people of all tribes.

On the same day, representatives of various organizations, ministries, equivalent organizations, and of various groups of people in Vientiane municipality also laid wreaths to mourn for Comrade Le Duan at the SRV Embassy. The SRV Embassy has organized a ceremony to lay wreaths to mourn for Comrade Le Duan for 2 days on 13 and 14 July 1986 to allow Lao party cadres and members, combatants, and people, together with overseas Vietnamese living in Vientiane and members of the diplomatic corps in Laos, to express their condolence on the death of Comrade Le Duan.

PASASON REBUTS PRASONG STATEMENT ON RADIO

[PASASON 4 July commentary: "The Thai Ultrarightist Reactionaries' Groundless Allegations Against Other People Can No Longer Fool Anyone"]

[Text] The THAI RAT newspaper on 21 June carried a statement by Prasong Sunsiri, secretary general of the National Security Council [NSC] of Thailand, alleging that Lao authorities had set up a Clandestine radio station in Paris to make slanderous propaganda campaigns against Thailand on the problem of the three villages and to convince Lao refugees and Thai residents in France that the 17 provinces in the northeast belong to Laos.

The statement of this high-ranking Thai official is just one of the cunning and deceitful tricks by the Thai ultrarightist reactionaries and the NSC with Prasong Sunsiri himself as chief representative to slander Laos and divert world public attention from the crimes and notorious acts committed by the Thai ultrarightist reactionaries against Laos. The Thai people, like people in this region and all over the world, are fully aware that the Lao people have never created any problems for the Thai people or used force to aggress against and intrude into Thailand, especially since the founding of the LPDR more than 10 years ago.

The current deterioration of the fine, time-honored relations between the peoples of Thailand and Laos has been caused by the ultrarightist reactionaries in the Thai ruling circles. Over the past 10 years, the ultrarightist reactionaries in the Thai ruling circles have committed provocative acts against the LPDR along the Lao-Thai border. They have constantly attempted to sabotage and obstruct the advancement of the Lao revolution in many fields -- political, economic, and military -- including sending spies and commandos into Laos to create disturbances among the Lao people and using Thai regular forces to nibble at certain localities in Laos. For example, they declared that an estimated 270 categories of goods would not be allowed to be exported to Laos. Prasong Sunsiri himself personally announced this.

With regard to the problem of the three Lao villages in Sayaboury Province, everyone knows full well that it is the Thai side that has refused to discuss the reasonable proposal advanced by the Lao side to normalize Thai-Lao relations. While refusing to discuss the sincere proposal of the Lao side and paying no heed to the demand of the Lao people and local residents of the three Lao villages in Sayaboury Province, the Thai ultrarightist reactionaries have continued to wage slanderous campaigns and to systematically make groundless allegations against Laos, including creating some slanderous incidents and throwing the blame on the Lao side. For example, they recently created the Ban Huai Pong village incident and subsequently accused the Lao side of committing it, including sending a protest note to the United Nations. Justice, however, always wins over injustice.

The allegations against Laos by the Thai ultrarightist reactionaries, either with the pretext of the Ban Huai Pong village farce or any other groundless campaigns, have only served to expose more clearly their dirty nature, thus further isolating them from the international community and eroding the Thai people's faith in them. This can learly be seen from a seminar on the Thai-Lao relations held at the mass communications department's meeting hall at Chulalongkon University on 21 June 1986 and from the ASEAN foreign ministers conference in Manila in late June, where the Thai ultrarightist reactionaries' dream of drawing support for their slanderous campaigns against Laos was shamefully dashed.

Reality shows that the groundless allegation against Laos made by Prasong Sunsiri in the THAI RAT newspaper on 21 June will not only fail to fool world public opinion but will further tarnish the image of Thailand and isolate it from the world community.

The allegation made by the secretary general of the NSC against Laos is not only an act of slander against Laos, but also a direct encroachment on the sovereignty of France which is an independent country and which will never allow any foreigners to use its territory to threaten a third country. The NSC and Thailand -- a temporary member of the UN Security Council -- must be fully aware of this fact. As for the 17 provinces in the northeast, the border boundary between the two countries was clearly fixed in the historic maps jointly prepared by France and Siam in 1904 and 1907. The LPDR is also a UN member and always respects international law. Particularly in dealing with the Kimgdom of Thailand, the Lao side always firmly adheres to the contents and spirit of the joint Lao-Thai and Thai-Lao communiques signed between the governments of the two countries in 1979. The Thai and Lao peoples, who have maintained fine brotherly relations since ancient times have no other urgent desire but to normalize Thai-Lao and Lao-Thai relations as soon as possible in the interest of the two countries and of genuine peace, stability, and cooperation in Southeast Asia.

SITTHI COMMENTS ON LE DUAN, SRV POLICY

BK131243 Bangkok XING XIAN RIBAD in Chinese 13 Jul 86 p 4

[Text] According to Deputy Prime Minister and Foreign Minister Air Chief Marshal [ACM] Sitthi Sawetsila, Thailand will not send delegates to attend Vietnamese Communist Party General Secretary Le Duan's funeral because Vietnam has only invited socialist countries.

ACM Sitthi also pointed out that Vietnam's economy is facing difficulties and hardships. According to news reports, Hanoi has allowed the provinces to send only five representatives each to attend the funeral.

Asked who will take over Le Duan's post, ACM Sitthi said that it is meaningless to talk about it now. We will know only when Vietnam opens its party congress in November and announces its policy. However, Le Duan's death will have no effect on Vietnam's policy because the old members of its highest decision-making bodies remain. The death of one person has no effect.

ACM Sitthi said that if Vietnam stubbornly persists in its warlike policy, its economy will worsen and will be difficult to cure. China is developing quickly and its economy has taken a step forward. I told Nguyen Co Thach that other countries have developed a great deal already. Vietnam was engaged in war for 40 years, but if it does not change its policy there is no way it can develop its shattered homeland.

FOREIGN MINISTRY VIEWS SRV LEADERSHIP CHANGES

[Excerpt] The Foreign Ministry yesterday expressed the hope that the new leadership in Hanoi will be "more flexible and pragmatic" for the benefit of the Vietnamese people and the region as a whole.

Commenting on the death of Vietnamese Communist Party chief Le Duan, Foreign Ministry Spokesman Sawanit Khongsiri, said that Thailand hopes the new leadership will be less doctrinaire and less strict adherence to orthodox Marxist-Leninist theory.

Diplomats here say the death of Le Duan, a durable revolutionary who fought in three wars and led that country's ruling Communist Party for 17 years, could open the way for party reformists and changes in Hanoi's policies toward the West and the eight-year-old Kampuchean conflict.

But Secretary General of the National Security Council Prasong Sunsiri said yesterday that he believed Le Duan's death would not lead to any change in Hanoi's policy toward Thailand and the Kampuchean conflict.

Prasong told reporters that Vietnam might adjust some of its strategy "but you should not expect them to soften their stand." [passage omitted]

THAILAND TO ISSUE NO STATEMENT ON LE DUAN DEATH

BK110349 Hong Kong AFP in English 0342 GMT 11 Jul 86

[Text] Bangkok, July 11 (AFP) -- Thailand will issue no official statement concerning the death Thursday of Vietnamese Communist Party Secretary General Le Duan since this is only done for heads of state or government, Deputy Foreign Minister Arun Phanuphong said Friday. He added that flags in Thailand would not be flown at half mast to mark Mr. Le Duan's death since this also was done only for heads of state or government.

He said the Thai Government had not been informed officially of the death of Mr. Le Duan, who died at the age of 79 after a long illness.

"If the Vietnamese Government sends a letter to us informing of his death then we'll send our condolence to them," Mr. Arun said. But "there will be no issuance of public statement concerning his death," Mr Arun said.

He added: "We knew long time ago that Le Duan had been suffering from illness and we had been following the news closely when he went to Moscow to receive treatment."

Mr. Arun said: "What we have to do now is to watch for the expected reshuffle among Vietnamese leades during the party congress scheduled late this year."

SITTHI CITES SRV LEADERS ON CAMBODIA

BK031723 Hong Kong AFP in English 1720 GMT 3 Jul 86

[Text] Bangkok, July 3 (AFP) -- Vietnamese leaders have said that they would not discuss peace proposals in Cambodia until non-communist countries in Southeast Asia considered Indochinese offers, Thai Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila said Thursday.

Mr Sitthi was briefing reporters after a meeting here with visiting United Nations Under-Secretary General for Political Affairs Rafiudin Ahmed, who arrived here Wednesday after a two-day visit to Hanoi where he met Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach.

Mr. Ahmed was told in Hanoi that if the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) "does not listen to the Indochinese proposals," then "Vietnam will not consider the eight-point proposal" for a political settlement put forward by the Cambodian resistance in April, Mr. Sitthi said.

The Cambodian resistance proposal, supported by ASEAN and China, provides for a two-phase withdrawal of the estimated 150,000-troops Hanoi maintains in Cambodia, and the formation of a national reconciliation government in Phnom Penh with the pro-Hanoi regime joining the tri-partite resistance.

Vietnam had earlier this year proposed that domestic aspects of the Cambodian issue be discussed by the four Cambodian factions while international aspects should be discussed with other countries. Both sides in the nearly eight-year-old Cambodian conflict have rejected offers from the other.

Mr. Sitthi said he told Mr. Ahmed the United States and the Soviet Union should reach a compromise to put an end to regional conflicts such as the Cambodian war.

"If they reached a compromise, then Vietnam would run short of war supplies and would stop its aggression," Mr. Sitthi added.

Mr. Ahmed later met Deputy Foreign Minister Arun Phanuphong who blamed Hanoi's absence of flexibility, Foreign Ministry Spokesman Sawanit Kongsiri told reporters.

The U.N. official was due to meet Thailand's chief security official Prasong Sunsiri, secretary general of the National Security Council, Friday before leaving for Jakarta Saturday.

MINISTER ON EFFORTS TO COUNTER JENKINS BILL

BK090715 Bangkok BANGKOK WORLD in English 9 Jul 86 p 1

[Text] Industry Minister Chirayu Itsarangkun na Ayutthaya yesterday called for joint efforts by the Government, the private sector and the mass media to fight against the possible revival of the U.S. Jenkins Bill which goes back to Congress next month.

The bill was approved in the U.S. House of Representatives on December 3 last year with a 255-161 vote after winning Senate approval with a 60-39 vote on November 13. Both margins were less than a two-thirds majority needed to override a veto by President Ronald Reagan.

Reagan vetoed the protectionist legislation on December 18.

The bill goes back to Congress on August 6 and it needs two-thirds of the votes to override the presidential veto.

The bill was designed to curb textile, apparel and shoe imports into the United States. Thailand's textile industry will be seriously affected if the presidential veto is overridden and the bill becomes law.

Dr Chirayu said there is now a strong support for the bill. However, the Reagan Administration fully realises that approval of the bill would damage the country in the long run, and it had tried hard to prevent its passage, he said.

The minister said from now until August 6 Thailand and other countries to be affected by the Jenkins Bill must send signals and various reasons to the U.S. about the adverse effects of the bill on developing countries.

As for Thailand, the Foreign Ministry, Commerce Ministry and himself are doing everything to block the bill's passage, Dr Chirayu said, adding that the mass media should take part in the campaign.

When a team of U.S. Congressmen and high-level authorities arrives next week, Thailand will again explain to them the bill's adverse effects on our textile industry, he said.

PRASONG SCORES AMNESTY ON TORTURE CHARGES

BK090155 Bangkok BANGKOK POST in English 9 Jul 86 p 3

[Text] The Secretary-General of the National Security Council [NSC] hit out strongly at Amnesty International for "trying to intervene in Thai internal affairs and in matters concerned with Thailand's sovereign authority."

He also said that, in making groundless charges about Thai soldiers "torturing" three Khmers, Amnesty was "also trying to take the side of robbers instead of protecting the human rights of those who have been robbed and injured by them." In arresting the three Khmers, the Thai soldiers were protecting the lives and property of Khmer refugees.

Commenting on a statement issued by Amnesty claiming "confirmation" of charges it previously made that three Khmers had been "tortured" by Task Force 80 officials on March 21, Squadron Leader Prasong Sunsiri warned Amnesty that since formal charges had been filed against these persons for robbery and assault it was interfering in Thailand's process of justice.

He recalled that when Amnesty first made the allegation he ordered an investigation which produced documentary evidence and personal witnesses testifying that no such "torture" had taken place and, in the face of such testimony, the three Khmers signed a confession. As a result, he issued public denial of Amnesty's allegation.

He noted that the three Khmers -- Nuon Sareuan, Kaev Mayoura and Kaev Channa -- had illegally entered Thailand and led to Khao I-Dang camp a gang of criminals who robbed the refugees there on March 5 and 18. Thai soldiers arrested them on March 21, after they had killed one soldier and wounded several soldiers and refugees.

The investigation, according to Sqdr Ldr Prasong, showed that the conduct of the Thai soldiers in the case had been correct, proper and within their legal authority and responsibility, and they had not been involved in any torture.

The duty of the Thai soldiers is to maintain peace in Khao I-Dang camp and provide security for the refugees, the NSC chief pointed out. "This is for the benefit of the Khmer refugees in whose human rights Amnesty should be more interested than in trying to protect from justice the three Khmers who had been robbing the refugees."

He explained: "The three Khmers have violated Thai law and they are being given a proper trial. They have confessed when confronted with witnesses and documentary testimony. The Thai Government has the sovereign right and authority to bring this case to court. The law has to be administered equally to everyone.

"Amnesty has no right or authority whatsoever to interfere in this or other court cases. It has tried to supersede the power of Thai courts by trying to obtain, through making all sorts of accusations, the release of some persons already properly convicted of communist and other crimes. We cannot allow such intervention which affects Thailand's national sovereignty.

"All of this can only lead to the conclusion that Amnesty International lacks good intentions towards Thailand.

"It is a fine thing to fight for human rights. While trying to protect persons who have robbed the refugees, Amnesty has forgotten about the human rights of those who have suffered from the violence of these persons. [no closing quotation marks as received]

WIFE OF SRV DIPLOMAT ARRESTED FOR OVERSTAYING

[Text] The wife of a Vietnamese diplomat formerly based in Bangkok has been detained in Yasothon Province for overstaying in Thailand and abusing diplomatic privilege, the BANGKOK POST was told yesterday.

Interior Ministry sources said Mrs Nguyen Thi Taut was arrested by Muang District police on Tuesday morning while she was visiting her parents, who are Dien Bien Phu refugees, in the provincial town.

Mrs Taut's husband, third secretary Do Cam Toung, returned to Vietnam on January 17 last year.

A Foreign Ministry source said Mrs Taut remained in Thailand without notifying authoroities and visited her parents without permission.

The source said Mrs Taut's movements violated regulations and could be regarded as a threat to national security.

The sources said Mrs Taut was arrested because officials thought she may have been a refugee who had escaped from a camp.

After she was arrested Mrs Taut, who immediately presented her diplomatic credentials, was detained in a room at the police station.

The sources, said Mrs Taut, 40, was born in Thailand and repatriated to Vietnam in 1961, but returned in September 1982 when her husband took up his embassy post in Bangkok.

The sources said Vietnamese Ambassador Tran Quang Co met Thep Thewakun, Director-General of the Foreign Ministry's political department, to seek her release but there had so far been no response.

DEFENSE OFFICIAL SAYS SUPREME COMMAND TO STAY

BK101236 Bangkok MATICHON in Thai 9 Jul 86 p 3

[Text] Caretaker Deputy Defense Minister Air Chief Marshal Phaniang Kantarat said that the Supreme Command headquarters will not be dissolved nor would the post of supreme commander be abolished as it was reported earlier, However, he said that the Supreme Command had proposed some improvements to the Defense Ministry, and the proposal was sent back to it for appropriate revision. The Supreme Command has not yet resubmitted the issue to the Defense Ministry.

ACM Phaniang said: "At first, it was proposed that the passage of the law for the improvement, not dissolution, of the Supreme Command headquarters be speeded up. The details of this matter are confidential."

Asked if the improvement was designed to prevent commanders of the armed forces from concurrently serving as the supreme commander, ACM Phaniang said that this matter has not yet been considered but the reduction of the Supreme Command staff was discussed. He noted: "It is unlikely that the present government would be able to pass that law because the parliament was dissolved."

GEN CHAWALIT SAYS NO EARLY MILITARY RESHUFFLE

[Text] The annual military reshuffle will be announced as in previous years, no sooner, Army Commander-in-chief Gen Chawalit Yongchaiyut said this morning.

Gen Chawalit, whose disclosure shot down earlier reports that the list would be released sooner than usual, and nodded his head in affirmation when pressed if this meant that it would be made known according to normal procedures.

The general spoke to reporters after attending a ceremony at the Army Training Command Department marking the opening of a training course for staff officers of the three armed forces.

His disclosure indicated that the new military appointments would be announced, as in most previous years, around September, in time for the posts to be taken up by the start of the new fiscal year on October 1.

In an earlier report, Deputy Defence Minister ACM [Air Chief Marshal] Phaniang Kantarat said the new list might be pushed through before July 20. Other military sources also spoke of an early release of the annual change of guard in the armed forces.

In a separate interview this morning, Supreme Commander Gen Athit Kamlang-ek said the proposed restructuring of the Supreme Command was only under study at this stage, with no changes envisaged for the time being.

He said it was a "turning point" question and any changes would involve amendments of laws.

ARMY RADIO STRESSES NEED FOR WAR STOCKPILE

BK301455 Bangkok First Army Division Radio in Thai 2300 GMT 26 Jun 86

["Sayamanusati" program]

[Excerpts] Good morning, dear listeners. Everyone knows that national security depends on four factors: social power, economic power, military power, and political power. The four are inseparable. They are also complementary. The government, or national leadership, must know in what manner a budgetary structure should be made under a given situation and what should be the line of priorities to follow. [passage omitted]

Under the current situation and present-day developments, we realize to what extent Thailand needs to be prepared and needs to have the war reserve stockpile. Before going into detail on this, this program would like to consider some relatedfactors. First, military relations between the United States and Thailand are long-standing -- they date back more than three decades. Thai-U.S. relations have been strengthened as times go by under the 1954 Manila Treaty and the preceding ones [as heard]. The U.S. and Thai Armed Forces regularly conduct joint exercises. The latest was the 1986 Joint Logistic Exercise on 19-22 May. This is because the United States realizes how serious is the danger facing Thailand.

Secondly, generally speaking the Thai people seem to realize how important Thai-U.S. relations are for the national defense of Thailand. Thailand at present is threatened by about 140,000 Vietnamese soldiers stationed in Cambodia which is on the eastern border of Thailand. This is a factor which prompted Thailand to hold talks with the United States to improve Thailand's military capability for quick retaliation in case of aggression by the other side.

Third, concerning criticism by neighboring countries and several Thai politicians that such a proposal constitutes a violation of Thailand's sovereignty, a threat to Thailand's relations with the communist bloc of countries in Indochina, and can lead to a reactivation of U.S. military bases in Thailand, we must reason from the facts that Thailand is a peaceful country, and that it is currently threatened by Vietnamese soldiers. We also recognize which country is supporting Vietnam. Therefore, we should not pay more attention to the question of relations with neighbors than to the need for Thailand to be prepared to defend itself.

Fourth, the war reserve stockpile, or depot, means a stockpile of weapons and hardware for use during war. As Thailand has no funds to purchase such weapons, we need to let them store weapons in our country that will be available for our use immediately if we need them for whatever reason. It is not easy for a country to manufacture war weapons and market them. If we want to buy such weapons, it will be years before we receive them. Without the reserve stockpile, we would be like a house without a fence or a boat without an oar.

Fifth, many fear that the presence of the war reserve stockpile in Thailand would turn Thailand into a military base. On this, the interior minister made clear that the war depot to be setup by the United States will not turn thailand into a military or missile base or huge weapons depot. It will only enable us to have a reserve of weapons to guarantee our security.

Dear listeners, the various factors outlined show us that the war reserve stockpile, or the Thai-U.S. weapons depot, is of great importance for thailand. Anyway, some people have suggested that such a war stockpile should be under the complete control of the Thai Army and that no American official should be allowed to have any role in it with the exception of experts to train Thai officials on the use of those weapons. Thailand, meanwhile, should be allowed immediate access to those weapons in time of need. The United States should shoulder the burden of maintaining those weapons.

Dear listeners. With all those reasons, we think the program is good if it is feasible. [passge omitted]

Dear listeners, the problem in setting up the war reservce stockpile rests with the United States -- whether their law can be amended to make it possible for the United States to set up a war reserve stockpile in Thailand which has no U.S. military base. It also depends on the Thai Army's budget and several legal aspects. Anyway, we would like to stress here again that our country is a developing country. We already have to carry out several necessary projects to improve the welfare of the people as well as to ensure the country 's survival. It is therefore better for us to be prepared, or take precautionary measures, to cope with threats from outside. That is, we will be free from fear from such threats if we have a war reserve stsockpile in our country.

'FIRST EVER' OIL AGREEMENT SIGNED WITH IRAN

BK200521 Bangkok BANGKOK POST in English 20 Jun 86 p 13

[Text] The Thai Government has entered an agreement to buy 80,000 tons of light crude from Iran under a deal described by Thai officials as unexpectedly attractive.

The accord, which marks the first-ever crude oil deal between Thailand and Iran, was signed earlier this week in Tehran by Thai trade mission leader Danai Dulalampha and Iranian National Oil Corp.

The Thai trade team also signed a "record of meeting" under which Tehran confirmed its intention to buy another 110,000 tons of Thai rice, in addition to 90,000 tons it already bought under the counter-trade pact signed earlier this year.

Foreign Trade Department Deputy Director-General yesterday [as published] said the Thai team was successful in negotiating for attractive terms for the oil deal which was essentially based on the price on Omani light crude.

He said Iranian officials had promised to buy more Thai rice as soon as Thailand started taking delivery of the Iranian oil in August.

The Thai team was sent to Tehran to remove the differences hindering the implementation of the counter-trade agreement signed earlier this year by Deputy Commerce Minister Phairot Chaiyaphon. The accord calls for the exchange of 80,000 tons of Iranian crude with 200,000 tons of Thai rice.

A member of the Thai mission was a senior official of the state-run Petroleum Authority of Thailand (PTT) which acts as the buying agency for the Iranian crude and sell it to Thai Oil Co, the oil refinery of which PTT has 49 percent ownership.

[Speech by Comrade Truong Chinh at a Special Meeting of the Fifth CPV Central Committee, held in Hanoi on 14 Jul 1986 -- read by announcer]

[Text] Dear Comrades: Venerated and beloved Comrade General Secretary Le Duan has passed away. Out Party Central Committee is holding this special plenum to elect someone to continue his work. May I express my sincere thanks to the Party Central Committee for entrusting me with the heavy responsibility of general secretary, replacing Comrade Le Duan. I pledge to devote all my strength, together with the comrades in the Political Bureau and the Party Central Committee, to leading our entire party, armed forces, and people to properly implement the party's line and policies set forth at the Fourth and Fifth Party Congresses and in the resolution of the Fifth Party Central Committee's plenums and the political bureau.

Comrades, not much time is available between now and the Sixth Party Congress, but the work that our party Central Committee has to settle remains very great and pressing. On the one hand, we must concentrate on making good preparations for the Sixth National Party Congress as regards the content of the party's political tasks and the personnel of the new party Central Committee, while properly leading congresses of delegates of party organizations held at all levels. On the other hand we must lead the proper settlement of urgent socioeconomic problems raised by the 10th Plenum of the party Central Committee; satisfactorily implement the tasks concerning national defense and security and external affairs; whip up a seething emulation movement of the entire party, people, and armed forces to score practical achievements in honor of the Sixth Party Congress; and create an atmosphere of enthusiasm and confidence to begin the congress.

Comrade General Secretary Le Duan's death was a great loss for our party and people. Out party and state are currently organizing a solemn funeral for him at a high level to manifest our entire party's and people's respect amd affection for and profound gratitude to him.

More than ever before, our party Central Committee must turn sorrow into strength, tighten its ranks, steadily observe party discipline, intensify its solidarity and singlemindedness based on Marxism-leninism and the line of the Fourth and Fifth Party Congresses, as well as on the resolutions of the party Central Commitee and the principles governing our party's organization and activities, in order to create a solid basis for strengthening the unity of the entire party, people, and armed forces; ensuring the proper implementation of important and pressing tasks in the immediate future; and continuously advancing the revolutionary undertaking of our party and people.

Thank you comrades. I wish the comades in the party Central Committee good health and many new successes.

LEADERS PAY HOMAGE TO LE DUAN AT 13 JUL CEREMONY

BK130829 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 0500 GMT 13 Jul 86

[Text] A grand ceremony was held at the BA Dinh conference hall in Hanoi this morning, 13 July 1986, to pay homage to Comrade General Secretary Le Duan.

The Ba Dinh conference hall had a sepulchral atmosphere, with sad but imposing music. The hall was filled with wreaths. The party banner and national flag lined with mourning ribbons was hung above the dais. The mourning ribbons bore the inscription: Deeply grieve for Comrade Secretary General Le Duan. The fragrance of sandalwood incenses permeated the air from a brass incense urn. Placed next to the brass incense urn were two red velvet-covered boxes containing distinguished medals presented to the comade by our party and state and by various fraternal socialist countries for his outstanding contributions during his revolutionary life.

The remains of Comrade General Secretary Le Duan rested on a red velvet cloth inside a transparent glass coffin. Two rows of honor guards in ceremonial white uniforms and with rifles on their shoulders stood at attention on either side of his coffin. Seated next to the coffin were the comrade's close relatives and a wreath bearing the inscription: Eternal regret from the family and the nation.

At 0700 sharp, the solemn ceremony to pay homage to Comrade General Secretary Le Duan began. A military band played the dirge. In a quiet and mournful atmosphere, various delegations took turns paying their last respects to the comrade general secretary. Leading was the CPV Central Committee delegation headed by Comrade Truong Chinh, member of the Political Bureau and chairman of the Council of State. Its wreath bore the inscription: "Boundless grief for Comrade General Secretary Le Duan."

The delegation of the National Assembly and the Council of State was headed by Chairmen Truong Chinh and Nguyen Huu Tho. The delegation of the Council of Ministers was led by Chairman Pham Van Dong. The delegation of the VFF Central Committee was headed by Comrade Hoang Quoc Viet, VFF honorary chairman, and Comrade Huynh Tan Phat, chairman of the VFF Central Committee Presidium. The delegation of the Vietnam Democratic Party Central Committee was led by its general secretary, Comrade Nghiem Xuan Yem. The delegation of the Vietnam Socialist Party Central Committee was led by its general secretary, Comrade Nguyen Xien. The delegation of the Military Commission of the party Central Committee and the Ministry of National Defense was headed by Minister Senior General Van Tien Dung, member of the Political Bureau. The delegation of the Executive Committee of the Vietnam Confederation of Trade Unions [VCTU] was led by Comrade Pham The Duyet, alternate member of the party Central Committee and acting president of the VCTU. The delegation of the Vietnam Women's Union [VWU] Central Committee was headed by Comrade Nguyen Thi Dinh, member of the party Central Committee and president of the VWU. The delegation of the Central Committee of the Ho Chi Minh Communist Youth Union [HCMCYU] was led by Comrade Vu Mao, member of the party Central Committee and first secretary of the HCMCYU Central Committee. The delegation of the Hanoi capital was headed by Comrade Le Van Luong, member of the party Central Committee and secretary of the Hanoi municipal party committee. The delegation of Binh Tri Thien, the native province of Comrade General Secretary Le Duan, was headed by Comrade Vu Thang, member of the party Central Committee and secretary of the Binh Thien Provincial central committee.

Next came the delegations of the various central organs, sectors, and ministries which took turns paying homage to the late comrade general secretary. All the delegations laid their wreaths, bowed in memory of Comrade General Secretary Le Duan, and expressed their grief to the members of his family.

Comrades Truong Chinh, Pham Van Dong, Le Duc Tho, and Van Tien Dung kept vigil beside the coffin of Comrade General Secretary Le Duan. After them, many comrade leaders of our party, state, and army took turns keeping vigil beside the comrade general secretary's coffin. The ceremony to pay homage to the late comrade general secretary will continue this afternoon and tomorrow.

Hanoi English Report

BK131244 Hanoi International Service in English 1000 GMT 13 Jul 86

[Text] The 1st day of the wreath-laying ceremony for General Secretary Le Duan has been solemnly conducted in Hanoi on Sunday, 13 July. High-ranking leaders of the party and the State of Vietnam are present at the ceremony and have been taking turn to hold a vigil beside the deceased leader's coffin.

At dawn Sunday, the delegation were present at the Ba Dinh Hall, opposite the Ho Chi Minh mausoleum. General Secretary Le Duan lies in state in a glass coffin placed on a dais.

On behind, against a velvet background are two large flags, the party and the national flags, with black mourning ribbons. Another black band with the white inscription "Boundless Grief Over the Passing Away of Comrade Le Duan" is hung against the velvet background. Down under is an incense burner that embalms the place with the fragrance of burning sandalwood and incense.

At 0700, the ceremony begin. To the solemn music of a brass band, the delegation of the Central Committee of the CPV led by Mr Truong Chinh paid the last tribut to General Secretary Le Duan, the late beloved comrade. The delegation includes, Mr Pham Van Dong, Mr Le Duc Tho, and others in the Central Committee and the Secretariat of the party. The delegation's wreath is banded with an inscription that reads: Boundless Grief Over the Passing Away of Comrade Le Duan.

Next comes the delegation of the National Assembly and the State Council led by President of the State Council Truong Chinh and Chairman of the National Assembly Nguyen Huu Tho, and the delegation of the Council of Ministers led by Chairman of the Council of Ministers Pham Van Dong. Having observed a minute of silent respect and proceeded slowly around Comrade Le Duan's coffin, the leaders of the party and the state came to share the grief with relatives of the deceased general secretary and express their condolences over passing away of Comrade Le Duan, an eminent leader of the party and the state and an outstanding disciple of the late President Ho Chi Minh.

The delegation of the Central Party Commission for the VPA and Ministry of Defense headed by General Van Tien Dung consists of many generals who many years fought by the side of Comrade Le Duan when he was in the post of secretary of the Central Paty Commission of the VPA.

Next come the delegation of the Central Committee of the VFF led by honorary chairman Hoang Guoc Viet and other delegations of the Vietnam Democratic Party, the Vietnam Socialist Party, trade union organizations, the women's union, youth union, and central branches and services. Also present at the wreath-laying ceremony are delegations of the capital city of Hanoi; the central province of Binh Tri Thien, the native land of Comrade Le Duan; and ministries, general departmenst affiliated to the Council of Ministers.

Delegations of the diplomatic corps and foreign guests also pay floral tribute to Comrade Le Duan. Soviet Charge d'affaires Myakotnykh, Lao Ambassador Khampheun Tounalom, Kampuchean Ambassador Tep Henh, and many other ambassadors and charge d'affaires with their delegations pay respect to General Secretary Le Duan.

The Central Committee of the Communist Party of Czechoslovakia, General Secretary of the Socialist Unity Party of Germany Erich Honecker, and Chairman of the National Assembly of Albania Ramiz Alia sent wreaths to pay their last respect. Representatives of several foreign communist parties present in Hanoi; of the UN organizations such as UNICEF, FAO, and UNDP; representatives of the European Economic Community; Indian and Japanese businessmen; and foreign guests in Hanoi also come to lay wreaths.

Pham Hung Absent

[Text] Hanoi, July 13 (AFP) -- Vietnamese leaders Sunday filed past the remains of Le Duan, the secretary general of the ruling Communist Party who died Thursday at the age of 79.

Chairman of the State Council Truong Chinh, 79, and Prime Minister Pham Van Dong, 80, began the procession which was to last all day and continue Monday. The two veteran leaders, comrades of Mr. Le Duan's for more than 50 years, appeared distressed and had to be helped from the hall of the state building in central Hanoi where Mr. Le Duan's body is on view.

The ceremony included tributes read from delegations representing the Army, the State Council, other political bodies and mass organizations.

Observers noted the absence of Pham Hung, the party's third-in-command after Mr. Truong Chinh and Mr. Pham Van Dong. Unconfirmed reports said the minister of interior was currently in Moscow.

Ordinary citizens have not been involved in the official mourning activities, but on Tuesday they will be asked to line the streets during the funeral procession.

Meanwhile, the government of Laos has declared a five-day period of national mourning to mark the death of the Vietnamese leader, the Vietnam NEWS AGENCY (VNA) said Sunday. The agency also said that Laotian leader Kaysone Phomvihan had sent a letter of condolences to Vietname saying that Mr. Le Duan was "a close friend of the Laotian people." The other Indochinese country, Cambodia, had already declared a similar period of national mourning. Delegations from Laos and Cambodia are expected to arrive here Sunday for Mr Le Duan's funeral along with a Soviet delegation headed by Prime minister Nikolai Zhkov.

[Text] This morning, 14 July, the solemn ceremony held to pay homage to Comrade General Secretary Le Duan continued at the Ba Dinh Conference Hall in Hanoi.

The comrade leaders of our party and state continued to take turns keeping vigil beside Comrade Le Duan's coffin.

To the strains of solemn and moving music, delegations from various provinces and cities throughout the country -- from Minh Hai, the Vung Tau-Con Dao Special Zone, and Ho Chi Minh City to Cao Bang and Hoang Lien Son -- and of different religious organizations continued to lay wreaths in memory of Comrade Le Duan.

The party and government delegations of the Soviet Union, the LPDR, and the PRK, currently in our country to attend Comrade General Secretary Le Duan's funeral, laid wreaths and paid their last respects to Comrade General Secretary Le Duan. The Soviet party and government delegation led by Comrade Ryzhkov, member of the CPSU Central Committee Politburo and chairman of the Soviet Council of Ministers, paid floral tribute to Comrade Le Duan, laying a wreath that bore the inscription: The CPSU Central Committee, the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet, and the Council of Ministers of the Soviet Union Pay Homage to Comrade Le Duan, an Outstanding Son of the Vietnamese People.

The LPDR party and government delegation headed by Comrade Kaysone Phomvihan, general secretary of the LPRP and chairman of the Council of Ministers, paid tribute to Comrade Le Duan with a wreath bearing the inscription: Boundless Grief Over the Passing Away of Comrade General Secretary Le Duan. Extremely moved, Comrade Kaysone Phomvihan stood for a very long moment close to Comrade Le Duan's coffin.

The Kampuchean party and government delegation led by Comrade Hen Samrin, general secretary of the KPRP Central Committee and chairman of the Council of State laid a wreath in memory of Comrade General Secretary Le Duan. The wreath, taller than the tallest funeral wreath dictated by Cambodian tradition, bore the inscription: Boundless Grief Over the Passing Away of Comrade Le Duan, General Secretary of the CPV, and the Greatest Friend of the Cambodian People.

Next came the delegations of various provinces and cities throughout our country, which continued to lay wreaths and pay their last respects to Comrade General Secretary Le Duan.

LE DUAN CONDOLENCES FROM FOREIGN LEADERS REPORTED

RADIO CARRIES TASS ARTICLE PRAISING LE DUAN

BK121330 Hanoi International Service in English 1000 GMT 12 Jul 86

[Text] Under the title "An outstanding son of the Vietnamese people," the Soviet news agency TASS on 10 July released an article on Comrade Le Duan, general secretary of the CPV Central Committee.

The article says: Sad news has come from Hanoi: Comrade Le Duan, an outstanding son of the Vietnamese people, a staunch internationalist communist, a well-known activist of the communist and workers movement and the national liberation movement, and a great friend of the Soviet people, has passed away.

The life of Comrade Le Duan, who since his youth had engaged in the struggle for national liberation, is a bright example of total devotion to the cause of the party and people. He joined the Communist Party of Vietnam when it came into being in 1930.

Comrade Le Duan had undergone the great and glorious path of a staunch fighter for the people's happiness and the success of socialism in Vietnam. The colonialists' chase and the jailers' brutality did not subdue him, but on the contrary only strengthened his revolutionary will, heightened his noble morale and political virtues, and made him a popular leader. The victory of the August Revolution in 1945 brought about freedom to the Vietnamese people. But the colonialists would not resign themselves; they started a savage war against the young republic. Comrade Le Duan, a close comrade-in-arms of Comrade Ho Chi Minh, leader of the Vietnamese people, was in those years the secretary of the party Central Commission for the south, was active in efforts aimed at counterattacking the foreign aggressors and the local reactionaries.

In 1945, after the victory [over] the French colonialists, peace was restored in Indochina, and North Vietnam embarked on building socialism. Comrade Le Duna devoted all his capacity to the struggle for reunifying the country, which was divided by the imperialists, and builiding the material and technical bases for socialism. In September 1960, at the third party congress, Comrade Le Duan was elected first secretary of the party Central Committee. Since then to the end of his life, he was the beloved leader of the Vietnamese Communists.

In the mid-60's, the U.S. imperialists conducted brutal aggression against the Vietnamese people. Comrade Le Duan, together with President Ho Chi Minh, led the national resistance, and became the soul of the people's struggle against aggression. Thanks to the courageous spirit and heroism of the Vietnamese people under the leadership of the Communist Party. The strong support and assistance of the Soviet Union and other fraternal socialist countries and people of goodwill, the aggression of the U.S. imperialists was defeated in humiliation.

After the liberation of South Vietnam and the reunification of the country, the Vietnamese began to build the bases for socialism, nowadays on the whole of Vietnam. That was the period of seeking solutions to complicated problems. It was necessary to heal the wounds caused by the destructive war, take the country's economy to the road of peace, restore production forces and production relations in South Vietnam. Comrade Le Duan had devoted all his will and his rich life's experience to that important cause. Comrade Le Duan had made a great contribution to working out the strategies and tactics for the Vietnamese revolution in the new stage of development and to settle new issues concerning the period of transition to socialism, bypassing the stage of capitalist development. In his writings and speeches, he deeply analyzed the situation in the country and creatively applied Marxism-Leninism and the multifarious experiences of the CPSU and other fraternal parties in socialist construction to the conditions of Vietnam.

Speaking at the fifth national congress of the CPV and in March 1982, Comrade Le Duan declared that in the past years, the Vietnamese people recorded outstanding achievements in building socialism. This is thanks to the leadership of our party, which is founded and forged by President Ho Chi Minh and abosolutely loyal to Marxism-Leninism and proletarian internationalism.

The name Le Duan is closely connected to the mapping out and successful implemenation of the party's foreign policy. In the political report of the party Central Committee delivered at the Third Congress of the CPV, he pointed particularly to the need to constantly consolidate the militant solidarity and expand comprehensive cooperation with the Soviet Union, Laos, Kampuchea, and other brotherly socialist countries, constantly support the struggle of nations and all countries against imperialism and international reactionaries, for peace, national independence, democracy, and social progress.

That was the internationalist duty of the Vietnamese people and at the same time a task of strategic importance to the vital interests of independence, freedom, and socialism in Vietnam and the Indochina peninsula, and to peace and stability in Southeast Asia and the world.

In the Soviet Union and all over the world, everybody knows well and deeply respects Comrade Le Duan as a consistent combatant for the success of the Marxist-Leninist ideology, for the consolidation of the solidarity among socialist countries and the unity of the communist and national liberation movements and of all revolutionary forces of our time. The Soviet people have been highly valuing the role it played by Comrade Le Duan in the consolidation of brotherly ties between the CPSU and the CPV, between the Soviet Union and Vietnam on the basis of unchangeable principles of Marxism-Leninism, socialist internationalism, consolidated by the treaty of friendship and cooperation between the Soviet Union and Vietnam.

The speech made by Comrade Le Duan at the 27th Congress of the CPSU was imbued with a firm conviction in the unalterableness of the Soviet-Vietnam cooperation. This principled view was reaffirmed several times by Comrade Le Duan during his talks with Gorbachev, general secretary of the CPSU.

Comrade Le Duan was awarded the Lenin Order, the highest distinction of the Soviet Union, for his great contribution to the revolutionary movement, his active contribution to the promotion of the friendship and comprehensive cooperation between the peoples of Vietnam and the Soviet Union. This demonstrates the deep respect of the communists and people to the glorious son of Vietnam.

Memories of Comrade Le Duan will live forever in the hearts of the Soviet people.

HANOI MOI EDITORIAL MOURNS LE DUAN'S DEATH

[From the Press Review]

[Text] Today's HANOI MOI published an editorial entitled: "Remember Comrade Le Duan Through Practical, Revolutionary Actions." The editorial reads in part:

Esteemed and beloved Comrade General Secretary Le Duan has departed from us forever. Together with the entire people, our entire party organization and people of all strata in the capital city are extremely sorrowful over this great loss and the departure of a brilliant son of the nation, an outstanding disciple of President Ho Chi Minh, an eminent leader of our party and people who dedicated his whole life to the cause of national liberation and socialist construction in our country, and a stalwart combatant of the international communist movement, workers' movement, and the movement for national independence. This loss is indeed very great and this sorrow is truly profound. However, with the spirit of revolutionaries, we will convert this loss into strength and this sorrow into action.

[Text] A mid-afternoon heavy downpour yesterday [13 July] helped disperse some 1,000 loyalist supporters of deposed president Marcos who were planning to converge at the Quirino grandstand at the Luneta for their weekly protest march and rally against the Aquino government. About 100 loyalists, led by lawyer Oliver Lozano, were earlier dispersed by antiriot policemen but they regrouped at the Rizal Park at 2:30 p.m. The group later grew [words indistinct] and reached to about 1,000. The 100 rallyists tried to march to the grandstand but antiriot policemen blocked their paths.

Police Arrest Four

[Text] Manila, July 13 (AFP) -- Four people were arrested Sunday as riot police prevented supporters of deposed President Ferdinand Marcos from staging an illegal rally in a central Manila park, police and eyewitnesses said.

The four were arrested as they went to Rizal Park in the late morning, while about 1,000 riot police, armed with clubs, later drove away some 2,000 Marcos suppoters trying to gather at the park's grandstand, witnesses said.

The protestors heckled the policemen and chanted "Cory, Communist" and "Cory, Ignorant." But there were no placards or streamers, besides a Philippine flag on which was written: "Sarrat, the birthplace of President Marcos." Absent were Arturo Tolentino, Mr Marcos' running mate in February's general election, and other leaders of his abortive attempt to stage a coup here last Sunday. The failed coup bid prompted President Corazon Aquino to ban all pro-Marcos rallies.

A pro-Marcos spokesman, Annie Ferrer, complained to Manila Deputy Police Chief Col Edgardo Dula Torres about Sunday's four arrests, saying that the gathering was meant to be a "picnic." But the policeman replied that they were being held for attempting an illegal rally.

MINISTRY ISSUES LIST OF BARRED MARCOS LOYALISTS

HK101353 Quezon City BUSINESS DAY in English 10 Jul 86 p 28

[Text] President Corazon C. Aquino yesterday required former Senator Arturo M. Tolentino, who led last Sunday's foiled coup, and other military and civilian leaders to swear allegiance to her Freedom Constitution.

The President also banned rallies and demonstrations by supporters of ousted president Ferdinand Marcos and barred leaders of the Tolentino revolt from leaving the country.

The President decided to take these steps after meeting her Cabinet yesterday in Malacanang.

Mrs Aquino, however, did not spell out her options should Tolentino and company refuse to make loyalty pledge.

The President created a board of inquiry to be chaired by Health Minister Alfredo Bengzon which will look into the extent of military involvement in the "Manila Hotel incident." Armed Forces chief of staff Gen. Fidel Ramos is also pursuing a parallel effort. Ramos ordered the creation of an AFP [Armed Forces of the Philippines] special investigating committee to gather facts on military and police involvement in the short-lived coup attempt.

The committee, to be chaired by Brig. Gen. Fidel Singson, deputy chief of Constabulary, will use the facts gathered as a basis for further action regarding the incident and to prevent a similar occurrence in the future with regards to intelligence collection, dissemination and coordination.

The chief of staff also directed Brig. Gen. Romeo David, acting commander of Regional Unified Command 3, to investigate the unauthorized movement of vehicles and personnel from Central Luzon to Manila at the height of the loyalists coup attempt.

Ramos denied having pardoned officers, soldiers and policemen who took part in the manila Hotel incident. "Some media reporters misunderstood the doing of 30 push-ups by the returning soldiers," Ramos said. "I know fully well that the granting of pardon is the prerogative solely of the President."

"The push-ups were done mainly to relieve the tension, reestablish rapport among all the AFP members present, and emphasize unity among those in uniform," Ramos said.

In banning pro-Marcos rallies, Mrs Aquino said these rallies would further the "rebel cause."

She did not use the word revolt or coup, describing the takeover of the Manila Hotel by pro-Marcos forces and the proclamation of a new government as an "illegal act of defiance."

In a statement read to the press, Mrs Aquino said options discussed by the Cabinet regarding the loyalists' act of defiance "were almost evenly divided between those who want to treat the incident with the contempt it deserves and those who want to make an example of those who perpetrated it."

Presidential spokesperson Alice Villadolid said the Cabinet discussed three other options: forget the incident, file charges against civilian leaders and grant amnesty to the military officers and soldiers, and file civil instead of criminal charges against the civilian leaders for the damage done to the hotel.

"But this would entail trials which loyalists may make mileage of," Villadolid said. She added that one Cabinet minister advocated "hitting them where it hurts most -- their pockets."

Executive Secretary Joker Arroyo explained that the pledge of loyalty to the constitution is "essential for the preservation of the constitutional system" since the loyalists are working within the frame of the 1973 constitution.

He expects them to "abandon claims to dual government" after their pledge of loyalty.

Asked what they will do should Tolentino and company refuse to comply, Arroyo replied, "We will take appropriate action if they refuse..." But there will be no punishment meted out if they obey the President's order, he added.

However, Arroyo said this does not preclude the chief of staff from adopting "administrative remedies" on the loyalist military officers and soldiers.

Justice Minister Neptali Gonzales is tasked to meet with Tolentino and company to inform them of this move and its mechanics. Gonzales will also determine who will take their pledge of loyalty. No time limit has yet been set.

President Aquino urged the public to "put this affair behind us." She made assurance that "I shall not allow anything like this to happen again."

Meanwhile, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs issued the list of Marcos loyalists who are barred from leaving the country.

In addition to Tolentino, the list includes 24 others who participated in the Manila Hotel foiled coup. They are: former Budget Minister Manuel S. Alba, former Supreme Court Justice Serafin Cuevas, former Metrocom chief Maj. Gen. Prospero D. Olivas (Ret.), former Philippine Navy chief Rear Admiral Briliiate Ochoco, former southeasternl Regional Unified Commander Brig. Gen. Jaime Echeverria, former Philippine Military Academy superintendent Brig. Gen. Jose Ma. Zumel, former western Police district chief Brig. Gen. Narciso Cabrera; former Aviation Security Command chief Brig. Gen. Luther Custodio, former Army Fifth Infantry Division commander Brig. Gen. Antonig Palafox, former Ilocos Regional Unified commander Brig. Gen Tomas Dumpit, former Metrocom Intelligence chief Col. Rolando Abadilla, Col. Levy Macasiano, Col. Jose Mendoza, former Lanao del Sur Gov. Ali Dimaporo;

Former MP Gerry Espina, former San Juan Mayor Joseph Estrada, former Batasan speaker Nicanor Yniguez, former Mp Edilberto del Vale, former Senator Rodolfo Guanzon, former Deputy Foreign Minister Manuel Collantes, former Riazl Gov. Isidoro Rodriguez, former Mp Rafael Recto, former Education Deputy Minister Salvador Britanico and former Mp Ronaldo Zamora.

In a message to all AFP units, Ramos also gave two "vital" reasons for the failure of the Tolentino attempt.

He said the military support of the entire armed forces was not acquired inasmuch as it "is truly a vanguard of democracy and recognizes the Aquino government as legitimate."

The second reason, Ramos noted, is that people support, "which is the very foundation of claiming the legitimacy of leadership was not attained."

ENRILE DENIES INVOLVEMENT IN FAILED COUP

HK111013 Hong Kong AFP in English 1007 GMT 11 Jul 86

[Text] Manila, July 11 (AFP) -- Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile Friday denied any involvement in this week's aborted coup attempt against President Corazon Aquino, saying he could have seized power earlier if he wanted to. "If Juan Ponce Enrile could be stupid enough, insane enough or insane enough to do anything, then he does not need Mr Tolentino, with due respect to him, to help him," he said at a forum taped here for broadcast Saturday. Mr Enrile was replying to a question about the possibility of a connection between the coup and his differences with other officials close to Mrs Aquino.

Opposition leader Arturo Tolentino proclaimed himself "acting president" Sunday while Mrs Aquino was on an overnight visit to a southern city. He offered Mr Enrile the premiership and defense portfolio in a new government. Mr Enrile, who led the February revolt that swept Mrs Aquino to power, rejected the offer and led operations against the 300-400 rebel troops holed up at the Manila Hotel until Mrs Aquino arrived here Monday.

Some Filipinos have questioned Mr Enrile's conduct during the coup effort, saying his rejection of the offer took too long. They have also criticized his alleged coddling of the troops involved by refusing to punish them. Mrs Aquino's executive secretary, Joker Arroyo, has said the government had no information about Mr Enrile's rumored involvement in the coup attempt.

Mr Enrile said Friday that during the February uprising against Ferdinand Marcos, "We could have taken over the government and run the country ourselves" but instead supported opposition presidential candidate Mrs Aquino. The February revolt, which erupted amid disputes over the results of the Marcos-Aquino election contest, earmed Mr Enrile the reputation as a "Kingmaker." Mr Tolentino, Mr Marcos's running mate, insists they won the fraud-marred poll and said he was taking over until Mr Marcos could return from U.S. exile.

Mr Enrile stressed Friday that all steps he took during and after the coup attempt, iuncluding pardoning the troops who agreed to abandon Mr Tolentino, had been cleared with Mrs Aquino.

He disclosed that the military had a plan to use cannons, mortars, rockets and room-to-room combat against the participants at what he called the "Manila Hotel Incident."

He said the plan was to use a conciliatory approach "within a certain time frame, beyond which we will use cannons and mortars and rockets if we must."

Asked about the deadline for the rebels to give up, Mr Enrile said: "The president asked me what my opinion was of the time frame. I said three days, 72 hours, after that the options are open to use more lethal weapons."

"We had a plan to dislodge these people from the Manila Hotel, and we could have dislodged them even to the point of conducting a room-to-room combat."

Mrs Aquino Monday gave the rebels 24 hours, ending shortly after Tuesday noon, to vacate Manila Hotel. They left before dawn.

MARCOS' LAWYER REFUSES TO PLEDGE ALLEGIANCE

[Text] One of the leaders of the aborted coup dared President Aquino to file sedition charges against him because he refuses to pledge allegiance to the freedom constitution. Rafael Recto, lawyer of former President Marcos, [words indistinct] the soldiers who supported the Tolentino group in their bid to take over the Manila Hotel.

Speaking on television and in the presence of Justice Minister Neptali Gonzales, Recto said he was not prepared to pledge allegiance to the temporary constitution as demanded by the president. When asked if Recto will have to face charges, Gonzales said it was the inevitable conclusion.

BUSINESS DAY EXAMINES 'MANILA HOTEL INCIDENT"

HK110232 Quezon City BUSINESS DAY in English 10 Jul 86 p 28

[By Marites Danguilan-Vitug]

The loyalists' act of defiance brought up conflicting approaches to a problem.

On one hand, Justice Minister Neptali Gonzales said Tuesday the President instructed the filing of sedition charges against Arturo Tolentino and the civilian leaders of the loyalist forces. On the other, Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile absolved the loyalist generals and soldiers and has adopted a policy of "no recrimination, no reprisals."

The net effect is a compromise decision -- that Tolentino and other civilian and military leaders pledge their loyalty to the Freedom Constitution. Such a compromise, does not give any guarantees that they will not abandon their plans to undermine the government, some said. It is also an effort to balance and please the forces in the President's Coalition Cabinet, they added.

The leniency with which the military treated the loyalists who held out in Manila Hotel demonstrated where their sentiments lie.

Enrile's chief security officer, Col. Greg Honasan, told BUSINESS DAY, "They (loyalists) are not our enemies. The communists are....We did not want to attack because others would be happy to see us fight each other."

A senior military officer at the Defense Ministry said: "They (loyalists) were just expressing the disenchantment most of us feel." Another senior officer said the lenient treatment of the loyalists is consistent with Mrs. Aquino's treatment of the rebels.

The thinking among some in the Defense Ministry is that the rebels are spared from human rights investigation while they are not; top leftist leaders are released from prison; and the soft approach in counterinsurgency is encouraged, starting with the President's advocacy of the holding of ceasefire talks, while they are left out of it.

Enrile earlier said they used the "calibrated approach," starting with the shutting off of radio stations used for disinformation, disconnection of communication lines of the hotel, and negotiations. "We sought solidarity among soliders," he said.

In the ceasefire talks with the rebels, civilian government has showed support for the President's move. Some in the Armed Forces and the Defense Ministry, including Enrile, are lukewarm about it and have expressed their reservations about the policy's chances of success.

Observers say the President has to wield effective control of these diverse forces in her government before both the right and the left succeed in dividing it.

Francisco Nemenzo Jr., University of the Philippines political science professor, said there is a growing perception that the left and the right are unintentionally helping each other in dividing the government.

From indications, the left would like to have President Aquino and progressive government forces on their side against the armed forces and the conservative elements in government; the loyalists, on the other hand, are ready to link arms with the military against some in the civilian government who they think are left-leaning. The loyalists and the military made this clear in the recent Manila Hotel takeover.

For some in the Defense Mininstry, the loyalists' failed takeover brought positive lessons. Said Col. Greg Honasan, "It showed that the Defense Minister and Gen. Ramos enjoy the support of the military."

Another senior officer said: "Some in Malacanang should, by now, see the value of the military. They need Enrile and Ramos."

Col. Eduardo Kapunan, MND [Ministry of National Defense] intelligence officer, sees the loyalists becoming more sophisticated in the future. "But they will not be able to use the military anymore," he added, explaining that the soliders will no longer be duped.

LOYALISTS VOW TO CONTINUE FIGHT FOR DEMOCRACY

HK100130 Manila THE NEW PHILIPPINES DAILY EXPRESS in English 9 Jul 86 p 2

[Text] Marcos loyalists vowed yesterday to continue the fight for a "constitutional and demoratic government."

Lawyer Oliver O. Lozano, spokesman of the Philippines, also assailed the gross suppression of dissent and gross violations of human rights on the part of the Aquino administration.

He said that the oathtaking of former MP Arturo Tolentino as acting president of the Republic of the Philippines was marred by supppression of radio broadcast and black propaganda by the Aquino propaganda bureau while food supplies were cut off by police and ATOM [August 21 Movement] barricades.

Lozano made the following clarifications:

-- President Marcos has nothing to do with the oathtaking of Tolentino yesterday. It was a surprise move to preempt communist takeover of government.

-- Tolentino merely responded to the sovereign people's wil since the legitimacy of a government is according to the revolutionary Supreme Court, a matter subject to the people's verdict.

-- The soldiers (officers and men) merely did their duty of preserving the peace although the performance of that duty carried with it opposition to a revolutionary and communist government.

-- The freedom fighters and loyalists fighting for the restoration of a constitutional and democratic government merely exercised their right to free dissent and peaceful assembly in protest of a vindictive and revolutionary government. Hence, they have done their duty to God, country and people.

-- The freedom fighters could have annihilated any force opposed to a democratic way of life, but a tactful withdrawal was made to avert a civil war.

CPP ISSUES STATEMENT ON MARCOS LOYALISTS

HK110718 Manila THE MANILA CHRONICLE in English 10 Jul 86 p 2

[Text] The Manila Hotel incident was merely "the first of a series of armed challenges" Marcos loyalists will make, the Communist Party of the Philippines [CPP] said in a statement Tuesday

"It is not likely that the Manila Hotel incident is the best and final move that the Marcos loyalists are capable of," the CPP Central Committee warned.

The CPP claimed that "there is a framework of encouragement for the Marcos loyalists to continue challenging the Aquino government. The U.S. wishes to use the Marcos threat to pressure the Aquino government into submitting to U.S. demands."

Condemning former MP Arturo Tolentino's declaring himself president as well as the mutiny of loyalist soldiers, the CPP reiterated its support for the Aquino government "so long as it retains the bourgeois-liberal tendency and is receptive to the progressive suggestions of the revolutionary movement."

The CPP also revealed that during the incident, "the revolutionary forces were all alerted to unite and cooperate with all antifascist forces and the entire people against the restoration of fascism."

The CPP urged the Aquino government to attend to the problems of "U.S. imperialism feudalism and bureaucrat capitalism." It said that allowing these problems to continue "will eventually bring discredit to (the Aquino government)."

Although "the people rejected not only Tolentino's pretension" but also "the use of anti-communism as a pretext for the restoration of fascism and for shameless servility to U.S. imperialism and to the worst reactionary interests," the CPP said the Marcos loyalists are "still the largest and most immediate threat to the government" of Mrs Aquino.

For this reason, the CPP said, the Aquino government must not simply laugh off the incident.

KBL SAID CAMPAIGNING AGAINST CONSTITUTION

HK110723 Quezon City Radyo ng Bayan in Tagalog 0400 GMT 11 Jul 86

[Text] Local Government Minister Aquilino Pimentel Jr accused followers of former President Marcos of campaigning against the new constitution. Speaking before the Philippine Colomnia Association, Pimentel said that the KBL is distributiong 5,000 pesos to each Barangay captain in the entire country for this campaign. He added that his information came from his regional directors and field personnel. He said that he will take firm action against any Barangay official who has been found guilty of conducting a campaign against the new charter.

ENRILE CRITICIZES COMMUNIST 'WEB OF DECEPTION'

HK040509 Manila MANILA BULLETIN in English 3 Jul 86 pp 1, 7

[By Sid M. Roman]

[Text] Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile said yesterday that the peace talks between the government and the Communist Party of the Philippines [CPP] would not necessarily mean that the armed struggle of the CPP-NPA has been laid aside.

A ceasefire may merely signify that the option for parliamentary struggle is placed in a higher priority for the moment, while the arms are kept and readied for action at the proper time, he said.

"The leadership and organization of the underground movement, unfortunately, remain active and intact. The central committee, the territorial commissions, and the functional commissions of the CPP, together with their officers and members, are still operating.

Enrile said there are no indications that these organs of the CPP are being scuttled or downgraded in terms of manpower, logistics, or tasks. In fact, he said, these organs appear that they are being further beefed up and strengthened in anticipation of broader organization, recruitment, training, and perhaps, armed activities.

"The movement's political cadre is also intact," Enrile pointed out, and there are reports that there are some disagreements and divisions which have cropped up recently within the organization as a result of conflicts of approach to the present political situation."

Enrile charged that the communists have begun to spin "a fresh web of deception by recycling and expanding their front organizations, using new names and acronyms for the same aggroupations."

He added: "There is a renewed attempt to forge a tighter alliance between elements of the far left and the elements of left-of-center in the political spectrum, which were somewhat drawn apart as a result of the February revolution."

ENRILE SAYS CHURCH COMMUNIST INFILTRATION TARGET

HK040507 Manila MANILA BULLETIN in English 3 Jul 86 pp 1, 7

[By D. Siytangco]

[Text] Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile warned yesteday that the church is still a "prime infiltration target of the communist movement."

Speaking before members of the Martha's Vineyard, a Catholic women's organization, at the Hotel Intercontinental ballroom, Enrile said that because of the church's moral influence in Philippine society, the communists try to infiltrate its ranks.

The communists, he said, know that being a Christian nation, they can best destroy the faith of believers from within.

"They know that a confrontational stance against Christianity would not help their movement," Enrile said. "But if they can infiltrate the church and erode the faith of believers of truth and justice, then they can fully exploit the church as a tool for the destruction of the democratic system."

Enrile appeals to the church to "faithfully fulfill her God-given authority of looking after the spiritual and physical needs of our people.

Enrile said that the church should heed Christ's call for it to serve the masses "out of the purity of the heart and out of true Christian ideals."

Many have charged that the church has been more engrossed in politics but, he said, he knew that while there are a "few religious who have flirted with the atheistic and materialistic Marxist ideology, a great majority of them have remained faithful to their sacrosanct role of shepherding their flock."

In an open forum that followed his speech, Enrile denied any political plans. He said that everything was according to God's plan so he would have to wait and see what God's plan was for him.

ENRILE STRESSES VIGILANCE AGAINST COMMUNISTS

HK100622 Manila MANILA BULLETIN in English 9 Jul 86 pp 1, 5

[Text] Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile warned Monday that the "communist threat that has faced our country for more than half a century is once staring at us in the face with the single objective of overthrowing our democratic way of life through subversion and force."

Enrile sounded the warning in a speech before officers and members of the Rotary Club of Raha Sulayman at the Manila Hilton.

He said that some members of the Armed Forces were drawn into joining the Tolentino group at the Manila Hotel Sunday through some kind of "misrepresentation," adding that he was satisfied that they are now back with the government.

The defence minister stresses, however, that the most recent development "should not distract our people from the more important problem of insurgency."

He referred to the ambuscades conducted against soldiers and the July 4 clash in front of the U.S. Embassy between the police and demonstrators suspected to be identified with leftist groups.

"I will not wish to appear as an alarmist or as being overly apprehensive over the situation," he said, "but let me say that I perceived a renewed, systematic, concerted and well-organized effort being staged by the Communist Party of the Philippines, its military arm, the New People's Army, and its political front organization, the National Democratic Front (NDF) -- to destabilize the present government by taking advantage of both the reconciliation policy of President Aquino and the atmosphere of liberalism and freedom prevailing in the land."

Enrile pointed to what he called three vital signs, namely, political demagoguery in the mass media, agitation and propaganda in the urban centers, and terrorism and violence in the countryside.

"All these clearly show that the threat that has faced our country for more than half a century is once more staring us in the face with the single objective of overthrowing our democratic way of life through subversion and force," he said.

Citing the rebels' pattern of deception, Enrile said that they make peace overtures while their comrades-in-arms continue to engage in a shooting war; they express support for the present government while they continue to press for the grant of unreasonble and unrealistic demands.

OFFICIAL ON CPP INFILTRATION OF GOVERNMENT

HK050200 Manila THE MANILA EVENING POST in English 3 Jul 86 p 1

[By Rey Briones] [Text] The infiltration by the outlawed Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP) of many government offices is primarily aimed at raising funds for the underground movement, a ranking customs official assigned to the Manila International Airport (MIA) revealed this morning.

To pursue this objective, CPP elements, the customs official said, have been placed in various sensitive positions in the Bureau of Internal Revenue, in the Bureau of Customs, and in the Public Works and Highways Ministry upon the intercession of a National Democratic Front (NDF) key official.

The NDF is the political arm of CPP and is belived to have been spearheading the fund campaign of the local communist movement in urban centers in line with the Maoist theory calling for obtaining its resources from the enemy.

At the MIA customs office, at least eight positions were given to recommendees of the NDF key man who is also consultant to both Customs Commissioner Wigberto Tanada and MIA Customs Collector Alex Padilla.

About a dozen CPP agents have allegedly been given lucrative positions in the Ministry of Public Works and Highways and in the Bureau of Internal Revenue (BIR) aside from the two ideologues who are now lording it over the customs main office at the South Harbor.

Asked on the mechanics employed in raising funds, the customs official said "their main source is smuggling at the airport and waterfront."

"At the BIR, fund raising for the underground will come from tax evaders while commissions from big-time contracts are the prospects at the public works ministry," he added.

Attempting to prove his revelations, the customs official showed documents indicating that smuggling has been going on unabated at the MIA cargo terminal.

"This time the NDF recommendees are on top of the smuggling operation described in the name of "the motherland," said the customs official.

The same official said that smugglers were charged P85 per kilo of illegal shipment of which P35 reportedly goes to the government and the remaining P50 to the underground movement.

But the fund raisers also allow other customs men to engage in the same illegal trade to augment their own personal income, he added.

The other major purpose of the customs infiltration by the communists is to protect the planned smuggling of high-powered firearms for the underground movement.

Another MIA customs source said some of the recommendees of the NDF leader were sent to the cargo terminal where the CPP allegedly planned to course arms support from their foreign comrades.

The source could not confirm if shipments of firearms had been passed through the MIA customshouse, but he said that customs cargo men have not yet reported attempts to smuggle in firearms since the new government took power last February.

"What I know is that tons of suspected shipment arrive daily through the cargo terminal, but not a single gun has been found in the illegal shipment," the source said.

He added that in most cases, the suspected cargoes were released after a clearance is issued by MIA customs officials.

"The smuggled goods, I suspect, were being misdeclared," he stressed.

AQUINO CRITICIZES SISON CLAIM ON OPPRESSION

HK041202 Quezon City Radyo Pag-ASA in Tagalog 1100 GMT 4 Jul 86

[Text] President Aquino today criticized the former chairman of the Communist Party of the Philippines Jose Maria Sison who recently announced that the Aquino government would soon become oppressive and would use revolutionary forces to protect its own interests.

The President said she does not understand why Sison regards the government negatively when it was her government which release him from prison. The full report from Al Pedroche.

[Begin Pedroche recording] [Passage indistinct] Sison predicted that 3 years from now, the Aquino government would be like the previous dictatorial regime.

Meanwhile, the President is set to fly to Cagayan de Oro on Sunday where she will hold discussions with different sectors of society. On Monday, the President will meet with the military to find out about the status of peace and order in the region. Al Pedroche from Malacanang. [end recording]

Sison Denies Making Claim

HK080803 Manila THE MANILA BULLETIN in English 6 Jul 86 p 7

[By F.T. Flores]

[Text] Former Chairman of the Communist Party of the Philippines Jose Ma Sison yesterday denied having said at the "Kapihan sa Maynila" [Manila Coffeseshop] that the Aquino government would become repressive in few years time.

What he said during the meet was the following: "The Aquino government would either go the way of fascist repressiveness or seek accommodation with the revolutionary forces because of the worsening political and economic crisis.

"As a matter of fact, I have welcomed the ceasefire talks between the Aquino government and the National Democratic Front because these talks can give the former a chance to take the best possible options to face up to the fundamental problem of foreign and feudal domination.

"Mrs. Aquino is simply reacting to a misquotation from me. And I wish to point out that some quarters have been trying to put me at odds with her since my release from detention through misquotations and misrepresentations.

"I reiterate my gratitude to Mrs. Aquino for ordering my release, especially because of the gross violations of my constitutional rights under the Marcos regime.

"But I would also like to remind Mrs. Aquino that the Marcos regime would not have fallen and she would not have risen to the presidency without the long-term struggle of the revolutionary forces and political prisoners like her husband and me."

COMMUNIST'S OCAMPO ON NEGOTIATIONS PROBLEMS

[By Paulynn P. Sicam]

[Text] The civilian government of President Aquino and the military under Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and General Fidel Ramos are "fighting over what to do with us," rebel leader Satur Ocampo told a group of journalists early this week.

The military, he said having perceived a "dangerous trend" in the Aquino government's move for cease-fire talks with the communist insurgents, "is waiting in the wings." Aquino's popular support, however, is keeping her in place. This popular support, Ocampo said, must be strengthened.

"When we answer the president's call for negotiations, we wreck relations between Enrile and Ramos," Ocampo observed. "But we cannot be faulted with that. The essential character of the Cory government is that it is not united."

The government is perceived, he said, not to have control over the armed forces. Ocampo asked, "Should there be a cease-fire agreement reached, can Cory Aquino implement it?"

"If there is a problem, it won't come from us," said Ocampo. "If the talks do not succeed, it will not be for want of sincerity, seriousness and earnestness on our part."

The National Democratic Front and its member organizations, including the Communist Party of the Philippines and the New People's Army, are entering into peace talks "not just to stop the fighting but to seek a political settlement," Ocampo said.

Ocampo, designed ceasefire negotiator of the NDF, said the desired political settlement could result in a coalition between the Aquino government and the leftist forces. "A coalition," he clarified, "could be a result of, not the condition for a political settlement."

The cease-fire talks, he hopes, will tackle "the heart of the problem" of the insurgency. "Stopping the fighting for six months will not get into the heart of the problem," he said.

NAKASONE MEETS USSR ENVOY, URGES GORBACHEV VISIT

OW111111 Tokyo KYODO in English 1051 GMT 11 Jul 86

[Text] Tokyo, July 11 KYODO -- Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone Friday urged an early visit to Japan by Soviet Leader Mikhail Gorbachev in a meeting with new Soviet Ambassador to Japan Nikolay Solovyev. Nakasone was referring to a letter handed to him July 1, in which the Kremlin leader expressed his strong intention to visit to Japan "in the not too distant future," a Foreign Ministry official said. "I welcome his early visit to Japan," Nakasone was quoted as telling the new envoy who met the prime minister for the first time after presenting his credentials to Emperor Hirohito Tuesday.

Solovyev said he believed Gorbachev's Japan visit will be materalized. The exact date of the visit, however, was not referred to in the Nakasone-Solovyev meeting, the official said.

Nakasone told Solovyev that he had recently agreed with Guenter Mittag, East German deputy chairman of the State Council, on joint efforts to have the second summit on disarmament between the United States and the Soviet Union become a reality as early as possible. Solovyev was quoted as telling Nakasone that his country has already made various proposals to control nuclear arms and Soviet officials believe the proposals are realistic.

The Soviet Communist Party attaches importance to Japan, the new envoy said, and expressed his hope of further developing the relations between the two neighboring countries, according to the officials. There is no other course but to develop the relations, the ambassador reportedly told Nakasone, adding his wish to personally "contribute to the development."

Nakasone said he expects the Japanese-speaking new envoy to stay in Japan for a long time and devote himself to the development of Japan-Soviet relations, the official said.

Solovyev also said there are possibilities for the two nations to reach agreements in various fields through mutual effort and cited a recent Japan-Soviet accord on reciprocal visits to ancestral graves in each other's country as an example, the officials said. Nakasone thanked Soviet officials for allowing the visits without visas to the four Soviet-held northern islands and Soviet mainland from the humanitarian view point, they said.

Denies September Visit Report

OW120934 Tokyo KYODO in English 0917 GMT 12 Jul 86

[Text] Tokyo, July 12 KYODO -- Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone Saturday evening denied as absurd a Japanese press report that he hopes to visit the Soviet Union in September at the earliest. Nakasone was commenting on a frontpage story carried by the MAINICHI SHIMBUN in its evening edition Saturday. The paper story, datelined Moscow, quoted a reliable Soviet source as saying that Nakasone has been sounding the Soviets out through unofficial contacts about the possibility for the visit.

FOREIGN MINISTRY 'BLUE BOOK' STRESSES 2D OPENING

[Text] Tokyo, July 15 KYODO -- A Foreign Ministry report released Tuesday has endorsed a high-powered advisory panel's recommendations to overhaul Japan's export-dependent economy to achieve an "internationalization within." In submitting the annual report to a cabinet meeting, Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe emphasized the need for "the second opening of the country" to achieve "a socioeconomy more harmonious with the international economic environment. This is in no way detrimental to the features that characterize Japanese society and culture, especially not to the advantages and virtues of its largely homogeneous people," Abe said in his preface to the report, commonly called "Blue Book" for its blue and white stripes on the cover. The Meiji Restoration in 1868 marked Japan's first opening to the outside world after decades of feudal rule.

In its 30th annual post-World War II report running some 600 pages, the Foreign Ministry called for improving market access, stimulating domestic demand and other steps to promote import expansion which it argued would "broaden the choice for Japanese consumers." The Foreign Ministry pledged in its latest report that Japan is prepared to step up official development assistance (ODA) to developing countries.

"Yet aid alone is not enough," the diplomatic Blue Book said. "It is extremely important for Japan to develop a relationship with the developing world based upon a new division of labor by further opening its markets to products from the developing countries and promoting private direct overseas investment and its accompanying technology transfer." The ministry made the calls against the backdrop of frictions with the United States, Western Europe and other trading partners stemming from Japan's nearly 50 billion dollar current-account surplus and trade imbalances. The calls were also in line with recommendations made earlier this year by an advisory panel to Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone. He told a recent news conference his ruling Liberal-Democratic Party and government are committed to implement measures to turn the Japanese economy into one dependent on increased imports and domestic demand.

"It is extremely important in promoting international harmony," the report continued, "that Japan achieve economic growth led by domestic demand and transform its industrial structure into a more harmonious one with the international economic environment." Realizing "a Japan more open to the world," the report said, "entails an element of mentality or a receptivity to foreign goods and ideas, or what may be called an 'internationalization within,' and this is what is important."

As Japan, one of the principal creditor nations, is heading toward the world's No. 2 economy after the United States by accounting for over 10 percent of global GNP the Foreign Ministry warned: "There can be no lasting peace and prosperity for Japan without harmonious relationship with the international community. And thus it is important for Japan to actively promote, from a global perspective, its further internationalization and to become a nation more open to the world," the ministry said.

Japan's emphasis on becoming a full-fledged member of the international community was clearly stated in last year's Blue Book that deplored that the country, despite its dramatic postwar prosperity, has failed to become an "international state." The annual report this time also reiterated Japan's unfulfilled objective and called upon the Japanese to "be more broad-minded and tolerant as a society and a country."

In that respect, the ministry's report noted that the Tokyo economic summit of the seven major industrial democracies in may underscored, through the so-called Tokyo declaration, "the need for international cooperation to achieve a safer and more prosperous world of freedom and peace." As in the past 29 Blue Books, the 1986 edition termed the Japan-U.S. security treaty as "the foundation of Japanese security" and closely cooperative bonds between Tokyo and Washington remain "the cornerstone of Japan's foreign policy."

On Japan's policy toward fellow Asian countries, some of which came under Japanese occupation during the last world war, the Foreign Ministry report stressed "people-to-people and heart-to-heart contacts" as well as promotion of state-to-state relations. Foreign minister since November 1982, Shintaro Abe made clear these and other points in his speeches before his counterparts from member countries of six Southeast Asian countries (Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines, Singapore, Thailand and Brunei) in Manila last month.

The 1986 diplomatic blue book also said:

-- It is an urgent task to support the new Philippine government of President Corazon Aquino "as much as possible" in stabilizing the country and implementing domestic reforms "in an orderly fashion."

-- It is important for Japan to help realize a second summit between U.S. President Ronald Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in the the near future to make progress in arms control talks and reducing East-West tensions.

-- Japan must continue to work tenaciously to win the return of four Soviet-held islands off Hokkaido and conclude a peace treaty between the two countries.

-- International terrorism is "by no means permissible" because it is an affront to human dignity and a threat to civil peace, safety, democratic societies and world peace.

-- "It is imperative" for Japan to actively promote multilateral diplomacy in the United Nations and other forums for world peace and prosperity and "steadily" expand its ODA.

DIET TO CONVENE SPECIAL SESSION 22 JULY

OW150313 Tokyo KYODO in English 0253 GMT 15 Jul 86

[Text] Tokyo, July 15 KYODO -- The government announced Tuesday that it will summon the newly-elected diet into session next Tuesday. The decision was cleared by the cabinet at a regular meeting Tuesday, a government spokesman said.

The special session, which must be held within 30 days after a general election, will appoint the prime minister and assign Diet committee seats to reflect new party strengths following the July 6 parliamentary elections.

The appointment of the prime minister is a pro-forma affair, as Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone will almost certainly remain in office as leader of the governing Liberal-Democratic Party.

LDP TO FORM FRONT WITH NEW LIBERAL CLUB

OW150427 Tokyo KYODO in English 0402 GMT 15 Jul 86

[Text] Tokyo, July 15 KYODO -- Executives of the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party met Tuesday and formally decided to form a joint front with the New Liberal Club. The meeting followed the decision made by the leadership of the New Liberal Club Monday to retain its alliance with the governmental party, thus averting a breakup between pro-alliance members and those against it.

The joint front between the two conservative parties will be known in the Diet (parliament) as the Liberal-Democratic party-New Freedom National Federation (Jiminto-Shin Jiyu Kokumin Rengo). It will bring their combined strength in the key 512-member lower house to 310, a solid majority of 53.

Four New Liberal Club members, including party representative Yohei Kono, withdrew the registration of their group as the "New Liberal Club" from the Diet Tuesday morning. Opening the way for a formal registration of the Liberal-Democratic Party-New Freedom National Federation in the afternoon. Shin Kanemaru, LDP secretary general, told a news conference that the New Liberal Club has agreed to cooperate with the LDP outside the cabinet. He said the two parties will also make policy agreements. At Present, Kono is a member of Prime minister Yasuhiro Nakasone's cabinet.

The LDP and New Liberal Club formed an alliance following the 1983 general election in which Nakasone's party won only 250 lower house seats. In return the New Liberal Club got one cabinet post. In the July 6 parliamentary election, the LDP won a landslide victory by getting 304 of the 512 lower house seats at stake. The New Liberal Club won only six seats.

After the LDP's overwhelming June 6 [as received] election victory, Kanemaru said the New Liberal Club would not be given a cabinet post. Nakasone is expected to reshuffle his cabinet this month.

The prime minister and Kono are scheduled to meet in a day or two to map out policy agreements on such issues as political ethics, promotion of peace diplomacy, tax and education, and administrative reforms.

DPRK COMMENTARY ON REJECTION OF KPA LETTER

SK120300 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2141 GMT 11 Jul 86

[NODONG SINMUN 12 July commentary: "Act Reasonably"]

[Text] It is widely known that the KPA Supreme Command has proposed talks between the military authorities who possess real power in the military in the North and South through the letter of our minister of the People's Armed Forces dated 9 June.

Our people in the North and South and the world's peace-loving people are expressing absolute support for this proposal of ours, highly evaluating it as a new epochal peace proposal to eliminate the danger of war created on the Korean peninsula and to ease tension, as a patriotic proposal to peacefully settle the Korean question by creating a favorable atmosphere for North-South dialogue, and as an epochal proposal to contribute to peace in Asia and the world.

However, the other party that received the letter containing our proposal for talks adopted a very insincere attitude toward it.

Livsey, commander in chief of the UN forces in South Korea, and Yi Ki-paek, defense minister of South Korea, expressed their stands of refusing our proposal for talks between military authorities in their reply letters dated 21 June and 24 June respectively.

On 11 July, a person from the side of the UN forces who came to receive a letter of our minister of the People's Armed Forces which made clear our stand regarding such an attitude of the other party and which called on the other party to come around to talks, created an ugly scene of refusing to accept the letter after opening it, babbling about names or something else. Even the South side refused to accept the letter. This is a rude act unprecedented since the dialogue between the North and South began.

In the meantime, those who call themselves senior delegates of the delegations of the South side for preliminary contacts to arrange North-South economic talks, North-South Red Cross talks, and North-South parliamentary talks proposed resuming the various forms of dialogue which have been suspended, while at the same time refusing the holding of talks between military authorities in telephone messages which had been sent simultaneously as if they had been agreed on.

There is no need to repeat that all this is an impure political offensive designed to avoid talks between military authorities at any cost. We view such an act by the United States and the South Korean side as an injudicious and uncouth act of a man bereft of reason.

The U.S. side has groundlessly taken issue with us on the matter of the name of the minister of the People's Armed Forces, the first representative of the KPA Supreme Commander, and refused to accept the letter. In whose name the letter is written is something to be decided by us who write the letter, and not something that the U.S. side can dictate or do this and that about it.

The U.S. side's refusal to accept the letters was an expression of their attempt to avoid talks between military authorities and ultimately is an act laying bare their stand of attempting to pursue only a war policy and of opposing taking any measures to prevent war and ease tension.

As for the suspension of the various forms of North-South dialogue which the puppets said should be resumed, it is not somebody else's fault. It is a consequence produced by the United States and the persons in authority in South Korea who conducted exercises for an attack of northward invasion like "Team Spirit," the largest ever staged, in defiance of our repeated calls for halting military exercises to provide an atmosphere for dialogue.

[Even after the end of the "Team Spirit" war exercise, which lasted for several months, the United States and the persons in authority in South Korea have conducted daily war exercises such as "Ttangbol," "Piho," "Pilsung Pangpae," "Joint Mobile Exercise," and a joint operation exercise along the coastline of the East Sea by the U.S. 7th Fleet and South Korean naval vessels. They also announced that they will further strengthen the "Team Spirit" war exercises. While prattling about the resumption of dialogue, the persons in authority in South Korea publicly announced that in a few days they will conduct the "Ulchi-86" exercise throughout the whole of South Korea for many days.

Under the pretext of establishing capabilities for an all-out war in cases of the development of a war situation or an emergency, they are about to whip up an unprecedented war atmosphere by conducting a 24-hour curfew, exercises of restricting traffic, and a blackout exercise simultaneously during the period of this war exercise.

The North-South dialogue is so arranged as to ease tension, improve relations between the North and South, and to follow the road leading to reunification. No dialogue is needed for confrontation. Under circumstances in which war exercises against the other party are being conducted continuously, it is impossible to sit face to face, and there is nothing to settle by sitting face to face.

The reason why we proposed talks between military authorities is to eliminate such a development and to provide an atmosphere for dialogue at all costs. Nevertheless, the United States and the persons in authority in South Korea have babbled about the resumption of dialogue, while refusing to accept the proposal for holding talks between military authorities whose aim is to take measures to ease tension. This is preposterous.

It is not because they are interested in improving relations or easing tension through dialogue that the puppets are kicking up rackets about the resumption of dialogue. It is nothing but a cloak to cover their nature as the destroyers of peace and war maniacs from being fully laid bare for the whole world to see by refusing to accept our proposal for holding talks between military authorities.

How they will approach our proposal for the holding of talks between military authorities is a decisive standard in choosing between peace and war. No matter how heatedly they may babble about dialogue while refusing to accept our epochal peace proposal for the holding of talks between military authorities, they will never be able to embellish their ugly nature dreaming about confrontation rather than dialogue and detente and about war rather than peace.

Instead of blowing a false bugle, the United States and the South Korean side should respond to talks between military authorities without delay as urged by us. If the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets follow the road of doggedly ignoring our peaceful proposal and of endlessly straining tension, and of military confrontation and war adventures, they will never be able to abide greater curses and denunciation from the people at home and abroad for being the destroyers of dialogue and peace and being warmongers that bring fiery clouds of a nuclear holocaust.

KAYSONE PHOMVIHAN CONGRATULATES TRUONG CHINH

DEFENSE MINISTER'S CONDOLENCES ON LE DUAN DEATH

BK141417 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 0430 GMT 13 Jul 86

[July message of condolences from General Khamtai Siphandon, national defense minister of the LPDR, to General Van Tien Dung, member of CPV Central Committee Political Bureau and minister of national defense of the SRV, on death of Le Duan]

[Text] Beloved comrade minister: We are deeply saddened upon learning about the passing away of Comrade Le Duan, general secretary of the CPV Central Committee. On behalf of the LPDR National Defense Ministry and all cadres and combatants in the entire LPA, I would like to express profound condolences to you, comrade minister, and all fraternal cadres, party members, and combatants in the entire VPA.

Comrade Le Duan was an excellent leader of the CPV. He was the successor loyal to the noble and glorious cause of great president Ho Chi Minh. He was regarded as an indomitable fighter of the international communist movement as well as of the workers' movement and movements for national independence. He was a resolute activist who carried out activities for peace and friendship among various nations.

Over the past nearly 6 decades, Comrade Le Duan devoted his energy and intelligence to the national liberation cause and the cause of reunifying the national and led the Vietnamese nation in the march toward socialism. Throughout his revolutionary activities, Comrade Le Duan alaways showed his resolute perseverance and absolute loyalty to the party and to the interests of the nation and people.

He was a CPV leader who significantly contributed to laying out the strategy, plans, and policies of the Vietnamese revolution. Together with the Political Bureau and the Central Committee of the party, he led the people and the VPA to score continually great victories of historic and profound ephocal signifinance in the struggle against the French colonialists, the U.S. imperialists, and the Chinese big-nation expansionist-hegemonist reactionaries. Comrade Le Duan was an outstanding military leader. Throughout his long period of service as secretary of the party Central Military Commission, Comrade Le Duan made many outstanding contributions to the cause of struggle in the war and to the cause of building the VPA. He made very significant contributions to the military science of Vietnam. He was always concerned about the building of the national defense foundations for the entire people.

Comrade Le Duan was a great, close, and pure friend of the people of various tribes and the People's Army of Laos. He always paid attention to supporting and assisting the Lao revolution and the LPA. He mad very significant contributions to nourishing, promoting, and strengthening ever more fruitfully the Laos-Vietnam and the Laos-Vietnam-Cambodia militant alliance and all-round cooperation. The various Lao people's armed forces pledge to memorize the great meritorious deeds of Comrade Le Duan.

At the time of sorrow over the passing of Comrade Le Duan, on behalf of the LPDR National Defense Ministry and all cadres and combatats in the entire LPA, I would like to express condolences and to share sorrow with the national Defense Ministry and the fraternal Vietnamese people's armed forces. Our Lao people's armed forces are convinced that under the CPV's clear-sighted leadership, the Vietnamese people and the VPA will turn the sorrow into concrete revolutionary action and together march forward to score ever greater achievements in the cause of building socialism and defending their beloved socialist country to welcome the Sixth Congress of the CPV.

Learning the lofty, revolutionary spirit, qualifications, and style of Comrade Le Duan, the Lao various people's armed forces pledge to do their best to strengthen their solidarity and militant alliance with the fraternal Vietnamese Army and people and to further enhance the strength of the militant solidarity between Laos, Vietnam, and Cambodia to securely defend the revolutionary gains of the three countries and to build their prosperous and strong countries.

[Signed] Gen Khamtai Siphandon, minister of national defense of the LPDR.

VOFA REPORTS DEATH OF SRV'S LE DUAN

BK141445 Bangkok Voice of Free Asia in Vietnamese 1330 GMT 14 Jul 86

[Text] Mr Le Duan, general secretary of the CPV has passed away. It is reported by Vietnamese radio that Mr Le Duan, general secretary of the CPV, died of chronic kidney disease last Thursday. He was 79.

Mr Le Duan had suffered from chronic kidney disease for years. His illness had worsened for a little more than a month and he had gone to Moscow for medical treatment.

Mr Le Duan was a Vietnamese leader who played a major role in reunifying Vietnam and making war throughout the past 60 years, including the invasion of Cambodia in 1979. The Vietnamese forces have since continued their occupation of Cambodia.

FOREIGN MINISTRY REPORTS SRV BORDER VIOLATIONS

[Text] Vietenam violated Thailand's sovereignty and territorial integrity in a series of incidents from June 8 to July 4, the Foreign Ministry said yesterday.

During the period, more ehan 583 mortar, artillery and recoilless rifle rounds and rocket-propelled grenades were fired into Thailand by Vietnamese forces in Kampuchea. Some shells landed up to 10 kilometres inside Thai territory, said the ministry.

Four officials and villagers were killed and six injured by landmines planted on Thai soil by Vietnamese troops.

The ministry said between June 8-10, Vietnamese gunners lobbed 235 shells into Bo Rai and Muang districts of Trat, killing one Kampuchean refugee and seriously injuring a Thai villager.

During June 16-19, Vietnamese forces fired 119 shells into Ban Khlong Yai, Ban Phakkat, Ban Na and Ban Nonen Lanyai in Pong Namron District, Changhaburi, damaging several houses, said the ministry.

Six Vietnamese border incursions were reported, including one on June 4 when Vietnamese troops ambushed a Thai unit in Nam Yun District, Ubon Ratchathani, killing one soldier and seriously injuring four.

Vietnamese troops also attacked a bus in Trat Province on June 24, killing one official and wounding another.

The ministry said Vietnamese intruders had blown up a concrete bridge linking Muang and Khlong Yai districts in Trat on June 27.

MALAYSIA ASKED TO STOP SHOOTING THAI FISHERMEN

BK150115 Bangkok BANGKOK POST in English 15 Jul 86 p 1

[Text] The Foreign Ministry asked Malaysia yesterday to refrain from shooting at Thai fishermen.

The request was made in talks between Political Affairs Department director M.L. Thep Thewakun and Malaysian Embassy minister counsellor Ghazzali S.A. Khalid. A source said Mr Ghazzali was asked to meet M.L. Thep to discuss the shooting of Thai trawlers by Malaysian patrol boats on Wednesday.

The skipper of the Sincharoen 9 was killed and a crewman injured in the incident in which two patrol boats opened fire on a number of Thai trawlers near Kota Bharu.

The source said Thailand had told Malaysia it considered the action drastic and asked that a softer approach be adopted.

The NEW STRAITS TIMES said the Malaysian boats acted after reports that 50 Thai trawlers were poaching in waters off Kota Bharu.

The clashes occurred during the investigation in which 14 Thai fishermen were arrested and two boats, the Sincharoen 9 and the Charoen Samut 12, were seized.

The sources said a Malaysian court had already sentenced eight crewmen of the Charoen Samut 12. The skipper had been fined M$4,000 and six crewmen M$2,000 each. A 15-year-old boy was fined M$500.

The source said there were conflicting accounts of the incident. Malaysian officials claim the trawlers tried to ram the patrol boats and forced them to open fire.

The fisherman said they were trying to escape when the Malaysian patrol boat, in an attempt to block their escape, came in front of the boats and a crash seemed unavoidable.

Sitthi on Incident

BK141137 Bangkok SIAM RAT in Thai 14 Jul 86 pp 1, 12

[Text] Caretaker Foreign Minister Air Chief Marshal Sitthi Sawetsila said on 13 July that the Foreign Ministry has instructed its officials to try to pick up the body of the Thai fisherman who as killed when his boat was seized by Malaysian patrol boats while fishing in the waters bordering Thailand and Malaysia. Regarding a proposal by the Fisheries Department that the Foreign Ministry protest to the Malaysian Government over the Malaysian officials' overaction, Sitthi said he is awaiting details of the incident and hopes to have them soon. There have been conflicting claims -- the Malaysians said the Thai boat ran into their boat, while the Thai said the Malaysian patrol boat seized their boat, charging that it violated Malaysian waters. Sitthi said his ministry will try to resolve the matter.

The Thai and Malaysian Governments have been negotiating petroleum exploration in the area in question.

On 8 July, two Thai fishing boats -- "Sincharoen 9" with seven crewmen and "Sinsamut" with eight crewmen were fishing in the waters between the Tak Bai District of Thailand's Narathiwat Province and Tumpat District of Malaysia's Kelantan Province when they were seized by Malaysian patrol boats on charges of violating Malaysian waters. Bunthian Chaophut, "Sincharoen 9" captain, was beaten and died after his ship was seized and another crewman suffered serious injuries and was hospitalized at the Kota Baru hospital.

HUMAN RIGHTS GROUPS DENY LINKS WITH CPT

[Text] Human rights groups yesterday denied that they have connections with the Communist Party of Thailand (CPT) as alleged by a top security official.

Three of the seven groups operating under the umbrella of the Coordinating Committee of Human Rights Organizations (CCHRO) said there are no members of the CPT in their groups.

The groups were reacting to an interview given by Squadron Leader Prasong Sunsiri, secretary general of National Security Council (NSC), to local newspapers on Monday, in which he was quoted as saying that several human rights groups "have been infiltrated and manipulated by communists."

They also quoted Prasong as saying that he had ordered an investigation to find out the number of former CPT memers working with the groups.

Members of the three groups declined to directly comment on Prasong's statements since there has yet to be a formal meeting of the CCHRO to discuss the matter. However, they said it is unlikely that there will be any statement of the groups to rebut Prasong.

Members of the other four groups could not be contacted by phone.

The seven groups are the major bodies dealing with human rights violations in Thailand. They are Union for Civil Liberty, Coordinating Group of Religions for Societies, Friends of Women, Hotline (Asia and the Pacific), Justice and Peace Commission of Thailand, Centre for Protection of Children Rights, and Foundation for Children Development.

Meanwhile, Santi Isrowuthaku, group convener of members of Amnesty International in Thailand, said there is no connection between the group members amounting to 30 persons with the CPT.

Prasong told reporters on Friday that the London-based Amnesty made contacts with two former members of the CPT upon the organization's investigation into the alleged torture of three Kampuchean refugees by Thai officials at Khao I Dang camp in Prachin Buri.

Santi said he could not confirm whether Amnesty contacted the CPT since the group's members would not be informed or be allowed to take part in the incident the organization is campaigning in Thailand. [sentence as published]

Amnesty has been voicing concern over the reported torture of the three Khmer refugees by officials ofthe Task Force 80 which controls Khao I-Dang. However, Prasong stood firm on his denial of the allegation.

Amnesty International is renowed for its neutrality in investigating cases of human rights violations both in socialist and democratic countries. It won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1977 for its contribution to "securing the ground for freedom, for justice, nd thereby also for peace in the world," according to the prize's citation.

The government in 1980 announced a policy to admit former members of the CPT who had lived in the jungle back to the society.

AMNESTY WORKER ON ALLEGATIONS

BK130625 Bangkok THE NATION in English 13 Jul 86 p 3

[Text] The Bangkok branch of the London-based Amnesty International yesterday denied involvement in or knowledge of the work of Amnesty International workers who were alleged to have reported a torture case at Khao-I-Dang holding centre to its headquarters.

Santi Isrowuthaku, group convener of the Thai branch, said that the branch members are prohibited by its regulations from collecting information or campaigning against human rights violations in the host country. All overseas branches of the human rights organization campaign against human rights violations in countries outside their host countries, he said. The branches are responsible to the Campaign and Membership Department of the headquarters.

Amnesty International, however, has a research department, which has its own sources in various countries to collect information and investigate human rights violations.

"We work separately and do not know about each other," Santi said.

RICE EXPORTS AFFECTED BY PRC DEVALUATION

BK140225 Bangkok THE NATION in English 14 Jul 86 p 19

[Text] The decision by the Chinese government to devalue its currency by 15 percent earlier this month has adversely affected Thai rice exports particularly to the Brazilian and Peruvian markets, trade sources told THE NATION Friday.

The devaluation has enabled the Chinese to export rice at lower prices of between U.S. $15-17 per ton compared to Thai rice. For example, China was able to sell 25 percent rice to Brazil and Peru at only U.S.$148-150 per ton.

"A forthnight ago, Agropec, a representative of Brazil, contacted Thai rice exporters to buy 25 percent Thai rice at U.S.$144 per ton but the whole deal fell through after the Chinese offered a lower price," he disclosed.

He said he was informed that Brazil has purchased 100,000 tons of rice from China and ECASA of Peru another 100,000 tons.,

The competitiveness of Chinese rice will have a major effect on Thai exports of low quality rice for which Thailand has the largest market share. Since the Farm Act was introduced export of low quality rice from this country has risen at the expense of high quality rice which suffered a 50 percent drop in export volume. But now, the market for low quality rice dominated by Thailand is being challenged by China.

A source in the Thai Rice Exporters Association has advised that the government should review trade relations with China in this context. China recently offered to barter Thai rice in tune of 12,500 tons in return for humid acid -- an offer received favourably by the Thai side. But since then China has bitten into our rice export share through sales to Brazil and Peru amounting to 200,000 tons and this must not go unnoticed.

In a related development, the orders for five percent parboiled rice have somewhat helped to push up domestic prices of this variety. The market for other kinds of rice however has been quiet for the past three weeks.

Continental Overseas, a U.S. broker, has ordered 15,000 tons of five percent parboiled rice from Thai Maparn Trading and Kitiporn Co at FOB price of U.S. $140 per ton while french-based Active SA has placed an order for the similar kind of rice from Siam Rice Trading Co. The amount of 10,500 tons was at FOB price of U.S.$136 per ton.

Prasong on Refuge Repatriation, Closing Camp

BK130914 Bangkok Domestic Service in English 0000 GMT 13 Jul 86

[Text] Thailand has called for greater efforts for voluntary repatriation of Indochinese refugees. The call was made on Friday by secretary general of the National Security Council Squadron Leader Prasong Sunsiri during the annual meeting of the Committee for coordination of Services to Displaced Persons in Thailand whose members are relief agencies helping the Indochinese refugees here. The meeting was also attended by Thai authorities and embassy officials of the resettlement countries.

Squadron Leader Prasong said that he believed resettlement alone cannot provide a permanent solution to the refugee problem. He stressed that these displaced persons posses the right to return safely to their roots, the right to freedom, and to decide their own future without outside intervention.

Squadron Leader Prasong said Thailand will assist refugees in accordance with humanitarian principles so long as it does not adversely affect Thai interests. He emphasized that Thailand will not allow permanent residence for refugees.

Referring to the Khmer refugees in Khao I-dang camp, Squadron Leader Prasong said that resettlement from the center has been insignificant and slow, and therefore, the camp could be closed by the end of the year.

Supreme Command On Totals For Cambodian Refugees

[Text] According to the Supreme Command Information Office, during the week 27 June-3 July 24, 788 Cambodians fled to the Khao I-Dang temporary center for illegal immigrants in Ta Phraya District, Prachin Buri Province.

In addition, a total of 257,436 Cambodians fled the war in their country to border camps in Thailand. Of this number, 54,496 are in the northern section of the Thai-Cambodian border (Surin and Sisaket Provinces), 170,376 are in the central section of the border (Prachin Buri Province -- including 140,279 at site 2 in Ta Phraya District and 30,097 at site 8 in Khlong Hat subdistrict -- and 32,564 are in the southern section of the border (Chanthaburi and Trat Provinces).

WESTERN OBSERVERS CITED ON TRUONG CHINH ELECTION

BK141458 Hong Kong AFP in English 1449 GMT 14 Jul 86

[By Laurent Maillard]

[Excerpts] Hanoi, July 14 (AFP) -- Truong Chinh has been elected general secretary of the Vietnamese Communist Party to succeed veteran leader Le Duan who died last week, it was announced here Monday. [passage omitted]

Mr. Truong Chinh's election to the leading post in the party and Vietnam had been widely anticipated here, although observers generally agreed his tenure at the top was likely to last only until a "definitive" leader was chosed at a Communist congress later this year.

In his speech, he underlined the need for a "well-prepared" party congress as local and provincial party officials hold preparatory meetings across Vietnam in the coming weeks.

He also called for "definition of the party's political objectives" and a resolution of "questions of personalities," an apparent reference to an expected departure during the congress of at least some of the party's "old guard." Western observers said there had been signs in recent months that Vietnam's three "historic leaders" -- Mr Le Duan, Mr. Truong Chinh and Premier Pham Van Dong -- were to relinquish some of their power before the party congress in order to pave the way for a smooth transition to younger leaders.

Although the political and economic course the country would follow in the coming years seemed firmly set, the party had apparently been unable to reach agreement on the younger team best suited to lead the way, observers said. In electing Mr. Truong Chinh as stop-gap party chief, the party has once again delayed the decision on a new leadership, they said.

Mr. Truong Chinh also stressed his will to tackle "urgent socio-economic problems" as quickly as possible by continuing major reforms that have been in effect for the past year. The country's continuing economic problems have led to a crisis of confidence between the people and the party leadership, admitted by the leadership themselves.

(In Bangkok, a U.S. diplomat said he was "surprised" at the choice due to Mr. Truong Chinh's advanced age and conservative policies. He described Mr. Truong Chinh as the "most conservative and most orthodox" of the Vietnamese leaders and said his choice showed that Hanoi was "more hidebound and rigid than we had thought." The choice was a "sign that we have little to expect in terms of reform from the party congress," the U.S. diplomat said.)

In Hanoi, observers said that Mr. Truong Chinh had been seen as a hardliner 30 years ago, when he led the party's pro-Maoist faction. But they agreed that his selection was unlikely to lead to any major internal or foreign policy changes, all the more because of a tradition of collective leadership since the death of Ho Chi Minh which gives the party general secretary the status of "first among equals."

While his ascension to the top party post has come late in life and will probably be short-lived, the promotion is no doubt gratifying for the man who lost his position as Mr. Ho's heir apparent to Mr. Le Duan in 1956. Mr. Truong Chinh fell from grace that year after the disastrous failure of agricultural reform policies he was held responsible for, observers here said.

Biography of Truong Chinh

BK141352 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 1100 GMT 14 Jul 86

[Brief biography of Comrade Truong Chinh, general secretary of the CPV Central Committee and chairman of the SRV Council of State]

[Text] Comrade Truong Chinh, general secretary of the CPV Central Committee and chairman of the SRV Council of State, was born on 9 February 1907. He is a native of Hanh Thien village in Xuan Truong District of Nam Dinh Province, now Xuan Hong village in Xuan Thuy District of Ha Nam Ninh Province.

In 1925, Comrade Truong Chinh took part in the campaign demanding that the French colonialists grant amnesty to Phan Boi Chau, a patriot, and in 1926 he was one of the leaders of a school boycott in remembrance of the late patriot Phan Tu Trinh in Nam Dinh. After this boycott, he was expelled from the school.

In 1927, he joined the Vietnamese Revolutionary Youth League, a forerunner of the Indochinese Communist Party. In 1929, he participated in the campaign for establishment of the Indochinese Communist Party in North Vietnam. In 1930, he was appointed to the Central Propaganda and Education Committee of the Indochinese Community Party. Later that year, he was arrested by the imperialists and sentenced to 12 years imprisonment and deported to Son La.

In late 1936, thanks to the success of the French Popular Front and to the movement of the Vietnamese people to struggle for democratic rights and the release of political prisoners, he was released. From late 1936 to 1939, he carried out legal and semi-legal activities in Hanoi, and was a member of the North Vietnam regional party committee and a delegate of the Indochinese Communist Party in the North Vietnam Democratic Front Committee.

When World War II broke out, he switched to underground activities. In 1940, he was editor in chief of the paper GIAI PHONG, an organ of the North Vietnam regional party committee. At the Seventh Plenum of the Indochinese Communist Party Central Committee, he was appointed to the party Central Committee.

In 1941, at the eighth party Central Committee plenum, he was elected general secretary of the party Central Committee, member of the standing body of the party Central Committee, and head of the Propaganda and Training Department and concurrently editor in chief of the paper CO GIA PHONG, a central organ of the party, and TAP CHI CONG SAN, a political and theoretical organ of the party, and head of the party Central Committee Public Proselytizing Department.

In 1943, he was sentenced to death in absentia by the French colonialist military court in Hanoi. In 1945 he was in charge of the national uprising committee set up by the party Central Committee. In 1951, at the second party congress, he was reelected to the party Central Committee and became general secretary of the Vietnam Workers Party Central Committee. At this congress, the Indochinese Communist Party was renamed the Vietnam Workers Party.

In 1953, he was head of the party Central Committee Land Reform Department. In 1958, he was vice premier of the government and concurrently chairman of the state Science Commission. In 1960, at the Third Party Congress, the comrade was reelected to the party Central Committee as the member of the Political Bureau in charge of National Assembly affairs.

In 1976, at the fourth party congress, the comrade was reelected to the CPV Central Committee. At this congress, the Vietnam Labor Party was renamed the Communist Party of Vietnam. The comrade served as the member of the Political Bureau in charge of the party Central Committee's Department for Research on Party History and the Theoretical Department.

In 1976, the comrade was elected chairman of the SRV National Assembly's Constitution Drafting committee. The comrade was a deputy in the National Assembly in its second (1960-64), third (1964-71), fourth (1971-75), fifth (1975-76), sixth (1976-1981), and seventh (1981-present) terms. From the second to the sixth terms, the comrade served as chairman of the National Assembly Standing Committee.

In 1981, the comrade was elected by the National Assembly as chairman of the SRV Council of State. In 1982, at the Fifth Party Congress, the comrade was re-elected to the CPV Central Committee as a member of the Political Bureau.

On 14 July 1986, the comrade was elected by a special plenum of the CPV Central Committee as general secretary of the party Central Committee.

In 1982, the comrade was awarded the Order of Lenin by the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet for his positive participation in the revolutionary movement and for his great contributions to developing and strengthening the fraternal friendship and comprehensive cooperation between the two countries -- the USSR and SRV. In 1982, the comrade was presented the National Gold Order by Laos. In 1982, the comrade was awarded the (Sukhe Baatar) Order by the Presidium of the MPRP National Assembly. In 1982, the comrade was presented the Angkor Order by the PRK party and state.

TRUONG CHINH, USSR RYZHKOV-LED DELEGATIONS MEET

OW141738 Hanoi VNA in English 1719 GMT 14 Jul 86

[Text] Hanoi VNA July 14 -- A Vietnamese party and state delegation led by Truong Chinh, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of Vietnam and president of the State Council, held talks at the presidential palace here today with a Soviet party and government delegation led by N.I. Ryzhkov, Politburo member of the CPSU Central Committee, and chairman of the Council of Ministers, now on a visit to Vietnam.

The talks were attended on the Vietnamese side by Pham Van Dong, Politburo member of the party CC, chairman of the council of Ministers; Vo Chi Cong, Politburo member of the party CC, vice-chairman of the Council of Ministers; Nguyen Van Linh, Politburo member, Secretary of the party CC; Do Muoi, Politburo member of the party CC, vice-chairman of the Council of Ministers; Tran Xuan Bach, secretary of the party CC; Vu Quang, member of the party CC and head of its international department; Nguyen Van Trong, deputy-head of the party CC International Department; and Hoang Bich Son, vice minister for foreign affairs.

On the Soviet side were A.F. Dobrynin, secretary of the party CC and head of its international commission; B.N. Chaplin, alternate member of the party CC, vice-minister for foreign affairs; M.N. Smirnovsky, deputy-head of the party CC International Commission; and I.N. Myakotnykh, Soviet charge d'affairs a.i. in Vietnam.

The two sides informed each other of the situation in their countries and exchanged views on international and regional issues. The Vietnamese party and state leaders expressed their deep gratitude to the Soviet leadership and M.S. Gorbachev, general secretary of the CPSU Central committee, for having sent a high-level delegation to Vietnam, expressing their respect for the late General Secretary Le Duan.

On behalf of the Soviet party and government delegation, N.I. Ryzhkov congratulated Truong Chinh on his election as general secretary of the CPV CC. He wished general secretary Truong Chinh success in the noble mission entrusted him by the party.

During the talks, the two sides reaffirmed the strategic line of the CPSU and the CPV aimed at developing and strengthening the unshakeable friendly ties and cooperation between the Soviet Union and Vietnam on the basis of the Vietnam-USSR treaty of friendship and cooperation, consolidating the unity of the socialist community on the unchangeable basis of Marxism-Leninism and socialist internationalism.

The Vietnamese side informed the Soviet side of the preparations for the Sixth CPV Congress, of the creative labour of the Vietnamese people and of the achievements in building the material and technical foundation of a socialist society. It made an appraisal of the present stage of the socio-economic development in Vietnam and presented a plan of overcoming the present difficulties.

The Soviet side informed the Vietnamese side of the implementation of the resolution of the 27th CPSU Congress concerning the domestic and foreign policies. The CPSU has marshalled the creative efforts of the entire party and people in fully and effectively utilizing the material and spiritual potentials of the socialist regime.

The Vietnamese party and state leaders stressed: "We note that the relations of friendship and all-round cooperation between Vietnam and the Soviet Union have been strongly consolidated and developed in all fields -- political, economic, cultural and social. Continuing the cause of president Ho Chi Minh and Comrade Le Duan, we once again reaffirm that promoting our close solidarity and comprehensive cooperation with the Soviet Union has been and will always be the cornerstone of our party's foreign policy".

The talks took place in a sincere and comradely atmosphere and in complete mutual understanding.

REPORTAGE ON LE DUAN FUNERAL, FINAL TRIBUTES

Truong Chinh Speaks

BK150155 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 2333 GMT 14 Jul 86

[Speech by Truong Chinh, CPV Central Committee general secretary, at 15 July Hanoi memorial service for late CPV Central Committee General Secretary Le Duan -- live]

[Text] Dear comrades and friends, Comrade Le Duan, general secretary of the CPV Central Committee -- an outstanding leader of the party and a loyal son of the people -- has left us forever. This is a great loss for our entire party and people.

A member of the party's vanguard and a talented pupil of respected and beloved President Ho Chi Minh, Comrade Le Duan devoted his entire life to the liberation of the nation and the reunification of the fatherland, to the freedom of happiness of the people, and to the ideals of communism.

His active life over the past nearly 60 years was closely linked with the development of the revolution in our country from the 1920's to the 1980's. He participated in activities in all parts of the country -- north, central, and south -- and dealt with all kinds of challenges and difficulties, always staying in close contact with cadres, soldiers, and the working people.

In the late 1930's, till his death, he was an important leader of the party; and beginning in 1960, as first secretary and then general secretary of the party Central Committee, he made major contributions to the party's leadership, advancing our people's revolutionary undertaking from one victory to another. His unconventional ideals and goals were for national independence and reunification and the people's right to mastery over the country, society, and their own lives.

As a genuine Marxist-Leninist, he always thought about the actual situation and analyzed and resolved new problems arising from life. His clear-sightedness was strikingly reflected at the turning points of history and in complicated circumstances. His confidence remained very firm in the face of successes as well as temporary setbacks for the revolution -- during its rising tide as well as its ebbing tide. During the dark years under the neocolonial system of the U.S. imperialists in the south, he had a clear vision of the possibility of the people winning victory through the masses' concerted uprising.

Together with the Political Bureau and the party Central Committee led by the great President Ho Chi Minh, he defined the lines and policies for the wars of resistance for national liberation and defense, developed the Vietnamese revolutionary military science, defeated the wars of aggression by imperialism and other international reactionary forces, and vigorously promoted the world peoples' struggle against imperialism and colonialism for independence and freedom.

Since the total liberation of the south and the reunification of the fatherland that allowed for the entire country to advance toward socialism, he helped clariy many theoretical and practical issues with a view to defining and perfecting the line of the socialist revolution in our country in order to enable it -- a backward agricultural country -- to advance directly to socialism without passing through the stage of capitalist development.

Upholding the banner of national independence and socialism, he persistently observed the principle of combining the strength of the nation with the strength of our times and domestic strength with international strength to carry out the two strategic tasks of building and defending the fatherland.

Comrade Le Duan's contributions to the revolutionary cause of our party and people are truly great.

Through his long service and great activities, Comrade Le Duan has set a valuable example for the Vietnamese people, especially the communists, of boundless faithfulness to the noble interests of the fatherland and the people and the lofty communist ideology. His noble revolutionary ethics gave rise to his consistent spirit of revolutionary offensive. Faced with ordeals in imperialist prisons, prolonged hardship in various war zones, and difficulties during years of activities in areas temporarily controlled by the enemy, Comrade Le Duan always maintained his staunch energy, showed his readiness to sacrifice his life for the fatherland's independence and freedom and the people's happiness.

Comrade Le Duan led a faithful and simple life, staying close to the people and showing his warm love and sincerity for everyone. He always listened to the people's ideas and paid attention to their aspirations. He valued highly the people's experiences in order to formulate positions and policies based on these valuable experiences.

Comrade Le Duan was a great compatriot and a genuine international communist. Throughout his life he followed the example of President Ho Chi Minh, paying attention and contributing to consolidating and strengthening international solidarity between revolutionary and progressive forces in the world in the common struggle for peace, national independence, democracy, and socialism. Following the path of the great Lenin and the October Revolution, he consistently tried to foster and strengthen the special friendship, militant solidarity, and comprehensive cooperation with the Soviet Union and develop a special alliance between Vietnam and fraternal Laos and Cambodia and with other countries of the socialist community. He consistently paid attention to and studied international revolutionary experiences and kept himself well informed of international developments.

Comrade Le Duan has left us for good, but his memory will live forever in our party's and people's revolutionary cause. The history of our country will forever confirm his great services and outstanding contributions. His examples will help light the way for us forever.

Dear respected and beloved Comrade Le Duan, we respectfully bow down to bid our last farewell to you and share the grief of your family. We pledge to do our best to strengthen unity and singlemindedness within the entire party, people, and army around the party Central Committee and the Political Bureau, strive to overcome the immediate difficulties, stabilize the situation in all respects, care for the people's life, develop the working people's right to collective mastery, step up the three revolutions, carry our socialist industrialization, and realize the two strategic tasks of successfully building socialism and firmly defending the socialist fatherland of Vietnam with a view to leading our people's glorious revolutionary cause to final victory.

Burial Ceremony Held

[Report on 15 July Hanoi burial service for late CPV General Secretary Le Duan]

[Summary] Following the memorial service for Comrade General Secretary Le Duan, the burial ceremony was also held with full pomp. "With boundless sorrow, Comrades Truong Chinh, general secretary of the CPV Central Committee and chairman of the Council of State; Pham Van Dong, member of the Political Bureau and chairman of the Council of Ministers; and other comrades of the Political Bureau and the party Central Committee Secretariat personally carried Comrade Le Duan's casket to the caisson.

Under an overcast sky, the funeral procession proceeded slowly from the Ba Dinh Square; passed through Chu Van An, Nguyen Thai Hoc, Giang Vo, and Cau Giay Streets; and reached the Mai Dich Cemetery -- the final resting place of comrade General Secretary Le Duan.

The procession was led by a vehicle carrying a portrait of Comrade Le Duan held by tow members of the honor guard, followed by another vehicle carrying the various orders and military standards testifying to the great, meriotorious services rendered by Comrade Le Duan to the party and people as well as to his great contributions to strengthening militant solidarity and to peace and progress in the world. Next were the vehicles carrying representatives of VPA units in ceremonial uniform and vehicles laden with wreaths sent by the various party organizations, provinces, municiplaities, sectors, and ministries from throughout the country and by delegations of the parties and governments of fraternal countries and diplomatic missions.

"Then came the caisson with Comrade Le Duan's casket, which was in a bright red lacquer and draped with the national flag. Seen next were the vehicles carrying Comrade Le Duan's relatives; Comrades Truong Chinh, Pham Van Dong, and many other leading comrades of the party, state, front, and various sectors and branches at the central level and in Hanoi; and representatives of the country's 40 provinces, municipalities, and the special zone."

Lining up on both sides of the nearly 10-km route from Ba Dinh Square to the Mai Dich Cemetery were more than 100,000 people of all walks of life in the capital -- their faces showing portrait -- bidding their last farewell to respected and beloved Comrade Le Duan.

The vehicle carrying Comrade Le Duan's casket slowly approached the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in the Mai Dich Cemetery. The casket was respectly placed by members of the honor guard onto a wooden stand in front of the National Service Monument, where Comrade Le Duan's portrait, together with an incense burner and two candles, had been laid out on a table covered with red cloth. The whole cemetery was imbued with an atmosphere of boundless sorrow as the "Requiem for Fallen Soldiers" was played.

At 0750 [0050 GMT] precisely, the burial ceremony officially began. Members of the honor guard stood at attention, and Comrade Le Duan's casket was slowly carried toward the grave site to the right of the National Service Monument "Conrades Truong Chinh, Pham Van Dong, Le Duc Tha, and many other leaders of our party and state walked closely beside Comrade Le Duan's casket. After the casket had been lowered into the grave, they threw in the first clods of earth as a gesture of final farewell to Comrade Le Duan."

At 0800 sharp, the participants at Comrade Le duan's burial ceremony observed a 1st minute of silence. A final farewell was given to Comrade Le Duan in the form of a 21-gun salute.

The same day, delegations of public offices and mass organizations in the Soviet capital came to the Vietnamese Embassy to pay last homage to the deceased general secretary.

HCM Acting Secretary' Tribute

BK150143 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 2300 GMT 14 Jul 86

[Text] Immediately after being informed of Comrade General Secretary Le Duan's passing away, the Standing Committee of the Ho Chi Minh City Party Committee met and decided to set up a funeral committee with Comrade Mai Chi Tho, member of the party Central Committee and acting secretary of the City's party committee, as its head. The city's party committee also issued a circular to provide guidance for party and administrative organizations at all levels and all organs and enterprises in organizing memorial services for Comrade Le Duan with grand and respectful ceremonies and in preparing for party congresses at all echelons by taking practical action.

The Standing Committee of the city's party committee also instructed the progaganda and training section, the section for research on the party's history, and various information and press organs of the city to organize activities to introduce to the public the great services rendered by Comrade Le Duan to the revolutionary cause of the entire country in general and to the revolution in South Vietnam and Ho Chi Minh City in particular, and to motivate all cadres, party members, and masses to emulate the shining example of Comrade Le Duan's devotion and sacrifice and to stay united around the party Central Committee so as to fulfill the current pressing tasks as best they can.

Ho Chi Minh City held a ceremony to pay homage to Comrade General Secretary Le Duan at the Thong Nhat Conference Hall. The delegation of the city's party committee headed by Comrade Mai Chi Tho noted in the funeral book: Boundless grief over the passing away of Comrade Le Duan, the outstanding leader of our party and people, whose revolutionary life was closely linked with the Nam Bo people. Comrade Le Duan outstandingly led the anti-French war of resistance in Nam Bo and shared the hardships and overcome all stormy trials together with the Nam Bo party organization and people during the 1954-1957 period. He always paid attention to leading and guiding the city's party organizations in all periods -- from the anti-French war of resistance up to the present. To remember his great services, we pledge to act upon his instructions and advice so as to be worthy of his solicitous concern and of the city that bears the name of Uncle Ho.

Foreign Press Praises Le Duan

OW130805 Hanoi VNA in English 0708 GMT 13 Jul 86

[Text] Hanoi VNA July 13 -- The Soviet papers PRAVDA and IZVESTIYA on July 11 published a common article about General Secretary of the Communist Party of Vietnam Le Duan under the title "An Outstanding Son of the Vietnamese People".

The Lao daily PASASON, organ of the Lao People's Revolutionary Party, in an editorial on July 12 praised Le Duan's revolutionary activities and reaffirmed the determination of the Lao party, government and people to constantly develop the special solidarity, great friendship, militant alliance and comprehensive cooperation with Vietnam as well as friendship and cooperation with the Soviet Union and other socialist countries.

The paper also expressed the Lao people's determination to smash all acts of sabotage and division by the enemy, and successfully fulfill their tasks as practical deeds to greet the 4th congress of the Lao People's Revolutionary Party.

The Kampuchean national biweekly PRACHEACHUN on July 11 frontpaged comrade Le Duan's portrait together with an editorial saying:

"Comrade Le Duan has fulfilled his noble mission. He has departed from us but his image and thoughts will live forever in the glorious cause of the party and people of Vietnam. His wish to build a socialist and mighty Vietnam with a happy life for the people will certainly become true".

In the German Democratic Republic, the NEUES DEUTSCHLAND, BERLIN and TRIBUNE on July 11 carried Le Duan's portrait and articles highlighting his great contributions to the revolutionary cause of the Vietnamese people and of other peoples.

The Cuban news agency PRENSA LATINA on July 10 said that Le Duan was "one of the most prominent activists in the recent history of Southeast Asia". "Comrade Le Duan's life was one of very diversified activities taking place in decisive stages, contributing to strengthening the national independence, territorial integrity and sovereignty of the Vietnamese people," PRENSA LATINA commented.

The daily RUDE PRAVO of the Communist Party of Czechoslovakia on July 11 said Le Duan's glorious accomplishments can be seen in the noble awards conferred on him including the Klement Gottwald Order of Czechoslovakia, the Lenin Order of the Soviet Union and the prize "for the promotion of peace among nations" of the International Lenin Prize Committee.

In its editorial, the Indian paper PATRIOT on July 12 wrote:

"The death of Le Duan, secretary-general of the Communist Party of Vietnam, has removed one of the most towering personalities Asia's national liberation movements placed on the stage of contemporary history. He was a sincere architect of India-Vietnam friendship and cooperation among the states of Indochina and peace in Southeast Asia.

"It was a shining example of the astute leadership of Le Duan that, on the morrow of the country's liberation, the reunification of Vietnam was accomplished".

The statement of the Bangladesh Communist Party wrote: "The international communist movement will forever remember Comrade Le Duan as an international fighter for peace, democracy and progress all over the world".

The Algerian paper EL MOUDJAHID on July 11 wrote: "General Secretary Le Duan, a close comrade of President Ho Chi Minh, was one of the heroes of the struggle for national independence against the French and U.S. imperialist forces".

On the night of Le Duan's death, July 10, the Swedish Television beamed documentary films about the Vietnamese leader. The commentary said: "Le Duan was a successor to the revolutionary cause of President Ho Chi Minh and a leader who led the Vietnamese people to defeat the U.S. war of aggression and reunify the country."

Mourning in Algiers

The delegation of the National Liberation Front (FLN) party and the Government of Algeria was headed by Mohamed Cherif Messaadia, member of the political Bureau, and head of the Secretariat, of the FLN Party Central Committee.

He wrote in the mourners' book: "On behalf of President Chadli Bendjedid and all FLN party members, I wish to extend to the Communist Party of Vietnam Central Committee, to all party members and Comrade Le Duan's comrades-in-arms, our deep grief over the death of the man who had fought for his own country which was also for freedom, progress and human dignity all over the world..."

Paying homage to the Vietnamese leader were also the delegations of the General Union of Algerian Trade Unions and the Algerian Peasant's Union diplomatic missions and representations of communist parties and national liberation movements in Algiers.

VNA Biography of Le Duan

OW101629 Hanoi VNA in English 1602 GMT 10 Jul 86

[Text] Hanoi VNA July 10 -- Following is the biography of Le Duan, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of Vietnam, who died here this morning at the age of 79.

Comrade Le Duan was born on April 7, 1907 at Hau Kien village, Trieu Thanh commune, Trieu Phong district, Quang Tri province (now Binh Tri Thien province). Born into a family of working people with a tradition of patriotism he was early awakened to the revolutionary cause.

Comrade Le Duan was among the first generation to respond to the appeal of Comrade Nguyen Ai Quoc (President Ho Chi Minh) to follow the revolutionary path of Marxism-Leninism. He joined the Vietnam Revolutionary Youth Association in 1928 and in 1930 became one of the first members of the Indochinese Communist Party. In 1931 he was a member of the Propaganda and Training Commission of the Regional Party Committee for Tonkin (North Vietnam) and the same year he was arrested in Haiphong by the French colonialist, sentenced to 20 (twenty) years of imprisonment and was detained in the prisons of Hanoi, Son La and Con Dao (Poulo Condor).

In these prisons, together with other members of the communist party he led the struggles against the harsh prison regime and organised political studies among the prisoners.

In 1936 due to the struggle of the Vietnamese people and the success of the Popular Front in France the colonial administration in Indochina was forced to release many Vietnamese revolutionaries including Le Duan. Immediately after his release, Le Duan engaged in active revolutionary activities in the central Vietnam provinces, implemented the party Central Committee's decision to found the Indochinese Democratic Front aimed at mobilizing and rallying the masses for the struggle against the colonial reactionaries and against the fascist and war danger. In 1937 Le Duan was apponted secretary of the Regional Party Committee for Central Vietnam and from then to 1939 his active activities made an important contribution to taking the revolution to a high tide throughout the country.

In 1939 Le Duan was appointed to the Standing Committee of the party Central Committee and later that year together with Nguyen Van Cu, secretary general of the party, he chaired the 6th Plenary Meeting of the party Central Committee which decided to found the Indochinese anti-imperialist front in replacement of the Democratic Front, switching the revolutioanry struggle to a new period.

In 1940 he was again arrested, this time in Saigon, and was given ten years imprisonment and deported to Con Dao (Poulo Condor) for the second time until the success of the August Revolution in 1945 when he was welcomed back to the mainland by the party and government and joined the resistance in the south.

In 1946 he went to Hanoi and worked beside President Ho Chi Minh, contributing together with the party Central Committee to preparing for the anti-French war of resistance. Later that year he was assigned by President Ho and the party Central Committee to lead the resistance in the south. At the 2nd National Congress of the party in 1951 he was elected to the Central Committee and the Political Bureau. From 1946 to 1954 in his position as secretary of the Regional Party Committee for South Vietnam, then secretary of the party Central Commission for the south, he led the southern party organization in organizing the resistance in the south and carrying out the land reform in the liberated zones.

From 1954 to 1957, following the Geneva Agreement, Le Duan stayed back in the south to lead the revolutionary movement. During those extremely difficult years he lived among the people and under their protection, operating in remote rural areas and in urban centres to consolidate the revolutionary bases in preparation for the fight against the American inventionists.

In 1957 the party Central Committee appointed him to lead the general affairs of the party beside President Ho Chi Minh. In 1960, at the 3rd National Congress of the party, on behalf of the Central Committee Le Duan presented the political report in which he pointed out the two strategic tasks of the revolution, i.e. carrying out the socialist revolution in the north and completing the national people's democratic revolution in the south, combining the revolution in both zones with a view to completing national liberation and achieving national reunification. At this congress, he was again elected to the Central Committee and to the Political Bureau and named to the post of first secretary of the party and secretary of the Central Party Commission for the Vietnam People's Army.

Throughout the fifteen years at these posts, in the conditions of the country experiencing extremely serious trials and in a very complicated development of the international situation, Le Duan together with the Political Bureau and the Central Committee persisted in the line of independence and sovereignty while enlisting international aid, assistance and solidarty, clearsightedly leading the people and the revolutionary armed forces throughout the country to defeat the U.S. aggressors and their henchmen, liberate the south, reunify the country and take the whole country in the advance to socialism.

At the 4th National Congress of the party in 1976 and the 5th National Congress in 1982 Le Duan was again elected to the Central Committee and the Political Bureau and was made general secretary.

At the 4th Party Congress, the political report of the party Central Committee presented by Le Duan summed up the victory of the anti-U.S. resistance and laid down the general line of the socialist revolution in the country.

At the 5th National Congress of the party, on behalf of the party Central Committee, Le Duan presented the political report, pointing to the two strategic tasks, i.e. successfully building socialism and firmly defending the socialist mother-land, at the same time laying down the economic strategy in the first stage of the transitional period.

For more than ten years now, uniting around the Central Committee led by Le Duan, the Vietnamese people and army have fought courageously and won victories in two wars of national defence against the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists and their agents on the southwestern and northern borders, and achieving important successes in the economic rehabilitation, transformation and development and cultural development along the socialist line.

An excellent and close disciple of beloved Comrade Ho Chi Minh, Comrade Le Duan was an eminent leader of the party and a creative and imaginative theoretician endowed with valuable virtues, especially his profound humanism, simple manners and modesty. In his international activities Le Duan made an important contribution to building and consolidating the special solidarity among Vietnam, Laos, and Kamuchea, consolidating and developing Vietnam's all-round cooperation and fraternal friendship with the Soviet Union and the other countruies in the socialist community, to the persistent struggle to preserve the purity of Marxism-Leninism. Strengthen the militant solidarity within the international communist and workers' movement and the national liberation movement. [sentence as received]

Le Duan was a deputy to the National Assembly from the 2nd to the present 7th legislature.

In view of his great contributions, the party and state have awarded him the Sao Vang (Gold Star) Order. Many fraternal countries like the Soviet Union, Laos, Kampuchea, Poland, Bulgaria, Cuba, the German Democratic Republic, Hungary, Mongolia, and Czechoslovakia have also conferred many high distinctions on him. The international Lenin Prize Committee has conferred on him the prize "for the consolidation of peace among nations."

Le Duan's Writing Praised

[Text] Hanoi VNA Jul 12 -- "Comrade Le Duan, an excellent disciple of the great President Ho Chi Minh, is a creative Marxist-Leninist and a great theoretician, who made valuable contributions to building the theory of the Vietnamese revolution," says NHAN DAN in an article today.

NHAN DAN contineus: "His first work published by the Su That (Truth) publishing house in 1955 was 'method of propagating the party's policies to the masses'. Since then 142 book tities written by him have been published with a total of 17,280 pages and 5,125,000 copies.

"In 1965 when the U.S. directly invaded South Vietnam, President Ho Chi Minh, the Political Bureau and the Central Committee of the Communist Party of Vietnam raised the determination and the line of defeating the U.S. imperalists on the Vietnamese battlefield. This strategic determination was presened by Comrade Le Duan in his work 'We Will Win and the Enemy Will Be Defeated'.

"In 1970, on the occasion of the 40th anniversary of the party, he wrote the work titled 'Under the Party's Glorious Banner, for Independence, Freedom and Socialism, Let us Advance to New Victories', summarizing the lessons of the national democractic revolution in Vietnam, and as an initial step raising the principled questions of taking Vietnam from a small production to a large-scale socilaist production.

"In 1982, when economic construction wa drawing much attention from the entire party an people, Le Duan published the works titled 'Let Us Firmly Grasp the Law and Renew Economic Management' and 'The Basic Contents of Socialist Revolution in Vietnam'. He also wrote some works about the relationship between the Vietnam and the Soviet Union such as the one entitled 'Let Us March Forwar Under the Banner of the Great October Revolution'.

Many of Le Duan's works have been translated into foreign languages and published in many countries.

HAYDEN SAYS USSR EMBASSY UNDER INVESTIGATION

BK100822 Melbourne Overseas Service in English 0800 GMT 10 Jul 86

[Text] Australia's foreign affairs minister, Mr Hayden, says three government departments are investigation a claim that the Soviet Embassy in Canberra is intercepting telecommunications. The claim has been made by the head of the Strategic and Defense Study Center at the Australian National University, Dr Des Ball. Dr Ball says the Soviet Embasy is using a microwave dish to monitor telephone conversations, telexes, and computer information.

He says that while he was in the United States recently he was shown a list drawn up by the American Central Intelligence Agency of Soviet diplomatic posts used for spying and Canberra was included. Mr Hayden said Dr Ball's claim was being investigated by the Foreign Affairs Department, the Defense Department, and the Attorney General's Department. He said that if the claim was verified it would be a serious violation of the obligations of a foreign embassy and in breach of the Australia law.

NEW ZEALAND

LANGE COMMENTS ON AGREEMENT ON FRENCH AGENTS

Oppositin Claims Rubbish

HK120719 Hong Kong AFP in English 0603 GMT 12 Jul 86

[Text] Wellington, July 12 (AFP) -- The New Zealand Government Saturday dismissed opposition claims that a deal had been made to release two French agents jailed for manslaughter well before a United Nations ruling required it. Prime Minister David Lange described as "rubbish" claims by the opposition National Party that his government had made a deal with France mid-June for the expulsion of the pair. Major Alain Mafart and captain Dominique Prieur have served eight months of 10-year jail terms in New Zealand for involvement in the bombing an sinking of the Greenpeace ship Rainbow Warrior in Auckland Harbour a year ago, in which one crew member died.

The opposition claims were made after the government revealed that deportation orders for the pair, Major Alain Mafart and Captain Dominique prieur, had been signed on June 24. Immigration Minister Kerry Burke, confirming he signed the orders three weeks ago, said they were completed "on a contingency basis."

Opposition leader Jim Bolger claimed the signing showed the government had been taking steps to release the pair even before the ruling of U.N. Secretary-General Perez de Cuellar was known. Mr. Perez de Cuellar ruled early this week the two agents should be deported to the French military base of Hao Atoll in the South Pacific to serve three more years before being allowed to return to France. Mr. Perez de Cuellar said the pair should be deported from New Zealand by July 25, one month and three days after the signing of the deportation orders, which must be signed at least a month before anyone held in a New Zealand jail can be deported.

Mr Bolger said the episode "seems more than coincidental," especially since the early signing "just happened" to allow the New Zealand Government to comply with the United Nations terms.

But Mr Lange said Saturday there had been no early deal over the pair's release. He said he did not know why such deportation orders for the pair had not "been signed as a matter of course...the moment these two were put in prison," as it was ineveitable that they would be deported at the end of their terms.

Mr Lange added that while deportation orders were "a matter of course, you do not as a matter of course make a release order (to free the two from jail) and release orders have not been made." He accused Mr Bolger of being "a political neanderthal" and said he had taken "a long time to begin making accusations" over moves to end the Rainbow Warrior row between France and New Zealand.

Lange on Deportation Plans

HK140810 Hong Kong AFP in English 0805 GMT 14 Jul 86

[Text] Wellington, July 14 (AFP) -- The New Zealand Air Force will fly the two French agents jailed here for their part in the Rainbow Warrior bombing back to French control next week, Prime Minister David Lange confirmed Monday. He told a press conference the pair would be flown "somewhere in the Pacific" to be handed over to French authorities between July 22 and 25.

The deportation order signed by the government in late June becomes valid on July 22, and Mr Lange said the pair would be back in French hands within three days of that, as required by the United Nations adjudication on the Rainbow Warrior row. "There is a 28-day limbo period during which no release order (for the pair) can be activated," Mr Lange told journalists. "There must be by the 25th of July an apology and compensation (payment by the French Government) and by the 23rd of July there will be an end to the appeal period under the deportation law." Under New Zealand law the two agents, serving ten-year jail terms for their part in the July 10, 1985 bombing of the Greenpeace flagship Rainbow Warrior, have 28 days to appeal against any deportation order.

Mr Lange said a New Zealand military plane would fly the pair, Captain Dominique Prieur and Major Alain Mafart, from New Zealand soil. "I am not of a mind that a French military plane should come here, and it won't be a civilian plane (which transports the pair from New Zealand). It will be an air force plane," he said. Mr Lange said it "would be must unlikely to be Tahiti" to which the pair would be flown. "There are a rage of places in the "Pacific where they could go to transplane (sic)," he said. [quotation marks as received] The settlement reportedly calls for the French agents to spend three years on Hao Atoll in the South Pacific. Sources said tonight that if France met the conditions of the agreement imposed by the United Nations ruling in the next week, the pair could fly from Auckland as early as Tuesday July 22.

Meanwhile, in Wellington Monday night about one hundred protesters booed and jeered diplomats and other guests as they arrived for a reception to mark Bastille Day. A low-ranking cabinet minister was to attend the celebration on behalf of the New Zealand Government.

NUNS RELEASE NEAR: U.S. MISSIONARY STILL MISSING

HK150213 Manila Far East Broadcasting Company in English 2300 GMT 14 Jul 86

[Text] The 10 Carmelite nuns kidnapped by armed men in Marawi City last Friday are expected to be released within 24 hours. Military authorities in Marawi City said the nuns' kidnappers have been identified and have made contact with officials. However the fate of the American missionary kidnapped last Saturday also from Marawi City remains unknown. No contact has been made with his abductors who are believed to be followers of the ousted Lanao del Sur [governor] Ali Dimaporo. Military operations have been launched to rescue the kidnap victims.

Meanwhile in Manila, President Corazon Aquino said the government was being cautious in seeking to free 10 Filipino nuns and the U.S. missionary kidnapped by unidentified Muslim adbuctors in violence-prone sovereign Philippine region. Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile said he will enlist the help of two influential Muslim families from Lanao Del Sur Province. There was no ransom demand or message from the abductors.

'In Good Condition'

HK150839 Hong Kong AFP in English 0812 GMT 15 Jul 86

[Text] Manila, July 15 (AFP) -- Abductors are keeping an American Protestant missionary and 10 Filipino Roman Catholic nuns in four separate hideouts in Mindanao Island, the official PHILIPPINE NEWS AGENCY (PNA) said here Tuesday Colonel Buenaventura Tabo, of the regional military command in Central Mindanao, said they had received reports that all 11 captives were in good condition, PNA said.

The Carmelite sisters, abducted in a retreat house in the Moslem city of Marawi on Friday, were segregated in three groups to discourage possible rescue operations from being mounted by the military, PNA quoted a military source as saying. American missionary Brian Lawrence, who was abducted at his apartment in Marawi on Saturday, was taken by his captors to a place near Lake Lanao, the agency added.

Col Tabo said they could not yet ascertain whether the abductors of the nuns and the missionary belonged to the same group, the agency said. The report could not be officially confirmed here. Military officials in Marawi earlier accused renegade Moslem separatists of kidnapping the 10 nuns, and said they were preparing to meet with the abductors of the American missionary.

'Rescue Operations' Underway

[Excerpt] [By Vic Arevalo] Zamboanga City -- Muslim terrorists who are out to embarrass the new administration and the military were suspected yesterday to be behind the kidnapping of 10 Carmelite nuns in Marawi City last Friday.

Brig Gen Pedro Balbanero, Southern Command deputy chief, said rescue operations are now being conducted by elements of the 24th Army Infantry battalion under the 21st Infantry brigade of the Frist Army Tabak division headed by Col Raul Aquino.

Balbanero said military authorities had not yet identified the kidnappers, but it was suspected that the abduction was similar to that of Fr. Michael Gigord, Mindanao State University chaplain, a few weeks ago. [passage omitted]

COMMUNISTS SEEK AID FORM FOREIGN COUNTRIES

[Text] Manila, July 13 (AFP) -- Philippine communist guerrillas are now seeking aid from communist-bloc governments to bolster their armed campaign, newspapers here Sunday quoted the Armed Forces second-in-command as saying.

The military was checking reports that some New People's Army (NPA) guerrillas have undergone training in an unspecified Asian country, Deputy Chief of Staff Major General Eduardo Ermita said in interviews published in two Manila newspapers Sunday. The leadership of the banned Communist Party of the Philippines has realized that its 16,500 strong NPA could not advance it cause by relying on indigenous sources of firearms, Major General Ermita told the TRIBUNE and MALAYA dailies. One possible sponsor whas the unspecified Asian country, which had a large stockpile of U.S.-made weapons, similar to rifles used by the rebels, he added.

The military has previously said the NPA relied mainly on firearms captured from government troops and received no support from any foreign government. The guerrillas had recently stepped up their armed campaign, despite ongoing discussion for proposed ceasefire talks, in a bid to attract attention to themselves, the general said.

President Corazon Aquino initiated the talks in a bid to seek a political solution to the 17-year-old insurgency which has claimed thousands of lives. Maj Gen Ermita could not be reached for comment Sunday, and military spokesmen contacted could not immediately confirm the report.

NPA TEAMS SENT TO 'NEARBY COUNTRY' FOR TRAINING

HK031537 Manila THE MANILA EVENING POST in English 2 Jul 86 pp 1, 3

[Text] Four to six teams, composed of the elite members of the New People's Army (NPA), the military arm of the Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP), were sent recently to a nearby country to undergo a rigorous training course on the various aspects of guerrilla warfare.

A reliable source revealed that besides military training, the training program prepared by the foreign country includes lectures and teach-ins to improve the political capability of the NPA trainees to harness mass base support.

The training of the NPA rebels abroad, the source said, was made possible by virtue of an agreement between the CPP and some world labor groups.

He stressed that while the CPP was formed to adhere to the Mao Zedong line of thinking and ideology, the local communist movement realized that its objective to take over the government and the country would not materialize without foreign support, financially or otherwise.

China has maintained a neutral stance on its relations with the local communist movement.

China, in fact, views the Soviet Union, not the United States, as the main threat to the security of the entire Asian hemisphere.

In the absence of support from China, even on an indirect basis, the CPP, in its last plenary session last year, decided to enlist the support of other communist countries.

It was also agreed during the plenum that the CPP would seek the support of a big communist country without losing its independence or "face" as a communist organization built around the Mao Zedong ideology.

The source emphasized that the support extended by a nearby country is of utmost significance and should be viewed with alarm.

The decision to send teams for training abroad, he said, could be part of the program of the communist movement, which proposed the launching of what it described as a "People's War."

The underground movement, the source disclosed, already reached the stage where it now enjoys a "strategic offensive" in some areas and a "strategic stalemate" in certain areas.

The CPP counts on the support of 16,000 full-time guerrillas who are well-equipped and a mass base support of more than one million.

Political support comes from militant trade unions, student organizations, and human rights groups which operate under the umbrella of the National Democratic Front (NDF).

Of the country's 72 provinces, the CPP and the NPA, the source said, operate in at least 63 provinces and have expanded their sphere of influence in many of the country's 41,000 barangays.

Strategic offensive arises when the CPP-NPA reached the stage where it initiated the offensive against government forces because of their superiority in number and equipment in certain areas.

Strategic stalemate occurs when the CPP NPA forces are equal in strength and in size to government forces

Former Sen Jose W. Diokno, who was appointed one of two government negotiators in the peace talks with the rebels, said the negotiations would start soon as feelers have already been sent to the NDF.

The talks, however, may bog down because of the impossible demands of the communist movement which include the abrogation of the military bases' agreement.

NEGOTIATOR SAYS TRUCE TALKS YET TO BEGIN

HK091444 Quezon City BUSINESS DAY in English 9 Jul 86 p 21

[Text] Official ceasefire talks between the Aquino government and communist insurgents will most likely start in August.

The National Democratic Front [NDF]-Communist Party of the Philippines [CPP]-New People's Army panel is still putting together a comprehensive proposal for ceasefire, and ultimately for a political settlement.

Satur Ocampo, one of the NDF negotiators, disclosed this last Sunday to a group of women journalists. He said Antonio Zumel and himself have not yet met with the representatives of the Aquino government -- Presidential Commission of Human Rights Chairman Jose W. Diokno and Agriculture Minister Ramon Mitra.

Ocampo said he and Zumel have received various proposals from their regional commands and are studying these.

Implementation of a genuine land reform program as a prerequisite to a political settlement is a common feature of the submitted proposals, he said.

BUSINESS DAY published a story June 30 quoting a draft document of the central committee of CPP which proposed a two-phase formula for peace: ceasefire and political settlement. The draft document also set down conditions for each phase.
Ocampo clarified that the draft document came from NDF. The CPP central committee has yet to submit its proposals.

In earlier published interviews Ocampo and Zumel said NDF should be the party to negotiate with the Aquino government because it represents a wider number of organizations, including CPP.

Ocampo said they are waiting for word if the government will accept NDF as the [preceding word in italics] body to negotiate with, instead of the central leadership of CPP, with which President Corazon C. Aquino had said she would like to deal.

Sources in the underground left said the Aquino government will most likely recognize NDF as the negotiating party.

The NDF, CPP, and NPA jointly wrote President Aquino and said her government should negotiate with NDF and added that the top leadership of CPP can authorize NDF to do so. With this, observers said, the left may be paving the way for the acceptance of NDF as part of a provisional government. This is so because CPP appears to be the strongest and most organized group in NDF, sources said, adding that CPP is in "Political command" of NDF.

Ocampo was asked if he favored the ouster of Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile from the Aquino Cabinet as a condition for ceasefire.

He noted that the Cagayan regional command of NDF has asked for Enrile's outster.

"I'm not for it. The choice of a defense minister is the perogative of the President. We do not want to impose our will on her," Ocampo said.

COMMUNIST PARTY NEGOTIATOR ON COALITION

HK080745 Manila THE MANILA CHRONICLE in English 5 Jul 86 pp 1, 6

[By Paulynn P. Sicam]

[Text] A coalition between the left and the Aquino government is desirable, but it stil is a remote possibility, says Satur Ocampo, one of the two peace negotiators for the rebel forces.

In fact, he believes, a coalition government is the "extremest [as published] possibility among the outcomes expected from cease-fire talks between the government and the insurgents.

In a long talk with the "CHRONICLE" Thursday, Ocampo took pains to project a reasonable stance, explaining how he and his comrades were taking grave personal risks to find, through negotiations, a "better way" toward change.

Ocampo is pleased that President Aquino has invited the reble to the negotiating table.

"It is a signal that she recognizes we are not mere outlaws," Ocampo said. "We are proceeding on the assumption that we are being given due respect as Filipinos who want change."

The underground revolutionary forces have named Ocampo and Antonio Zumel as cease-fire negotiators, representing the National Democratic Front (NDF), Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP) and the New People's Army (NPA).

Ocampo explained that the original concept of a coalition government as a unit of all democratic forces of the left was different from the coalition being speculated on between the left and the Aquino Government.

Jose Ma. Sison, alledged founder of the Communist Party, has been quoted as saying that a new coalition government between the Communist party and the Aquino government is possible.

At last Monday's Kapihan sa Manila Hotel [coffeeshop at Manila Hotel] Sison predicted that economic and political difficulties would make the Aquino Government "desperate enough to see that the revolutionary forces can take part in the new coalition government."

"Joma speaks for himself," said Ocampo, explaining that Sison was not a designated spokesman for the revolutionary forces.

"A coalition government, could only be possible if certain conditions are met," Ocampo said. "We have to find significant areas where we can work together. You cannot just join forces until you have found something in common.

The search for that significant area is what the ceasefire talks are all about. "We know that we do not exactly see eye to eye, but there are areas where we can agree. Let us start where we can agree."

One point of agreement, he believes, is that both government and the left are committed to "the interests of the people as the primary consideration."

His mood is upbeat, earnest. "What we want to establish is our earnestness in entering a new arena of political acitivity," Ocampo said. "The perception of the party is that the people want peace. We want to give peace a chance. We look at the talks as perhaps a better way to effect the chances we want."

Speaking for himself, Ocampo said he wanted to help President Aquino work out changes in Government. He assured "THE CHRONICLE" that many of his comrades were of the same mind.

On the venue of the peace talks, Ocampo promised to "make it easy," especially for government negotiator Jose W. Diokno, who is ailing. "We will come to where they are," he said.

The other government negotiator is Agriculture and Food Minister Ramon Mitra, Jr.

Cooperation and "Openess" will mark the left's participation in the talks, Ocampo said. "We are laying our cards on the table."

He expressed apprehension, howeve, that the talks may become "a media show," referring to a tendency in media to sensationalize incidents that could muddle the talks. Diokno himself is against media coverage for the negotiations.

Although certain issues like the dismantling of the Civilian Home Defense Forces (CHDF) and the return of the military to barracks are clear demands of the rebels, they are, Ocampo said, open to how this should be done. Mechanisms must be worked out, he said, and these may include provisions for gradual pullouts.

Ocampo, who escaped last year after more than nine years of political detention in military camp, expressed "great reservations" about the implementation of a ceasefire once an agreement is reached.

While both the government and the rebels have "established our common concern for the welfare of the people," he described the Enrile-Ramos bloc and the United States as powerful forces "averse to the peace talks."

MITRA SAYS NO CONTACT WITH OCAMPO, ZUMEL

HK110959 Hong Kong AFP in English 0955 GMT 11 Jul 86

[Text] Manila, July 11 (AFP) -- Communist guerrillas killed eight people in an attack on a cattle ranch in the northern province of Cagayan Friday, the Defense Military said here. The Defense Ministry, quoting the ranch's owner, said that the government militiamen deployed at the ranch and women were among the eight fatalities. The New People's ARmy (NPA) also kidnapped a ranchhand and burned down a house the dawn attack near Tuao Town, some 350 kilometers (210 miles) north of Manila, a Defense Ministry spokesmen said. Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile was informed of the raid by the ranch owner, Mayor Leonardo Mambo, the spokesman added. The NPA is the 17-year-old military wing of the banned Communist Party of the Philippines. The armed forces put the NPA's total armed strength at 16,500 but the U.S. Defense Department says they now number more than 22,000.

In another development, a Philippine Government negotiator to proposed talks with the communist insurgents said Friday there has been no word from the rebels' two representatives. "We have not had any contact at all with either Tony Zumel or Satur Ocampo," said Agriculture Minister Ramon Mitra, who was appointed by President Corazon Aquino to sit down with the rebels.

"No talks have started...but we are ready and we are waiting for them. They know how to reach us," the minister said in an interview on state television. Mr Mitra earlier said that he and his fellow government representative, human rights lawyer Jose Diokno, had expected to finalize a timetable and venue for talks with the National Democratic Front (NDF) emissaries by July 7. The NDF groups the Communist Party of the Philippines, the NPA and six other organizations. Ms Aquino initiated the talks in hopes of resolving the 17-year-old insurgency, which has claimed thousands of lives.

Sees CPP-NDF Internal Problems

[Text] Manila, July 8 KYODO -- Internal problems within the Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP) and the underground leftwing coalition National Democratic Front (NDF) may be delaying the ceasefire talks between the Philippine Government and insurgents, a high government official said Tuesday. Agriculture Minister Ramon Mitra, one of the government ceasefire negotiators appointed by President Corazon Aquino, added that the absence of a two-way link with rebel emissaries is also slowing down the start of formal negotiations with the NDF.

Mitra and human rights lawyer Jose Diokno have met several times with emissaries of rebel negotiators Satur Ocampo and Antonio Zumel, both former journalists, but have not had direct contact with them since the NDF appointed its representatives to the talks last month. "The CPP-NDF have not gotten themselves together yet," Mitra said. "They have probably not yet resolved their stand in negotiating with the Aquino government." "They are supposed to get in touch with us, but apparently nothing has happened yet," he said. "We are losing momentum owing to the delays."

In the latest meeting between Mitra and two NDF emissaries, held on Wednesday last week, guidelines for the formal talks were discussed for more than two hours according to Mitra. He told reporters that he expected the agenda of the talks to be ironed out by Tuesday this week and hoped to sit down with Ocampo and Zumel immediately. "We are eagerly waiting. They know where we are at anytime, but we don't have any idea where to get in touch with them," Mitra said.

The NDF groups the CPP and its military arm, the New People's Army (NPA) with other outlawed workers, peasants, youth and religious organizations. It said last month that it can speak for the CPP and the NPA in talks that may lead to the end of the 17-year armed insurgency.

PAPER VIEWS 'CPP-NPA POWER STRUGGLE'

HK091530 Manila THE MANILA EVENING POST in English 8 Jul 86 p 4

[Editorial: "The CPP-NPA Power Struggle"]

[Text] Latest reports say there is today a fierce ongoing power struggle for the leadership of the CPP [Communist Party of the Philippines]-NPA with the Salas-Baylosis group losing out to a new man, Benito Tiamzon. Apparently, Tiamzon counts with the support of Satur Ocampo and Antonio Zumel, both former newsmen. Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile has likewise confirmed the rift within the party which has resulted in a fragmentation of the movement.

That the communist movement in the Philippines should be divided into factions is not, of course, unusual. This is a historical fact which began in the Soviet Union after Lenin's death. The struggle for power between Stalin and Trotsky led to Trotsky fleeing to Mexico where he met a violent death at the hands of a hired assassin.

In China during the sixties, there was the deadly conflict between Mao Zedong and Liu Shaoqi. Here in the fifties there was the struggle for power between the Taruc and the Lava factions, followed in the eventies by the Sumulong-Dante rift.

How the government's peace emissaries handle this ticklish situation will be a challenge to their skill. Will they talk to only one group or will they also reach the other group. How will the hardliner be treated as against the moderates?

It must be remembered that the military are getting the brunt of the fighting against one group. Whatever takes place in the negotiations will have a vital implication on defense and military policies. And so with the struggle for power between the two CPP/NPA groups.

Unquestionably, the rift within the communist movement has to do with the ceasefire and peace negotiations. How deep the disagreement is, one can only guess. It is important that the government authorities concerned carefully assess the present movement before making any commitments. If they are careless or outwitted, more problems and more profound complications can only ensure.

SAMAR REBELS REVEAL CEASEFIRE ATTITUDE POLICIES

HK040503 Manila MANILA BULLETIN in English 3 Jul 86 pp 1, 7

[Report by Jun Bandayrel: "Samar Rebels Air Hope on Truce Talks" -- Part I]

[Text] Communist leaders in Samar have dismissed government overtures for a regional ceasefire, saying that the issue of truce is a national concern that should be discussed between President Aquino and the national leadership of the revolutionary movement.

In a press conference with Manila-based newsmen held deep in the mountains of Bassey, Western Samar, last Sunday, the dissidents also announced a policy of restraint in tactical offensives against the Armed Forces of the Philippines [AFP] in support of the ceasefire talks.

The leaders identified themselves as Ka [short for Kasama, or comrade] Larry, 32, of the Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP); Ka Danny, 31, of the National Democratic Front (NDF); and Ka Dodong, 33, of the New People's Army (NPA).

Ka Danny said that the ceasefire is a national concern "and because of this, the national leadership of Cory (Aquino) and the revolutionary movement are in a position to discuss this."

In the case of regional ceasefire as proposed by military authorities, he said that certain demands by the NDF-CPP-NPA movemente cannot be met, such as free distrtibution of land to the peasants and the dismantling of U.S. military bases in the country.

He charged that the Enrile-Ramos bloc in the government is not really interested in the ceasefire issue. "In fact, they are hell-bent on destroying the revolutionary movement" based on their pronouncements, he said.

Ka Danny tagged Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and Gen Fidel V. Ramos, Armed Forces chief of staff, as "ultra-rightists" who want to "destroy the NPA as a solution to the peace and order" problem.

"If Cory can control Enrile and Ramos, the ceasefire can push through," he said.

"Our sincere support for President Aquino's ceasefire initiative is shown in our restraint in the conduct of our military actions," he said.

Ka Dodong cited NPA reports that the number of NPA-initiated assaults have dropped since the February uprising. From a monthly average of five offensives since February, this has decreased to two as of last month, he said.

"This, however, does not mean that we will not hold tactical offensives to defend ourselves and the masses," he said, pointing out that this military policy is "active defense" to protect the "gains of the national democratic revolution reached in guerrilla zones and bases."

The NPA spokesman said the guerrillas now operate in two-thirds of the island of Samar, comprising three fronts or base areas. About 70 percent of the 1,600 barrios in Samar have been organized by the NPA, he claimed.

Ka Larry, the CPP spokesman, charged that military authorities on the island are not really laying down favorable conditions for a cease-fire to be fruitful.

He noted the AFP troop buildup in the three Samar provinces, including the deployment of the 56th Army Infantry Battalion last May in Wright, Western Samar.

Despite this turn of events, the three guerrilla leaders have expressed optimism about the success of the truce talks. Ka Larry said the talks should tackle the peasants' demand for land ownership and the dismantling of U.S. bases, among others.

"Kung makukuha naman ang mga kahilingan ng mga mamamayan through peaceful means, bakit maglalaban pa? (If the people's demands can be gained through peaceful means, why fight?)," he said.

Details of News Conference

HK050106 Manila PHILIPPINE DAILY INQUIRER in English 3 Jul 86 pp 1, 6

[By Ma Ceres P. Doyo -- Quotation Marks as published]

[Text] (Over the weekend, SUNDAY INQUIRER staffer Ma Ceres P. Doyo and four TV and print journalists from Manila attended a press conference called by communist rebels in Samar. The press con was held in one of the New people's Army's Front two camps in the forest where a hundred or so red fighters undergo military ideological and political training.

To get there, the journalist flew to Tacloban City, then took a two-hour pumpboat ride to a barrio in Samar from where they started a gruelling four-hour trek through slippery mountain trails.

Spokesman at the press con were Samar National Democratic Front head Ka Danny, 31, Communist Party head Ka Larry, 32 and NPA head Ka Dodong, 33, (Ka Danny and Ka Larry are both former seminarians while Ka Dondong is a former veterinary medicine student)

Basey, Western Samar -- Rebel leaders here declared open support for President Aquino's call for ceasefire talks and claimed to have exercised restraint in their tactical offensives, notwithstanding military buildup on the island.

In a press conference held June 29 in an NPA training camp in the mountains of Western Samar, top communist leaders on the island said they "openly support the sincere efforts of the President to make peace and reconciliation a reality.

This is shown in our restraining in conducting military actions. But confronted by an aggressive enemy, we cannot help but defend ourselves and the people in the island," they said,

Three provinces comprise Samar, on of the poorest and most neglected islands in the country. It is considered a stronghold of armed dissidents.

NPA local chief Ka Dong said rebel offensives were launched in 1984, 80 in 1985, and only 20 the past six months.

In their statement released to print and TV journalists, the communist rebels said the frequency of military operations against the NPA have also declined. According to them, however, this was because the government troops are "overstreched, overworked and demoralized."

As early as February, the military began withdrawing some of its smaller detachments in the interior, they said.

The rebels, however, noted that in the third week of May, the army deployed its 56th Infantry Battalion in Hinabangan, Western Samar. This, they said, cast doubts on the ceasefire offer of regional commander Brig. Gen. Benjamin Cruz.

The rebels also released a list of alleged military abuses committed in Samar since President Aquino took over in February.

Although the military outnumbers the NPA by a ratio of 10 to 1 in Samar, the rebels said they have advanced from one victory to another. The NPA leaders declined to give the exact number of their red fighters in the island but said they are "in the hundreds."

One of the rebel's demands calls for the implementation of a genuine land reform nationwide. The rebels, however, said that in Samar they have carried out a land reform program that has brought about a minimum reduction in land rents mutual labor exchange among peasants, abolition of usury, and payment of fair wages to farmlands.

It is not true, they said, that they would readily lay down their arms in exchange for medical supplies and a resettlement area as reported by Sr. Gemma Silverio. The Missonary of the Sacred Heart nun tried to negotiate with the Samar rebels a couple of months ago.

"We don't mean to question the sincerity of Sr. Gemma's peace mission," the Samar CPP/NPA/NDF [Communist Party of the Philippines/New People's Army/National Democratic Front] statement said. But, according to the statement, her effort just seemed to fit into a two-pronger (military) maneuver against us. (Our) leaders were made to look ridiculous in the newspapers which made it appear that they were asking the AFP [Armed Forces of the Philippines] top brass, through Sr. Gemma, for medical care and resettlement area in exchange for their surrender.

The rebels said they will not enter into any ceasefire negotiation at their level. Meaningful peace talks, they added can only be achieved at the national level.

One disadvantage of a local ceasefire is that it will divide revolutionary fences while allowing the military to concentrate its troops against NPA units which choose to fight it out, they pointed out.

Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and AFP Chief of Staff Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, NDF head Ka Danny said "are wary of the rebels getting into the peace talks." They only want to quash the revolutionary movement. They are ultra-rightists."

CPP head Ka Larry said that even if the two military headers are still in government, a ceasefire can still be worked out if the president can control them and the armed forces.

The rebels said they believe in the sincerity of Jose Diokno and Ramon Mitra, the government representatives in the ceasefire talks. They also expressed confidence in their leaders, Satur Ocampo and Antonio Zumel, because "they carry the aspirations of the masses."

NEGROS POSITION PAPER OUTLINES REBEL DEMANDS

[By Staff Member Paulynn P. Sicam]

[Text] The communist leadership in Negros island is in the mood for peace. To show that President Aquino's call to "give peace a chance" has not fallen on deaf ears, the New People's Army, the Communist Party of the Philippines and the National Democratic Front of Negros have prepared a position paper suggesting how to implement genuine land reform and how they can help the government speed rural progress.

Peasants and farm workers have "a wide space for freedom but not yet for livelihood," under the new government of President Cory Aquino, the communist leadership in Negros also said in their paper, "Economic Up-liftment of the Masses is the Road to Peace."

Calling for the implementation of genuine land reform, the paper also noted the need for government financial and technological assitance to beneficiaries.

The paper, prepared in early June, was made public by Bishop Antonio Fortich of Bacolod.

The peasant dream of owning land, the paper said, is "not a distant reality." "It can be achieved in the shortest possible time and in a peaceful way" through "the voluntary act" of landowners and church mediations.

In line with its desire to cooperate with government even while the cease-fire talks are being held on the national level, the Negros dissidents suggested "the local mass organizations under the influence of the NPA" as channels government could use in carrying out an agro-forestry program.

The paper promised full program implementation, wise use of resources, and employment generation in the countryside with NPA assistance.

The preservation of forest and reforestation of denuded areas are "urgent needs." "Proper ecological balance is a necessary requisite for strategic and large-scale agricultural production," the paper said.

The paper called on government to provide "substantial hectarage of land feasible for cooperative farming." It also said that Negros peasants' and farm workers' demands coincide with the efforts of many sugar planters to implement land reform.

Sugarcane planters and landowners, the paper observed, "have already reached a remarkable level of social concern." This is because "they themselves are victims of fascist economic plunder" and had fought alongside peasants in anti-fascist battles.

The paper lists the demands of peasant and farm workers as:

1. Land reform of a minimum of 10 percent of sugarcane lands.

2. Free distribution or free use of all lands sequestered from Marcos cronies.

3. Free distribution or free use of all lands foreclosed by government of private banks.

4. Free use of vacant lots in plantations where land reform is not yet in effect.

5. Purchase of surgarcane lands by peasants from landowners at a "very low price and on an easy-term-payment basis."

6. Conversion of certificates of land transfer to formal land titles.

7. Distribution of disposable public lands to tillers.

COMMUNIST PARTY, NPA SPLIT OVER METHOD TO USE

HK080805 Manila THE NEW PHILIPPINES SUNDAY EXPRESS in English 6 Jul 86 pp 1, 6

[By Antero F. Soriano]

[Text] Military authorities yesterday said a power struggle between the moderates and militant hardcore members of the Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP) and its military arm, the New People's Army (NPA) is creating dissension within the ranks of the movement. In a document released yesterday, sources said the rift became more pronounced with the top-to-bottom revamp of the CPP-NPA last March which culminated in the downfall and falling out of grace of two top leaders of the movement, Rodolfo Salas, alias Commander Bilog, erstwhile chairman of the CPP, and Rafael Baylosis, secretary general, who was also ousted from the CPP executive committee.

The moderates are for conducting talks with the new government in an effort to convince the government of their sincerity and at the same time carry out its aim of forcing a coalition government. Benito Tiamzon, who replaced Salas as the new CPP head is spearheading this group along with former executive committee member Satur Ocampo and Antonio Zumel, chairman of the National Democratic Front (NDF).

The hardcore members are led by the duo of Salas and Baylosis who are batting for the continued armed struggle and for the eventual takeover of government by force. Earlier, Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile said he had received reliable fresh information that there is indeed a rift within the CPP-NPA which had resulted in the fragmentation of the movement into three factions namely the Maoist group, led by former CPP chairman Jose Ma. Sison while another group possibly the Moscow-oriented ide, is for asking assistance from the superpower in their struggle. The last and third group, is reportedly trying to establish links with the US-based Communist Party.

Because of this power struggle, military sources said the faction of hardcore members have successfully carried out a series of ambuscades on the military by convincing some NPA to disregard the current peace talks. One of these NPA groups belonged to Ignacio Capegsang whose forces carried out the ambush in Vintar, Ilocos Norte a few days ago. Capegsan is reportedly a strong contender for the top NPA post vacated by Commander Dante. In the revamp, another moderate, Jose Luneta, was also named as secretary general replacing Baylosis.

REPORT ON GOVERNMENT CEASE-FIRE PROPOSAL

HK041537 Manila THE MANILA CHRONICLE in English 4 Jul 86 pp 1, 3

[Text] The surrender of firearms by rebels, respect for existing laws and treaties, and a mechanism for strict implementation of agreements should be the Government's "non-negotiable demands" in the cease-fire negotiations.

This proposal emerged yesterday at a workshop on "Cease-fire, Amnesty and Rehabilitation of Rebels" of the peace-and-order seminar of the Armed Forces and the Defense Ministry.

A total of 147 civilian and military officials including regional unified commanders, ministers, and local officials, attended the two-day seminar held in Camp Aguinaldo.

The workshop proposals will be forwarded to the Armed Forces and then to the President for review and approval, a Defense Ministry official said.

Social Services Minister Mita Pardo de Tavera reported that among her group's recommendations are:

-- The peace talks should have a specific timetable so that they do not lag indefinitely.

-- Amnesty should be conferred by government only to rebels facing political charges and a rehabilitation program should benefit only rebel returnees who qualify. The group did not specify the qualification requirements.

-- A systematic and organized rehabilitation program for rebel returnees should be implemented with the Ministry of Social Services as lead agency, and the Ministry of Defense as supportive unit. The "processing" of rebel returnees should be a one-step service program.

-- Fund support for the rehabilitation program should be assured, specifically through collections from the Philippine Casino and Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office. An initial P1-billion allotment should be assured.

The workshop group suggested that government take a "total approach" to the cease-fire negotiations. This was defined as the participation of all appropriate civilian and military agencies in the peace dialogue and amnesty and rehabilitation programs for rebels.

The goals of the peace talks should agree with the national government's enunciated thrusts to achieve national reconciliation, security and economic development, the group said.

However, the group qualified that the proposals touched mainly on the "national reconciliation" aspect of the cease-fire talks.

Aside from peace talks on the national level, the group said cease-fire negotiations on the regional level should also be permitted considering the distinct situations and problems of different regions.

Once these suggestions are taken into account, the group said, the peace talks should lead to political stability and economic prosperity for the people and, in particular, for the rebels.

The cease-fire workshop participants, aside from Pardo de Tavera, included Muslim Affairs Minister Cando Muarip, the Provost marshal, the judge advocate general, the deputy chiefs of staff for civil-military relations.

BANGSA MORO LEADERS HESITANT ABOUT GOVERNMENT

HK090247 Manila PHILIPPINE DAILY INQUIRER in English 7 Jul 86 pp 1, 3

[By Ed Perpena]

[Text] Leaders of the Bangsa Moro secessionist movement said they "do not see any difference" between the Aquino administration and the deposed Marcos regime."

They added, however, that their organization is adopting a "wait-and-see" attitude on the reported ceasefire talks between the government and the communist-led National Democratic Front.

Edris Payopas, alias Commander Nur Khan, Region XI (Eastern Mindanao) leader of the Moro National Liberation Front (MNLF), also charged the Aquino administration with exacting "political vengeance" against those who "cooperated" with the Marcos regime.

Explaining that many secessionist rebels aligned themselves with the previous administration because of the communist threat, Payopas emphasized that they did not surrender but only cooperated with the Marcos regime.

It was this cooperation, Payopas explained, that has made certain officials of the Aquino administration "ignore the interests and aspirations of the (Bangsa Moro) people."

"They are not giving us a chance," Payopas added, referring to administration officials whom, he said, would not accommodate their grievances.

The MNLF leader also charged the Aquino administration with disregarding the concessions given to rebel-returnees by the Marcos regime.

Payopas, claiming that he still has some 1,500 armed men scattered all over three Davao provinces, said the MNLF was expecting economic improvement but found out, to their dismay, that the Muslim rebels have no place in the government's priority programs.

Despite this initial setback, Payopas remarked that the MNLF rebels are willing to cooperate with the Aquino administration but expressed doubts about the sincerity of the NDF to stop military conflicts.

On a related topic, Payopas said the Philippine government must first seek solutions to the problem posed by the secessionist movement before it can deal with the problem of Filipino refugees in Sabah.

Payopas said this in reaction to the government's reported move to immediately solve the problems posed by Filipino refugees in Sabah.

Payopas said it was primarily the issue of Bangsa Moro secession from the Philippines that made many Muslims seek refuge in nearby Sabah.

To-date, there are about 300,000 Filipino refugees in Sabah, according to Payopas. They can be found in Lahad Datu, Samporna, Sandakan, Tawaw, Kota Kinabalu and Labuan, all in Sabah.

Earlier, Joseph Pairin Kitingan, Sabah's chief minister, said his government is experiencing a "problem" with Filipino refugees but did not disclose details.

Payopas, along with several leaders from Southern Philippines such as Michael Mastura and Jack Candao, both of Region XII (Central Mindanao), met Friday in Hacienda Luisita, Tarlac with Tingting Cojuangco, officer-in-charge of Southern Philippines Development Authority.

In the meeting, Cojuangco reportedly asked the Mindanao leaders how the government can best solve the problem of Filipino refugees in Sabah.

Although the meeting drew varied response, Payopas said the Muslim leaders were one in saying that the issue of Muslim autonomy be tackled frirst by government before it touches on the issue of the refugees.

Payopas also claimed that the MNLF has already organized the refugees into six revolutionary groups within the secessionist movement.

In a related development, Payopas revealed that Datu Sakirodin Baijin, acknowledged leader of the heirs of Sultan Jamalol Kiram of Sulu, disagreed with the Aquino government regarding the Philippines' claim on Sabah.

It was reported Friday that Malaysian Tengku Ahmad Rithaudeen and Vice President Salvador Laurel had alreedy "reached an understanding" on Sabah issue but the details were not disclosed.

ORGANIZATIONS FORM ANTI-AMERICAN ALLIANCE

HK090423 Manila MANILA BULLETIN in English 9 Jul 86 p 17

[Text] A call for a total political war against American imperialism was sounded yesterday during the formal launching of the Democratic Nationalist Alliance (DNA) at the National Press Club where 15 nation-wide organizations representing labor, women, students and youth, farmers and professionals signed a joint Declaration of Principles in blood.

Former Manila Delegate Rey T. Fajardo, chairman of the DNA Preparatory Committee, strongly urged the different nationalist organizations to unite and continue the fight started by Andres Bonifacio, the great leader of the Filipino masses, who launched the Katipunan on July 7, 1892 to free the Philippines from foreign domination.

Comparing the present-day situation with that of Bonifacio's era, Fajardo said that there is a far greater need for a movement like the Katipunan today because "we face more serious problems now which involve the very survival of the Philippines as a sovereign and democratic country."

Fajardo and other ranking members of the DNA Preparatory Committee, including Dr Jesus Lava, Pedro Baguisa, Mar de Guzman, Rodolfo del Rosario and jerry Adevoso, said that today's political struggle is narrowing down to one between the pro-U.S. forces in government and other elitist circles and the pro-Filipino forces among the suffering masses, intellectuals and other progressive groups.

The Nine-Point DNA Declaration of Principle firmly commits the new Alliance to attain the broadest unity among different parties, organizations, groups and individuals by eradicating antagonism and discord, rising above petty ambitions and interests and obtaining harmony and joint action to achieve national, social and democratic goals of the entire Filipino people.

Fajardo added that the struggle for nationalism and anti-imperialism as the basic framework for national survival and development "will be along and arduous task" which Filipinos must be prepared to sacrifice and suffer for, and one where the masses must always be on the offensive.

Other members of the DNA Preparatory Committee are Jose David, Ricardo Rufino, Domingo Cahanding, Honorio Bognot, Alberto Santos, Ben Moste, Gene Resurreccion, Cris Caguicla, Jacinta Balon, Alfred Agner and Romeo Martinez.

CON-COM PRESIDENT DENIES U.S. RESEARCH FUNDING

[By R.G. Roy]

[Text] Zamboanga City -- Constitutional Commission [Con-Com] President Cecilia Munoz-Palma yesterday said the drafters of a charter are independent of any political group or interest here and abroad.

She dismissed claims that the United States had given millions of dollars in aid for the research fund of the Con-Com.

"There was never such an offer and the Constitutional Commission would have dismissed it outright," she told the 'Chronicle.'

Palma told some 4,000 people who attended a public hearing here that the commissioners are all united by the single goal of writing a charter that is "truly reflective of the people's ideals and aspirations."

She also said the Con-Com will finish its job before the Sept 2 deadline set by president Aquino who formed the charter body.

The adoption of a new charter at the soonest possible time will help a lot in hastening the country's return to political normalcy, the Con-Com head added.

Palma was accompanied at the public hearing at the Ateneo de Zamboanga Gymnasium by commissioners Florangel Rosario Braid and Adolfo Ascuna.

The hearing was supervised by the local chapters of the "Lakas ng Sambayanan," a cause-oriented group, the Philippine Jaycees, and Namfrel [National Citizens' Movement for Free Elections].

PALAU

COURT RULES COMPACT WITH U.S. UNCONSTITUTIONAL

BK111034 Melbourne Overseas Service in English 0810 GMT 11 Jul 86

[From the "International Report" program moderated by Colin Johnson]

[Text] The Supreme Court of the Republic of Palau has delivered an historic ruling over the proposed Compact of Free Association between Palau and the United States. Associate Justice Robert Warren Gibson rules that the compact is unconstitutional because it conflicts with an antinuclear provision of the Constitution. The Compact of Free Association would replace an American-administered United Nations trusteeship with an agreement granting Palau home rule and United States economic aid. The United States would assume defense responsibilities. Mr Justice Gibson ruled that these defense responsibilities, which would include visits by nuclear-powered and -armed vessels, would violate the intent of the Constitution. More than (Ed Rampahl) in Palau:

[Begin (Ramphal) recording] Associate Justice Robert Warren Gibson ruled in the Palau Supreme Court that the proposed Compact of Free Association between Palau and United States is unconstitutional. Gibson stated that it was the intent of the framers of the Constitution to make Palau forever nuclear-free. Gibson's 10 July decision stressed that in order to override the antinuclear provision of the Palau Constitution. The compact requires a 75 percent vote. The compact has failed to receive its 75 percent endorsement in three national referenda held since 1983. On 21 February of this year, the compact received 72 percent of the vote in a UN-observed plebiscite.

Gibson termed his ruling an agonizing, devasting decision because he believed that the Micronesian Islands needed the compact and that the majority of its people were in favor of it. However, the associate justice pointed out that it was his job to uphold the republic's Constitution. No matter how hard he searched, Gibson said, there was just no way around it -- the introduction of nuclear material within Palau violated its Constitution.

A law suit has been filed by high priest (Jibadoo Yeetakan Gibon), against Palau's president, Lazarus E. Salii. (Roman Bizur), the chief attorney, expressed general satisfaction with the ruling on motion for summary judgement. However, (Bizur) said that the plaintiff might appeal Gibson's split decision which had ruled in favor of the government on several counts. These included the rule that the compact's military land right acquisition policy was constitutional and that the political education campaign for the last plebiscite was unbiased.

(Bizur), a well-known antinuclear activitist, added justice has always been here, but some did not follow it. If the U.S. really believes in its democratic process and respects the judiciary, it should comply with the court's decision. After all, that is why the U.S. established a court system. President Salii immediately filed for an appeal after Gibson's ruling which should be heard before three-judge panel within a month. Salii called the decision disappointing and vowed to continue fighting for the compact's approval.

Gibson said that there were several ways to resolve the compact impasse including a constitutional amendment or yet another plebiscite. President Salii said he is considering all options. Judge Gibson added with a sense of historical irony that his ruling came 1 day after Palau observed the national holiday of Constitution Day which celebrated the framed rules of the world's first nuclear-free nation. KIM IL-SONG GREETS SOVIET LEADERS ON ANNIVERSARY

[Text] Pyongyang July 5 (KCNA) -- Comrade Kim Il-song, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Worker' Party of Korea and president of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, on July 5 sent a message of greetings to comrade Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbachev, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union, and Comrade Andrey Andreyevich Gromyko, president of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the USSR, on the occasion of the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation and Mutual Assistance.

The message reads:

The signing of the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation and Mutual Assistance was a signal event in further strengthening and developing onto a new high stage the traditional friendly and cooperative relations forged between the Korean and Soviet peoples on the bbasis of Marxism-Leninism and proletarian internationalism and was an expression of the unshakable determination of our two peoples to support and cooperate with each other in the common struggle against imperialism and for the victory of socialism and communism.

The friendly and cooperative relations between the Korean and Soviet peoples have constantly been consolidated and developed over the past 25 years in the spirit of the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation and Mutual Assistance.

We note with satisfaction that the treaty is greatly conducive to accelerating the building of socialism and communism in the two countries, thwarting and frustrating the imperialists' mace in Asia and the rest of the world.

Today the fraternal Soviet people are effecting a new upsurge in the struggle for accelerating the socio-economic development of the country and accomplishing socialism on an overall scale under the tested leadership of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union headed by Comrade Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbachev.

The Korean people sincerely rejoice over all the achievements made by the Soviet people and extend full support and firm solidarity for the peaceful initiatives and efforts of the Soviet Union against the imperialists' arms buildup and war moves and for checking the militarization of space, realizing complete nuclear arms reduction and guaranteeing peace.

I sincerely wish you and the Soviet people greater successes in the efforts for carrying out the program advanced by the 27th congress of the CPSU and for peace and security in Europe and the rest of the world.

Availing myself of this opportunity, I express the belief that the friendly and cooperative relations between our two parties, countries and peoples, as unbreakable relations of class alliance, will be further consolidated and developed through the common struggle against imperialism and for the accomplishment of the cause of socialism and communism.

KIM IL-SONG, KANG SONG-SAN RECEIVE GREETINGS

SK052335 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1541 GMT 5 Jul 86

[Text] Pyongyang July 5 (KCNA) -- A message of greetings came to the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers' Party of Kora and president of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, and Comrade Kang Song-san, premier of the Administration Council, on July 5 from the Central Committee of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union, the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet, and the Council of Ministers, of the USSR on the occasion of the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation and Mutual Assistance.

The message says:

The conclusion of the Soviet-Korean Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation and Mutual Assistance on the principles of Marxism-Leninism and socialist internationalism was an important milestone in further developing the traditional relations of friendship between the two countries and two peoples. The experiences over the past 25 years convincingly show that this treaty has made a gratifying contribution to the vital interests of the peoples of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and the Democratic People's Republic of Korea and to the struggle of the entire people to strengthen the unity of socialist countries, oppose the imperialist aggression moves and achieve peace and security in the far east and the whole world.

The peoples of our ttwo countries are greeting the 25th anniversary of the signing of the treaty when the agreements reached at Soviet-Korean top-level talks held in Moscow in May 1984 and meetings between leading activists of the Soviet Union and Korea in the later period are successfully being carried into practice by mutual efforts.

It gives us great satisfaction that the Soviet-Korean relations are expanding in depth, the effectiveness of Soviet-Korean cooperation is growing in many fields and the joint action of our two countreis is being perfected in realising the fighting program to oppose nuclear threat, end arms race and comprehensively solve questions of security and cooperation of countries and peoples in the Asian-Pacific region.

The Soviet Union highly estimates and invariably supports the peaceful initiatives of the Workers' Party of Korea and the government of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea for guaranteeing peace and security in Korean and the Far East, converting the Korean peninsula into a nuclear-free peace zone and achieving a peaceful reunification of the country.

The CPSU and Soviet state will, in the future, too, do everything necessary to unite closer our two parties, two countries and two peoples in the struggle for the development of Soviet-Korean friendship and the victory of cause of peace and socialism.

We wish you and the entire fraternal people of the DPRK new great success in their struggle to build socialism and reunify Korea peacefully and on a democratic basis.

EDITORIAL PRAISES FRIENDSHIP WITH USSR

SK070916 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2100 GMT 5 Jul 86

[NODONG SINMUN 6 July editorial: "Invincible Relations of Friendship"]

[Text] Today, our people are significantly marking the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance between Korea and the Soviet Union, a milestone in the history of Korea-Soviet friendship.

The signing of the treaty on 6 July 1961 provided a firm guarantee to legally fix the relations of friendship between the Korean and Soviet people and endlessly expend the develop relations of mutual cooperation.

With each passing day, the treaty shows the firmness and vitality of the traditional Korea-Soviet friendship.

The past 25 years convince one that the treaty vigorously encourages socialist construction in the two countries and the joint anti-imperialist struggle for peace.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has said: The Korea-Soviet relations of friendship are sincere relations of cooperation firmly formed between class brothers based on Marxism-Leninism and proletarian internationalism, and are invincible relations of alliance between revolutionary comrades-in-arms who have consolidated and developed through the joint struggle to oppose imperialism and to achieve victories in the causes of peace, socialism, and communism.

Armed Korean communists and people protected the Soviet Union during the arduous anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle, while waging a bloody struggle for the freedom and liberation of the fatherland. The Soviet people helped our people's cause of liberating the fatherland with blood; gave us assistance, both material and spiritual, during the fatherland liberation war against the U.S. imperialists' armed aggression and during the difficult times of post-war rehabilitation and construction; and are positively cooperating with us in socialist construction.

The Korea-Soviet friendship, with a long historical tradition, was upgraded to a new high level with a visit to the Soviet Union by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the opportunity of meetings and talks between the leaders of the two countries in Moscow in 1984. Today, the relations of friendship and cooperation between Korea and the Soviet Union are expanding and developing to their fullest. Mutual exchanges and cooperation in the political, economic, cultural, and military fields, including visits by high-level party and government delegations, are vigorously taking place. The friendly visits to our country by a flotilla of the Soviet Red Banner Pacific Fleet and an air force squardron on the occasion of the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance are of great significance in developing relations of friendship between the people of the two countries. Our people are content with the fact that the relations of friendship and cooperation between the parties, governemtns, and people of Korea and the Soviet Union are developing well and on the upswing.

Today, the fraternal Soviet people are accelerating the historic cause of building socialism and communism under the tested leadership of the CPSU led by Comrade Mikhail Gorbachev, an outstanding activitist of the party and state. The party's role in leadership is being strengthened, and the organizational nature, the disciplinary nature, the sense of responsibility, and the creative ferver are being heightened in all fields of state and social lives. The role of the human factor in all sectors of the people's economy is being heightened, and scientific and technological development is rapidly being attained. Upholding the programmatic task presented at the 27th CPSU Congress, the Soviet people are vigorously struggling to carry out the 12th five-year plan. The Soviet people, who are advancing toward high goals, are filled with confidence and ferver and are bringing about new success in the struggle to accelerate socialist and economic construction. The Korean people sincerely rejoice, as for their own, over all successes that the Soviet people are bringing about.

The status and role of the Soviet Union as a strong fortress for world peace are being further heightened. The CPSU, the government, and the people are resolutely struggling to oppose the U.S. imperialists' aggression and war maneuvers, to remove the danger of a thermonuclear world war, and to guarantee peace and security in Europe and the world.

Soviet propsals for reducing, to a great degree, conventional weapons and troops and for abolishing chemical weapons in Europe, including the proposal to completely abolish nuclear weapons and other weapons of mass-destruction by the end of this century, are winning great sympathy from the people of the world. Our people positively support the consistent peace-loving measures and proposals that the Soviet party and government are making and advancing for peace in Europe and the world.

Under the wise leadership of the party Central Committee led by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, our people are vigorously accelerating socialist construction and tightly defending the eastern fortress of socialism under tense circumstances.

Our party and government are making all efforts to remove the danger of war on the Korean peninsula and to peacefully resolve the question of reunifying Korea through dialogue and negotiation. The proposal for establishing the Confederal Republic of Koryo, the tripartite talks proposal, various proposals for holding extensive dialogue between the North and South, and proposals for holding talks between military authorities and establishing non-nuclear and peace zones on the Korean peninsula are proposals that reflect our important position on peaceful reunification.

The Soviet party, government, and people positively support the policy of our party to reunify the fatherland and the just struggle to realize it through our people, opposing the division and war maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists and the South Koreasn puppets and demanding the withdrawal of U.S. forces from South Korea. Such sincere support of the Soviet Union is a great encouragement to our people. Our people are thankful for this and always remember it.

The Korean peninsula is a place where the danger of a nuclear war is greater than anywhere else in the world. To realize their aggressive Asian strategy, the U.S. imperialists have accelerated maneuvers to fabricate a triangular military alliance among the United States, Japan, and South Korea, thus turning South Korea into the largest nuclear base in the Far East and frequently conducting large-scale war exercises in South Korea in an effort to complete preparations for a nuclear war. Because of this, a very dangerous situation in which a nuclear war can break out at any time is being promoted in our country. The present situation demands further strengthening the normal Korea-Soviet relations of friendship.

Only by being firmly united and vigorously waging a joint struggle against imperialism can the socialist countries deter and frustrate the imperialists' reckless arms buildup policy and their maneuvers to provoke a new world war and a thermonuclear war, and defend the peace and security of the world. The Korean people highly treasure friendship and unity with the Soviet people. Endlessly consolidating and developing the Korea-Soviet friendship, which was formed in the joint struggle against imperialism and for the victory of peace and the socialist cause and which was firmly cemented by the treaty of friendship, cooperation, and mutual assistance, is the firm policy of our party and the unchanging will of our people. The Korean people will make all efforts to strengthen and develop the invincible relations of alliance generation after generation. Our people sincerely hope that the fraternal Soviet people bring about greater success in the struggle to turn the Soviet Union into a mightier socialist power and to protect the peace and security of the world by thoroughly materializing the decisions of the 27th CPSU Congress.

SOVIET PARTY DELEGATION ATTENDS CELEBRATION

Welcomed by Yon Hyong-muk

SK090338 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 0315 GMT 5 Jul 86

[Report on the arrival of a Soviet party and government delegation led by Yuriy Solovyev, alternate member of the Politburo of the CPSU Central Committee and first secretary of the Leningrad Obkom, in Pyongyang on 5 July -- read by announcer with portions recorded]

[Text] The Soviet party and government delegation led by Comrade Yuriy Filippovich Solovyev, alternate member of the Politburo of the CPSU Central Committee and first secretary of the Leningrad Obkom, arrived in Pyongyang this morning by plane to attend the celebrations of the 25th anniversary of the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance.

Pyongyang airport, where the friendship envoy of the fraternal Soviet people was being received, was filled with the atmosphere of warm welcome.

To receive the envoy of the fraternal Soviet people, arriving with the warm and comradely love of fraternity [tongjijok uaewa] and the sentiment of friendship [chinsonui chong] for our party and people, thousands of working people of all strata in Pyongyang were at the airport with portraits of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the portraits of Comrade Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbachev as well as with the flags of the two countries and bouquets of flowers.

Respectfully placed in the midst of the welcoming crowd were a portrait of the great leader of our party and people Comrade Kim Il-song and a portrait of Comrade Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbachev, general secretary of the CPSU Central Committee. Also placed there were slogan boards reading "Long live the great leader comrade Kim Il-song!," "Long live the glorious WPK!," "Long live Comrade Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbachev!," and "Long live the CPSU!"

In front of the welcoming crowd, slogan boards reading "We warmly welcome the Soviet party and government delegation led by Comrade Yuriy Filoppovich Solovyev!" and "Long live the invincible fraternal friendship and unity between the Korean and Soviet peoples!" were also placed.

With the invincible might and firmness of the traditional Korean-Soviet friendship being displayed, the flags of our country, the Soviet flags, and red banners were fluttering vigorously at the airport.

With the joy of meeting the friendly envoy of Soviet people, class brothers and intimate comrades-in-arms who helped our people's cause of the fatherland's liberation with their blood and who have always given close support and cooperation for our anti-imperialist struggle for socialism, the welcoming crowd waited for the hour of the guests' arrival. Staffers of the Soviet Embassy in our country were also at the airport. [recording of a plane landing heard in background]

At 1000, the plane carrying the delegation landed at the airport. [recording of brass band playing and the acclamation of the crowd heard in background]. Arriving along with Comrade Yuriy Filippovich Solovyev, alternate member of the Politburo of the CPSU Central Committee and first secretary of the Leningrad Obkom, were the members of the delegation: Bally Yazkuliyvich Yazkuliyev, alternate member of the CPSU Central Committee, deputy chairman of the Presidium of he Supreme Soviet, and chairman of the Presidium of the Turkmen Supreme Soviet; (Abel Husknovich Hegilos), member of the CPSU Central Committee and first secretary of the Krasnoyarsk Kray Party Committee; and Nikolay Mikhaylovich Shubnikokv, Soviet ambassador in our country.

The guests were met at the airport by Comrade Yon Hyong-muk, member of the Political Bureau of the WPK Central Committee and first vice premier of the State Administration Council; Comrade Yi Kun-mo, alternate member of the Political Bureau of the WPK Central Committee and secretary of the party Central Committee; Yang Hyong-sop, member of the WPK Central Committee and chairman of the Standing Committee of the Supreme People's Assembly; Kim Yong-chae, member of the WPK Central Committee, chairman of the Central Committee of the Korean-Soviet Friendship Association, and minister of communications; Kil Chae-kyong, deputy director of a department of the WPK Central Committee; and Kim Hyong-yul, vice minister of foreign affairs.

Juvenile Corps members presented a bouquet of flowers to Comrade Yuriy Fuloppovich Soloveyev and the members of the delegation. Children of the Soviet Embassy in our country also presented a bouquet of flowers to Comrade Yuriy Filoppovich Soloveyev and the members of the delegation.

With warm hearts to glorify the invincible Korean-Soviet friendship forever, the welcoming crowd shouted "Hurrah!," "Welcome!," "Friendship!," and "Unity!" They warmly welcomed the guests by waving the flags of the two countries and bouquets of flowers.

Lay Wreath at Cemetery

View Gymnastic Display

SK060832 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0805 GMT 6 Jul 86

[Text] Pyongyang July 6 (KCNA) -- The gymnastic display "Korea Shines" was performed by 50,000 Pyongyang school youth and children on July 5 at the Kim Il-song Stadium for the Soviet delegations attending the celebrations of the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation and Mutual Assistance.

Invited there to see the gymnastic display were the Soviet party and government delegation headed by Yuriy Solovyev, alternate member of the Politbureau of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union and first secretary of the Leningrad Regional Party committee; leading officers of the flotilla of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet under the flag of Admiral V.V. Sidorov, commander of the fleet; commanding officers of the flying corps of the Soviet Air Force led by Lieutenant General of the Air Force V.S. Bulankin, Air Force commander of the Far Eastern military district of the Soviet Army; and other Soviet delegations and Soviet guests.

Watching the performance in their company were Yi Kun-mo, secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea, and Kang Hui-won, chairman of the Pyongyang Municipal Administration and Economic Guidance Committee, who are alternate members of the Poliltical Bureau of the WPK central committee; Yang Huong-sop, chairman of the standing committee of the Supreme People's Assembly, Kim Yong-chae, minister of Post and Tele-communications and chairman of the Central Committee of the Korean-Soviet friendship society, and Kim il-chol, senior vice admiral of the Korean People's Army, who are members of the WPK Central Committee; Kil Chae-kyong, vice-director of a department of the WPK Central Committee, Kim Hyong yol, vice-minister of Foreign Affairs, and other senior officials.

There appeared on the background slogans warmly welcoming the goodwill envoy of the Soviet people together with the letters "long live respected Comrade M.S. Gorbachev!" and "long live the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song!" and portraits of Comrade Kim Il-song and Comrade M.S. Gorbachev.

Then began the gymnastic display "Korea Shines".

The display well depicted with high sports skill the indestructible friendship and unity sealed in blood between the peoples and armies of the two countries to be acclaimed by the spectators.

The performers represented on vivid canvases and with refined rhythms scenes of the anti-Japanese guerrillas routing the Japanese imperialist aggressors, side by side with the Soviet Army, and liberating the country, achievements made by the Soviet people in the building of socialism and communism under the banner of Lenin, and their struggle to implement the decisions of the 27th Congress of the CPSU.

In the epilogue of the gymnastic display, the performers danced to the tune of the Soviet songs in national costumes and military uniforms of Korea and the Soviet Union when the slogans "long live the indestructible fraternal friendship and solidarity between the Korean and Soviet peoples!" "let us develop friendship and solidarity with socialist countries!" and "may Korean-Soviet friendship be everlasting!" and scenes showing the close bonds of friendship between the Korean and Soviet peoples were inscribed on the background in rapid succession.

Kang Song-san Speaks

SK070305 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 1033 GMT 5 Jul 86

[Speech by Kang Song-san, member of the Political Bureau of the Bureau of the WPK Central Committee and premier of the Administration Council, at Pyongyang report meeting held at the 8 February Cultural Hall on 5 July to mark the 25th anniversary of the signing of the agreement for friendship, cooperation, and mutual assistance between the DPRK and the Soviet Union -- Recorded]

[Text] Comrades, we greet the momentous anniversary of the signing of the agreement for friendship, cooperation, and mutual assistance between Korea and the Soviet Union under challenging circumstances in which, upholding the programmatic task set forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song at the 11th Plenary Session of the 6th WPK Central Committee, all the people throughout the country have continuously brought about innovations in socialist construction.

Availing myself of this occasion, which overflows with feelings of friendship, entrusted by, and on behalf of, the WPK Central Committee, the DPRK Government, and the Korean people, I first extend warmest congratulatory and militant greetings to the CPSU Central Committee, to the Soviet Government, and to the fraternal Soviet people. [applause]

I warmly congratulate the members of the Soviet party and government delegation led by the respected Comrade Yuriy Solovyev on participating in this meeting. [applause]

I warmly welcome the Soviet delegations, including the flotilla of the Soviet Red Banner Pacific Fleet, the Soviet Air Flying Corps, the delegation of CPSU Irukutsk Oblast Committee, the delegation of the Soviet Lenin Komsomol, and the delegation of the USSR-Korea Friendship Society. [applause]

Together with the fraternal Soviet people, our people now greet the 25th anniversary of the signing of the agreement for friendship, cooperation, and mutual assistance between Korea and the Soviet Union as a common festive event.

The signing of the agreement for friendship, cooperation, and mutual assistance between Korea and the Soviet Union was an event of great significance in the struggle of the people of the two countries to oppose imperialism and to achieve the victory of socialism and communism. With the signing of this agreement providing momentum, relations of class alliance and ties between the people of the two countries were firmly consolidated on a higher level.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: The signing of the agreement for friendship, cooperation, and mutual assistance, which united the Korean and Soviet people into an invincible alliance, was a great event of historical significance in developing relations of friendship and cooperation between Korea and the Soviet Union.

Over the past 25 years, this agreement sucessfully assumed its role in meeting the interests of the people of Korea and the Soviet Union and the requirements of developoing the economy and its has fully demonstrated its vitality. [applause]

Since the proclamation of its emergence on 6 July 1961, the agreement for friendship, cooperation, and mutual assistance between Korea and the Soviet Union has greatly contributed to opposing the imperialists and the common enemy, to defending the security of the two countries and the socialist gains, and to protecting peace in Asia and the world. [applause]

When we recall, we can understand that international circumstances over the past 25 years have been very complicated. Treating socialism as a thorn in their side, the imperialists have wickedly maneuvered against the socialist countries and have strengthened aggressive and hostile maneuvers to provoke a war throughout the world. The people of our two countries have been forced to wage the struggle under complicated and strained circumstances to build socialism and to preserve world peace and security. Because of this, while mutually supporting and cooperating with each other in accordance with the agreement of friendship, cooperation, and mutual assistance between Korea and the Soviet Union, the people of our two countries have positively struggled to accelerate socialist construction and protect peace in Asia and the world.

This agreement has firmly linked the people of our two countries in a class manner and has encouraged our struggle. We are greatly satisfied with this. [applause]

During the past period, under the wise leadership of the CPSU, the Soviet people have overcome difficulties which hinder the process of advance and have attained brilliant success in building socialism and communism. Thus, they have demonstrated to the world the superiority and vitality of the socialist system, powerfully verifying the justness of the cause of socialism and communism. [applause]

Today the Soviet people are struggling powerfully to implement the magnificent program adopted at the 27th Plenum of the CPSU. All sectors in the Soviet Union, including the political, economic, and cultural sectors, are [words indistinct] social development has forged powerfully ahead, and the political awareness of the people has been greatly developed.

It is the consistent policy of the Soviet party and government to oppose the imperialists' maneuvers for aggression and war and to protect world peace and security. Proceeding from the practical requirements for building communism, the Soviet Union values peace, and consistently struggles to prevent the arms race and eliminate the danger of nuclear war. In particular, the Soviet Union has advanced various peace-loving proposals to counter U.S. imperialist maneuvers to increase the nuclear arms race, to militarize space by accelerating the implementation of the "star wars" plan, to destroy the existing military and strategic balance, and to attain military supremacy. It is positively struggling to implement these proposals. [applause]

After defering the implementation of countermeasures in April of last year to unilaterally suspend deployment of medium-range nuclear missiles and oppose the U.S. deployment of cruise and Pershing II missiles in Europe, the Soviet Union has advanced a series of peace proposals, including a measure to unilaterally suspend nuclear tests, a proposal to peacefully use space on the condition that space not be militarized, and a proposal to reduce Soviet and U.S. strategic weapons by 50 percent.

Through a statement issued on 15 January this year, the Soviet Union announced a comprehensive plan to completely abolish nuclear weapons throughout the world and guarantee international security. At a political consultative meeting of Warsaw Pact nations held recently in Warsaw, the Soviet Union advanced a new proposal to, together with these pact nations, greatly reduce troops and conventional and nuclear weapons in Europe.

To ease tension in the Asian region and Europe, the Soviet Union has advanced a comprehensive proposal for countries in this region to combine efforts to achieve this end and turn the region into a nuclear-free zone of peace and cooperation.

All these peaceful Soviet proposals directly demonstrates the responsible and sincere efforts of the Soviet Union to prevent thermonuclear disasters, guarantee durable world peace, and make the international situation wholesome. Acknowledging that the peace proposals of the Soviet party and government meet the overall interest of socialism and the requirements of the contemporary era, we support these proposals. [applause]

By vigorously forging ahead with the revolution and construction under the wise leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and our party, our people have positively contributed to strengthening the socialist forces as a whole and to protecting peace and security in Asia and the world. Under circumstances in which the country is divided and in which the U.S. imperialists' maneuvers for aggression and war have continued, our people have performed their national and international duties by successfully building socialism. In this land, plagued by backwardness and poverty due to the imperialists' colonial tyranny, our people have successfully built a socialist country possessing modern industry, a developed rural economy, and a brilliantly blossoming and developing culture.

The past half century, from the time when we developed the anti-Japanese armed struggle to regain the land taken away by the Japanese imperialists, has been a time of great history for our country. The far-reaching idea and lofty will of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song to eternally liberate our people from imperialist rule and subjugation, the exploitation and oppression of man by man, and to afford us, the people, an independent and creative idea have been brilliantly realized. It has been a victorious and proud history in which our people, upholding the wise leadership of the glorious WPK, have advanced through the passage of time, overcoming difficulties and trials. [applause]

Today, our people have continued a new march with a high pride and self-respect for having achieved brilliant victory in all fields of the revolution and construction. Accelerating the three revolutions -- ideological, technological, and cultural -- our people are successfully occupying both the ideological and the material fortress of communism, and are waging a vigorous struggle to attain the 10 major prospective targets of socialist economic construction put forward by the Sixth Party Congress.

The reunification of the country is the greatest national long-cherished desire of our people. We assert that the reunification of the country should be realized on the basis of the three principles, independence, peaceful reunification, and grand national unity. [applause]

Our proposal for reunifying the country by founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo is the most realistic and reasonable proposal reflecting the fundamental interests and demands of the entire Korean people. With the serious desire to alleviate the situation on the Korean peninsula, to maintain peace, and to provide an advantageous precondition for the peaceful reunification of the country, our party and the Government of the Republic have made a proposal for reducing the armies of the North and the South, drastically reducing armaments, and halting the importing of all weapons, operational equipment, and military supplies from foreign countries. We have made proposals for replacing the Armistic Agreement with a peace agreement, a proposal for adopting a nonaggression declaration between the North and the South, and so forth, and have struggled to realize them.

Recently, the KPA Supreme Command has made a proposal for holding talks between military persons in authority between us, the United States, and South Korea, and the government of our Republic has made a proposal for making the Korean peninsula a nuclear-free peace zone.

However, the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets are totally rejecting this sincere proposal of ours. The U.S. secretary of state, openly opposing the establishment of a nuclear-free zone on the Korean peninsula, went so far as to rave that the nuclear weapons are a [word indistinct] for the security of this region. This clearly shows that the U.S. imperialists are nuclear war fanatics and the ringleader of those attempting to impose a nuclear calamity on our people.

//

The U.S. imperialists should give up the anachronistic wild fancy of threatening others with nuclear weapons. We are (?maintaining) a consistent (?position) from the natural demand of socialism. Socialist countries regard a joint struggle for building a new peaceful and free world, free from aggression and war, as they noble internationalistic duty and make it the consistent principle of their foreign policy.

When there is no danger of war and when there is a peaceful atmosphere prevailing, socialist countries can build socialism and communism better and more rapidly. Korea and the Soviet Union will spare no effort for peace in Asia and the world in the future as they did in the past. [applause]

Comrades: The situation today is very complicated and tense because of the imperialists' maneuvers of aggression and war. The U.S. imperialists are engaging in an extremely adventurous world strategy to dominate the world, massively building up armaments, accelerating the production and deployment of nuclear weapons and other weapons of mass destruction, and are viciously maneuvering to turn even space into a ground of thermonuclear war.

The U.S. imperialists are increasing their military bases in many parts of the world, building up their aggressive armed forces, frenziedly conducting war exercises, and continuously perpetrating aggression, armed interference, and subversive and destructive activities in Central America, the Caribbean region, the Middle and Near East, southern Africa, and in many other parts of the world.

The U.S. imperialists' open acts of aggression and interference recently perpetrated against the Libyan people, the South African racists' savage armed attack against Zimbabwe, Zambia, Botswana, and Angola perpetrated with the active backing of the U.S. imperiaists and other Western imperialists, and the U.S. imperilists maneuvers to strangle the Nicaraguan (?revolution) clearly show the extent of the shamelessness and recklessness of the imperialists' aggression and interference.

Today, the area in which the danger of a new war is the greatest is the Korean peninsula. The U.S. imperialists are continuously maneuvering to realize their aggressive ambition, holding South Korea as their military strategic point connected with the continent [as heard]. The U.S. imperialists are saying that the Koreasn peninsula is an important operational base of vital interest in the U.S. world strategy and that it is the testing site of the confrontation of strength in the 1980's, bringing in numerous nuclear weapons to provoke a new war in Korea.

There are already more than 1,000 operational nuclear weapons deployed in South Korea. Recently, they have even brought in the notorious neutron bombs and nuclear backpacks -- miniature nuclear bombs. The areas along the Military Demarcation Line in South Koreas has become a [word indistinct] area in which nuclear mines are massively laid. Still unsatisfied with this, the U.S. imperialists have additionally deployed in South Korea such modern military equipment and new units as B-52 strategic bombers, F-16 strategic fighter-bombers, various kinds of missiles, rocket launchers, tanks, and armored cars, even attempting to deploy new chemical weapons. Today, South Korea has been turned into an area in which various kinds of nuclear weapns and nuclear-carrying means are most densely deployed in the world.

Raving about the nonexistent threat of southward invasion, the United States and South Korea are now having the U.S. Army and the South Korean puppet Army enter a state of combat readiness so that they can ignite a war at any time, rapidly pushing ahead with the war preparations from various angles to wage aggression against the northern half of the republic.

As everyone knows, the threat of southward invasion is a deceptive trickery invented by the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets to hide their war maneuvers. In our country now, the threat of northward invasion by the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets, rather than the threat of southward invasion, is increasing with each passing day.

Our KPA, which the U.S. imperialists are saying is preparing a war of southward invasion, is not preparing a war but is participating in peaceful construction. The large-scale construction of the Nampo lockgate of (?binding) the (?20-ri) raw sea was completed by the heroic labor struggle of our KPA soldiers, and the construction of numerous facilities, including the nature-remaking projects, are being successfully carried out by them. This vividly shows the absurdity of the threat of southward invasion raved about by the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets.

The United States regards the Asian region as a major site of military confrontation with the socialist forces, and has decided upon our republic as a focal point of this confrontation policy. The U.S. imperialists are attempting to form a triangular military alliance, thereby accelerating the rearmament and remilitarization of Japan, which is eager with an ambition for overseas expansion, and to drag it into an all-out involvement in their Korean and Asian policy. Taking advantage of this, the Japanese reactionaries are attempting to realize their ambition for a reinvasion of Asia.

Because of the U.S. imperialists' reckless new war provocation maneuvers, tension on the Korean peninsula is becoming extremely acute, resulting in a constantly dangerous situation in which a war could break out at any time.

If a war breaks out in Korea, it will easily spill across the boundary of Korea into a thermonuclear war in Asia and the world. We should prevent the situation from developing in this way at all costs.

While clinging to a policy of aggression and war, the United States is now craftily scheming to have the division of Korea legalized in the international community. As part of its criminal scheme to fabricate two Koreas, after putting on the colony South Korea the overcoat of a sovereign state, it is instigating the puppets to make the 1988 Olympics a success, while preaching a unilateral admission of South Korea into the United Nations, along with the so-called cross-contacts and cross-recognition.

As is known to the whole world, the issue of holding the Olympics in South Korea is not a simply sports issue, but a serious political issue. It is also a product of the U.S. policy of two Koreas.

In a bid to rescue the Olympic movement from a crisis, to hold the next Olympics smoothly, and, and the same time, to create a favorable environment for the realization of a peaceful reunification on Korea, we are calling for cohosting the XXIV Olympiad by the North and South of Korea [chosonui namgwabuk]. Our people and the world's progressive people are now unanimously hoping that this just proposal of ours will be realized.

The United States should abandon its military occupation of South Korea and its colonial rule there, should no longer pursue the criminal policy of two Koreas, and should leave South Korea, taking along its troops and weapons of mass destruction, including nuclear weapons, without delay.

The party and government of the Soviet Union have extended firm support to and solidarity with the implementation of our people's revolutionary cause, while constantly being greatly concerned over the development of the situation on the Korean peninsula. We always remember this and are grateful for it. [applause]

Comrades, Korea and the Soviet Union are friendly neighbors who are linked to each other across a river.

The Korean people and Soviet people are class brothers and close comrades-in-arms who have struggled together for a long time for their common aspirations and goals. The communists and peoples in our two countries have struggled together from early on for the victory of the socialist and communist cause against imperialist aggression and colonial suppression under the banner of Marxism-Leninism and proletarian internationalism with mutual support and cooperation.

The Soviet people, who helped our people's cause of liberation with blood, have sincerely helped our people's building of a new fatherland following liberation, lent material and spiritual assistance to us during the grave period of the fatherland liberation war and the difficult period of the postwar rehabilitation, and are actively cooperating with our socialist construction even today.

In the course of this, Korean-Soviet friendship has been firmly cemented on the basis of brotherly friendship and a revolutionary sense of obligation and has further been strengthened as an invincible one that does not change under any difficulties. [applause] The great leader of our people Comrade Kim Il-song's visit to the Soviet Union in May of 1984 and meetings and talks between the leaders of the two countries were historical events in improving relations between Korea and the Soviet Union that have provided a new milestone in the brilliant chronicle of Korean-Soviet friendship. [applause]

The friendly and cooperative relations between the two countries of Korea and the Soviet Union are being developed and strengthened into a new higher stage in accordance with the interests of the two peoples.

Our people are satisfied with the fact that the friendly and cooperative relations between the peoples of Korea and the Soviet Union are being endlessly developed and strengthened on the basis of Marxism-Leninism and socialism internationalism. [applause]

That the peoples of our two countries are now celebrating the significant 25th anniversary of the signing of the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance as a common felicitous event following last year's magnificent celebration of the 40th anniversary of national liberation, is another clear evidence of the fact that the friendly and cooperative relations between our two countries are blossoming and developing on a constant upswing. [applause]

The party and government of the Soviet Union has sent this time many delegations, including the delegations of the party and government, a flotilla of the Red Flag Pacific Fleet, and a flying corps of the Soviet Air Force, for the celebrations of the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Korea-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance held in our country.

That many Soviet delegations and friends are jointly celebrating together with us the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Korea-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance, renders this celebration of ours more significant. [applause]

This is also a powerful demonstration of the indomitable might and solidity of the fraternal alliance between the peoples of our two countries based on the fraternal friendship and unity and the noble class sense of obligation. [applause]

It is the invariable stand of our party and the government of the republic to consolidate and develop Korean-Soviet friendship, which has a long historical tradition, from generation to generation.

We will make every possible effort to value the friendship and unity with the Soviet people, our revolutionary comrades-in-arms and credible ally, and to further the friendly and cooperative relations between the two countries. [applause]

Marking the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance, our people are full of resolve to make an active contribution to checking the imperialists' scheme to provoke a new war and to defending peace in Asia and the world by constantly remaining faithful to this treaty together with the Soviet people.

Independence, friendship, and peace are the fundamental ideology of foreign policy of our party and the government of the republic.

By firmly uniting with all the world's peace-loving forces, including the socialist countries, under the banner of independence, friendship, and peace, we will stage a vigorous antiwar, antinuclear struggle for peace and will continue struggling fervently in order to hasten the victory of the socialist and communist cause. [applause]

Long live the indomitable fraternal friendship and unity between the Korean and Soviet peoples! [applause]

Long live the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance! [applause]

Solovyev Address

SK070742 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 1108 GMT 5 Jul 86

[Speech by Yuriy F. Solovyev, alternate member of the Politburo of the CPSU Central Committee and first secretary of the Leningrad OBKOM, at a meeting marking the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance held at the 8 February Cultural Hall in Pyongyang on 5 July -- recorded in Russian with passage-by-passage translation into Korean]

[Text] Respected Comrades O Chin-u, respected Comrade Kang Song-san, respected comrades and friends:

Our delegation has come to fraternal socialist Korea to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the signing of the USSR-DPRK Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance, an important event in the lives of our two peoples. We are proud, because we take the honor of representing the CPSU, the Soviet state, and all the Soviet people in the celebrations held in Pyongyang on this anniversary.

In the name of the Central Committee of our party and in the name of the Soviet Government, we express our wholehearted gratutide to the WPK Central Committee and the DPRK Government for inviting us to your country to celebrate with you, in a splendid festive atmosphere, this meaningful day in the history of our relations and for the future of our relations. [applause]

The treaty concluded on 6 July 1961 has strengthened the friendly relations established between the Soviet and Korean people during the period of the common struggle against the Japanese imperialists, which was completed by the Korean liberation by the Soviet Army in August 1945, and during the period of repelling the U.S. aggression against the young Democratic People's Republic into even closer relations. This treaty has provided many possibilities for developing the wide-ranging, multisided, and far-reaching cooperation between us. This treaty was an inevitable improvement of the policy of our two parties to establish a firm political and legal foundation for Soviet-Korean relations based on the economic and cultural cooperation agreement between the Soviet Union and the DPRK concluded in 1949. The Soviet-Korean Treaty, which is of peaceful nature, is for the purpose of strengthening friendship and cooperation between the Soviet Union and the DPRK. It agrees with the relations of (?vital interest) between the two countries, and excellently promotes economic and cultural development in the two countries. [applause]

The treaty envisages the participation by the two sides in all international activities to guarantee peace and security in the Far East and in the whole world and (?shows) unanimity in the stand of the Soviet Union and the DPRK to achieve the reunification of Korea in a peaceful and democratic way, as well as the desire [huimang] and (?willingness) of the two sides to hold mutual negotiations over important international questions of common interest and to deepen and develop economic and cultural relations. Soviet-Korean relations, being developed on the basis of the treaty, are constantly supplemented with new contents and are reaching an even higher stage.

The principled agreements reached during the visit to the Soviet Union in 1984 by Comrade Kim Il-song, general secretary of the WPK Central Committee and president of the DPRK, have had an important impact [chunggyok] on the development of Soviet-Korean relations in the eighties. [applause] These agreements have been further developed through talks held since then between the leaders of the parties and states of the Soviet Union and Korea.

The efforts of the two sides to increase the effectiveness of bilateral cooperation and bring this cooperation to an even higher qualitative level in favor of the peoples of our two countries in conformity with the spirit of the treaty have been clearly expressed through the meetings between the Soviet Union and Korea. In this respect, the intergovernmental agreements concluded in Moscow at the end of 1985 for economic and technical cooperation and for cooperation in the construction of plants and the people's economy will play a positive role.

Today, the Soviet people are making enthusiastic efforts to implement the great (?far-reaching) program of the Soviet society put forth by the 27th CPSU Congress according to the plan to accelerate social and economic development. The basic direction of the strategy of acceleration is to establish a highly organized and effective economy, with scientific and technological progress and the most advanced labor productivity as objectives. The strategy of acceleration envisages the active and flexible management of the people's economy, active and unitary social policy, comprehensive democratization of political lives, and the perfection of socialist autonomy of the people. The creative positivity of the masses, which is the decisive creative might on a new stage in the development of Soviet society, has become a fundamental factor in the acceleration.

(?Successes) are already in the offing. The (?spirit of living) and the people's attitude toward work are changing. Success has been won in improving the economic situation and a series of important decisions to improve the fields of production and society and other fields of the living have been adopted. The working style of the party, state, and economic organs are changing. All of this gives a principled affirmative answer to the question (?arising from the prevailing situation).

However, many things are still presented and there is much to do. At the CPSU plenary session held in June 1986, candid and demanding discussions were held in this regard. Responding to the appeal of our party Central Committee to the Soviet working people, party members and all of the Soviet people are filled with determination to work to ceaselessly improve the people's welfare, strengthen the economy of the country, and reinforce the defense system. [applause]

By widely introducing the (? successes) in science, production, and (? revolution) into practice, our country is solving questions of the collectivizing social production in close cooperation with fraternal socialist countries. Thanks to the scientific and technological development program of the CEMA member nations adopted at the 41st CEMA special meeting held in Moscow late last year, a new vista has opened and new potentials have been provided along this course.

The fraternal Korean people have won a great victory in establishing a new life. In a relatively short historic period, your country has turned into an advanced socialist industrial state which vigorously seeks a transition to intensive development and scientific and technological progress and innovation. I extend whole-hearted congratulations for this excellent achievement the diligent Korean people have won in socialist construction. [applause]

Comrades, to successfully carry on the great economic and social construction plans in our countries, peace is necessary as well as a firm belief in the future. This is precisely why the question of guaranteeing peace and international security was a matter of important interest at the 27th CPSU Congress. The CPSU members and all of the Soviet people consider it their (? duty) to make all efforts to halt the (? reckless) arms race and defend peace.

The policy of developing new types of weapons of mass destruction, including nuclear weapons, which the imperialists are enforcing is not only meaningless, but a criminal policy which has completely excluded any pragmatic (?idea) of coexistence.

The CPSU has substituted the Leninist peace philosophy for an injudicious attitude toward the destiny of world civilization. This philosophy considers preventing war crucial to the existence of mankind, places the task of preserving civilization above all other interests, and defines talks and cooperation, negotiations and the exchange of views, and political dialogue as the basic means to settle disputes.

Comrade Gorbachev, General Secretary of the CPSU Central Committee noted in the 27th CPSU Congress: Unquestionably, socialism rejects the notion of war being a means to settle political and economic contradictions and ideological issues among countries. Our ideology is for a world without weapons and violence, a world in which all people can freely choose the path for their own development and their own way of life.

Our peace program is bolstered by concrete proposals. Putting these proposals into practice will open a straightforward path to lasting peace on earth. The Soviet proposal advanced last 15 January to eliminate nuclear weapons from the face of earth step-by-step by the year 2000 and the Soviet Union's unilateral measure freezing nuclear tests, which our country has once again extended until 6 August, demonstrate great patience and self-restraint despite continued nuclear testing by the United States, and have aroused great reaction in the international community. [applause]

The idea of establishing a most comprehensive international security system presented by the 27th CPSU is of a general nature. A letter of appeal to NATO member states and all of the countries in Europe containing a proposal to strengthen security throughout all of Europe and to reduce armed forces and conventional weapons in Europe, which was adopted at a meeting of the political consultative (?committee) of the countries participating in the Warsaw Pact held recently in Budapest, has provoked great reaction throughout the entire world.

The 27th CPSU Congress stressed that the significance of the Asia-Pacific region has further grown in the external activities of the CPSU and the Soviet state.

The report noted: There are not a few [words indistinct] in this vast region and in some areas even the political situation is unstable. In this region, one should find one's own means and ways to solve one's own problems without (?delay). One may have to begin with coordinating efforts designed to politically settle difficult issues and then with a combination of efforts. On this basis, and at the same time, it is necessary to at least eliminate the acuteness of military confrontation in various areas of this region and to stabilize the situation in these areas.

Soviet proposals to take a complex attitude toward the Asian security problem were put into a concrete form in a Soviet government statement dated 23 April. Our country counters the policy of the U.S. and Japanese militarist quarters which favor converting the Asia-Pacific region into an area of confrontation and competition with the Soviet Union with a line which rejects the establishment of a bloc, an axis, and a tripartite military alliance. The Soviet Union proposes to create preconditions for settling disputes through bilateral and multilateral negotiations, holding an all-Asian conference, and jointly exploring a constructive solution. Availing myself of this opportunity, I express thanks to the WPK and the government and people of the DPRK for supporting and backing Soviet proposal to ultimately preserve lives on the globe. [applause]

The DPRK proposals for the withdrawal of U.S. forces from South Korea, the replacement of the Armistice Agreement with a peace agreement, the adoption of a declaration of nonaggression between the North and the South, the continuance of the dialogue of the Korean nation, and other steps taken by the North to normalize the situation and allevite tension on the Korea peninsula play a significant positive role in the struggle to improve the situation in Asia and the Pacific region.

The Soviet Union considers the reunification of Korea a complicated and serious issue which calls for a solution, and consistently stands by the fraternal Korean people in their struggle for national reunification. [applause]

Our country supported the DPRK Government statement dated 23 June of this year on turning the Korean peninsula into a nuclear-free zone of peace. [applause] We resolutely denounce the formation of a new military political bloc among Washington, Seoul, and Tokyo and the acceleration of the militarization of South Korea, for this will complicate the overall situation in the Far East and the Pacific region and lay a [word indistinct] obstacle before the reunification of your country.

A month of solidarity with the Korean people in their struggle to force the U.S. forces out of South Korea and to reunify the country by peaceful and democratic means is now underway in the Soviet Union. In numerous rellies and demonstrations, the workers of our country are join their voices of support for the Korean brothers' just demands to force the U.S. forces out of South Korea and to open a road to the reunification of the country, the long-cherished desire of the entire Korean people. [applause]

Dear Korean friends, [words indistinct] the members of our delegation are visiting your country for the first time. I will not conceal the fact that we had heard much about the successes you have attained in socialist construction. However, what we have seen surpasses what we had expected. We are happy to greet this holiday for both of us in the beautiful land of Korea.

Today, as we greet the 25th anniversary of the signing of the agreement of friendship, cooperation, and mutual assistance, a significant day in the history of the relations between the Soviet Union and Korea, we sincerely wish the fraternal Korean people a new great success, under the (?active) leadership of the WPK Central Committee headed by Comrade Kim Il-song, in their struggle for the complete victory of socialism and the peaceful reunification of Korea and in their struggle to carry out the decision of the Sixth WPK Congress. [applause]

Long live the friendship and fraternal cooperatin between the CPSU and the WPK, between the USSR and the DPRK, and between the Soviet people and the Korean people! [applause]

Long live peace throughout the entire world! [applause]

Comrades, to commemorate our delegation's visit to Korea, I am going to offer you a red banner. [applause]

SOVIET GROUP TOURS MONGYONGDAE, NAMPO BARRAGE

SK071035 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1007 GMT 7 Jul 86

[Text] Pyongyang July 7 (KCNA) -- The Soviet party and government delegation headed by Yuriy Solovyev, alternte member of politbureau of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union and first secretary of the Leningrad Regional Party Committee, attending the celebrations of the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation and Mutual Assistance visited Mangyongdae on July 6.

It was accompanied by Yi Kun-mo, alternative member of the Political Bureau, and secretary, of the Central Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea, Kim Yong-chae, minister of Post and Telecommunications and chairman of the Central Committee of the Korean-Soviet Friendship Society, and others.

Listening to an explanation about the revolutionary history and revolutionary family of the great leader President Kim Il-song, the guests saw the historic mementoes preserved in his old home in Mangyongdae.

The delegation made the following entry in the visitors' book: "We are reassured once again that you are educating the youth and entire people in the love for the socialist homeland and the spirit of fidelity based on the glorious revolutionary traditions created in the national liberation struggle which was waged under the leadership of Comrade Kim Il-song."

The delegation visited the Nampo barrage, a great monumental edifice, built at the estuary of the river Taedong on the Korean West Sea by damming off eight kilometers of rough sea.

Thousands of working people in Nampo warmly welcomed the friendship mission of the Soviet people, close brothers andd comrades-in-arms, at the entrance of the barrage, shouting "welcome," "friendship" and "solidarity" and waving flags of the two countries and bunches of flowers.

The guests went round the monument to the barrage, the swing bridge, the historical monument and locks, while being briefed on the fact that the Korean people and the People's Army soldiers built the world's biggest barrage with their own design, technique, strength and materials, upholding the vast plan of great nature-remaking of President Kim Il-song and the Workers' Party of Korea.

The head of the delegation said it is a great thing that the Korean people built such a gigantic barrage in a short period.

The delegation visited the grand people's study house on the same day.

SOVIET DELEGATIONS VIEW DANCE PERFORMANCE

[Speech by Kang Song-san, member of the Political Bureau of the WPK Central Committee and premier of the DPRK State Administration Council, at a banquet arranged by the WPK Central Committee and DPRK Government on 6 July at the People's Cultural Palace in Pyongyang marking the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance -- read by announcer]

[Text] Comrades, members of the Soviet party and government delegation headed by the respected Comrade Yuriy Solovyev, and close Soviet comrades:

Today, we are very happy to be here together with our close friends and revolutionary comrades-in-arms, the Soviet comrades, to magnificently celebrate the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance.

Following last year's joint celebration of the 40th anniversary of national liberation as a great political felicitous event, the peoples of our two countries are marking the significant 25th anniversary of the signing of the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance, once again as a common fete. This is a powerful demonstration of the invincible vitality of Korean-Soviet friendship and a clear manifestation of the common desire of the two parties, two countries, and two peoples to carry forward and develop forever the friendly and cooperative relations between the two peoples.

Availing myself of this occasion, which is overflowing with warm fraternal friendship, entrusted by and in the name of the WPK Central Committee and the DPRK Government, and in the name of the Korean people, first of all, I once again warmly welcome the visit to our country by various Soviet delegations, including the delegation of the Soviet party and Government headed by the respected Comrade Yuriy Solovyev, the flotilla of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet, and a flying corps of the Soviet Air Force.

Twenty-five years ago today, the peoples of the two countries signed the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance, reflecting the unanimous will to frustrate and check the aggression and war schemes of the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys and to preserve peace in Asia and the world. With the signing of this treaty, an epochal event in developing Korean-Soviet relations, the friendly and cooperative relations between the peoples of the two countries were legally and firmly fixed and they have further been strengthened and developed as alliance relations.

The Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance has in the past period greatly contributed to the prevention of the manuvers of the imperialists to provoke a new war and to defending the security of the two countries and peace in the Far East, Asia, and the world.

Although it was only 25 years ago when the alliance relations were established between Korea and the Soviet Union, their historical roots are very deep. For a very long time, the peoples of our two countries have traversed together an arduous and glorious struggle path to attain the victory of the socialist and communist cause against imperialism under the banner of Marxism-Leninism and proletarian internationalism. In this course, the peoples of our two countries have established inseparable blood ties with each other and have become class brothers and revolutionary comrades-in-arms to each other.

Today, the traditional Korean-Soviet friendly relations are blossoming and developing each day following the milestone provided by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song's visit to the Soviet Union 2 years ago and by the historical meetings between the leaders of the two countries.

Our party and government are very satisified with this.

Over the past years, the peoples of Korea and Soviet Union have victoriously promoted the revolution and construction in their countries and actively contributed to increasing the might of socialism as a whole, positively supporting and cooperating with each other in the spirit of the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance.

The fraternal Soviet people are energetically striving for the acceleration of the country's socioeconomic development and overall completion of socialism, upholding the grand program presented by the 27th CPSU Congress.

Our people sincerely rejoice over the successes achieved by the Soviet people as over their own, and wholeheartedly wish them new success in their future struggle to brilliantly complete the 12th 5-year Plan which will serve as a decisive stage in their struggle to implement the strategic policy of the party.

We also highly appreciate the consistent efforts exerted by the Soviet party, Government, and people to check and frustrate the nuclear arms buildup and war maneuvers of the imperialists, to make the international situation sound, and to preserve world peace and security, and fully support all the peace-loving proposals of the Soviet Union.

Our people are now tenaciously struggling to defend the eastern guard post of socialism and to hasten the complete victory of socialism in the northern half of the republic and the independent and peaceful reunification of the country under the difficult circumstances in which the country remain divided and in which we stand face to face directly with the U.S. imperialists.

Our people, who are advancing upholding the wise leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and our party, are now full of firm conviction in the victory of the revolution and in an optimistic view of the world and are full of determination to successfully overcome any obstacles laid in the path of advancement, more than at any previous time.

Availing myself of this opportunity, I express my deep thanks to the party, government, and people of the Soviet Union who are lending support and encouragement to the cause of our socialist construction and of national reunification.

It is a consistent stand maintained by our party and the government of the republic to ease tension on the Korean peninsula and preserve peace there and to peacefully solve the reunification question through dialogue and negotiation.

However, the United States, presenting the fabrication of two Koreas as the basic straegy for its present policy toward Korea, is positively protecting the South Korean pupppets' anticommunist confrontation and fascist military policy and is making the situation in our country become acute to the extreme.

While accelerating the scheme to fabricate the tripartite military alliance among the United States, Japan, and South Korea, the U.S. imperialists are shipping into South Korea a mass number of nuclear weapons of various types and modern means of war and are continuing to kick up rackets of nuclear war exercises against us. Not only has it declared the Korean peninsula as the forefront of U.S. strategy, but it also openly babbles that another Korean war would be a nuclear war.

Military threats to us are posed not only by South Korea, but also by all of U.S. military bases in neighboring areas of our country. If a war breaks out in Korea, it will expand into vast areas in Asia and the world and will eventually become a nuclear war.

We have put forward various types of political solutions as fundamental measures for the prevention of war and for the consolidation of peace. We also have presented reasonable proposals time after time for the elimination of the dangers of armed clashes.

Entering this year we proposed to stop large-scale military exercises and suspend all military exercises in the period of dialogue. We also proposed to the United States and the South Korean side the holding of talks between military authorities.

The government of the republic again proposed the creation of a nuclear-free peace zone on the Korean peninsula.

The United States and the persons in authority in South Korea have responded to our peace-loving efforts with malicious anticommunist rackets and war exercise rackets. This shows that the United States and the persons in authority in South Korea are, in actuality, not concerned about pece, though they are superficially babbling about peace or dialogue and that they are the ones who are leading the situation on the Korean peninsula to the brink of war.

The United States and the persons in authority in South Korea should abandon their maneuvers to provoke a new war without delay.

Our people will fight staunchly against war and for the defense of peace by joining forces with the peoples of the socialist countries, including the Soviet people, and all the world's peace-loving people and achieve without fail our historical cause of national reunification with the active support and encouragement of the progressive peoples of the world.

Our people will treasure Korean-Soviet friendship forged in the flames of revolutionary struggle and will make every possible effort to further consolidate the relations of alliance with the Soviet peoples. We are convinced that your visits to our country will make a great contribution to demonstrating the great vitality of Korean-Soviet friendship, which has been strongly consolidated on the basis of the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, cooperation, and Mutual Assistance, and to further consolidating and developing it.

In conclusion, I propose a toast at this gathering, which is overflowing with feelings of friendship, to the invincibly militant friendship and unity between the Korean people and Soviet people; to the long life and good health of the respecred Comrade Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbachev, general secretary of the CPSU Central committee; to the long life and good health of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song; to the long life and good health of the dear leader [chinaehanun chidoja] Comrade Kim Chong-il, to the good health of the respected Comrade Yuriy Solovyev; to the good health of Soviet guests; and to the good health of all of the comrades who are here with us.

Solovyev Banquet Speech

[Speech by Yuriy Solovyev, alternate member of the Politburo of the CPSU Central Committee and first secretary of the Leningrad Obkom, at a banquet arranged by the WPK Central Committee and DPRK Government on 6 July at the People's Cultural Hall in Pyongyang — read by announcer]

[Text] Dear Korean friends and comrades:

I first of all deem it my lofty duty to sincerely express thanks to the WPK Central Committee and the government of the Republic for the invitation to the functions celebrating the 25th anniversary of the conclusion of the USSR-DPRK Treaty on Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance and to today's banquet marking this anniversary. I also wholeheartedly express thanks for the warm words and friendly wishes extended to our country, our party, our people, and our leaders that we have received in your friendly country.

Throughout the history of Soviet-Korean relations are many unforgettable events and significant commemorative days which have become great milestones in constantly strengthening and developing the ties of traditional friendship and cooperation between the peoples of our two countries. The conclusion of the joint, bilateral treaty in Moscow on 6 July 1961 is one of the most important and significant events. With the conclusion of this treaty, our two socialist countries and two peoples have fixed their relationship of alliance, traditional friendship, fraternal cooperation, and militant solidarity.

As they have clearly been solidified and legally enacted, the friendly Soviet-Korean relations not only have been developed onto a new, higher stage, but have also been further expanded and deepended. Thus, a wide prospect for useful cooperation in the fields of politics, economy, progress in science and technology, and culture has unfolded.

This treaty, which is based on Marxism-Leninism, proletarian socialist internationalism, and the principles of complete equality, mutual respect, and mutual trust, has become and is an important factor for maintaining peace and security in the Far East, Asia, and the Pacific on the abundant basis of the developing Soviet-Korean relations. It is certain that the Soviet-Korean treaty will, in the future, too, faithfully serve peace, the cause of the people's friendship, and basic interests of our two countris and of all the socialist countries.

The working people of our two countries are now celebrating the glorious commemoration day amid circumstances under which great political and labor upsurges are being effected. The decision of the historic 27th CPSU Congress means a fundamental turn in all fields of politics, economy, and spiritual life for the Soviet people. The collective wisdom of the party has provided answers to the principled, important problems of further developing our society, has armed each Soviet Communist Party member and the Soviet people with the principle of conduct, and has let them clearly understand new tasks and detailed ways for their implementation.

The CPSU general line for accelerating the social and economic development of the country and for solidifying peace in the world, which has been clearly proven in the documents of the congress, has opened a new (?stage) in the communist construction theory and its practice, and has become the basis of the multilateral tasks that our party of Lenin and all of our people are carrying out today.

Today, the Soviet people are devotedly working and thoroughly fulfilling assigned plans at all posts of communist construction by responding to the decision of the congress, the CPSU Central Committee's letter of appeal to the Soviet working people, and the decision of the recently held meeting of the USSR Supreme Soviet through their practrical work.

In this course, new prospects and possibilities for further expanding economic, scientific, and technological cooperation with the fraternal socialist countries, including the DPRK, have unfolded.

All successes attained by the DPRK in socialist construction are first of all a fruition of the devoted efforts of the Korean people under the leadership of the WPK. These successes have also clearly shown the realistic nature of proletarian socialist internationalism, its great vitality, and the specific character of the useful cooperation of the fraternal socialist countries.

The Soviet people sincerely rejoice over the successes attained by the fraternal Korean people in socialist construction and wish them a new great success in the fulfillment of the task set forth at the 6th Congress of the WPK. Commemorating the 25th anniversary of the conclusion of the Soviet-Korean treaty, we can indicate, with great satisfaction, that the relations of fraternal cooperation and mutual assistance between our two countries have invariably developed in the major directions of socialist and communist construction.

Economic, scientific, and technological ties between the two countries have been deepened, and cooperation in the cultural, scientific, and education fields has been extensively developed. The contacts between the CPSU and the WPK, between public organizations, between leagues of creative functionaries, between plants and enterprises, and between education organs have become closer. In these contacts, the two sides have attached primary importance to completely embodying the agreements reached during the official and goodwill visit to the Soviet Union of the DPRK party and state delegation led by Comrade Kim Il-song, general secretary of the WPK Central Committee and president of the DPRK, in May 1984 and at subsequent talks and meetings between leaders of the Soviet Union and the DPRK.

The stand of our friendly two countries toward the problem of war and peace, the most urgent problem of the present times, fully accords with the spirit of the treaty.

While having constant interest in securing the peace and security of the people, the Soviet Union has sternly struggled against the imperialists' maneuvers for aggression and has resolutely struggled to eliminate the threat of nuclear weapons, to restrain the arms race, to solidify peace, and to make the overall international situation sound.

The party's Central Committee political report delivered at the 27th CPSU Congress specially emphasized that the struggle against the threat of nuclear weapons and the arms race and for preserving and solidifying overall peace is the basic direction of party activities in the international arena. Detailed ways for achieving such a main goal in the developmentof the international situation at present are included in the statement by Comrade Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbachev, general secretary of the CPSU Central Committee, on 15 January 1986 and the docoments of the 27th CPSU Congress.

The essence of the comprehensive and constructive peace initiatives and proposals of the Soviet Union that have won warm concurrence and support from all progressive mankind as well as from the Korean people is to contribute to improving the international situation to the maximum and to open the road of restraining the nuclear arms race on earth and preventing it from expanding to space.

While struggling to alleviate tension, to completely abolish nuclear weapons and chemical weapons by the end of the present century, to create a most comprehensive international security system, and to develop cooperation, the Soviet Union has always considered the interests of all countries and people of the world.

For the people of the Asian Continent and the Pacific region, the problem of peace and security has been presented no less acutely than for the people in Europe. Therefore, the Soviet program for peace accords with the aspiration and desire of the people in these regions.

We can indicate, with great feelings of gratitude, the fact that our Korean friends have fully supported and approved this program. Our Korean friends are seriously concerned over the complicated international situation in the Far East and the entire Asian and Pacific region together with the Soviet Union and other socialist countries.

In areas close to the borders of the Soviet Union, the DPRK and other Asian socialist countries, the U.S. military potential has been rapidly increased. A provocative, large-scale military exercise has been staged on a regular basis in these areas. A military alliance among the United States, Japan, and South Korea has been fabricated. South Korea has been turned into a forward nuclear base of the Pentagon. A militarist trend is growing in Japan. This cannot but arouse our common apprehension. All of this urgently demands that a comprehensive step for security in Asia be provided. The essence of such a step should serve to pool the efforts of all Asian countries for preserving peace in this continent and the rest of the world as stressed by Comrade Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbachev, general secretary of the CPSU Central Committee.

The peace-loving policy of the Asian socialist countries and the Nonaligned Movement plays an important role in the struggle for peace and security. The peace initiatives put forward by the Asian socialist countries and the Nonaligned Movement have constituted valuable contributions to the common cause of preventing the danger of war.

The constructive proposals of the DPRK for making the situation on the Korean peninsula sound and for turning the Korean peninsula into a nuclear-free zone have won invariable support from the Soviet Union and the progressive social circles of the world.

We express full [chonpokjok] and complete [wanjonha] sympathy with the DPRK's just demand for the withdrawal of the U.S. forces from South Korea. We support the proposal for replacing the Armistice Agreement with a peace agreement and for adopting a declaration of nonaggression between the North and South, as well as the proposal for holding parliamentary talks. We support such steps as the DPRK Government's unilateral adoption of a decision not to stage large-scale military exercises.

The Korean people's struggle against the maneuvers to perpetuate the division of the country and to force two Koreas has won understanding and sympathy.

The peace initiatives of the DPRK can be justifiably regarded as one of the important measures to practically realize a comprehensive step concerning the problem of peace and security in Asia.

During the month of solidarity with the Korean people's struggle to withdraw U.S. forces from South Korea and to reunify the country on a peaceful and democratic basis which is now being observed in the Soviet Union, the Soviet people express complete and full support for your just demand.

Comrades, marking the 25th anniversary of the conclusion of the Soviet-Korean Treaty on Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance, a glorious commemorative day, we extend our sincere, fraternal greetings to the DPRK working people and wish you a new, great success in socialist construction and in the struggle for the peaceful reunification of the country? Under the tested leadership of the WPK Central Committee headed by Comrade Kim Il-song, general secretary of the WPK Central Committee and president of the DPRK.

Intimate comrades, upon the authorization that I have received, I convey warm greetings from the members of the CPSU Central Committee Politburo, Communist Party members, and all the Soviet people to you and all the working people in the DPRK. I wish esteemed Comrade Kim Il-song and esteemed Comrade Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbachev long life and good health. I wish esteemed Comrade Kim Chong-il a long life and good health. I wish esteemed Comrade O Chin-u and Kang Song-san good health and success in their work. I wish all Korean and Soviet comrades present here good health and happiness.

SOVIET PARTY DELEGATION WELCOMED IN N. HWANGHAE

SK080522 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0504 GMT 8 Jul 86

[Text] Pyongyang July 8 (KCNA) — A North Hwanghae provincial mass meeting welcoming the Soviet Party and Government delegation attending celebrations of the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation and Mutual Assistance was held Monday at the Sariwon City Plaza with the attendance of over 50,000 working people of all walks of life and school youth and children.

Addressing the meeting Choe Mun-son, chief secretary of the North Hwanghae Provincial Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea and chairman of the North Hwanghae Provincial People's Committee, said that the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation and Mutual Assistance has greatly contributed to firmly defending socialist gains and successfully accelerating the building of socialism and communism in the two countries and consolidating peace in Asia and the world against imperialism in the period since its announcement to the world.

The fraternal Soviet people under the leadership of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union headed by respected Comrade Mikhail Gorbachev are successfully waging a struggle to comprehensively complete socialism and further advance the Soviet society toward communism, he said, and went on:

The peaceful foreign policy of the Soviet Party and Government enjoys full support and sympathy of the world progressive people. We actively support the anti-war, anti-nuclear and peace proposals put forward by the Soviet Party and Government and join the world progressive people in strongly demanding that the United States renounce at once its adventurous nuclear war policy for world supremacy.

Our people will remain faithful to their commitments of the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation and Mutual Assistance and thus tighten still more the class bonds and relations of alliance between the two peoples.

Member of the delegation Pavel Fechirko, first secretary of the Krasnoyarsk Territorial Committee of the CPSU, expressed in his speech the belief that the Soviet-Korean Treaty will play a particularly important role in checking and frustrating imperialist aggression moves and help toward strengthening all-round cooperation between the Soviet Union and Korea in the future, too.

He said: The creative plans of the peoples of the Soviet Union and Socialist Korea are for a durable peace in Asia and the world. We will fight side by side to defend and consolidate peace.

Saying that the Democratic People's Republic of Korea is making a great contribution to achieving security in Asia, he pointed out: The Workers' Party of Korea and the government of the DPRK, put forward important initiatives for dispelling tension on the Korean peninsula and thus showed to the whole world that it is the DPRK not the South Korea nor its patrons, which is interested in the security of the Korean peninsula.

In the Soviet Union full support and solidarity is expressed for the proposals of the DPRK Government to turn the Korean peninsula into a nuclear-free, peace zone and create conditions for relaxing the tension in this area and continuing practical talks by realising contact in the military field.

I stress once again that the Soviet Union is a true friend and ally of the DPRK, which actively supports in every way the powerful advance of the Korean people in economic construction and their efforts to heighten the international prestige of the country.

Kim Hyong-chong Banquet Speech

SK080455 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0436 GMT 8 Jul 86

[Text] Pyongyang July 8 (KCNA) -- The North Hwanghae Provincial Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea and the North Hwanghae Provincial Administration and Economic Guidance Committee arranged a banquet Monday evening for the Soviet Party and Government delegation.

Present at the banquet on invitation were the members of the delegation headed by Yuriy Solovyev, alternate member of the Politbureau of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union and first secretary of the Leningrad Regional Party Committee, Soviet Ambassador to Korea Nikolay Shubnikov and his embassy officials.

Present there were Yi Kun-mo, alternate member of the Political Bureau, and secretary, of the Central Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea, Choe Mun-son, chief secretary of the North Hwanghae Provincial Party Committee and chairman of the North Hwanghae Provincial People's Committee, and Kim Yong-chae, minister of Post and Telecommunications and chairman of the C.C., the Korean-Soviet Friendship Society, who are members of the WPK Central Committee, and others.

The banquet was addressed by Kim Hyong-chong, chairman of the North Hwanghae Provincial Administration and Economic Guidance Committee and B. Yazkuliev, vice-president of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the USSR and president of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the Turkmen Soviet Socialist Republic.

Kim Hyong-chong said that over the past 25 years, the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation and Mutual Assistance has made a great contribution to safeguarding the gains of revolution and defending peace in Asia and the rest of the world against the imperialists' manoeuvres of aggression and war and to developing the traditional relations of friendship and cooperation between the two peoples.

Through our meeting with you we have gained better knowledge of the achievements made by the fraternal Soviet people in their endeavours to fulfill the decisions of the 27th Party Congress and the Twelfth 5-year plan under the correct leadership of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union headed by respected Comrade Mikhail Gorbachev, and heartily wish you greater success in the efforts to carry through the strategic policy of the party, he said, and stressed:

The working people in the province, together with the entire Korean poeple, will resolutely defend and develop and strengthen down through all generations the Korean-Soviet friendship cemented as a class alliance, whatsoever rigorous trial may come, and always advance hand in hand with the fraternal Soviet people on the same road of the struggle for the final victory of the cause of socialism and communism.

Yazkuliev Banquet Speech

SK080528 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0514 GMT 8 Jul 86

[Text] Pyongyang July 8 (KCNA) -- The North Hwanghae Provincial Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea and the North Hwanghae Provincial Administration and Economic Guidance Committee, arranged a banquet Monday evening for the Soviet Party and Government delegation.

Member of the delegation B. Yazkuliev, vice-president of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the USSR and president of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the Turkmen Soviet Socialist Republic, spoke at the banquet.

He noted that the Soviet-Korean Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation and Mutual Assistance signed 25 years ago has consolidated the relations of friendship, solidarity and cooperation between the two peoples.

Recalling that the delegation was received by Comrade Kim Il-song, he said: The warm and kind hospitality accorded us clearly demonstrated once again the daily strengthening fraternal relations between the two parties and the commonness of the purpose of the two peoples.

He further said:

While staying in your country and going round Sariwon, the centre of North Hwanghae province, we could see at first hand how persistently the working people of the DPRK work to fulfill the tasks for further social progress, which were set forth at the 6th Congress of the party, under the leadership of the Central Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea headed by Comrade Kim Il-song.

We express thanks to our Korean friends for their invariable support to the Soviet Union in its struggle to defend peace and prevent the danger of a nuclear war.

We are against any attempt to form a regional military and political bloc and create an atmosphere of confrontation and alienation in the Asia-Pacific region and all manner of sinister military and political moves.

The Soviet Union strongly and invariably holds that the reunification question of Korea must be fairly solved and fully supports the constructive proposals of the DPRK demanding that tensions be eased on the Korean peninsula and this area be turned into a nuclear-free, peace zone, U.S. troops be withdrawn from South Korea and the destiny of the Korean people be shaped by themselves.

In other words, the reunification of Korea must be achieved on a peaceful and democratic basis.

We assure you of our fidelity to article five of our treaty of alliance which emphasizes its conformity with the national interests of the Korean people and the preservation of peace in the Far East.

SOVIET PACIFIC FLEET DETACHMENT VISITS WONSAN

NODONG SINMUN Welcomes Visit

[NODONG SINMUN 4 July Article: "We Warmly Welcome Sentries of Peace"]

[Text] A detachment of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet and a flying corps of the Soviet Air Force will make an official and friendly visit to our country today. Officers and men of our People's Army and all of the Korean people warmly welcome the visit to our country of the detachment of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet and the flying corps of the Air Force.

The visit of the detachment of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet and the flying corps of the Soviet Air Force is the second, following a similar visit last year. While staying in our cuntry, they will participate in functions to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Korea-Soviet Treaty on Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance.

This is another mighty demonstration of the militant friendship and solidarity which increases each day between the armies and people of the two countries of Korea and the Soviet Union.

The Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet and the flying corps of the Soviet Air Force have traversed an arduous but glorious road of struggle for the security and peace of the Soviet fatherland. Early in World War II, the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet defended sea routes in the Far Eastern region, and Soviet naval ships and Air Force units were attached to the North Sea Fleet, the Baltic Sea Fleet, and the Black Sea Fleet, during which they fought bravely.

Numerous marine corps troops of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet participated in the battles of Moscow, the Volga River, and (Kkakka) and were cited for bravery in the heroic defense battles of Sevastapol and Leningrad.

After the Hitler fascists were mopped up in Europe, the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet participated in the war against Japan, together with numerous officers and men of the Red Army, and performed immortal exploits in the struggle to annihilate the Japanese militarists' airplanes, imperialist naval ships, air bases, and other military facilities. Numerous officers and men participated in the battle to liberate Korea and sacrificed their noble lives. The flying corps of the Soviet Air Force also performed great services in battles to annihilate fascist Germany and militarist Japan.

The matchless massive heroism and lofty spirit of sacrifice displayed by officers and men of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet in the battle to liberate Korea is still vividly alive in the memory of our people even today, some 40 years later. Thus, the name of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet has been widely known to our people and has been called a symbol of Korea-Soviet friendship. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: Korea-Soviet friendship is based on the firm relationship of class alliance and comradely fraternity and has a long historic tradition.

Korea and the Soviet Union are friendly neighbors linked by a river, and the people of the two countries of Korea and the Soviet Union are class brothers and intimate revolutionary comrades-in-arms who have jointly struggled toward a common ideal and goal for a long time.

In the joint struggle against the brigandish Japanese imperialists, the people of the two countries of Korea and the Soviet Union shed blood together. They supported and cooperated with each other in the struggle for socialist construction.

The fraternal Soviet people not only assisted our people both materially and morally in the past fatherland liberation war period, but also actively cooperated during the postwar rehabilitation and socialist construction.

In the international arena, the Soviet Union has actively supported the initiatives and steps of our party and government for peace in Korea and its peaceful reunification, and has extended firm solidarity to our people's struggle to realize these initiatives and steps.

The friendship and cooperation between the people and armies of our two countries, forged amid the flames of the revolutionary struggle and constantly developed based on militant friendship and international solidarity, have been deepened legally by the Korea-Soviet Treaty on Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance and now constantly strengthened and developed with each passing day.

In particular, the visit to the Soviet Union in 1984 by Comrade Kim Il-song, the great leader of our party and people, and his meetings with Soviet party and state leaders were an epochal event which expanded and developed the traditional Korea-Soviet friendship to a new, high stage.

Our people rejoice over having the Soviet people as their intimate comrades-in-arms and allies. They are satisfied with the fact that the relations of friendship and cooperation between the two countries in all fields -- political, economic, and cultural -- have extensively flowered and developed.

The Soviet Union is the fatherland of Leninism and the first socialist state of the world. After the great October socialist revolution, the Soviet people, under the leadership of the CPSU and the banner of Leninism, defeated the imperialists' aggression and the resistance of the domestic counterrevolutionary cliques and first pioneered the road of socialist construction. Thus, through their protracted and arduous struggle, the Soviet people built the developed and powerful socialist state on the wide Soviet land seen today.

Today, firmly rallied around the CPSU headed by Comrade Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbachev, the Soviet people and their armed forces vigorously struggle to implement the decision of the 27th party congress and the decision of the recently held June plenary session of the party, and actively make efforts to oppose the imperialists' aggression and war provocation maneuvers and safeguard the peace and security of the world.

The CPSU and the Soviet Government recently unilaterally put forward a series of important proposals to alleviate tension in Europe and the rest of the world and to eliminate the danger of a world war, a thermonuclear war.

The Korean people rejoice over the successes attained by the CPSU, the Soviet Government, and the Soviet people involved in the revolution and construction during the past period as if these successes were their own. They sincerely with the Soviet people brilliant success in the social and economic development of the country in the future.

Along with this, our people highly evaluate the efforts by the CPSU and the Soviet people to oppose maneuvers to provoke a new world war -- a thermonuclear war -- by the imperialists controlled by the U.S. imperialists, and to preserve peace in Europe, Asia, and the rest of the world. Our people also actively support the new peaceloving initiatives and proposals advanced recently by the Soviet party and Government.

Today, the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet and the flying corps of the Soviet Air Force have been strengthened into reliable armed forces which check and frustrate the U.S. imperialists' aggression and war maneuvers in Asia and the Pacific area and which firmly defend peace and security there.

The Soviet Union has successfully performed its honorable mission as the (?sacred castle) of world peace because it has the invincible armed forces equipped with the latest military technology and equipment.

Further consolidation and development of the Korea-Soviet friendship is of important significance to accelerating the socialist construction of the people of the two countries, to strengthening solidarity of the socialist forces, and to defending peace and security in the Far East, Asia, and the rest of the world.

In the future, too, our people will make all possible efforts to constantly consolidate and develop relations of friendship and cooperation with the fraternal Soviet people under the banner of Marxism-Leninsim and proletarian internationalism. We firmly believe that the visit to our country of the detachment of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet and the flying corps of the Soviet Air Force will greatly contribute to vigorously (?promoting) the relations of friendship and cooperation between the armies and people of the two countries of Korea and the Soviet Union.

Arrives 4 July

SK040525 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 0300 GMT 4 Jul 86

[Text] The detachment of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet commanded by Admiral Vladimir Vasiliyevich Sidorov, commander of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet, entered the Port of Wonsan today to participate in celebrating the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Korean-Soviet Treaty on Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance.

The detachment consists of the large anti-submarine cruiser Minsk, the large anti-submarine ship Admiral Spiridonov, and the escort ship Ryany.

The current visit of the detachment of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet will serve as an important opportunity to further consolidate the traditional Korean-Soviet friendship, to frustrate and check the aggression and war maneuvers of the imperialists led by the common enemy, the U.S. imperialists, to defend the security of the two countries and socialist gains, and to preserve peace in Asia and the world.

The heroic city of Wonsan, which is greeting the envoys of the Soviet Army who are making an official friendship visit to our country during circumstances in which the sentiment of friendship and unity which have been firmly established between the peoples of the two countries surges further ahead, was engulfed in a warm atmosphere of welcome today.

The main streets and high buildings in the city were beautifully decorated with writings and various adornments welcoming the Soviet marines' visit.

Hung on the wharf on which flags of our country and Soviet flags as well as thousands of red banners were vigorously flying were large paintings to symbolize the friendship and unity between the armies of the two countries.

Floating in the sky above the wharf were balloons upon which were printed the words "Welcome" and "Friendship." Slowly moving on the waters off the Plaza of Triump were ships decorated beautifully with various type of flowers.

The long breakwater that runs from the wharf and the entrance to Songdowon to Changdok Island was lined fully by tens of thousand of working people, youths, students, and the People's Army soldiers who came from the city with portraits of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and of the respected Comrade Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbachev, flags of the two countries, flower bouquets, and rubber balloons.

Visible on every face of the welcoming crowds was the great joy of meeting with the close comrades-in-arms today when the great Korean-Soviet friendship, established during the course of the joint struggle for the victory of peace, socialism, and the communist cause of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance, is further consolidating and developing with each passing day.

Portraits of the great leader of our party and people Comrade Kim Il-song and General Secretary of the CPSU Central Committee Comrade Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbachev were placed with due respect in the middle of the welcoming crowds. Also erected in the middle of the crowds were billboards of slogans that read "Long live the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song!," "Long live the glorious WPK!", "Long Live Comrade Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbachev!", and "Long live the CPSU!"

Also erected on the wharf were billboards upon which were written such slogans as "We warmly welcome the detachment of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet!" and "Long live the indomitable friendship and unity between the peoples and armies of the two countries of Korea and the Soviet Union!"

The port, where Korean and Soviet songs were continuously echoing, was filled with gladness and deep emotion in receiving the Soviet military envoys, who are again today visiting our country along the sea route where friendly ties were furter strengthened through a meeting between our KPA marines and the marines of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet last August when the 40th anniversary of the fatherland liberation was meaningfully celebrated. When the detachment of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet with the Minsk as the flagship under the escort of the a KPA naval patrol boat appeared, the crowd cheered and warmly welcomed it, waving flags and bouquets of flowers.

At 0800 in the morning, the detachment of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet slowly entered Wonsan Port and dropped anchor there. While the national anthems of the two countries were being played on the KPA naval warship and the Minsk and while a 21-gun salute boomed, the flags of our country and the Soviet Union were raised. The wharf was again filled with waves of flowers. In welcome of the Soviet people's friendly envoys, beautiful dances were performed on platforms decorated with flowers.

While receiving a warm welcome from the workers, Commander Vladimir Vasiliyevich Sidorov and members of the detachment arrived on the wharf. Senior Vice Admiral Kim Il-chol, member of the WPK Central Committee and KPA Navy commander; Yim Hyong-pu, member of the WPK Central Committee, responsible secretary of the Kangwon Provincial Party Committee, and chairman of the Kangwon Provincial People's Committee; Choe Pok-yon, chairman of the Kangwon Provincial Administrative and Economic Guidance Committee; Kim Kyong-ho, vice chairman of the Kangwon Provincial Administrative and Economic Guidance Committee and chairman of the Kangwon Provincial Committee of the Korea-Soviet Friendship Society; KPA Lieutenant General Chong Ho-kyun; Major General Kwon Sang-ho; responsible for functionaries of party, government, administrative, economic, and labor organizations in Kangwon Province; and KPA general grade officers and officers warmly welcomed the members of the detachment. Genndiy Bulanov, military attache of the Soviet Embassy to our country, was present at the wharf.

A ceremony welcoming the members of the detachment of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet took place on the wharf. After the national anthems of the Soviet Union and our country were played, Commander Vladimir Vasiliyevich Sidorov reviewed the KPA Navy honor guard together with Senior Vice Admiral Kim Il-chol. Following this, a march of the honor guard took place. Members of the Juvenile Corps presented bouquets of flowers to Commander Vladimir Vasiliyevich Sidorov and the staff members of the detachment. While walking in front of the crowd, who were warmly welcoming them, chanting slogans of welcome, friendship, and unity and waving the flags of the two countries and bouquets of flowers, the guests extended combative greetings from the Soviet people and soldiers.

Today, the firm will and aspirations of the peoples and soldiers of the two countries to make great Korean-Soviet friendship eternally blossom generation after generation despite any difficulties and storms were vigorously shown at the port.

The song and dance ensemble of the Pacific Fleet also accompanied the members of the detachment.

Senior Vice Admiral Kin Il-chol, naval commander of the Korean People's Army; Yim Hyong-ku, chief secretary of the Kangwon provincial Committee of the Worker's Party of Korea and chairman of the Xangwon Provincial People's Committee; Choe Pok-yon, chairman of the Kangwon Provincial Administration and Economic Guidance Committee; and others were also present.

A wreath in the name of the flotilla of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet was laid in the cemetery amid the playing of wreath-laying music.

Laid in the cemetery were also a wreath in the joint name of the Kangwon Provincial Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea and the Kangwon Provincial People's Committee and wreaths in the name of local party and power bodies, administrative and economic organs, working people's organizations, friendship organizations, factories, enterprises, cooperative farms, educational institutions and KPA units.

The attendants observed a silent tribute to the memory of the Soviety Army men and officers who laid down their lives in sacred battles for defeating Japanese imperialism and liberating Korea. Then they went round the cemetery.

Sidorov Holds Press Conference

SK090915 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 1229 GMT 4 Jul 86

[Text] While paying an official and friendly visit to our country, Admiral Sidorov, commander of the Soviet Red Banner Pacific Fleet, conducted a press conference today on the Minsk, a large atisubmarine cruiser.

Participating in this press conference were reporters from the press sectors in the central area and Kangwon Province -- from KCNA, the Korean Central Broadcasting Committee, and the newspaper office of the KPA. Also participating in this press conference were reporters accompanying the flotilla. Sidorov, commander of the Pacific fleet, spoke at the press conference.

[Begin Sidorov recording in Russian fading into Korean translation] Respected reporters from the press sector and dear comrades and friends: On behalf of the leading segment of the Pacific fleet and officiers and men of the flotilla. I warmly welcome you aboard this flagship. On the occasion of the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Treaty for Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance between the Soviet Union and Korea and of the eve of the approaching 40th anniversary of the liberation of your country, we deliver, through the press medium, warm greetings and a hearty congratulary message to the courageous KPA soldiers, to the Korean sailors, to the Wonsan citizens, and to the people of Kangwon Province, from the sailors of the Pacific Fleet and from the Soviet people.

Because the people of our two countries jointly struggled in the battle against the Japanese aggressors, this anniversary is our common holiday. We will understand and will never forget the exploits of the Korean Communists, guerrillas, and patriots, who fougth courageously under the leadership of Comrade Kil Il-song.

Also, we will never ever forget the Korean patriots, the soldiers of the Soviet Army, and the sailors of the Pacific Fleet, who scrificed their lives for the liberation of Korea.

Our friendship, which emerged in reolutionary struggle and which has been cultivated in blood, is firm and solid. Our friendship is based on a firm foundation -- that is, the Treaty for Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance between the Soviet Union and Korea, whose 25th anniversary we are now greeting.

The Treaty for Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance between the Soviet Union and Korea conforms well not only with the revolutionary cause of our two countries, but also with the peaceful interests of the Asia and Pacific region and the world.

At the invitation ofthe DPRK Government, a flotilla of the Soviet fleet, which consists of the antisubmarine cruiser Minsk, [words indistinct] submarine [words indistinct], the guardship Ryany, and the oil-tanker (alubun), has arrived to pay a friendly visit to Korea.

We extend sincere thanks to the WPK Central Committee, the DPRK Government, and the leading segment of the KPA Navy for helping us become much more familiar with the daily life, culture, and customs of the fraternal Korean people by visiting your beautiful country and explaining our feelings of true friendship to the Korean people.

I am going to introduce to you the leading segment of the flotilla and captains. [End recording]

He referred to the members and structure of the flotilla.

[Begin Sidorov recording in Russian fading into Korean translation] The warships of the flotilla are merely part of our Pacific Fleet. After visiting warships and [words indistinct], you will have a good understanding of the flotilla. You will much more closely understand the high militant upsurge brought about by the sailors -- an upsurge brought about by the historical decision of the 27th Plenum of the CPSU and by the decision of the June Plenum of the CPSU Central Committee.

The sailors of our warship are members of a harmonious family. Serving on warships are representatives of 42 races and minor ethnic groups of our great fatherland. All of them are united in their will to honorably carry out their assigned task of reliably safeguarding [words indistinct] of our fatherland and of the fraternal socialist countries in a responsible manner.

The practical activities of all the Soviet people are directed toward successfully implementing the decision of the 27th plenary session of the CPSU and toward carrying out the tasks of the Twelfth 5-year plan. However, this decision and these tasks have been forced to be implemented and carried out under circumstances in which the international situation and the military and political situation in the Asian region are extremely complicated.

There is no more important task for us than to preserve peace and earth. The combat readiness of the Soviet people, workers, and the Soviet Army and Navy serve this strategic line of the party. The complicated nature of the international situation and the danger of explosion are related to [words indistinct] of the U.S. ruling segment and of their allies. Due to their maneuvers, [passage indistinct].

The U.S. imperialists are making particularly dangerous war preparations in the Asia and Pacific region. Having occupied South Korea, the U.S. forces have turned it into a base for a nuclear war. In an attempt to achieve military and political supremacy in this region, they are trying to concoct a tripartite military alliance among the United States, Japan, and South Korea and to form a new, closed military and political group.

With the purpose of starting a war, large-scale provocative military exercises, such as "Team Spirit" and "RIMPAC," have been staged. However, there are forces critically opposing the aggressive nature of imperialism. They are the world's socialist forces.

The people on our planet much more closely link the destiny of peace and social progress with these forces. Comrade Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbachev, general secretary of the CPSU Central Committee, said at the 27th Party Congress: We firmly believe that we can readily carry out the most complicated socialist task. To achieve this end, we should develop our potential. What is significant in our daily life is for us to much more positively cooperate with each other. We can consolidate friendship and cooperation between our two countries by extensively developing relations in the political, economic, ideological, [word indistinct], and other sectors. The visit to the Soviet Union in May 1984 by Comrade Kim Il-song, general secretary of the WPK Central Committee and president of the DPRK, and subsequent meetings between the leaders of the Soviet Union and Korea have greatly contributed to advances along this road.

The Soviet People entertain feelings of most sacred friendship toward the Korean people. We truly rejoice over the successes attained by the Korean people in achieving social, economic, and cultural development. The Soviet Union invariably and firmly support the DPRK's proposals for forcing the U.S. forces to withdraw from South Korea, for turning the Korean peninsula into a nuclear-free zone, for replacing the Armistice Agreement with a peace agreement, and for achieving peaceful and democratic reunification.

Soviet Navy warships have paid friendly visits to the DPRK on many occasions. Meetings between Soviet sailors and Korean friends are characterized by [words indistinct]. We hope that our current visit will contribute to the cause of strengthening relations of friendship betwen our two countries. We extend thanks for the fact that by visiting historical and scenic sites in your country during the visit, Soviet sailors have come to understand aspects of the daily life of the industrious Korean people, who are traversing the road of socialism, and their culture. By inviting Wonsan citizens and KPA soldiers and sailors aboard our warship, we plan to explain to them successes attained by our country and the Soviet people in the economic, scientific, and cultural spheres and the development of the CPSU. Please come aboard our warship. Thank you for carefully listening to me. [end recording]

BANGUET HELD TO HONOR SOVIET PACIFIC FLEET

Yim Hyong-ku Banquet Speech

SK080428 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2200 GMT 4 Jul 86

[Speech by Yim Hyong-ku, responsible secretary of the Kangwon Provincial WPK Committee and chairman of the Kangwon Provincial People's Committee, at a banquet arranged on 4 July by the Kangwon Provincial WPK Committee and Kangwon Provincial People's Committee in honor of the crew of the flotilla of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet -- read by announcer]

[Text] On this occasion, where revolutionary friendship and the spirit of intimacy are overflowing, I once again warmly welcome the visit to our country by the flotilla of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet led by respected Comrade V.V. Sidorov.

The peoples of our country have always advanced together, hand in hand, along the road of the revolution against the common enemy. In this course, the peoples and armies of Korea and the Soviet Union have established inseparable blood relations and have become true class brothers.

The course covered since the conclusion of the treaty of alliance [tongmaeng choyak] between our two countries has been embroidered with beautiful friendship and unity. Our people are boundlessly happy because the friendly relations between Korea and the Soviet Union are being strengthened in the interest of the peoples of the two countries.

The visit to the Soviet Union in May 1984 by the great leader of our people Comrade Kim Il-song and the historic meetings between the leaders of the two countries were a historic event which gloriously embroidered the chronicle of Korean-Soviet friendship.

Here, with the fraternal Soviet friends, as we look back on those historic days 2 years ago when the peoples of the two countries were seething with rapturous joy, we are refreshing our determination to bring the garden of Korean-Soviet friendship into fuller bloom.

Today, under the correct leadership of the CPSU headed by Comrade Mikhail Gorbachev, who is an outstanding activist of the CPSU and the Soviet state, the fraternal Soviet people are upholding the decision of the 27th Party Congress and bringing about unprecedented upsurges in the struggle to comprehensively perfect socialism.

Our people consider the success which the Soviet people are winning in the struggle to fulfill the Twelfth 5-Year Plan as though it were their own. It is a decisive stage for the implementation of the party's economic strategy, and the acceleration of the social and economic developoment of the country.

The Soviet Union is excellently accomplishing its mission to defend world peace and security. We actively support the peace-loving proposals and initiatives which the Soviet party and Government have recently put forth to prevent the danger of nuclear war and guarantee real peace in Europe, Asia, and the Pacific region.

Today, our people are smashing every aggression and war maneuver of the enemy, who is becoming even more blatant with each passing day. We are firmly defending the eastern guard post of socialism.

Our people, who have been firmly rallied around the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and dear Comrade Kim Chong-il with a single ideology and will, are continuing to advance vigorously to successfully attain the 10 long-range goals of socialist economic construction.

Our people ardently desire peace and do not desire a war to break out again in Korea, which will turn all creations made through blood and sweat into ashes.

The government of our republic is making all possible efforts to alleviate tension in Korea and settle the question of the country's reunification in a peaceful way.

Nevertheless, the United States and the South Korean authorities have accepted none of our peace-loving proposals and initiatives, including the ones for tripartite talks and for talks between military authorities. They are constantly aggravating the situation.

The United States and the South Korean authorities must not misconstrue our peace-loving proposals and patient efforts as an expression of weakness.

The United States must abandon the scheme for two Koreas, and must withdraw the U.S. troops from South Korea at once, along with nuclear weapons, and all other lethal weapons.

In the future, too, our people, by pooling strength with the peoples of the socialist countries, including the Soviet people, and all progressive peoples of the world, will vigorously wage the antiwar and antinulcear struggle for peace and will actively struggle for the victory of the socialist and communist cause. The fraternal friendship sealed in blood between the peoples and armies of Korea and the Soviet Union will be everlasting.

In conclusion, I propose a toast to the invincible militant friendship and unity between the peoples and armies of the two countries; to the good health and long life of respected Comrade Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbachev; to the good health and long life of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song; to the good health and long life of dear Comrade Kim Chong-il; to the good health of respected Comrade V.V. Sidorov; to the good health of the men and officers of the flotilla of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet, and to the good health of all comrades present here.

Sidorov Banquet Speech

SK080806 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2200 GMT 4 July 86

[Speech by V.V. Sidorov, commander of the Soviet Red Banner Pacific Fleet, at the banquet arranged on the evening of 4 July by the Kangwon Provincial WPK Committee and Kangwon Provincial People's Committee -- read by announcer]

[Text] Respected Korean friends and comrades, the visit to Korea by the Soviet Red Banner Pacific Fleet began today. This is a political event of great significance in the lives of the people of our two countries.

Our visit coincides with the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Soviet-Korean Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation and Mutual Assistance, the objectives of which are to decide the whole of the Soviet-Korean relations, guarantee peaceful and creative labor, and defend the gains of socialism and the fruits of labor from the aggression of outside forces.

On this meaningful occasion, in the name of the members of the flotilla and all of the members of the Pacific Fleet, I extend warm congratulations to you, and sincerely wish you new success in the struggle to accomplish the WPK's tasks for the eighties.

Korea is a fraternal neighbor of the Soviet Union. We share a common border and are surrounded by the same ocean. Contact between our two parties and relations between public organizations as well as art organizations, plants, enterprises, and educational organizations have become even closer. The exchange of delegations between many Korean and Soviet border areas in the Far East, as well as between the provinces, have already become traditioinal.

The militant friendship between the armies of our two countries and their naval warriors has likewise been strengthened and developed.

Cooperation between the Soviet Union and Korea is expanding based on equality. This makes it possible to exploit the superiority of socialism even more properly, and contributes to your successful attainment of the long-range goals of the socialist economic construction of the republic set forth by the WPK.

The historic visit to the Soviet Union in May 1984 by Comrade Kim Il-song, general secretary of the WPK Central Committee and president of the DPRK, and subsequent mutual visits by delegations of the parties and governments of the two countries provided new opportunities to strengthen the friendship and cooperation between the Soviet and Korean people based on the principle of socialist internationalism.

The people of our two countries are performing peaceful and creative labor. Presently, efforts of the CPSU and the Soviet working people are being concentrated on implementing the strategic line of the 27th CPSU Congress to accelerate the social and economic development of the country by achieving comprehensive scientific and technological progress.

The Korean people and the people of Kangwon Province, under the correct leadership of the WPK headed by Comrade Kim Il-song, have advanced according to the line set forth by the Sixth WPK Congress and have won great success in socialist construction.

Socialist construction plans can be fulfilled only under firm, peaceful conditions. In this regard, we would like to stress the danger of the blatant maneuvers of the United States, Japan, and South Korea in trying to turn the Asia and the Pacific region into a stage to oppose the Soviet Union, the DPRK, and other socialist countries, as well as national liberation movement forces.

The Soviet Union thoroughly struggles for peace and security on the Asian continent and for peaceful cooperation among all countries. To settle the question for this region, the Soviet Union is calling for comprehensive and gradual action.

As has been stressed by Comrade Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbachev, general secretary of the CPSU Central Committee, all Asian countries should pool their strength to guarantee peace and security.

We fully support the DPRK proposal to alleviate tension on the Korean peninsula, to turn the Korean peninsula into an nuclear-free zone, and to reunify the country in a peaceful way.

The Soviet people will always stand on the side of the Korean people struggling to reunify the fatherland.

Along with all Soviet people, our Soviet seamen will make every effort to expand and develop the fraternal friendship and cooperation between the people of the two countries in the interest of the peaceful and socialist cause of the two countries.

Long live the CPSU and the WPK, the vanguard units of the working people tested in the struggle for peace and socialism!

Long live the invincible fraternal friendship between the people, armies, and naval warriors of our two countries!

I propose a toast to the development of everlasting friendly and cooperative relations between the people and armies of the two countries, and to the good health and long life of Comrade Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbachev and Comrade Kim Il-song, the leaders of our two parties.

WONSAN RALLY WELCOMES SOVIET FLEET FLOTILLA

Yim Hyong-ku Rally Speech

SK100848 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 0400 GMT 5 Jul 86

[Text] A Wonsan mass meeting will be held today at the Square of Triumph to welcome the flotilla of the Soviet Red Banner Pacific Fleet, which is paying an official and friendly visit to our country.

The meeting site was crowded with more than 100,000 workers, students, and soldiers of the People's Army in Wonsan, who gathered carrying the national flags of the two countries and bouquets. They entertained feelings of joy at meeting with the envoys of the Soviet people and Army, who have long jointly struggled to achieve common ideals and aims and who fully support and encourage the just cause of our people today.

Respectfully placed in the middle of the welcoming crowd were the portraits of Comrade Kim Il-song, the great leader of our party and people, and of comrade Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbavhev, general secretary of the CPSU Central Committee. Also set up were slogan boards reading, "Long live the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song!" "Long live the glorious WPK!" "Long live Comrade Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbavhev!" and "Long live the CPSU!" Also set up were slogan boards reading, "We warmly welcome the flotilla of the Soviet Red Banner Pacific Fleet," "Long live the invincible friendship and unity between the people and armies of Korea and the Soviet Union!" "Long live the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance between Korea and the Soviet Union!" "The U.S. imperialists must immediately withdraw from South Korea and take with them their nuclear weapons." "Let us further develop relations of friendship and cooperation with socialist countries," and "Let us struggle to achieve durable world peace and security."

The national flags of our country and the Soviet Union and red banners vigorously fluttered at the meeting site to demonstrate the traditional friendship and unity between the people and armies of Korea and the Soviet Union, and large picture boards were set up. Balloons, on which the national flags of the two countries were drawn and on which the words welcome and friendship were written, were scattered throughout the square.

Admiral Vladimir Vasilyevich Sidorov, commander of the Soviet Red Banner Pacific Fleet; leading members of the flotilla; and (Bulanov), military attache of the Soviet Embassy in our country, appeared on the rostrum. Also appearing on the rostrum were Admiral Kim Il-chol, member of the WPK Central Committee and commander of the KPA Navy; Yim Hyong-ku, member of the WPK Central Committee, responsible secretary of the Kangwon Provincial Party Committee, and chairman of the Kangwon Provincial People's committee; Choe Pok-hyon, member of the WPK Central Committee and chairman of the Kangwon Provincial Administrative and Economic Guidance Committee; Kim Pyong-ho, member of the WPK Central Committee, chairman of the Kangwon Provincial Committee of the Korean-Soviet Friendship Association and vice chairman of the Kangwon Provincial Administrative and Economic Guidance Committee; KPA Lieutenant General Chang Ho-kyun; KPA Major General Kwon Sang-ho; responsible functionaries from party, government, administrative, and economic agencies and workers' organizations in Kangwon Province; and KPA generals and officers.

The flowery waves of welcome powerfully swept the meeting site, and the words "welcome" and "friendship" were engraved among the crowd in the languages of the two countries. Youth corps members presented bouquets to commander Vladimir Vasilyevich Sidorov and to members of the flotilla.

[Begin unidentified person recording] Now we will open a Wonsan mass meeting to welcome the flotilla of the Soviet Red Banner Pacific Fleet, which is visiting our country to mark the occasion of the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance between Korea and the Soviet Union. [music]

Comrade Yim Hyong-ku, responsible secretary of the WPK Kangwon Provincial Committee and chairman of the Kangwon Provincial People's Committee, will speak first to welcome officers and men of the flotilla of the Soviet Red Banner Pacific Fleet. [end recording]

[Begin Yim Hyong-ku recording] Respected Comrade Valdimir Vasilyevich Sidorov, commander of the Soviet Red Banner Pacific Fleet; comrade officers and men of the flotilla of the Red Banner Pacific Fleet; and comrades:

Workers in Wonsan have gathered here, entertaining feelings of great joy in meeting with officers and men of the Soviet Red Banner Pacific Fleet, which is paying a friendly visit to our country to greet with our people the 25th anniversary of the signing the Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance between Korea and the Soviet Union.

Availing myself of this occasion, which overflows with feelings of militant friendship, and on behalf of all workers in Kangwon Province, I warmly welcome the visit to our country of the officers and men of the flotilla of the Soviet Red Banner Pacific Fleet led by respected Comrade Vladimir Sidorov. [applause]

Through you, I convey warm, militant greetings to the fraternal Soviet people and to all the officers and men of the Red Banner Pacific Fleet from workers in Kangwon Province. [applause]

Jointly commemorating a significant holiday of the people of Korea and the Soviet Union by mutually exchanging visits has been a good tradition developed between the people of the two countries on the road to achieving common aims and ideals. Last year Wonsan citizens excitedly met with the officers and men of the flotilla of the Soviet Red Banner Pacific Fleet at this square of triumph and splendidly celebrated the 40th anniversary of the liberation of the fatherland, our people's festive holiday. Greeting the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance between Korea and the Soviet Union, the officers and men of the flotilla of the Soviet Red Banner Pacific Fleet, along with the flagship Minsk, once again visit our province to meet with us. Viewing this, we much more deeply sense the will of the officers and men of the Soviet Army to further strengthen ties of militant friendship and unity, which have become deeper between the people and workers of Korea and the Soviet Union with the passage of time, to oppose the common enemy, and to achieve durable peace in Asia and the world. [applause]

Due to the maneuvers of the imperialists for aggression and war, the situation on the Korean peninsula and in the area surrounding it has been strained more than ever before. While invariably harboring a wild desire for conquering the world and while clinging to the adventurous policy of strength, the U.S. imperialists have caused the situation in this area to become extremely strained and have increased their war plots.

In accordance with the U.S. policy of emphasizing the Far East, the strategy of [words indistinct] the U.S. forces in the Pacific region as a contingency has been changed into the strategy of reinforcement for mobility, and various types of warships, including the Enterprise, the largest nuclear-powered aircraft carrier, the Midway, and offensive nuclear-powered submarines have successively visited Japan and South Korea.

In accordance with the U.S. world strategy to conquer all of Korea, Asia, and the world by holding onto South Korea as a colonial, military base and by using it as a springboard, South Korea has been turned into a large powderkeg of war, where large quantities of nuclear weapons and weapons of mass destruction have been massed into the largest forward nuclear base in the Far East.

While boisterously babbling about the nonexistent threat of southward invasion, the United States and the South Korean authorities have recently deployed aggressive troops in the forward area near the boundary line [kyonggyeson], have rapidly increased the mobile capability of these troops, and have zealously made war preparations. In particular, at an annual security consultative conference held in April this year, the United States and South Korea decided to continuously deploy U.S. forces in South Korea, to increase the military capability of these forces, and to continue large-scale joint military exercises.

While deploying aggressive troops in South Korea on a full-fledged scale, the United States has frequently staged provocative military exercises against us with the South Korean authorities. This year the United States staged the large-scale joint military exercise "Team Spirit-86" by mobilizing more than 200,000 troops and large quantities of sophisticated war material sufficient to wage a war.

The "Team Spirit-86" joint military exercise is a preliminary war and an experimental nuclear war designed to preemptively strike the northern half of our republic.

While successively staging provocative military exercises, such as Ssangyong, Ttangbol, and Piho, the enemy has recently heightened tension on the Korean peninsula. No one can tell if the military exercise staged by the United States and the South Korean authorities will not expand to a real war designed to attack us at any moment.

Kangwon Province directly confronts the enemy across the Military Demarcation Line, and broad areas face the east sea. All workers of our Kangwon Province are deeply aware of their position in defending the eastern outpost of socialism, and while maintaining high revolutionary vigilance against the maneuvers of the enemy, they have positively joined the struggle for the great socialist construction.

Upholding the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's New Year's message and the decision of the 11th plenary session of the Sixth Party Central Committee, our province vigorously struggles to carry out ahead of schedule the vast assigned task of building the economy under the tested leadership of our party. Although we are building socialism under difficult circumstances brought about by the strained situation, we overflow with a faith in victory.

The visits to our country and to Kangwon Province by officers and men of the flotilla of the Soviet Red Banner Pacific Fleet have greatly encouraged workers in the province, who have daily brought about new innovations in socialist economic construction. Your visits constitute serious blows to the enemy, who has strained the situation in Korea and has blazenly maneuvered to provoke a new war. [applause]

Our republic has exerted every sincere effort to alleviate tension on the Korean peninsula, to eliminate the danger of war, and to peacefully achieve the country's reunification.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: Ending the division of our people and reunifying the fatherland are the most urgent fighting task looming before the Korean people today. Peacefully resolving the Korean question poses an important question to preserving peace in Asia and the world.

It is our invariable stand to peacefully resolve the question of Korea's reunification not through war but through dialogue and negotiations. [applause]

Proceeding from this stand, the government of the republic advanced proposals for holding tripartite talks and North-South parliamentary talks. Following this, it took a new step early this year to stop large-scale military exercises throughout the entire territory of the northern half of the republic, beginning on 1 January. In accordance with the urgent requirements of the situation in our country, the KPA Supreme Command recently proposed convening talks among persons in military authority to include the minister of the People's Armed Forces of the DPRK, the commander-in-chief of the UN Forces in South Korea, and the South Korean minister of Defense This new proposal is an important measure of epochal significance in ending the state of tension and confrontation between the North and the South and in providing an atmosphere of detente and peace. [applause]

If the talks among persons in military authority are held according to our proposal, a new phase will open to achieve peace and the peaceful reunification of Korea. However, instead of responding to our new proposal, the United States and the South Korean authorities have refused to accept it, offering a preposterous excuse. This clearly proves that the resumption of North-South dialogue and the alleviation of tension on the Korean peninsula boisterously babbled about by the United States and the South Korean authorities are all false and that they only seek aggression and war.

If the United States and the South Korean authorities cling to maneuvers to concoct two Koreas and if they continuously traverse the road of heightened tension, they will not be able to avoid strong denunciation from the peace-loving people of the world, who desire peace and the peaceful reunification of Korea.

Availing ourselves of this opportunity, we extend deep thanks to the Soviet party and Government and the fraternal Soviet people for positively supporting and encouraging our people's just cause for socialist construction and for the fatherland's independent reunification. [applause]

Comrade, the Soviet Union is the reliable citadel for world peace, and its invincible might has been firmly guaranteed by the heroic armed forces which won a reputation in the sacred war to annihilate the enemy. Indeed, the Soviet armed forces have traversed the road of victory overflowing with glory, together with the fraternal Soviet people, who have defended the gains of the October Revolution and have built a powerful socialist country in the vast Soviet Union.

The history of the bloody struggle of the Soviet people to defend the sacred Soviet fatherland from an invasion from fascist Germany during World War II shines much more brilliantly thanks to the immortal exploits of the sailors of the Pacific fleet together with the sailors of the Baltic and Black Sea fleets. [applause]

The sailors of the Pacific fleet fully displayed mass heroism and the spirit of matchless devotion in the war waged to annihilate and wipe out the Japanese imperialists.

Today the Soviet Red Banner Pacific Fleet assumes a great role in defending the peace of the Soviet fatherland, in checking and thwarting the maneuvers of the imperialists for aggression and war in the Pacific region, and in defending the eastern outpost of socialism.

Our people highly appraise the role of the sailors of the Red Banner Pacific Fleet as the protector of peace. [applause]

Today under the wise leadership of the CPSU led by Comrade Mikhail Gorbachev, outstanding activist of the CPSU and the Soviet state, the fraternal Soviet people and their armed forces, in upholding the magnificent program set forth at the 27th Party Congress, vigorously struggle to comprehensively complete socialism in the Soviet Union. They also struggle resolutely to oppose the maneuvers of the imperialists to provoke a new war.

As over our own, we rejoice over the successes attained by the Soviet people in the struggle to vigorously equip the people's economy with sophisticated technology, and to increase the people's welfare in accordance with the CPSU's strategic line for promoting the country's socioeconomic development, and sincerely wish them greater success in their struggle. [applause]

We positively support the proposals and efforts of the Soviet party and Government and the fraternal Soviet people to check and thwart the maneuvers of the imperialists, led by the U.S. imperialists, to step up the arms race and to provoke a nuclear war and to protect peace and security in Europe, Asia, and the world. [applause]

We wish the officers and men of the Red Banner Pacific Fleet greater success in their future military and political exercises to firmly safeguard the socialist gains with arms and to protect peace and security in the Asian and Pacific region. [applause]

Today relations of friendship and cooperation between Korea and the Soviet Union have been continuously strengthened and developed to meet the interests of the people of the two countries and the requirements of the cause of socialism and communism. Relations between the two countries, which have been firmly linked to relations of alliance by the Treaty for Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance between Korea and the Soviet Union, are relations of invincible and militant friendship which no force can destroy. These relations are lasting relations of friendship, which have been cultivated through class fidelity and through brotherly friendship.

Korean-Soviet friendship reached a new, higher stage with the visit to the Soviet Union in May 1984 by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and with the historical meeting between the leaders of the two countries as the momentum. [applause]

Our people are proud of having the Soviet people as their close comrades-in-arms and as allies, and they are determined to firmly consolidate Korean-Soviet friendship. Consolidating and developing Korean-Soviet friendship, which has been maintained by blood, generation after generation, is the consistent policy of our party and the government of the republic and is the firm will of our people. Just as they did in the past, our people will remain faithful, together with the Soviet people, to the Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance between Korea and the Soviet Union and will exert every possible effort to develop the traditional Korean-Soviet friendship. [applause]

The Korean people will always struggle with the Soviet people on the road of struggle toward opposing imperialism and toward achieving the victory of the cause of socialism and communism. [applause]

Long live the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance between Korea and the Soviet Union! [applause, shouts]

Long live the invincible and fraternal friendship between the Korean and Soviet people! [applause]

Glory to officers and men of the flotilla of the Soviet Red Banner Pacific Fleet! [applause] [end recording]

[Begin unidentified person recording] Comrade Yim Hyong-ku, responsible secretary of the WPK Kangwon Provincial Committee and chairman of the Kangwon Provincial People's Committee, will present a congratulatory flag to Comrade Vladimir Vasilyevich Sidorov, commander of the Soviet Red Banner Pacific Fleet, on behalf of the Wonsan mass meeting held to welcome the Soviet Red Banner Pacific Fleet, which is visiting our country. [end recording]

Sidorov Rally Speech

SK081001 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 0400 GMT 5 Jul 86

[Speech by Vladimir Vasilyevich Sidorov, commander of the Soviet Red Banner Pacific Fleet, at a Wonsan mass meeting held on 5 July to welcome the flotilla of the Soviet Red Banner Pacific Fleet — recorded]

[Text] [Russian fading into Korean translation] Respected Comrade Yim Hyong-ku, responsible secretary of the WPK Kangwon Provincial Committee; respected Comrade Kim Il-chol, commander of the KPA Navy; respected Korean brothers; and comrades. Representing the Soviet people and the Soviet armed forces, the flotilla of the Soviet Red Banner Pacific Fleet has come to enjoy the great honor of participating in the glorious function held to mark the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance between the Soviet Union and Korea.

During the sojourn by the flotilla of the Soviet fleet in fraternal Korea, where guests are treated cordially, we have found sufficient evidence of the maintenance of good relations between the people of our two countries.

During Korea-Soviet week being observed on the occasion of the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance between Korea and the Soviet Union, mass meetings, festivals, visits, and gatherings will be arranged in our two countries.

This historically concluded treaty has consolidated militant ties of friendship, solidarity, and mutual trust, which have been hardened through a joint struggle and have been implemented over the passage of time. [applause]

We have cultivated fraternal friendship by shedding blood in the joint struggle against the Japanese aggressors and the U.S. imperialists. [applause]

Today the monumental memorial tower tells of glorious and heroic deeds; the people have always remembered them. [applause]

The exploits performed both by Korean patriots and Soviet soldiers have not vanished from the memory of the people, and have been told to a new generation. [applause] Heroes should be remembered forever. [applause] Glory should go to old soldiers and comrades-in-arms. [applause]

The treaty signed 25 years ago has served as a reliable guarantee for smashing an invasion from aggressive imperialist circles. The invincibility and great significance of this treaty was proven through the visit to our country by Comrade Kim Il-song. [applause]

Under circumstances during which reactionary forces have not become submissive and during which they manufacture new weapons that heighten tension and can cause mankind to perish, deploying joint [word indistinct] system is of very great significance.

The Soviet Union understands and supports the DPRK's proposal for turning the Korean peninsula and Southeast Asia into a nuclear-free zone, for achieving the fatherland's reunification -- the Korean workers' long-cherished desire -- and for holding talks among persons in military authority to include the DPRK, the United States, and South Korea. [applause]

Under circumstances during which the danger of war from imperialism has not vanished, the CPSU, while giving great consideration to strengthening the country's defense capability, has exerted every possible effort to reliably guarantee the security of our fatherland and allied countries just as Comrade Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbachev has stated. [applause]

I assure workers in Kangwon Province, who are participating in the mass meeting, that the Pacific fleet is ready to aid you at the first call of the party and the government by performing its assigned duty as a brother of the Korean people. [applause] We have been fully accommodated to perform this duty. The CPSU and the Soviet Government have given us the newest weapons. We possess excellent sailors and (?soldiers) to perform this duty.

Like the Korean people, by their national character and their social nature, the Soviet people love peace. Because of this, the CPSU has advanced many proposals to preserve peace during the course of implementing the decisions of the 27th Party Congress. We plan to complete our [word indistinct] revolutionary system and to implement an extensive socio-economic program.

We understand that to live peacefully, we should struggle to achieve peace. We also understand that the continuous strengthening and development of the policies of our two parties and governments, relations beween the Soviet Union and Korea, and ties of friendship between the people, troops, and navies of the two countries, which have further expanded and taken a new form, completely comply with this cause. Contacts between the parties and relations between the people, troops, and navies of the two countries, which have further expanded and taken a new form, completely comply with this cause. Contacts between the partie and relations between social organizations, artists' unions, communist enterprises, education agencies, and our soldiers and fleet sailors have become closer.

Cooperation between the Soviet Union and the DPRK has been achieved based on guaranteeing complete equality in all sectors and on seeking mutual interest. This helps to much more successfully utilize the superiority of socialism and contributes to successfully implementing the prospective program set forth by the CPSU and the WPK to develop our two countries in the 1980's.

Dear friends, the warm, friendly, and cordial treatment we have received from workers in Wonsan will contribute to completing and strengthening friendship between the Soviet Kray region and Kangwon Province and between the navies of our two countries. [applause] I convey warm and militant greetings and best regards to you from soldiers in the Primorskiy Kray, from soldiers in the Far East region of the Soviet Union, from the members of the border security guards, and from the sailors of the Red Banner Pacific Fleet. [applause]

Dear comrades, I assure you that together with all of the Soviet people, Soviet sailors will exert every possible effort to develop relations of fraternal friendship between our two countries to meet the interests of our two countries and the cause of peace and socialism. [applause]

Long live invincible friendship between the Soviet and Korean people and between our two countries' army and navy. [applause, shouts]

Glory should go to the CPSU and the WPK, the vanguards of the working people, which have been tested in the struggle for peace and the cause of socialism. [applause]

I am going to present a coungratulatory banner to the comrade responsible secretary as a token of the visit of the Pacific fleet flotilla to your country.

[Text] Pyongyang July 8 (KCNA) -- Commanding officers of the flotilla of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet under the flag of Admiral V.V. Sidorov, commander of the Fleet, on an official goodwill visit to Korea inspected the Nampo Barrage on July 6.

Going round the main dam, the locks, the spillway and other structures, the guests expressed admiration at the fact that the Korean people and People's Army soldiers have successfully built the world's biggest barrage with their own efforts, technique and materials under the wise leadership of dear Comrade Kim Chong-il.

After the inspection, Commander V.V. Sidorov wrote in the visitor's book: We have been deeply impressed by the Nampo Barrage, a gigantic edifice built by the Korean people and People's Army soldiers. We sincerely wish the Korean people greater success in socialist construction.

Meanwhile, seamen of the flotilla visited the June 4 rolling stock complex.

The complex were festively decorated to welcome the seamen of the Soviet Union, a fraternal country.

Going round the main production processes of the complex the guests congratulated the workers of the complex on their achievements in reliably supporting the transportation front of socialist construction where the speed campaign is at its height.

At the Wonsan School of Arts, the guests went round classrooms and rehearsal rooms and appreciated an art performance of students.

They also inspected the Wonsan Disabled Soldiers' Plastic Daily Necessaries Factory and spent a pleasant hour at the Songdowon International Children's Union Camp with camping children.

Mangyongdae, Liberation Tower

[Text] Pyongyang July 7 (KCNA) -- Commanding officers of the flotilla of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet under the flag of Admiral V.V. Sidorov, commander of the Fleet, who are attending the celebrations of the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation and Mutual Assistance visited Mangyongdae Sunday.

The guests saw the historic momentoes preserved in the old home of the great leader President Kim Il-song, hearing an explanation about his revolutionary history and revolutionary family, and inspected historical site on Mangyong Hill.

They laid wreaths in the Cemetery of Revolutionary Martyrs on Mt. Taesong and before the Liberation Tower on the same day.

Earlier, on July 4, the crew of he flotilla appreciated a song and dance performance at the theatre of the Kangwon provincial art troupe.

And next day a performance was given by the song and dance ensemble of the fleet at the Songdowon open-air theatre in Wonsan and a meeting of seamen of the Korean People's Army and Soviet seaman was held on the large anti-submarine cruiser Minsk.

The speakers at the meeting declared that the peoples and armies of the two countries would always fight shoulder to shoulder in the common struggle to check and frustrate the reckless war provocations of the U.S.-led imperialists and defend world peace.

Sunday friendship soccer and volleyball matches took place at the Wonsan stadium between Korean and Soviet seamen.

A friendship get-together of working people in Wonsan and crew of the flotilla was held at the Songdowon recreation ground, a friendship soiree of working people in Wonsan, KPA servicemen and crew of the flotilla in the plaza of triumph, and a joint meeting of members of the Korean-Soviet Friendship Society in Kangwon province and crew of the flotilla on the large anti-submarine crusier Minsk, the flagship, yesterday.

On the same day members of the Children's Union in Wonsan called at the Minsk and gave an art performance. Their colourful program delighted the crewmen. They wished the crew greater success in their future combat and political training and presented them with embroideries and industrial art objects as souvenirs.

LEADING STATE, PARTY CADRES VISIT SOVIET FLAGSHIP

O Chin-u, Sidorov on Solidarity

SK082355 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1524 GMT 8 Jul 86

[Text] Pyongyang July 8 (KCNA) -- Leading cadres of the party and state of Korea today called on the large anti-submarine cruiser Minsk, the flagship of the flotilla of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet.

Visiting the ship were Comrade O Chin-u, member of the Presidium of the Political Bureau of the Central Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea and minister of People's Armed Forces; Comrade Kang Song-san, member of the Political Bureau of the WPK Central Committee and premier of the Administration Council; Comrade O Kuk-yol, member of the Political Bureau of the WPK Central Committee and chief of the general staff of the Korean People's Army; Comrade Yi Kun-mo, alternate member of the Political Bureau, and secretary, of the WPK Central Committee; and Senior Vice Admiral Kim Il-chol, commander of the Navy of the KPA.

Admiral V.V. Sidorov, commander of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet, and commanding officers of the flotilla, and Gennadiy Bylanov, military attache of the Soviet Embassy in Pyongyang, met the Korean party and state leading cadres.

A welcoming function took place on the Minsk.

After the national anthems of our country and the Soviet Union were played, comrades O Chin-u and Kang Song-san, accompanied by Commander V.V. Sidorov, reviewed a guard of honor.

The party and state leading cadres went round the modern military equipment and facilities of the large-anti-submarine cruiser Minsk and had a talk with commanding officers of the flotilla in a cordial atmosphere overflowing with feelings of friendship.

Comrade O Chin-u warmly welcomed the visit of the flotilla of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet to Korea on the occasion of the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation and Mutual Assistance, and said the indestructible militant friendship and solidarity forged between the peoples and armies of Korea and the Soviet Union would be everlasting.

He wished the seamen of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet with a glorious combat tradition greater success in carrying out the noble cause of defending their motherland.

Comander V.V. Sidorov expressed thanks for this and said: The current visit of the flotilla of the Pacific fleet to your country will contribute to further strengthening the friendship and solidarity between the armies of the two countries and consolidating peace and security in this region.

Declaring that all the seamen of the Pacific fleet would make every possible effort to strengthen the fraternal amity and militant friendship between the fleets and seamen of the Soviet Union and Korea, he stated: We are ready for a joint operation, should the situation in Korea demand it.

He sincerely wished the officers and men of the Korean People's Army greater success in their future combat and political training and in the work for further increasing the defence capabilities of the country.

Comrade O Chin-u handed to Commander V.V. Sidorov a silk banner for all the seamen of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet in the name of the ministry of People's Armed Forces.

Kim Il-chol Banquet Speech

SK080451 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0425 GMT 8 Jul 86

[Text] Pyongyang July 8 (KCNA) -- Admiral V.V. Sidorov, commander of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet, hosted a reception on the large anti-submarine cruiser Minsk Monday evening upon the conclusion of the Korean visit of the flotilla of the fleet.

Present at the reception on invitation were senior Vice Admiral Kim Il-chol, Navy commander of the Korean People's Army, and Yim Hyong-ku, chief secretary of the Kangwon Provincial Party Committee and chairman of the Kangwon Provincial People's Committee, who are members of the Central Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea, Choe Pok-yon, chairman of the Kangwon Provincial Administration and Economic Guidance Committee, and other senior officials.

The reception was addressed by V.V. Sidorov and Kim Il-chol.

Kim Il-chol said: We keenly felt once again through our meeting with Soviet seamen that the Soviet people and armed forces are our true allies, revolutionary comrades-in-arms and class brothers who are fighting shoulder to shoulder with us on one front for the realisation of one aim and ideal.

He further said: You highly estimated this time the achievements registered by our people and People's Army officers and men in the efforts for socialist construction and the increase of the nation's defence capabilities under the wise leadership of the party Central Committee headed by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song. You expressed undivided support and firm solidarity for our people's just cause of the independent and peaceful reunification of the country. This is a great inspiration to our people and People's Army soldiers and we are deeply grateful for this.

Visiting the Minsk, we could see clearly that the Pacific fleet is a mighty armed force which plays a large part in defending Asian peace and security.

We wholeheartedly wish the Soviet people and the officers and men of the Soviet armed forces great achievements in their efforts to implement the political, economic and peace programmes adopted at the 27th Congress of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union under the tested leadership of the party headed by respected Comrade Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbachev.

It is highly important for the peoples and armed forces of our two countries to unite closely and firmly defend the eastern post of socialism when the U.S.-led imperialists are getting more undisguised in their moves of aggression and war.

The destinies of the armed forces of our two countries were, are, and will be linked together as one in the struggle against imperialism.

Sidrov Speech on Board Minsk

[Speech by Vladimir Sidorov, commander of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet, at a banquet he arranged aboard the antisubmarine cruiser Minsk on the evening of 7 July at the conclusion of the visit to DPRK by the flotilla of the fleet -- read by announcer]

[Text] Dear Korean comrades and friends: In the name of the commanding members of the flotilla of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet which is on an official goodwill visit to the port of Wonsan and in my own name, I warmly welcome you aboard the flagship and congratulate you on the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance.

Regrettably, our stay in port city of the fraternal Korean people, Wonsan, is nearing its end. During our stay in this port city, we were very much moved by the hospitality accorded us by the Korean comrades.

Through meetings and talks conducted amid a warm and fraternal atmosphere, we have confirmed that deepening the mutual cooperative relations and expanding contacts in all fields are in the interest of the people of our two countries. We will strengthen and develop these relations.

Though our stay in Korea was short, we came to have an understanding of the life of your people and had a chance to see your cities.

Some of our members, including myself, were able to visit your beautiful capital city of Pyongyang. Together with a Soviet party and government delegation, headed by the first secretary of Leningrad Obkom, and other Soviet delegations, we were honored there by a reception given by Marshal Kim Il-song, general secretary of the WPK Central Committee and president of the DPRK.

Through various meetings and talks conducted in Korea, we were assured of the fact that the fraternal Korean people have not forgotten about the Soviet warriors who sacrificed their own lives for the liberation of Korea. We express our deep gratitude to you for this. The visit to the country of the beautiful morning will remain forever in our hearts.

We will, without fail, convey the feelings of fraternal friendship cherished by the Korean people to all the Soviet people, army warriors, and Navy. And when the time comes for us to discharge our duty in accordance with the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance, we the Navy will discharge our duty on the road of defeating the common enemy.

I express my deep gratitude to Comrade Kim Il-song, general secretary of the WPK Central Committee and president of the DPRK, and Comrade Kim Chong-il, member of the Presidium of the Political Bureau of the WPK Central Committee, for having invited us to visit your country and for having shown great concern for our Navy.

Long live the friendship between the peoples and navies of the two countries of the Soviet Union and Korea!

May the fraternal relations and cooperative relations between our two countries in various fields expand and develop!

Long live Comrade Kim Il-song and Comrade Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbachev, leaders of our two parties and two countries!

SOVIET PACIFIC FLEET FLOTILLA DEPARTS 8 JULY

Sidorov Press Conference

SK090550 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2100 GMT 8 Jul 86

[Text] Admiral Sidorov, commander of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet, met with reporters on 8 July in Wonsan prior to his departure. In the press conference, Commander Sidorov said that his sojourn in Korea was the continuation of unforgettable joyful days. He went on to add: The members of the flotilla of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet participated in the meaningful events marking the 25th anniversary of the Soviet-Korean Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance. During this period, what was most important and of great significance for us was that the leading members of the flotilla had been accorded the honor of being received by Comrade Kim Il-song. We will never forget this gratifying and meaningful day.

Noting the meetings with Korean working people, KPA seamen, students, and children, he said that he was very moved by the warm hospitality which the intimate Korean people accorded everywhere he went.

He said that the events held on the occasion of the 25th anniversary of the Soviet-Korean Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance were very important for the development of the friendly relations between the armies and peoples of the Soviet Union and Korea. He also said that the conclusion of the treaty has been an important milestone for further strengthening and developing the traditional friendly relations between the two countries and peoples.

In addition, he said that the significance of these happy events has been clearly noted by the recent joint congratulatory telegram message of the CPSU Central Committee, the Presidium of the USSR Supreme Soviet, and the USSR Council of Ministers and by the congratulatory telegram message which Comrade Kim Il-song sent to the Soviet leaders. He said that these congratulatory telegram messages put forth the question of strengthening the friendship and unity between the two countries, and that this will perform an important function in further strengthening and developing the traditional friendship and unity.

He also said that he was convinced the visit to Korea which the flotilla of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet paid this time will actively contibute to further strengthening the friendship, unity, and comradeship between the seamen of the two counties. He went on to add: We will soon leave beautiful Wonsan. Our seamen and all members of the flotilla are maintaining the firm stand to properly fulfill their duty on the single road of defeating the common enemy.

Mentioning the question Korean reunification, he said that the Soviet seamen extend full support for and solidarity with the Korean people's struggle to make the U.S. imperialists withdraw from South Korea and to achieve the reunification of the country. He went on to add: Today, achieving peace on the Korean peninsula is a very important question. We support all initiatives and proposals of the WPK and the DPRK Government for peace and peaceful reunification.

Fleet Departs Wonsan

SK090527 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2200 GMT 8 Jul 86

[Text] The flotilla of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet, led by Soviet Fleet Admiral Sidorov, commander of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet, which had made an official goodwill visit to our country to participate in the celebrations of the 25th anniversary of the Korean-Soviet Treaty on Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance, left the port of Wonson yesterday. Along with the flotilla members, the Pacific fleet song and ensemble also left.

The heroic city of Wonsan, which had been bursting with joy over receiving the goodwill envoys of the Soviet people and soldiers, their calls brothers and close comrades-in-arms, was filled with a warm atmosphere on this day. Decorating downtown streets and high-story buildings were various slogans and ardonments to sending off the members of the flotilla.

Erected on the wharf, along with flags of our country, the Soviet Union and red banners, were large-size picture billboards symbolic of the militant friendship and unity between the peoples and soldiers of the two countries. In the air above the wharf balloons were floating. Floating on the sea were ships decorated with beautiful flowers of various kinds and multicolored flags.

Lining the waterbreaker linking Wonsan wharf and Chongdoksan were portraits of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the respected Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbachev, along with tens of thousands of working people, youths, students, and soldiers of the People's Army who came out from the city with flags of the countries, flowers, and balloons in their hands.

Visible on each of their faces was a sense of sadness over parting with their comrades-in-arms who were returning home after having contributed top further consolidating and developing the traditional Korean-Soviet friendship and deepening the militant friendship and revolutionary sense of obligation between the soldiers of the two countries.

Respectfully placed among the send-off crowds were portraits of the great leader of our party and people and the respected Comrade Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbachev, together with slogans reading "Long live the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song," "Long live the glorious WPK." "Long live Comrade Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbachev," and "Long live the CPSU!"

Also standing among the crowds were billboards of slogans reading "We warmly send off the flotilla of the Soviet Red Flag Pacific Fleet" and "Long live the invincible friendship and unity between the peoples and armies of Korea and the Soviet Union!" Tunes of our country's and Soviet songs blared out from the loudspeakers.

When the members of the flotilla arrived on the wharf, the wharf and sea moved in waves of flowers. A function was held on the wharf to send off the members of the flotilla. After the playing of our and the Soviet national anthems, Commander Sidorov reviewed the honor guard unit of the KPA Navy, together with Colonel General Kim Il-chol.

Standing on the wharf were members of the WPK Central, committee such as Colonel General Kim Il-chol, commander of the KPA Navy; Yim Hyong-ku, responsible secretary of the Kangwon Provincial Party Committee and chairman of the Kangwon Provincial People's Committee; Choe Pok-yon, chairman of the Kangwon Provincial Administration and Economic Guidance Committee; Kim Hyong-ho, chairman of the Kangwon Provincial Branch of the Korean-Soviet Friendship Society and deputy chairman of the Kangwon Provincial Administration and Economic Guidance Committee; Chong Ho-kyun, KPA lieutenant general; Major General Kwon Sang-ho; responsible functionaries of the Kangwon provincial party, organs of power, administration and economic organizations, and working organizations; and KPA generals and officers. Also standing on the wharf were members of a delegation of the Irkutsk Obkom of the CPSU headed by Sitnikov, member of the CPSU Central Committee and first secretary of the Irkutsk Obkom, and Bulanov, military attache of the Soviet Embassy in our country.

Members of the Juvenile Corps rushed toward Commander Sidorov and commanding members of the flotilla to present bouquets of flowers.

The ships belonging to the flotilla, with its flagship the large-scale antisubmarine cruiser Minsk, raised their anchors and blew their whistles. Then, the flotilla with the Minsk as its flagship slowly left the port of Wonsan with an escort of KPA Navy ships guiding the waterway.

The crowds warmly sent off the flotilla, which was departing following a sea route of friendship, after having energetically demonstrated the invincible might and great vitality of the traditional friendship and unity established between the peoples and soldiers of the two countries of Korea and the Soviet Union through its visit, until it disappeared on beyond tne horizon, waving the flags of the two countries and bouquets of flowers.

Banquet Held

SK090238 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2200 GMT 4 Jul 86

[Text] The KPA Air Force Command arranged a banquet on the evening of 4 July for the members of a flying corps of the Soviet Army Air Force which is on an official goodwill visit to our country to participate in the celebrations marking the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Korean-Soviet Treaty on Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance.

Invited to the banquet were the members of the flying corps led by Air Force Lieutenant General Bulankin, Air Force commander of the Far Eastern Military District of the Soviet Army, and Soviet charge d'affaires to our country Boris Morozov.

Also participating in the banquet were Colonel General Cho Myong-nok, KPA Air Force commander; KPA Major General Pak Song-chu; and other generals and officers.

Major General Pak Song-chu spoke at the banquet. Warmly welcoming the members of the flying corps of the Soviet Army Air Force, he said that the visit to our country by the Air Force Flying Corps was a powerful demonstration of the invincible friendship and unity between the peoples and armies of the two countries -- Korea and the Soviet Union -- which have been sealed in blood in the course of overcoming the difficulties of history and a great encouragement to our people and men and officers of the People's Army who are engaged in the struggle for the complete victory of socialism and for national reunification.

Referring to the friendship developing between the two countries, he said that the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's visit to the USSR in 1984 in particular was a historic event that has raised the Korean-Soviet friendly relations onto a new higher stage.

He then spoke about the Soviet people and army who are attaining great successes in socialist construction and in strengthening the country's defense capabilities and who are actively struggling to check and smash the imperialists' aggression and war maneuvers and to defend peace and security in the world under the leadership of the CPSU led by the respected Comrade Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbachev. He said: We rejoice as over our own over the successes being achieved by the fraternal Soviet people and armed forces in the revolution and construction and are warmly congratulating them on such successes.

Commander Bulankin spoke next. Conveying the warmest greetings to the men and officers of the KPA Air Force from the men and officers of the Air Force units and combined units belonging to the Far Eastern Military District, he stated: We support and approve the lines of the WPK and the CPSU to further strengthen the invincible friendship and unity between the peoples of the Soviet Union and Korea and between their glorious armed forces. He then stressed that the aviators of the KPA and the Soviet Armed Forces are defending the peaceful skies of our two countries through close joint operations.

Participants in the banquet toasted the invincible friendship and unity sealed in blood between the peoples and armies of the two countries -- Korea and the Soviet Union -- the long life and good health of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the long life and good health of the dear leader [Chinaehanun Chidoja] Comrade Kim Chong-il, and the long life and good health of the respected Comrade Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbachev.

Airmen Perform Exhibition

SK061140 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1121 GMT 6 Jul 86

[Text] Pyongyang July 6 (KCNA) -- Airmen of the flying corps of the Air Force of the Soviet Army led by Lieutenant General of the Air Force V.S. Bulankin, Air Force commander of the Far Eastern Military District of the Soviet Army, on an official friendship visit to Korea, performed exhibition flights on July 6.

It was watched by O Kuk-yol, member of the Political Bureau of the C.C., the Workers' Party of Korea and chief of the general staff of the Korean People's Army, Colonel General of the Air Force Cho Myong-nok, Air Force commander of the Korean People's Army, and others.

Making low-altitude and extra-low-altitude mobile twin formation flights, the Soviet Airmen masterly performed such complex technical movements in the air as nosedive and zooming, semi-loop, lateral loop and combat circling flights and spiralling dive. They demonstrated the high technique of the Soviet Airmen prepared to make combat flights any time and under diverse terrain conditions.

After the exhibition flights, Airman V.A. Kiselyev said: Should a war break out in Korea and the Korean people call us, we will fight any time shoulder to shoulder with you against the imperialists, the common enemy.

Airmen Tour Mangyongdae

SK070550 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0531 GMT 7 Jul 86

[Text] Pyongyang July 7 (KCNA) -- The airmen of the Soviet Air Force flying corps led by Lieutenant General of the Air Force V.S. Bulankin, Air Force commander of the Far Eastern Military District, visited Mangyongdae on July 5.

Listening to an explanation about the revolutionary history and revolutionary family of the great leader President Kim Il-song, they saw the historic mementoes preserved in his old home. They went round the historic sites on the Mangyong Hill.

The guests enjoyed themselves in the Mangyongdae Fun Fair. They laid wreaths in the Revolutionary Martyrs' Cemetery on Mt. Taesong and before the Liberation Tower Saturday. A get-together of airmen of the Korean People's Army and of the Soviet Air Force Flying Corps was held Sunday.

The speakers there stated that the peoples and armies of the two countries will always fight side by side in the common struggle to check and frustrate the new war provocation moves of the imperialists and defend world peace and security. The airmen of the two countries exchanged souvenirs.

Delegation Sees Chuche Tower

[Text] Pyongyang July 8 (KCNA) -- the airmen of the air force flying corps of the Soviet Army led by Lieutenant General of the Air Force V.S. Bulankin, air force commander of the Far Eastern Military District of the Soviet Army, on an official goodwill visit to Korea inspected the Tower of Chuche Idea yesterday.

While going round the tower and its groups of sculptures, the guests were briefed on the splendid building of the Tower of Chuche Idea by the lofty will and energetic guidance of our party to convey for ever the imperishable revolutionary history and revolutionary exploits of the great leader President Kim Il-song.

On the same day the guests visited the grand people's study house.

They went round the lecture, reading, tape-recording, and music rooms and other rooms and facilities of the house and then went up to the balcony to enjoy a bird's-eye view of the cityscape.

They also inspected the Pyongyang metro and the Changgwang health complex.

On July 6 the airmen visited the 809th unit of the Korean People's Army.

KPA RALLY WELCOMES USSR FLYING CORPS 8 JULY

SK100508 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 1230 GMT 8 Jul 86

[Text] A rally of soldiers of the KPA Air Force Command to welcome the Soviet Air Force Flying Corps of the Soviet Army was held in the afternoon of 8 July at the 8 February Hall. Respectfully placed at the rally site were portraits of Comrade Kim Il-song, the great leader of our party and people, and Comrade Mikhail Sergeyevich, general secretary of the CPSU Central Committee.

The flags of our country and the Soviet Union were hoisted in the rally site. The slogans "We warmly welcome the Soviet Air Force Flying Corp's visit to our country" and "Long live the invincible and militant friendship and solidarity between the peoples and armies of the two countries of Korea and the Soviet Union" were hung in the rally site.

Invited to the rally were members of the Soviet Air Force Flying Corps of the Soviet Army led by Lieutenant General of the Air Force Bulankin, Air Force commander of the Far Eastern Military District of the Soviet Army. Also invited to the rally was Shubnikov, Soviet ambassador to our country. The rally was attended by Colonel General Cho Myong-nok, commander of the Air Force of the KPA; KPA Major General Pak Chung-kil; and other functionaries concerned together with soldiers.

When the Soviet guests arrived at the rally site, the attendants of the rally warmly welcomed them with applause, and female soldiers presented bouquets of flowers to them. The rally began with the playing of the national anthems of the Soviet Union and our country.

Major General Pak Song-chu spoke first at the rally.

[Begin recording] Our intimate Soviet comrades and comrades: We have received most happily our comrades-in-arms from the Air Force flying corps of the Far Eastern Military District, goodwill envoys of the fraternal Soviet Army, at a significant time marking the 25th anniversary of the conclusion of the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance, which is an important event in the history of Korean-Soviet friendship.

At this significant place where militant fraternity and fraternal friendship are overflowing, I first of all, on behalf of all officers and men of the KPA Air Force, sincerely and warmly welcome all members of the Soviet Air Force Flying Corps led by Comrade Lieutenant General Bulankin, Air Force commander of the Far Eastern Military District of the Soviet Army, who are visiting our country with feelings of friendship toward our people and soldiers of the People's Army. [applause]

The current visit to our country by the Soviet Air Force Flying Corps constitutes a mighty demonstration of the militant friendship and revolutionary solidarity between the people and between the armies of our two countries, which are expanding and developing with each passing day. It will also outstandingly contribute to carrying out the common cause of the people of the two countries against the imperialists' policy of aggression and war and for peace in Asia and the rest of the world.

In particular, Comrade Kim Il-song, the great leader of our people, received commanding members of the Soviet Air Force Flying Corps now visiting our country. This is not only a great joy of the soldiers of the Air Forces of the two countries defending the skies of the Far East, but is also an expression of the firm will of our party, government, and people to inherit and develop generation after generation the friendly and cooperative relations between the people and armies of the two countries of Korea and the Soviet Union.

The communists and people of the two countries of Korea and the Soviet Union have closely cooperated with and supported each other as class brothers and revolutionary comrades-in-arms ever since the protracted period ranging from the time of the struggle against the imperialists' aggression and their colonial oppression under the banner of Maxism-Leninism to today when socialist construction is being carried out.

During the anti-Japanese armed struggle organized and led by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the Korean communists and patriotic people actively struggled to safeguard the Soviet union, the first socialist state of the world, upholding the slogan "Let us safeguard the Soviet Union with arms."

In World War II, the heroic Soviet Army participated in the war against Japan, defeated the Japanese imperialists, and, thus, assisted our fatherland liberation cause with blood. Numerous officers and men of the Red Army sacrificed their noble lives in the sacred struggle for freedom and liberation of Korea. Thus, they have linked the friendly relations between Korea and the Soviet Union as kindred ties.

The fraternal Soviet people and army extended support and encouragement to us both materially and mentally in the periods of the fatherland liberation war against the U.S. imperialists and the arduous postwar rehabilitation. Today, they are actively extending support and cooperation to our people's just cause to achieve socialist construction and the independent and peaceful reunification of the country.

We are very grateful for this. The friendship between our two countries which has been forged amid the flames of revolutionary struggle and which has been consolidated in Marxism-Leninsim and proletarian internationalism has been more firmly deepened by the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance concluded on 6 July 1961.

The (?recent) friendly and cooperative relations between the armies of our two countries have been constantly on the upswing in accordance with the milestone provided through the historic meetings between the great leader Comrade kim Il-song and Soviet leaders. We feel satisfied with this.

Comrades, the Soviet Army founded by Lenin and the Bolshevik Party has brilliantly performed its lofty mission as the armed forces of the revolution and has traversed a proud path of victory and glory. Today, the Soviet Army has been firmly prepared to become invincible armed forces capable of defeating any enemy's aggression.

We highly evaluate the successes attained by officers and men of the Soviet Army in their struggle to check and frustrate the imperialists' unscrupulous maneuvers for aggression and war, to reliably defend their country, and to preserve the peace and security of the world.

We actively support the Soviet Union's peace-loving steps and initiatives for world peace and security, including Comrade Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbachev's 15 January statement and the Soviet Government's 23 April statement calling for the countries in Asia and the Pacific to pool strength and to make joint efforts for the alleviation of tension in this region.

We also sincerely wish the Soviet people and the Soviet Armed Forces greater success in their struggle to implement the general line set forth at the 27th CPSU Congress under the correct leadership of the CPSU. [applause] Today's international situation has become very complicated and tense because of the maneuvers for aggression and war by the imperialists, including the U.S. imperialists.

In the realization of their ambition to dominate the world, the U.S. imperialists have attached importance to Asia and the Pacific area, including our country, and have further intensified their maneuvers for aggression and war in these regions. The U.S. imperialists have made their provocation of a nuclear war on the Korean peninsula an established fact and are frantically accelerating nuclear war preparations. The U.S. imperialists have further strengthened their maneuvers to frabricate a tripartite military alliance system among the United States, Japan, and South Korea and military collusion among them in Northeast Asia.

In order to eliminate the danger of a nuclear war, Korea should be turned into a nuclear-free zone of peace devoid of nuclear and chemical weapons. Reflecting such an urgent demand, the government of our Republic on 23 June issued a statement containing a new peace proposal calling for the establishment of a nuclear-free zone of peace on the Korean peninsula. Earlier, the KPA Supreme Command proposed that talks between military authorities, in which our minister of the People's Armed Forces, the commander of the UN Forces stationed in South Korea, and the South Korean defense minister participate, he held.

However, while taking contradictory action, the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets have today taken the unwarranted stand of opposing the alleviation of tension and avoiding dialogue, thus, failing to show due sincerity to our new important peace initiative. The United States and the South Korean authorities should not continuously advance along the road of aggravating tension under the pretext of the nonexistent threat of southward invasion, but should respond to our peace initiative.

Our people and officers and men of the People's Army are now further enhancing their revolutionary alertness to cope with the reckless new war provocation maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists and their stooges and are, thus, firmly defending the socialist fatherland and the gains of the revolution by assuming a strained and mobilized posture at all times.

By firmly rallying around the party Central Committee headed by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song we will sternly check and frustrate the new war provocation maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists and their stooges and their maneuvers to split the nation, will drive the U.S. imperialist aggressors out of South Korea, and will, thus, achieve the historic cause of national reunification without fail.

I take this opportunity to express, in the name of this rally, deep thanks to the Soviet people and the Soviet Army who have invariably abided by their class duty and who have extended solidarity to our people's just cause against the war maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean military fascist clique and for the country's reunification. [applause]

The people and the armies of the two countries of Korea and the Soviet Union are the intimate revolutionary comrades-in-arms and the reliable allies who struggle shoulder to shoulder on the same front to realize the common ideal and goal. It is the firm stand of our party and government and the firm faith deeply cherished in the hearts of our people and the People's Army soldiers to constantly consolidate and develop friendship with the fraternal Soviet people and army generation after generation.

Our people and officers and men of the People's Army will be faithful to the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance to the end under the wise leadership of the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-Il and will constantly strengthen and develop the great Korean-Soviet friendship forged with blood through the joint struggle against imperialism and for the socialist and communist cause.

There will be always only victory and glory on the future road along which the peoples and armies of our two countries are struggling hand in hand to realize the common goal and ideal under the banner of Marxism-Leninism and proletarian internationalism.

Long live the invincible and militant friendship and solidarity between the peoples and rmies of the two countries of Korea and the Soviet Union! [applause] Long live the 25th anniversary of the conclusion of the Korean-Soviet treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance! [applause] [end recording]

Following this, Colonel General Cho Myong-nok delivered a congratulatory banner, which is in the KPA Air Force Command's name, to Lieutenant General Bulankin.

Lieutenant General Bulankin spoke next.

[Begin Bulankin recording in Russian with simultaneous Korean translation] Esteemed Korean brothers and dear comrades: One year ago, the people of our two countries celebrated the 40th anniversary of national liberation as the greatest political festival, and today, we are also celebrating the 25th anniversary of the conclusion of the Soviet-Korean Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance as a joint festival. This festival, as well as the warm and enthusiastic meetings with Korean party and state leaders, leading members of the Ministry of the People's Armed Forces, and the Korean people, vividly reflects the common aspiration of our two parties, two countries, and two peoples to vigorously demonstrate the invincible vitality of Soviet-Korean friendship and to further develop the friendly and cooperative relations between the two countries.

Availing myself of this opportunity, marking this significant festive day, I warmly congratulate you and, by the authorization of Air Force Marshal Yefimov, commander in chief of the Soviet Air Force, I convey wishes for your good health, welfare, and happiness. [applause]

We express our admiration over the success attained by the Korean people in socialist construction. All things that we have witnessed during our stay in our country are beyond our imagination. All successes and fruitions attained by you in the social and economic fields and the fields of science, culture, and arts please us.

The treaty concluded between the Soviet Union and the DPRK 25 years ago has linked the ties of friendship and fraternity between our two countries. The major purpose of the treaty concluded between the two countries is precisely to check and frustrate the maneuvers for aggression and war by the U.S. imperialists and their stooges and to defend peace. With the conclusion of the treaty, which was a historic turning point in the development of Soviet-Korean relations, the friendly and cooperative relations between the two countries have been fixed and strengthened into a alliance relations.

The Soviet-Korean Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance has remarkably contributed to frustrating the imperialists' maneuvers and to defending peace and security in the Far East, as well as the rest of the world.

Under the banner of Marxism-Leninism and proletarian internationalism the people of our two countries have traversed together the road of the protracted, arduous, yet honorable struggle against imperialism. In the course of this struggle, we and you have become class brothers and comrades-in-arms reforming society.

Today, the traditional Soviet-Korean relations of friendship are blooming and developing with each passing day. The visit to the Soviet Union by Comrade Kim Il-song, the respected and beloved leader of the Korean people, the visits of party and state activists of the two countries to the Soviet Union and the DPRK that have continued ever since, and the visits to your country of many of our delegations, including the military delegation now visiting your country to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance, are precisely clear evidence of this.

Comrade Kim Il-song, general secretary of the WPK Central Committee and president of the DPRK, welcomed and received us. This has left the deepest impression on all members of the military delegation of our Air Force. [applause] At the meeting with us, esteemed Comrade Kim Il-song highly evaluated the significance of the treaty of friendship and expressed satisfaction with the face that contact between the two countries has been expanding in all fields -- political, economic, and cultural.

The Soviet Union enthusiastically approves of the DPRK initiatives to establish nuclear-free zones on the Korean peninsula and in Northeast Asia and hopes the desire of the Korean working people to reunify their country will be realized. It also expresses active support for the DPRK proposal to hold talks among the military authorities of the DPRK, the United States, and South Korea. [applause]

However, the danger of war caused by the imperialists' maneuvers has not yet been removed. The CPSU and the Soviet Government will continuously pay interest to strengthening the country's defense capability and make every effort possible to reliably guarantee the security of the country and the security of our friends and allies as clarified by Comrade Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbachev. [applause]

At this rally today I assure all of the comrades that all of the officers and men of the Soviet Armed Forces are ready to rush to the Korean people's side to perform their fraternal duties of providing (?assistance) in accordance with the appeal of the CPSU and our government. [applause] Precisely to this end, we have everything, that is, modern airplanes, arms, and brave pilots who are fervent patriots and internationalists.

In light of their [words indistinct] and national character, the Soviet people, as well as the Korean people, are peace-loving people. This is why our party put forward so many proposals for peace at the 27th CPSU Congress and during the course of implementing party decisions.

We want to carry out to the end the genuine revolutionary reforms that have already started and realize all social and economic programs. The policies of our two parties and two governments, as well as Soviet-Korean relations, which are developing along an upswing road, fully accord with this.

Dear Korean comrades: In the future, too, our Soviet pilots, like all of the Soviet people, will make every effort to consolidate and develop fraternal relations of friendship and cooperation between the Soviet Union and the DPRK in conformity with the interests of our two countries and in the interests of peace and socialism. [applause]

Long live the WPK and the CPSU, the tested vanguard units of the working people of the two countries in the struggle for peace and socialism, led by esteemed Comrade Kim Il-song and esteemed Comrade Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbachev respectively! [applause] Long live the invincible friendship and fraternity between the Soviet and Korean peoples and between the soldiers of our two armed forces! [applause] Be eternal, friendship between the Soviet people and the Korean people and between the Soviet and Korean pilots! [applause]

I give a congratulatory banner and a portrait of Lenin, the leader of the international working class, to you in commemoration of our visit to the DPRK. [applause] [end recording]

The rally ended with the singing of the song "Internationale."

CHONGJIN MEETING MARKS TREATY ANNIVERSARY

SK051050 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1027 GMT 5 Jul 86

[Text] Pyongyang July 5 (KCNA) -- A meeting marking the 25th anniversary of the conclusion of the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation and Mutual Assistance was held Friday in Chongjin.

Speeches were made at the meeting by An Mun-hon, chairman of the North Hamgyong Provincial Administration and Economic Guidance Committee, and Valeriy Nagonechni, [name as received] secretary of the Maritime Territorial Committee of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union.

An Mun-hon said that the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation and Mutual Assistance has greatly contributed to more solidly cementing the relations of class alliance between the peoples of the two countries, defending the gains of socialism and safeguarding peace in Asia and the rest of the world against imperialism.

Noting that today when the new war provocation manoeuvres of the U.S. imperialists and their stooges have become undisguised as never before in the Asian and Pacific region the treaty is of very momentous significance, he said: The Korean people are making every effort to strengthen the Korean-Soviet friendship in the spirit of this treaty.

Valeriy Nagonechni said that the present complicated and strained international situation calls for further strengthening the friendship between us. The Communist Party of the Soviet Union and the Soviet state will make positive efforts for the development and strengthening of the Soviet-Korean friendship and for the unity between the two parties and the two peoples in the struggle for peace and socialism, he declared.

He emphasized that the Soviet people highly estimate [as received] and support the peace proposal of the Workers' Party of Korea and the government of the DPRK to convert the Korean peninsula into a nuclear-free, peace zone for peace and security on the Korean peninsula and in the Far East.

The North Hamgyong Provincial Committee of the WPK and the North Hamyyong Provincial Administration and Economic Guidance Committee arranged a banquet yesterday on the occasion of the 25th anniversary of the conclusion of the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation and Mutual Assistance.

A celebration meeting and friendship gathering marking this anniversary took place respectively at the September 18 Factory and th Pyongyang Textile Combine.

[Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean at 0100 GMT on 5 July in its 7-minute report on this Chongjin meeting states that also present at the meeting "was Cho Se-ung, candidate member of the WPK Central Committee, responsible secretary of the North Hamyyong Provincial Party Committee, and chairman of the North Hamyyong Provincial Party People's Committee."]

REPORT ON VISIT OF NONALIGNED SPORTS OFFICIALS

[spelling of names as received]

[Text] Pyongyang July 8 (KCNA) -- Delegations and delegates from many countries attending the Second Conference of Ministers and High Officials of Physical Education and Sports of Non-aligned Countries visited Mangyongdae Monday.

The guests saw with deep interest the historical mementoes preserved in the native house of the great leader President Kim Il-song, while listening to an explanation about his revolutionary history and revolutionary family.

Seychellois delegate John Mascarenhas said he was deeply impressed by Mangyongdae. He went on: We feel boundless respect and reverence for the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who was born in a revolutionary family and has been devoting his whole life to the accomplishment of the cause of the Korean revolution and the world revolution. The peoples of all revolutionary countries should make a point of visiting Mangyongdae, the holy land of revolution, I think.

Lebanese delegate Galib Fahs said Mangyongdae is a historic place which gives strength and courage to peoples of all revolutionary countries.

The guests inspected the Pyongyang indoor stadium, ice rink and other sports facilities in the city which are modernly built to stage any international game.

After inspecting the Pyongyang indoor stadium and ice rink, delegate of the African National Congress of South Africa Raymond Mokoena said while inspecting many sports facilities he became convinced that Pyongyang has sufficient modern sports facilities for staging any international games and olympic games on a level up to the standard.

Member of the Tanzanian delegation Salim Sarif said that all the sports facilities in Pyongyang are elegant and modern and they please the tastes of sportsmen.

The guests also went round the Pyongyang metro, the Mangyongdae fun fair, Pyongyang senior middle school no. 1, and the training hall of the April 25 sports team. On the same day they appreciated an acrobatic show.

Final Report Adopted

Representing their regions and liberation movements, His Excellency Sansa Da, Chairman of the African Supreme Sports Council and Minister of Sports and Leisure of Burkina Faso; His Excellency (Yamil Tuniga), Director-General of Nicaraguan Sports Association; His Excellency Lorry Sant, Minister of Public Works and Sports of the Republic of Malta; His Excellency (Muhamad Galiv Ahumad), Chairman of the Supreme Sports Council of the PDRY and Chairman of the National Olympics Committee; and His Excellency (Ahmad Ali Arafat Al-kutua), Chairman of the Supreme Council for Youth Affairs and Sports of PLO, delivered speeches at the opening conference.

7. At the conference, His Excellency Kim Yu-sun of the DPRK was elected chairman; His Excellency Sansa Da of Burkina Faso, His Excellency (Conrad Martinus Korna) of Cuba and His Excellency (Tilipolis) of Yugoslavia's (Slov) Party Committee, vice chairmen; and His Excellency (Chegao Aielle) of Ethiopia, recorder of reports.

8. The conference adopted agenda items. The adopted agenda items were attached in the appendix.

9. The conference decided to organize the documents preparation committee headed by His Excellency Sansa Da to review the draft of the final documents to be forwarded to the plenary meeting.

10. At the plenary meeting, the delegations of the following countries participated in general speeches: Iran, Bolivia, Cuba, Zambia, Laos, Yugoslavia, Benin, Guinea, Senegal, Ghana, Togo, Madagascar, Ethiopia, Guyana, DPRK, Vietnam, Bangladesh, the Seychelles, Tanzania, Syria, Zimbabwe, India, the South Africa-Africa People's Congress, Nepal, the South-West African People's Organization, Lebanon, Sudan, Malta, Algeria, Tunisia, Afghanistan, Indonesia, Mozambique, Chad, Egypt, Nicaragua, Sao Tome and Principe, Guinea-Bissau and Burkina Faso.

11. The conference adopted a letter of thanks to the great leader His Excellency Kim Il-song, President of the DPRK.

II. The conclusions and recommendations:

1. The conference stressed that the Nonaligned Movement is comprehensively developing sports to be important work for enlightening and developing the values of mankind and to promote peace and friendship among the people and to be the basic right of all people.

2. The conference reaffirmed the belief that close cooperation and mutual assistance among the nonaligned countries in the sports domain is one of the effective measures to make the broad strata of the masses, the youths in particular, possess a greater interest in the principles and aims of nonalignment and are one of the key factors for the struggle to establish a new international sports order.

3. The conference reaffirmed the principles of the declaration of the nonaligned countries adopted on sports at the Sixth summit Nonaligned Countries Summit and the faithfulness to the relevant decisions of the Seventh Summit.

4. The conference reaffirmed the commitment of the nonaligned countries to continue their struggle in all spheres -- particualrly in sports -- against imperialism, colonialism, neocolonialism, hegemonism, apartheid, zionism, foreign aggression, occupation, domination, and all other forms of discrimination.

5. The conference expressed deep concern that the political and economic differences among the nations may cause acts detrimental to the basic aims of the Nonaligned Movement in the sports sector, to the implementation of plans to develop sports, to the establishment of a new international sports order, and to harmonious relations among the people, as well as to the happiness of the people.

In connection with this, the conference expressed concern that the U.S. Government is perpetrating acts to cause the instability of Nicaragua and offering funds to forces who are maneuvering against the governments of the nonaligned countries. Such an act does not promote peace and the development of sports which are an inseparable part of the Nicaraguan people's welfare and health, but further weakens them.

6. The conference demanded that disputes among the nonaligned countries be settled peacefully.

7. The conference resolved to continue fighting resolutely and consistently against all forms of discrimination in sports based on race, color, sex, political beliefs, or religion. The conference sternly denounced the hateful policy of racial discrimination and occupation of Namibia by South Africa and the rascist Zionists who occupy Palestinian and other Arab lands.

8. The conference called for the adoption of practical measures to obtain South Africa's expulsion from those international sports federations and organizations of which it is still a member and the imposition of strict sanctions against countries and organizations which maintain any kind of sports relations with the apartheid regime of South Africa.

9. The conference welcomed the adoption of the international agreement to oppose the racial discrimination policy in sports at the 40th UN General Assembly as the fruition of efforts of the nonaligned countries over a long period of time and appealed to all nonaligned countries to sign, ratify, or accept the agreement as soon as possible and to have the agreement come into force at an early date.

10. The conference recommended that political, moral, and material assistance be given to national liberation movements so that they can exercise their legitimate rights to fully represent their people in international sports games.

11. The conference recommended that the nonaligned countries give assistance to national liberation movements so that they can foster their sportsmen and sports functionaries, insuring sports facilities for them, and so that the national liberation movements can participate in the International Olympics.

12. The conference affirmatively appraised the results of bilateral and multilateral cooperation in sports carried out from 1981 to 1985 to implement the declaration, resolutions, and plans of action adopted at the first conference of ministers and high officials of youth affairs and sports of nonaligned countries in August in Tripoli, as well as the works of sports organizations, UNESCO in particular, and sports committees.

13. The conference pointed out that thanks to the contributions of the member nations, including such measures as dispatching experts; guiding members and technicians in various sports spheres based on the short-, medium- and long-range; offering scholarships; and so forth, there was progress in scientific and technological cooperation.

The conference requested that consideration be given to the need to train cadre sportmen in the future in such territories and countries as Namibia and Palestine which are occupied by the South African racist regime and the Zionists respectively. In connection with this, the member nations should make efforts to offer scholarships to college students or guide members in training in such territories and countries and accept and train them.

14. The conference noted that there was progress in the basic and advanced training of cadre sportsmen through professional conferences and seminars on a national and international scale. In connection with this, the conference pointed out with satisfaction that Yugoslavia organized a lecture meeting to guide members of the nonaligned countries in basketball and soccer in September 1981, and that India organized a lecture meeting for sports functionaries from the nonaligned countries in March 1984 and an international sports seminar in April 1984.

15. The conference emphasized that, despite the achievements scored in cooperation among the nonaligned countries, there remains an urgent need to strengthen bilateral and multilateral cooperation so that each of the nonaligned countries might keep up-to-date on all aspects related to the development of physical education and sports.

16. The conference noted with regret that, over the last 5 years, very little progress has been made in achieving the nonaligned countries' legitimate aspirations of democratizing the International Olympic Committee and establishing a new international sports order. In this regard, the conference stressed the urgent need to radically democratize the International Olympic Committee's structures, so as to ensure that all countries might have equal rights, participate in decisionmaking, and be legitimately represented.

17. The conference considered that the strategy for the 1986-1990 period should be mainly designed to strengthen the positions of the nonaligned countries within the International Olympic Committee and its agencies.

18. The conference expressed satisfaction that in the Havana conference from 11 to 13 March 1986, the coordinating countries for the sports sector worked out a draft of the plan of action for cooperation in the sports sector.

19. The conference expressed its concern about the growing trend of professionalizing and commercializing the International Olympic Movement, which works as an attack against the development of sports in the nonaligned countries and other Third World countries and as an open violation of the principle of the Olympic Charter and the final resolutions adopted at the 11th Olympic meeting in Baden-Baden.

The meeting acknowledged that it is necessary to immediately and firmly take joint action against the distortion of and attack against the noble idea adopted in accordance with the Olympic Charter and against all forms of sports developments.

20. The meeting opposed the draft of the suggestion advanced by the International Olympic Committee [IOC] to help professional athletes participate in the Olympics by revising article 26 of the Olympic Charter. The meeting decisively rejected this document and urged the National Olympic Committees [NOC] of nonaligned countries to immediately take action to inform the IOC chairman and international unions of our stand toward not approving this draft.

21. The meeting suggested that the Olympics carry out work, as the supreme agency to adopt the decision of the IOC and convene a meeting in 4 years as part of the olympics so that individual countries may freely express and advance their views and proposals.

22. The meeting opposed the proposal of the IOC and the International Sports Union [ISU] for holding special preliminary games, which will result in limiting the number of athletes participating in the Olympics from nonaligned countries.

23. The meeting once again confirmed the need to continuously take joint action to democratize the ISU and to guarantee equal rights in adopting delegate systems and decisions and in voting.

24. The meeting called for increasing the authority of the NOC in strengthening the position and role of these committees in relations with the IOC and in analyzing and resolving questions concerning the International Olympic Movement. The Federation of the NOC should exercise authority in reviewing the quality of cities designated to host the Olympics, choosing cities in this regard, and in supervising the use of funds earned through television relays. In cooperation with the NOC, the IOC should strengthen and develop cooperation with the continental and regional organizations of the NOC and should maintain and protect the Olympic charter from all forms of infringements.

25. The meeting stated that organizing large-scale sports games would greatly contribute to developing sports in nonaligned countries. This is one of the methods of strengthening and spreading the spirit of the Olympics throughout the world. This is especially true in the Olympics being organized by nonaligned countries.

26. The meeting resolutely and firmly supported the proposal for cohosting the 24th Olympics by Seoul and Pyongyang to guarantee friendship among the people and to effectively contribute to the peaceful reunification of Korea. This proposal will contribute to successfully holding the 24th Olympics and to strengthening the International Olympic Movement.

27. The meeting called for giving all available aid to attaining satisfactory results at the next Lausanne meeting, to be held at the request of the IOC, to help the North and south of Korea cohost the 24th Olympics. At the same time, the meeting expressed concern that if an agreement is not reached concerning the cohosting of the games, the International Olympic Movement will face a serious and irrevocable crisis.

28. While reconfirming that the establishment of a new international sports order is one of the basic aims of nonaligned countries in the sports sector, the meeting expressed a firm belief that the establishment of a new international sports order would contribute to achieving the basic aim of establishing a democratic system in international relations based on the principle of equality. The meeting urged all nonaligned countries to act unanimously to achieve this aim.

29. The meeting decided to convene a meeting of sports ministers and high-ranking officials in 3 years according to an agreement reached at the Seventh Nonaligned Countries Summit, to formulate and adopt a common strategy and action program, to review the results of work carried out, and to preliminarily convene a meeting of specialists.

30. The meeting stated that it is important to evaluate the results of work carried out and of joint action plans by convening a meeting of coordination countries in 2 years, to guarantee the continuity of the activities of nonaligned countries in this sector and to submit suggestions to the regular meeting of sports ministers and high-ranking officials.

31. The meeting stated that it is necessary to formulate joint action strategy concerning special activities that can be carried out by the IOC, the Federation of the NOC, and the ISU, by a joint meeting of the specialists and representatives of the NOC of nonaligned countries and to carry out preparatory work for the 12th Olympics to be held in 1992.

32. As the host country of the current meeting, the DPRK will distribute the final report on this meeting, including the action program of the sports sector of nonaligned countries for the period from 1986 to 1990, among all nonaligned countries. Through the Coordination Committee, this final report will be submitted to the eighth summit talks of nonaligned countries scheduled to be held in Harare in September 1986.

33. The meeting satisfactorily received the proposal advanced by the Republic of Cuba to host the third meeting of the sports ministers and high-ranking functionaries of nonaligned countries in Havana in 1986.

34. The meeting decided to extensively distribute this final document among relevant sports agencies, including the IOC and the ISU.

III. An action program for cooperation in the sports sector in nonaligned countries during the period from 1986 to 1990

A. Purpose

1. We consider sports the basic demand of all of the people -- the demand directly related to the education, health, recreation, and physical development of our people.

2. In light of the plan for national development and in light of international activities, activities and relations of cooperation among nonaligned countries will be expanded and strengthened.

3. We urge all nonaligned countries to act vigorously, positively, and resolutely to oppose discrimination, commercialization, and professionalization; to develop the sports of the people struggling to achieve the independence of their own and of our country; to eliminate all factors limiting or denying the people's inviolable rights to participate in the adoption of international decisions in all questions concerning sports relations among the people and the practice of the worlds' ethics; and to establish a new international sports order. The meeting calls for accelerating the struggle to oppose all forms of violence in the stadium and the use of stimulants by athletes.

4. We call for joining efforts to quickly change the current structure of the Olympic Movement to meet the true desire and interest of our people. At the same time, we confirm common strategy in this regard. The struggle to achieve democratization, to respect our rights, and to make us recognized as a decisive political force is the basic aim of the activities of the Nonaligned Movement in the sports sector.

5. We will achieve effective and true cooperation with specialized international agencies, especially with the sports committee between UNESCO and governments, which contributes to achieving our aims in this sector, with specialzied UN agencies, and with other agencies.

6. We will strengthen our struggle against the South African racial segregationist and racist regime, which violates the sacred rights to sports activities; Zionists and all forms of territorial occupations in Palestine and other occupied Arab territories; and other forms of discrimination.

B. Tasks to be carried out -- international activities. The strategy for the period of 1986 to 1990 should be implemented to attain the following aim:

7. The position of nonaligned countries will be increased within the framework of the International Olympic and sports Movement.

8. We will struggle to quickly democratize the IOC and its agencies and to give equal qualification to all IOC members in determining and adopting important questions concerning world sports.

9. The coordinating group will study the organization of regular sports games in nonaligned countries and will submit a certain proposal concerning this important question to the third meeting of sports ministers and high-ranking functionaries.

10. We will continuously struggle to prevent the tendency that is quickly working toward professionalization and commercialization.

11. The Federation of the NOC should increase its decisive role in increasing the role of the NOC in the International Olympic Movement, in guaranteeing the rights of the NOC to participate in resolving all questions concerning the Olympics, and in respecting the will of individual member countries.

12. The IOC specialized committee and the committee for reviewing the Olympic Charter will increase the number of the representatives of nonaligned countries and will help them exercise their rights and win the support of representatives of friendly countries.

13. We reject the IOC proposal to professionalize the Olympics and distort the essence of sports by revising article 26 of the Olympic Charter.

14. We will strive to democratize ISU rules, to include articles on equal delegate systems and voting rights into these rules, and to help the representatives of the new national union of the member nations of the movement obtain ISU membership and win support from friendly countries within the framework of this international union.

15. We oppose the IOC and ISU proposal for holding preliminary games before the Olympics to limit the number of athletes participating in the games, which is unfavorable to athletes from nonaligned and developing countries in participating in the Olympics.

16. We will strive to implement the proposal for cohosting the 24th Olympics by the North and South of Korea.

17. We advance a proposal for the Federation of the NOC to participate, in a much more influential manner, in the work of reviewing and determining the qualification of those cities that desire to host the Olympics and of supervising the preparatory work for the games and the work of the committee for organizing the Olympics and for helping this federation take stern disciplinary action by exercising its own authority in the case of a violation of the Olympic Charter and international regulations.

18. We will help the NOC and the Federation of the NOC positively participate in adopting decisions concerning the use and allotment of funds for the Olympic Movement.

19. We will make the Olympic games the supreme organization for adopting the decisions of the IOC and will help conduct once every 4 years a preparation period for the Olympics.

20. The conference firmly supports the efforts of the member nations to turn UNESCO into an active organization for the development and welfare of all of mankind, in particular, the Third World. In this regard, the conference supports the struggle of the leadership of this organization to make UNESCO not traverse along the incorrect path.

In conclusion, the conference, welcoming the fact that UNESCO attaches an importance to sports, calls on UNESCO to continue its efforts to develop such activities in Third World countries.

C. Cooperation among member nations.

21. We will encourage participation in bilateral, multilateral, and local games organized by the nonaligned countries and will help promote and develop the sport games and traditional games in each nonaligned country.

22. We will organize lecture meetings and seminars for cooperation and exchanges among our countries.

a. In this connection, the DPRK proposes to hold the following lecture meetings: A lecture meeting to guide participants in table tennis -- for 2 weeks in 1987 -- and a lecture meeting to guide teachers of mass gymnastic games -- for 3 weeks in 1989.

b. During this period, Yugoslavia will organize one or more seminars to guide participants in the following sports -- basketball, handball, soccer, and water polo. These games will be held in accordance with the interest and the demand of the nonaligned countries together with the seminars.

c. We propose that the Republic of Cuba hold the following lecture meetings: A lecture meeting to guide participants in boxing -- for 2 weeks in 1987 and a lecture meeting to guide participants in volley ball -- for 2 weeks in 1988.

23. To help the development of sports, we will encourage the continuous expansion of scientific and technological cooperation among our countries by exchanging the guiding members of training, specialists, and technicians, and by offering them scholarships.

24. We will expand the exchange of the data of notices and professional documents relating to international activities and mutual cooperation carried out by the nonaligned countries in the sports sphere.

25. To encourage the broadest and most beneficial exchanges among the nonaligned countries, we will exchange information concerning the facilities, instruments, and material of sports.

26. We will contribute to the development of sports in the nonaligned countries by properly adjusting work to improve and develop scientific and technological cooperation and gradually reduce the differences in the levels of scientific and technological development among countries. We will also contribute to resolving the issue of cadre members in the domains of sports, science, and technology in such countries. We will help these countries introduce the most advanced scientific and technological methods.

27. To realize broad scientific and technological cooperation in the sports sector, we will encourage professional international sports organizations to continue joint action in the benefit of our countries. We will also help these organizations, the UNESCO-Government sports committees in particular, to have the guiding position in support of friendly countries.

28. We will help make the work and activities of sportsmen of the nonaligned countries fully correspond to legitimate and lofty sportsmanship by intensifying the work of leading them to assume a new attitude. We will make efforts to promote peace, unity, and friendship and to oppose all forms of professionalization and commercialization and other negative phenomenon.

NODONG SINMUN Editorial

[NODONG SINMUN 10 July editorial: "The Significant Conference That Has Vigorously Motivated the Physical Education and Sports of the Nonaligned Countries"]

[Text] The second conference of ministers and high-ranking officials of physical education and sports of nonaligned countries that opened on 5 July in Pyongyang closed on 8 July after completing its work.

The conference was held amid the ever-growing interest in physical education and sports in nonaligned countries and amid the attention of nonaligned countries and the sports circles of the world.

Through the active participation of the delegates to the conference, the presented agenda items have been successfully discussed and a final report has been adopted.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song personally received the participants to the conference on 8 July and spoke. In his speech, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song clearly elucidated the principled questions, which nonaligned countries are facing in strengthening and developing physical education and sports and carrying out the Nonaligned Movement, and the ways to settle them.

The conference stressed the need to rapidly develop physical education and sports in nonaligned countries and its urgency. At the same time, the conference expressed the desire to exert joint efforts to this end, exchanged the successes and experiences which nonaligned countries have won and gained in physical education and sports, and discussed measures and methods to develop cooperation and exchanges in this area.

The conference has also strongly put forth the demand to oppose the obsolete order, establish a new one, and enhance the roles of the nonaligned countries in the field of international physical education and sports.

We are happy over the successful conclusion of the conference.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: To realize the noble ideas and objectives of the Nonaligned Movement, it is important to strengthen unity and cooperation among the nonaligned countries.

Particularly stressed at the conference this time was the question of strengthening unity and expanding cooperation and exchanges in the field of physical education and sports, as in other fields, by the nonaligned countries in order to develop their physical education and sports vigorously.

Developing physical education and sports vigorously is a common task of the nonaligned countries. To successfully build an independent and prosperous new world without domination and subjugation, the nonaligned countries should achieve political independence, establish a self-reliant national economy, and develop physical culture vigorously. Only by rapidly eliminating the aftermath of imperialism and colonialism and establishing an advanced physical culture in the field of sports, can the nonaligned countries nurture people as fully developed social beings, prepare the masses of people firmly for national defense and labor, and accelerate revolution and construction, thus achieving national prosperity.

What is important in strengthening and developing the physical education and sports of the nonaligned countries is to expand and develop mutual cooperation and exchanges. Nonaligned countries have ample conditions and possibilities to expand and develop cooperation and exchanges in the field of physical education and sports. More and more countries are developing the technology of physical education and sports, building up experiences gained in physical education and sports, and increasing material potential.

When nonaligned countries firmly unite with the common objectives and ideas of the Nonaligned Movement and expand and develop cooperation and exchanges in the field of physical education and sports, great progress can be made.

This time, delegates of many countries particularly stressed the necessity and significance of strengthening cooperation and exchanges in the field of physical education and sports and called upon the conference to provide an opportunity to open a way out in this area. This was an appropriate step.

As the delegates of many countries stressed at the conference, in the field of international physical education and sports, eliminating the unequal obsolete order established by the imperialists and colonialists and establishing a new fair one are presently a very important question.

As in the economic field, in the field of physical education and sports as well, the imperialists and colonialists are scheming to maintain their privileged position of the past, continue to play the role of masters in the international sports organizations, and exploit international sports events for their impure political objectives. In particular, the imperialists and colonialists are continuing to impose all kinds of discrimination -- racial, ideological, sexual, and religious -- on the nonaligned and newly emerging nations, and employing all kinds of tricks to exclude the anti-imperialist independent countries from the international sports stage.

Because of these maneuvers by the imperialists and colonialists, the nonaligned countries cannot hold suitable positions in the international sports organizations as well as in international sports events. They are continuously discriminated against, and unable to properly play their roles in the international sports work.

Only when this obsolete order is eliminated in the field of physical education and sports and a new one is established, can the nonaligned and newly emerging nations exercise their due rights on the international sports stage and truly contribute to the common cause of mankind to achieve friendship, harmony, cooperation, and progress among countries and nations through sports. This is precisely why the delegates of many countries, at the conference held this time, unanimously emphasized that the nonaligned countries should struggle to oppose all forms of privileges and despotism on the international sports stage, demanded that the commercialization and professionalization of sports games be prevented, and the nonaligned and newly emerging countries participate in international sports work in an equal capacity with all other countries of the world, and strongly held that a new international sports order should be established on the basis of a fair and democratic principle.

All kinds of discrimination, despotism, and privileges in the field of international physical education and sports, which the imperialists and colonialists created in the past, are the remnants of the old era and, thus, should be eliminated. Instead, a new international sports order, in which the nonaligned countries and newly emerging nations enjoying an absolute majority in the world will participate with equal rights and in the same capacity, should be established.

We hope that, with the conference held in Pyongyang this time as an opportunity, new progress will be made in the struggle of the nonaligned countries to eliminate the obsolete order in the field of international physical education and sports, establish a new fair one, prevent the commercialization and professionalization of sports, and universalize sports.

Today, one of the most important and preferential questions facing the nonaligned countries and the sports circles of the world is to guarantee the smooth holding of the 24th Olympic Games, thus rescuing the Olympic Movement from crisis and making it truly contribute to seeking the understanding, friendship, harmony, and unity among the peoples and achieving peace and progress.

The hosting of the Olympic Games in South Korea has presently become a serious political issue and, because of this, the Olympic Movement has come to experience even greater trials and crisis. This is entirely because Seoul, through the cunning tricks of the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets, has been unjustly selected as the venue of the XXIV Olympiad.

The U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets are scheming to exploit the hosting of the Olympic Games in Seoul in seeking the impure political objectives to create two Koreas by putting a cover of an independent state on South Korea, which is a U.S. colony, and by promoting discord and confrontation between the North and the South and perpetuating the division of our nation. To this end, with the passage of time, they are staging all kinds of maneuvers.

With these cunning maneuvers, the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets are creating a grave obstacle to achieving the reunification of the fatherland, the greatest national desire of our people, and are driving the Olympic Movement into a crisis of division by running counter to the aspiration of the peoples and sports circles of the world.

Over these maneuvers, many world countries and the sports circles of the world are heightening the voices of condemnation and denunciation, and a series of countries have expressed their stand that they would not participate in the 24th Olympic Games, if the games are held in Seoul.

To rescue the 24th Olympic Games from crisis, hold the games smoothly, and create a favorable environment for the peaceful reunification of our country, we have put forth a proposal for the cohosting of the XXIV Olympiad by the North and the South.

With the passage of time, more and more world countries are coming to support and welcome this proposal, because of its fairness, justness, and reality.

It is natural that, at the conference held in Pyongyang this time, the delegates of many countries, expressing serious concern over the destiny of the 24th Olympic Games, unanimously hoped for the smooth holding of the Olympic Games through an early realization of our proposal for the cohosting of the Olympic Games.

At the conference held this time, the delegates of many countries have expressed firm solidarity for our people's revolutionary cause and actively supported our proposal for the cohosting of the Olympic Games. This is an encouragement for our people.

As has been unanimously stressed, following the first conference of ministers and high-ranking officials of physical education and sports of nonaligned countries, affirmative results have been produced in the field of physical education and sports.

The conference held this time will provide an opportunity to more vigorously push ahead with physical eduction and sports in nonaligned countries, and will more vigorously encourage the struggle of nonaligned countries to expand and strengthen mutual cooperation and exchanges and establish a new order in the field of international physical education and sports.

The Korean people, by uniting with the peoples of nonaligned countries and all progressive peoples of the world, will make active efforts to embody the contents which have been stressed at the conference held this time.

NODONG SINMUN ON STRENGTHENING NONALIGNED MOVEMENT

SK151028 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1009 GMT 15 Jul 86

[Text] Pyongyang July 15 (KCNA) -- The prerequisite to the strengthening and development of the Non-Aligned Movement is for the member nations to remain faithful to the anti-imperialist, independent idea of this movement and the basic principle of remaining outside any bloc, says NODONG SINMUN today.

In this signed article headlined "Preferential Prerequisite for Development of Non-Aligned Movement", the paper goes on:

The Non-Aligned Movement is a mighty anti-imperialist independent force of our times.

The non-aligned countries should strengthen and develop the Non-Aligned Movement in order to firmly defend their sovereignty from all manner of domination and subjugation by the imperialists and their maneuvers of aggression and intervention, to solve all the problems arising on international arena in conformity with the desire and demand of the peoples of new-emerging countries for independence, to prevent a nuclear war, defend world peace and security and give a strong impetus to the cause of national liberation.

The lofty idea of the Non-aligned Movement is anti-imperialism and independence. Those member nations which truly value the development of this movement must work out lines and policies and carry them through from an independent stand in the interests of their countries and people and the movement, according to their own views and faith, not allowing outside interference.

The member nations should refrain from trampling down the sovereignty of other countries, interfering in others' internal affairs and infringing upon others' interests.

One of the noble missions of the Non-Aligned Movement is to liquidate imperialism and colonialism, eliminate all forms of domination and subjugation and defend peace and security against aggression and intervention.

The non-aligned countries themselves constitute a broad peace zone and the Non-Aligned Movement is a mighty anti-war, peace force.

The non-aligned countries and all the progressive countries of the world should from an anti-imperialist joint front on a global scale and wage an allout, more relentless struggle against imperialism, not stopping it halfway, so as to smash at every step the machinations of the imperialists to invade and dominate other countries.

To advance independently, not joining any bloc, is the basic principle of non-alignment.

The non-aligned countries should resolutely fight against all attempts to turn their movement away from its original principles and purpose such as the schemings to attach it to a bloc of powers or draw outside forces into it.

FURTHER ON LETTERS REJECTION, TALKS PROPOSAL

Participation Urged

SK131123 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2144 GMT 12 Jul 86

[NODONG SINMUN 13 July commentary: "Embark on the Road of Dialogue and Peace, Not on the road of Confrontation and War"]

[Text] As is known, in letters dated 9 June and sent to the commander in chief of the UN Forces in South Korea and South Korean defense minister, in accordance with the KPA Supreme Command's peace proposal, the minister of the People's Armed Forces of our country proposed holding talks among authorities who possess real power in the military in the North and South and discussing and settling through these talks such issues as halting military exercises and the military buildup, reducing troops and armaments [pyongnyokkwa and kunbi], and observing the Korean Armistice Agreement, all of which are realistic measures to relax tension on the Korean peninsula.

Our proposal for holding talks among military authorities is a most realistic and pressing measure of national salvation to ease tension prevailing on the Korean peninsula and to stop the growing danger of war.

However, the commander in chief of the UN forces in South Korea and South Korean defense minister sent reply letters which expressed their stand of avoiding the talks among military authorities designed to ease tension on the Korean peninsula on 21 June and 24 June respectively.

On 11 July, the UN forces side doggedly refused to accept a letter from our minister of People's Armed Forces which expressed our stand concerning such an attitude by the other party and urged them to come to talks, arguing about matters concerning the name of the sender and that even the South Korean side committed a rude act by refusing to allow the letter to be delivered. Under such circumstances, our side had no choice but to air the content of the letter via broadcasts.

In these letters, we have once again stated our serious stand to prevent the danger of war and preserve peace in Korea and to create a favorable atmosphere for the settlement of the Korean question.

Noting in the letters the fact that the other side has adopted an insincere attitude toward our letter dated 9 June in which we proposed talks among military authorities, we repeatedly asserted that the alks among military authorities should be held before the end of July.

As has been indicated in the letter of the minister of the People's Armed Forces of our country dated 5 July, in its reply letter the U.S. side avoided the talks among military authorities [as heard], interpreting our proposal to relax tension on the Korean peninsula as merely an issue related to North-South relations.

There are different kinds of problems to be settled between ourselves and South Korea and between ourselves and the United States. Such internal problems of the nation as improving North-South relations and settling the reunification question are problems that we should settle directly with South Korea.

However, such issues as preventing war and relaxing tension in Korea are the problems that arise chiefly between ourselves and the United States. The United States, while mixing questions that should be settled between ourselves and South Korea with questions that should be settled between ourselves and the United States, attempts to avoid taking responsibility, for it is not a stand that solves problems.

The danger of war created on the Korean peninsula is a problem that has been produced in relation to the military presence of the United States in South Korea. How can it be said that military exercises, the military buildup in South Korea, and the strengthening of its equipment that make the situation more acute are problems that have nothing to do with the U.S. policy toward Korea?

For the commander of U.S. forces, who possesses real power in the military by taking command of the U.S. forces in the South, to say that issues related to relaxing tension on the Korean peninsula are something that should be settled by persons in authority in the North and South themselves and that they are problems that have nothing to do with him is utterly unreasonable and will convince no one.

The assertion by the U.S. side that issues related to relaxing tension can be discussed at MAC is also unrealistic. Despite the fact that MAC is an institution established to guarantee the implementation of the armistice agreement, the armistice agreement is in actuality not observed.

Although the armistice prohibits introducing reinforcing operational equipment from outside the boundaries of Korea, new operational equipment shipped from the United States is being deployed even in the demilitarized zone south of the Military Demarcation Line, and because of the repeated introduction of nuclear weapons, South Korea has been turned into the largest nuclear base in the Far East.

Under such circumstances in which MAC really exists, can it be said that our peace proposal, which covers issues outside the framework of MAC, can be solved by MAC institutions?

Avioding talks among military authorities who are, in effect, capable of solving problems and suggesting the discussion of issues related to relaxing tension through MAC, which is incapable of solving problems, is a futile assertion, as well as a armchair argument.

The U.S. side ignored even our proposal for holding tripartite talks, the objective of which is to sign a peace agreement between Korea and the United States (chomisaie) and to adopt a declaration of nonaggression between the North and South.

If they oppose and refuse to accept any of our realistic proposals for relaxing tension and peace while verbally saying that relaxing tension is required and that peace is desirable, their true intentions are questionable.

In its reply letter dated 24 June, the South Korean side rashly referred to our unselfish proposal for holding talks among military authorities as propaganda and reacted negatively to it, instead of shouldering due responsibility to eliminate the danger of war facing the nation. Whether or not our proposal is an issue can be proven when those who posses real military power sit together and talk.

Denouncing it first as propaganda or something else even before sitting face to face and discussing the issues is not appropriate, nor can it be seen as an attitude to solve the issues.

The South side is now trying to justify its wrong stand of avoiding talks among military authorities by laying blame on us for suspending the North-South dialogue.

Speaking of the North-South dialogue, which was arranged after much give and take, and have been suspended and remain unresumed, the responsibility for such a situation lies entirely on the side of the United States and South Korea, who have not only frustrated the dialogue by a single stroke bby conducting the large-scale "Team Spirit-86" joint military exercise against the other party to dialogue, but who have also exacerbated tension to the extreme by saying that they will continue to strengthen these military exercises and by each day kicking off such war exercise noise as "Ttangbol," "Piho," "Pilsung Pangpae," and "Ulchi."

The South side is now babbling about resuming dialogue, thus embellishing itself as if it were concerned about dialogue. Under the present circumstances, in which the situation is becoming acute, dialogue cannot be resumed, even if insisted upon, nor can conducting dialogue produce any success.

Dialogue is to improve relations. Under the present circumstances in which war exercises and the noise of anticommunism and the annihilation of communism against the other party to dialogue are being kicked off, with guns ready to fire, it is apparent to everyone that neither the humanitarian Red Cross talks nor economic talks can be conducted.

The purpose of our proposal for talks among military authorities designed to take measures to ease tension is to resume the suspended dialogue. The South side's babbling about resuming dialogue while refusing talks among military authorities, the aim of which is to create an atmosphere of dialogue, is preposterous.

In its reply letter, the South side stated that issues related to relaxing tension should be discussed at MAC, exactly as the United States says, while opposing our fair peace proposal. Does it say this, knowing its own place?

The South side is not a signatory to the armistice agreement, therefore it is not eligible to be part of MAC, nor has it any right to speak at MAC. The senior member of the opposing side to MAC is an American military general. The senior secretary and the joint duty officer are also U.S. Army officers. Even the linguistics officer is a U.S. Army officer. Under such circumstances, supposing that MAC discusses issues related to relaxing tension, there is no choice but to ask the South side: Where is it supposed to set in MAC and what can it say to whom?

It is also unreasonable for the South side to call, without due cause, for talks among the persons of highest authority in the North and South, ignoring the reality that the various forms of dialogue conducted between the North and South have been driven into a state of suspension. Problems will not be solved simply because the persons of highest authority in the North and South sit face to face with each other.

To arrange high-level political talks and to arrive at solutions, it is imperative to paving foundations capable of reaching a fundamental agreement by creating an atmosphere of national harmony and trust and by increasing mutual understanding.

Reflected in the proposal for talks among military authorities we have put forward is a positive stand to reconnect the suspended North-South dialogues by taking detente [wanhwa] measures in the military field and to develop them eventually into talks between the persons of highest authority in the North and South by advancing these dialgoues well in accordance with the people's espectations and the ideology governing the reunification of the fatherland.

All facts show that the United States and the South Korean puppets are not concerned about relaxing tension and guaranteeing peace in Korea or about resuming North-South dialogue and that they are pursuing only division and war.

Their stand as such has been clearly laid bare once again in their rude act of refusing to even accept the letter of our side dated 5 July, unprecedented in North-South relations.

Babbling about dialogue and peace while refusing to even accept a letter calling for talks to relax tension is false, as well as a last desperate measure by those who are in despair.

In the face of the danger of war, all fellow countrymen in the North and South are looking up to no other persons that the military authorities. If U.S. and South Korean military authorities directly responsible for the exacerbation of tension on the Korean peninsula and who bear an unavoidable duty concerning the relaxation of tension ignore this and avoid their duty, they will be committing indelible sins before history and the people.

The United States and the South Korean side should accept our proposal for sitting face to face with those who possess real power in the mmilitary to prevent the danger of war, abandoning false words that run against reason.

All of the Korean people at home and abroad and the people of the world are now keenly watching to see the development of the situation in South Korea. The United States and the South Korean authorities should act judiciously.

U.S., South 'Sophistry' Viewed

[NODONG SINMUN 14 July commentary: "Unjust Excuse"]

[Text] On 11 July, the U.S. and South Korean side refused to accept the second letter of theminister of the People's Armed Forces of our country to the commander in chief of the UN Forces in South Korea and the South Korean defense minister with an unjust excuse. Thus, they have established a bad precedent unseen in North-South relation.

The U.S. and South Korean side, which refused to accept our side's letter, are making various forms of shameless sophistries in order to excuse their unreasonable and rude act. The Command of the UN Forces in South Korea put forth a nonsensical excuse stating that it cannot accept the letter of the minister of the People's Armed Forces of our country because the letter was not signed in accordance with the regulations and practice of the military armistice agreement for liaison between the two sides.

The fact that the U.S. side is attempting to find fault with us over the issue of the signature on our side's letter is unreasonable. As for the signatory of a letter, this is an issue to be decided by the side sending the letter, not an issue in which the side receiving the letter should interfere, saying do this and that.

Furthermore, on 17 June, the U.S. side had accepted the first letter in which the same signatory signed. However, the remark of the U.S. side that it cannot accept the letter with the same signatory this time is a preposterous picking of a quarrel and a sophistry put forth to avoid talks between military authorities.

If the United States is interested in easing tension and ensuring peace in Korea, it should have accepted the letter, transcending regulations and practice. It should not have picked a quarrel over this essential issue. That day, the South Korean side refused to accept our side's letter at the directive of the U.S. masters. Thus, it revealed its filthy nature as the U.S. imperialists' colonial puppet.

As the U.S. side noted in its reply letter of 21 June that it can discuss the issue of relaxing tension in a MAC meeting, the South Korean side also repeated the same words in its reply letter, thus bringing ridicule upon itself. This is a fact known to all.

Because the South Korean puppets are not the signatory of the Korean Armistice Agreement, they are not entitled to refuse to accept a letter on the pretext of the signatory issue. As its U.S. masters refused to accept our side's letter, it merely acted instinctively in accord with its masters.

The South Korean puppets are foolishly attempting to justify their filthy position by shifiting the responsibility for suspending the North-South dialogue onto us. As for suspending the North-South dialogue, the responsibility for this rests entirely on the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets who suddenly frustrated [choajol skihida] the dialogue.

It it reasonable for one to attempt to hold dialogue while aiming at another's heart with guns and rifles? The South Korea side said that in order to promote mutual trust and ease tension, dialogue should be resumed. However, dialogue has not been resumed because the puppets themselves and aggravating tension by staging daily such large-scale provocative war exercise rackets as joint mobilization training, "Ttangbol," "Piho," "Pilsong Pangpae" and so forth while openly raving that they will also continue to strengthen such war exercises in as "Team Spirit" in the future.

The South Korean puppets are going to stage another noisy war exercise called "Ulchi-86" from 15 July throughout South Korea. They make nonsensical remarks about resumption of dialogue and so forth while spoiling the atmosphere of dialogue with ceaseless anticommunist confrontation and war rackets and while ignoring our peace proposal for taking practical measures for relaxing tension. This is indeed preposterous.

It is ridiculous that they babble about peace and dialogue while avoiding talks between military authorities for easing tension and building peace. They even refuse to accept the letter which calls for holding the talks.

This is nothing but a desperate measure aimed at shirking accepting responsibility for avoiding talks between military authorities responsibility for avoiding talds between military authorities and for misleading world public opinion by pretending that they are interested in dialogue and easing tension.

Our proposal for holding talks between military authorities is the best national salvation measure for relaxing tension created in the country and for preventing the increasing danger of war. It is a matter of life or death which is related to the destiny of the nation [minjokui chonmanggwa kwallyondoen sahwalchokin munje imyo] and is an important question which should be resolved without fail [pandushi] by the military authorities if they want to see peace maintained in Korea and Asia.

No matter how loudly the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets talk about dialogue and peace while refusing our peace proposal to hold talks between military authorities, they can neither conceal nor legalize their flithy nature as one pursuing only confrontation and war. The U.S. and the South Korean side should not repeat absurd remarks but should immediately respond to our repeated call for talks between military authorities.

KCNA STATEMENT ON KUNSAN NUCLEAR STOREHOUSES

SK160825 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 0700 GMT 16 Jul 86

[KCNA Statement issued in Pyongyang on 16 July]

[Text] Upon authorization, KCNA issues the following statement:

A grave situation, which cannot be looked on with folded arms, has been recently created on the Korean peninsula.

According to reports of foreign news agencies, the U.S. imperialists lately have been pushing ahead with a plan to construct 36 special nuclear weapons storehouses in Kunsan, South Korea. It has been reported that, together with nuclear weapons, offensive fighters which assume a combat-ready posture for 24 hours and the posture of immediate readiness so that they can be mobilized within 15 minutes, will be deployed in special underground hangar-type nuclear arms storehouses called (?WOS-3).

Even building 36 special nuclear arms storehouses in the land of South Korea, which is four times as many as NATO in terms of the density of the deployment of nuclear weapons and where over half the U.S. nuclear weapons deployed in the whole Far East are concentrated, and placing them in the posture of immediate readiness fully shows how dangerous the stage is that the nuclear war provocation maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists have reached.

Furthermore, what cannot be overlooked is that the spokesman for the U.S. Department of Defense has stated with regard to the question of special nuclear arms storehouses that information on the stockpiling of nuclear weapons and capabilities for preserving them is no secret.

Having kept the presence nuclear weapons in South Korea a strict secret, the U.S. persons in military authority have openly revealed this time even the plans to construct special nuclear arms armories. This confirms that the nuclear war preparations of the U.S. Imperialists are being unhesitatingly and undisguisedly accelerated at the final stage.

KCNA sternly condemns the maneuver of the U.S. imperialists to construct special nuclear arms storehouses in South Korea, branding this as an intolerable criminal act aimed at perfecting nuclear war preparations, at conducting a pre-emptive nuclear attack on the socialist countries, including us, and at inflicting the calamity of a nuclear war on mankind.

The new nuclear war provocation maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists are a grave challenge to our sincere and earnest efforts to ease tension on the Korean peninsula and solve problems through dialogue and negotiations.

Recently, our party and the government of the republic set forth an epochal proposal to hold talks among persons in military authority and a peace proposal to create a nuclear-free and peace zone on the Korean peninsula. Because they reflect the sincere stand of easing the acute situation prevailing on the Korean peninsula at any cost and present reasonable ways for making it possible to substantially resolve problems through dialogue, our peace proposals have aroused active support and sympathy among the governments and peoples of many peace-loving countries in the world. In stead of responding to our peace proposals, however, the United States and the South Korean persons in authority have answered them with less disguised nuclear war provocation maneuvers.

The U.S. imperialists built a space tracking station in Taegu as part of "star wars" and began to built a new storage house for nuclear weapons in Mt. Kyeryong. They also perpetrated the illegal act of handing over F-16 fighter-bombers to the South Korean puppet Army.

Besides, the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppet clique are straining the situation to an extreme point by daily staging large-scale military exercise rackets simulating a nuclear war. They drove the manifold dialogue that was realized between the North and South after a long time to the danger of rupture [kyollyolui wihom]

However, the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean authorities are foolishly scheming to shirk responsibility for aggravating tension and suspending the dialogue onto someone while shamelessly raving as if they are interested in easing tension on the Korean peninsula and in dialogue.

The fact that the ringleader who has aggravated tension and suspended dialogue is talking about dialogue is itself ridiculous. The United States and the South Korean authorities are accelerating nuclear war preparations, instead of accepting our various reasonable peace proposals, and have perpetrated an arrogant and rude act by even refusing to receive the letter sent by the partner in dialogue. However, they are talking about the resumption of dialogue, easing tensions, and so forth. This is thoroughgoing hypocrisy and deception.

No matter how loudly the U.S. imperialists may talk about dialogue and peace, they absolutely cannot conceal their nature as nuclear war fanatics, as the destroyer of North-South dialogue, and the disturber of peace in the world. If the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean authorities are truely interested in peace and dialogue, they should immediately stop the nuclear war preparations and show an affirmative response to our proposals for talks by military authorities and for establishing a nuclear-free zone and peace zone on the Korean peninsula.

The peaceful resolution of the Korean issue through dialogue and negotiations is the unanimous aspiration not only of our people but also of the peace-loving people of the world. Amid the active support and encouragement from the peace-loving people of the world, in this year marking the year of international peace, our people will make all possible efforts to prevent the danger of a nuclear war on the Korean pensinula and to ensure durable peace and security.

'TEXT' OF CONDOLENCE MESSAGE ON LE DUAN'S DEATH

OW121451 Ulaanbaatar MONTSAME in Russian 1342 GMT 11 Jul 86

[Text] Ulaanbaatar, 11 Jul (MONTSAME) -- In connection with the death of CPV Central Committee General Secretary Le Duan, the MPRP Central Committee, the MPR People's Great Hural Presidium, and the MPR Council of Ministers have sent a message of condolence to the CPV Central Committee and the SRV National Assembly, State Council, and Council of Ministers.

The full text of the message follows:

To the Central Committee of the Communist Party of Vietnam, the National Assembly, the State Council, and the Council of Ministers of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam.

Dear Comrades:

The communists and working people of the Mongolian People's Republic heard with deep sorrow the sad news about the death of Le Duan, CPV Central Committee general Secretary.

The MPRP Central Committee, the Presidium of the People's Great Hural, and the MPR Council of Ministers, on behalf of the communists and all the Working people of Mongolia, express to the CPV Central Committee and the SRV National Assembly, State Council, and Council of Ministers, the Communists, and all Vietnamese people their deep condolences in connection with the great loss, the death of tried CPV leader Le Duan, loyal continuer of Ho Chi Minh's cause, outstanding leader of the communist, workers, and national liberation movements, steadfast fighter for peace and socialism.

All Le Duan's conscious life and activities were closely connected with the long-term heroic struggle of the communists, the working class, and all the working people of Vietnam for national liberation and the country's independence, against the imperialist attempt to undermine the freedom and sovereign rights of the Vietnamese people, and for building socialism on Vietnamese soil. Le Duan was a consistent Marxist-Leninist, staunch internationalist, and fiery fighter for the unity of socialist countries; he stood for the cohesion of the international communist and workers' movement and for the cause of socialism and peace in Asia and the entire world.

The MPRP and all Mongolian people note the great personal contribution made by Le Duan to the development and strengthening of relations of fraternal friendship and close comprehensive cooperation between the CPV and the MPRP, and between our two countries and peoples.

May the memory of the true son of the Vietnamese people, consistent internationalist and staunch fighter for peace and friendship between peoples remain forever in the hearts of the communists and the working people of Mongolia.

We beg you to transmit our deep condolences to the family and relatives of the deceased.

[Signed] The MPRP Central Committee
The MPRP People's Great Hural Presidium
The MPR Council of Ministers.

PAPER CITED ON PRC NUCLEAR TECHNOLOGY SALES

OW120323 Ulaanbaatar MONTSAME in Russian 1413 GMT 9 Jul 86

[From the 9 July Press Review]

[Text] Ulaanbaatar, 9 Jul (MONTSAME) -- The newspaper MONGOLIAN NEWS, in its commentary, noted that China, in its aspirations to profit from the sale of weapons, including nuclear weapons, crossed a dangerous line when it sold nuclear technology to Brazil, Argentina, Pakistan, the Republic of South Africa, and Iran, contrary to the commitment it has made on the nonproliferation of nuclear weapons.

LEADERS ATTEND GALA MEETING FOR REVOLUTION DAY

OW121315 Ulaanbaatar MONTSAME in English 1705 GMT 11 Jul 86

[All quotation marks as received]

[Text] Ulaanbaatar, July 11 (MONTSAME) -- A gala meeting of party, state, public organizations and representatives of Mongolian Armed Forces and the working people of the capital was held here to mark the 65th anniversary of the Mongolian People's Revolution.

Jambyn Batmonh and other Mongolian party and state leaders, the head of the Soviet delegation, procurator-general of the USSR A.M. Rekunkov took part in the meeting.

MPRP CC Politbureau member, chairman of the MPR Council of Ministers D. Sodnom made a key-note speech. Dwelling upon the international situation D. Sodnom said in part:

"Socialism is dynamically developing and gains fresher achievements in solving economic and social problems. Embodying the future of mankind, socialism is continuing to exert revolutionizing influence on the whole process of world development. The socialist community purposefully and energetically fights for solving the tasks advanced by the present-day development of mankind at the national as well as the international level. This has been vivdly demonstrated by the congresses of communist and workers parties of fraternal countries.

Having profoundly analyzed the present-day state of the world development, the 27th CPSU Congress has opened up a new stage in the development of Soviet society and broader prospects in strengthening world socialism. It has worked out a bold and realistic course aimed at ensuring the future of mankind free of wars and weapons.

The USSR initiative on the elimination of nuclear, chemical and other types of mass destruction weapons up to the year 2000 is of truly epoch-making significance. Its realization is one of [the] components of creating the foundation of the all-embracing system of interntional security advanced by the 27th CPSU Congress. The address of the Budapest meeting of the Warsaw Treaty Consultative Committee to the NATO countries and all European countries adds in the most constructive manner the below-mentioned historical programme with proposals in the field of conventional armaments and troops in the most important part of the world as Europe.

Peace initiatives and actions of the Soviet Union and other socialist community countries set forth from the very beginning of the International Year of Peace enjoy wider support of the forces of reason and realism and attach great impetus to the struggle of nations for preventing the threat of nuclear war, for defending the right of peoples to life and creation.

However, the situation in the world is becoming more complicated and tense. The most reactionary forces of international imperialism, specially the U.S. ruling circles, are seeking for the power policy, military superiority and doing everything possible in order to torpedo the Geneva spirit and blockade the way towards detente. Washington unilateral moratorium on nuclear explosions with a series of nuclear tests. [sentence as received]

The U.S. Congress has recently allocated another millions [as received] to finance counterrevolutionaries in their aggressive actions against the Republic of Nicaragua. It is a dangerous step enhancing the policy of state [words indistinct] towards other Latin American countries, which are waging struggle for national independence, social development and for peace.

The situation is being aggravated also on our continent.

As the 19th MPRP Congress emphasized, the most important direction of the foreign political activity of our state would be the comprehensive promotion to strengthening the security on the Asian Continent and around it, developing mutual understanding and cooperation among the countries of the region. The Mongolian People's Republic works for freeing the Asia-Pacific region from the hotbeds of tensions and conflicts and ruling out the use of force in international relations.

We reaffirm that the MPR welcomes all constructive steps in this direction and is ready to actively cooperate with all who are working for the benefit of this noble goal. Proceeding from this, our government fully supports the proposal of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea on freeing the Korean Peninsula from occupation troops and nuclear weapons and on turning it into a nuclear-free and peaceful zone.

We fully share the idea of declaring Southeast Asia a nuclear-free zone as well as the entire Asia-Pacific region. Our government regards the strict observance of three nuclear-free initiatives -- i.e., not to manufacture, not to obtain and bar nuclear weapons on their territories by -- non-nuclear powers of the region as an urgent step for non-proliferation of nuclear armaments in different parts of the region and reducing the danger of nuclear conflicts. The MPR has been supporting and will support all positive proposals aimed at organizing bilateral or multi-lateral meetings and talks on the problem of strengthening peace and security in Asia and in different parts of the Asia-Pacific region.

Our country invariably supports the national liberation and revolutionary movements of the peoples of Asia, Africa and Latin America and their struggle against imperialism, neocolonialism, apartheid and racism. This jubilee day, we convey our fraternal greetings and wish fresh successes to the peoples of the Democratic Republic of Afghanistan, the People's Republic of Kampuchea and the Republic of Afghanistan, the People's Republic of Kampuchea and the Republic of Nicaragua, which are stengthening revolutionary gains in the struggle against the encroachments of imperialism and other reactionary forces. We voice once again our solidarity with the peoples of Namibia, Palestine, South Africa, Chile and El Salvador fighting courageously for freedom, independence, social justice and human rights.

Our government is for the consolidation of the principle of peaceful coexistence as an effective alternative to nuclear catastrophe and the reckless power policy", the speaker noted.

GREAT HURAL PRESIDIUM HOLDS EXPANDED SESSION

OW100811 Ulaanbaatar MONTSAME in Russian 1431 GMT 9 Jul 86

[Text] Ulaanbaatar, 9 Jul (MONTSAME) -- An expanded session of the MPR People's Great Hural Presidium took place here. Jambyn Batmonh, general secretary of the MPRP Central Committee and chairman of the MPR People's Great Hural Presidium, chaired the session.

The tasks of state organs in implementing the MPRP 19th Congress decisions were discussed at the session. N. Jagbaral, candidate member of the MPRP Central Committee Politburo and deputy chairman of the MPR People's Great Hural Presidium, who presented the relevant report, emphasized efforts to deepen socialist democracy, to strengthen the people's state which should successfully perform its role in building a new society, and to improve economic and organizational activities of state organs.

The MPR People's Great Hural will make efforts to realize the foreign policy goals advanced by the 19th party congress, and actively promote the implementation of the peaceful proposals and initiatives of the Soviet Union directed toward freeing mankind from the threat of war.

ALTANGEREL REPORTS TO ULAANBAATAR PARTY PLENUM

OW110243 Ulaanbaatar MONTSAME in English 1706 GMT 10 Jul 86

[Text] Ulaanbaatar, July 10 (MONTSAME) -- The 2nd plenary meeting of the Ulaanbaatar City Party Committee held here on 9 July discussed the report "Tasks of the Capital's Party Organizations in Realizing of the 19th MPRP Congress Decisions" delivered by B. Altangerel, Politburo member of the MPRP CC, first secretary of the Ulaanbaatar City Party Committee.

He pointed out that the communists and the entire workers of the capital have successfully fulfilled plan tasks of the first 6 months of 1986 and 60 million tugriks worth of over and above plan output has been turned out. Pressing task of the party organizations is to secure high labour showings achieved in anticipation of the 19th Party Congress and to make them as a norm of an ordinary work day.

It is necessary to reveal and immediately overcome shortcomings in order to ensure the intensification of the national economy, widely implement economic methods into the production management, increase its quality and efficiency, resolutely do away with obsolete work methods and fully use work collectives' initiatives and their real possibilities, the speaker underscored.

In this respect, Ulaanbaatar party organizations should do a great deal of work. It is necessary to really ensure the unity of each party organization's organizational ideological and educational work, actively develop criticism and self-criticism aiming at removing the drawbacks, start working on a new method and style, enhance the party control and improve the cadres responsibility, B. Altangerel pointed out.

The session has adopted a resolution on questions discussed.

CONTINUATION OF POLITICAL REPORT TO BCP CONGRESS

BK060902 (Clandestine) Voice of the People of Burma in Burmese 1200 GMT 12 Jul 86]

["Continuation of the Political Report of the Burma Communist Party Central Committee presented to the Third National Party Congress"]

[Text] Some of the communists and comrades killed under the intraparty revolutionary line may have committed ideological and political errors of varying degrees of severity. Nevertheless, these comrades as well as all others killed under that line died wrongly. Therefore, we believe that they should be posthumously reinstated to the party ranks they originally held.

Moreover, although some central leaders headed by Chairman Thakin Than Tun, Vice Chairman Thakin Zin, and Secretary Thakin Chit committed grave and far-reaching errors by laying down the erroneous intraparty revolutionary line, we should recognize them as communists and comrades.

Our party committed such great errors because of our incomplete understanding of Burma's historical conditions, the nature of its society, the unique features of Burma's revolution, and the revolutionary forces of Burma as well as insufficient understanding of the fundamental principles of Marxism Leninism and defects in the integration of Marxism-Leninism with the concrete conditions of Burma's revolution.

Throughtout its history, our party has shown courage in dealing with and correcting left and right errors whenever they emerged. Meticulously looking for and analyzing our own mistakes not only ensures that similar mistakes are avoided in the future but also helps educate, in a particular sense, our party members, our cadres, our class, and the masses. It is also the best guarantee for party tasks to be carried out successfully. It is necessary for us to firmly grasp and practice Comrade Lenin's teaching regarding this problem.

He said: The most important and definitive yardstick to gauge a political party regarding the (?extent of its enthusiasm) and the extent to which it can fulfill its duties towards its own class and the working masses is how that political party regards its own mistakes. The characteristics of a lofty and noble party are to openly criticize a mistake, explore the reasons behind the mistake committed, analyze the situation and the facts, and discuss ways to correct such mistakes. That is the way to carry out one's responsibilities as well as to train and educate one's class and the masses. From Lenin's work, "Left Infantilism Within the Communist Movement.

SITTHI COMMENTS ON TRUONG CHINH ELECTION

BK150909 Bangkok Domestic Service in Thai 0530 GMT 15 Jul 86

[Text] Air Chief MArshal Sitthi Sawetsila, deputy prime minister and foreign minister, told reporters at Government House this morning [15 July] that Truong Chinh's personality must be considered in connection with his nomination as new general secretary of the Communist Party of Vietnam. He noted that nobody expected him to be appointed to this position and his performance must be followed further.

Asked if there would be any change in the political situation in this region following Truong Chinh's appointement, the foreign minister said the new general secretary of the Communist Party of Vietnam will have to consider the effect of the war in Cambodia on Vietnam's economy. But things also depend on the outcome of the congress of the Communist Party of Vietnam to be held in the future.

Asked about the killing of a Thai fisherman in Malaysia, he said that the Foreign Ministry has not yet received a detailed report on the incident as the other five crewmen have been arrested by Malaysian authorities. However, the Thai Foreign Ministry has informed Malaysia that the action taken by the Malaysian authorities was too violent since Thailand and Malaysia are close neighbors. The Thai side regrets that the incident took place and asks Malaysia not to resort to violence in dealing with Thai fishermen who violate its territorial waters. They should be treated according to the law since violence can offend the Thai people.

PRASONG FORESEES NO CHANGES

[Excerpts] Secretary General of the National Security Council Prasong Sunsiri said yesterday he foresees no change in Vietnam's policy following the appointment of its new party chief Truong Chinh whom he described as a "transitional leader."

He said there is now an intense power struggle within the Vietnamese leadership, particularly between the young generation of leaders and the old guard. [passage omitted]

Speaking to reporters at the Government House, Prasong said since Truong Chinh is also chairman of the State Council and seems to be unhealthy, he was presumably appointed as acting secretary general of the Vietnamese Communist Party to succeed Le Duan.

Truong Chinh, 79, is known as an old guard and a hardliner who is known to have been in conflict with his predecessor over economic programmes, he said.

Prasong said the new line-up in the leadership of the Vietnam's Communist Party will become clear after its Sixth Congress scheduled for November this year. [passage omitted]

Prasong said that he foresees no shifts in the Vietnamese policy despict the on-going power rivalry in the Hanoi leadership.

He compared Truong Chinh to Konstantin Chernenko, who was appointed to succeed Yuriy Andropov as a transitional leader of the Soviet Union to pave the way for the rise to power by Mikhail Gorbachev.

Prasong said one of the candidates to take over the post of party chief is Le Duc Tho, the 79-year-old member of the Politburo. Le Duc Tho, despite his advanced age, has been one of the most prominent figures in Vietnam since the time of Ho Chi Minh.

Another candidate is Vo Chi Cong, 71, who was very close to Le Duan. He is known to advocate aggressive foreign policy and has worked to help the communists in Laos and Kampuchea.

INDUSTRY MINISTER MEETS CONGRESSIONAL DELEGATION

BK151205 Bangkok NAEO NA in Thai 15 Jul 86 pp 7, 8

[Text] According to a Commerce Ministry report, late last week a U.S. Congressional Appropriations Committee delegation led by William Gray held an urgent meeting with a Thai private-government delegation led by Industry Minister Chirayu Itsarangkun Na Ayutthaya at the Commerce Ministry. The meeting centered on the U.S. Farm Act and Thai textile exports to the United States.

A source has disclosed that the U.S. delegation openly rejected any assistance to or hope for the Thai side on the farm act and Thai textile exports despite Chirayu's appeal for sympathy about the impact of the farm act on Thailand, particularly about the price cutting by both sides which has only benefited the buyers.

Gray said the U.S. economy is now in a dangerous stage. The United States has been importing but has been unable to export satisfactorily, resulting in a big trade deficit problem. He said Thailand is currently enjoying a trade surplus with his country. In this economic situation, the United States must try to help itself more in order to tackle its domestic problems such as the trade deficit and unemployment. At the same time, trading partners of the United States such as Thailand, will have to help themselves more; the United States has already given assistance to Thailand to the point where Thailand could develop itself and survive.

Gray said Thai-U.S. friendship will continue, but Thailand must sympathize with the current near-bankrupt situation confronting his country which has forced it to take steps to ensure its survival.

On the textile issue, Gray emphasized that Thailand should prepare to seek new markets for the next 5-10 years because the U.S. market potential will never be the same as they were.

The source cited Gray as saying that he is a Democrat and thus must monitor the Republican administration. The source said: "in short, the meeting had no fruitful result. The United States continued to maintain its previous positions despite Thai appeals for sympathy."

The U.S. delegation previously was scheduled to meet with the Thai team on 14 July but advanced the scheduled meeting to 12 July due to travel problems caused by Typhoon Peggy, forcing the Thai Government to rush the private sector representatives to the meeting.

CHAWALIT OUTLINES ARMY RESTRUCTURING PLAN

[Text] Army Commander-in-Chief Gen Chawalit Yongchaiyut said yesterday he intended to streamline the Army to make it a "compact but efficient' force ever ready to defend the country.

Outlining his restructural plan on the occasion of the founding of the ranger force, Gen Chawalit said the concept of a small but efficient combat force would be incorporated in the changes.

Citing the ranger force, he said it was economical and small but a highly effective fighting unit capable of operating around the clock in all terrain.

The Army needed to be scaled down if it was to maintain full-time combat readiness, he said.

Gen Chawalit said that although the Army has been successful in crushing insurgents, the Communist Party of Thailand remains and the hardliners have not abandoned their armed struggle.

Gen Chawalit said forces have been put on alert to ensure smooth and peaceful elections in areas along the Kampuchean and Laotian border on July 27.

On Monday, the Army chief issued a four-point guideline to be strictly followed by all units of the Army. The guidelines, intended to restore professionalism and to promote unity, are as follows:

-- To uphold, hold in high esteem and be loyal to Their Majesties the Kong and Queen and all members of the Royal Family;
-- To guard against the honour and prestige of the units and of the Army which have been preserved by their predecessors;
-- To be loyal and honest and obey the orders of superiors in accordance with the line of command; to cooperate with colleagues and look after the livelihood of subordinates;
-- To promote unity and to refrain from committing actions in an ignorant manner which are likely to create disunity.

As part of his reorganisation plan, Gen Chawalit has launched efforts to dismantle the Norasing Task Force, which was created in 1981 immediately after the April 1-3 abortive coup.

SOURCES CITED ON UPCOMING MILITARY RESHUFFLE

[By Phongsak Sisot]

[Text] The plan to announce the annual military reshuffle next week may be postponed because the move might portray Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanon as a "power-seeker," authoritative sources told THE NATION yesterday.

The sources said that the move would be untimely given the assessment that the premier's popularity had eroded significantly in the wake of the rioting in Phuket over the multi-million-baht tantalum project last month.

The date for the announcement of the reshuffle which had been put forward to the premier in his capacity as defence minister has not been fixed but it is highly probable that it would be released very close to the election day, July 27, according to the sources.

The sources said there is justification in announcing the military shake-up next week because Supreme Commander Gen Athit Kamlang-ek is due to retire at the end of August. Normally, the annual reshuffle is announced in September because senior military officers retire in October, the sources argued.

Army Commander-in-Chief Gen Chawalit Yongchaiyut yesterday tersely answered "no" when asked about the forthcoming announcement on the annual shake-up.

He only nodded when asked whether the reshuffle would be announced like in the previous years.

Meanwhile, Gen Athit told reporters that so far no changes have been introduced in the structure of the Supreme Command.

He was referring to a report that the Supreme Command had proposed the termination of the posts of the supreme commander and deputy commander.

Armed Forces Chief-of-Staff Gen Bancho Bunnak last month tabled the proposal to the Defence Ministry, but the ministry returned the proposal, asking the command to reconsider the move.

ATHIT'S SECURITY GROUP TO BE REORGANIZED

[Text] The Capital Security Command, the brainchild of Supreme Commander Gen Athit Kamlang-ek, will be reorganised and geared toward development and public service work, acting Army Chief-of-Staff Lt-Gen Wanchai Ruangtrakun said yesterday.

Lt-Gen Wanchaia, however, denied that the CSC would be disbanded after Gen Athit retires on August 31.

But military observers say that stripping the command of security duties would put the CSC in limbo.

Lt-Gen Wanchai said the reorganisation plan will be carried out in the near future to improve the command.

The CSC was set up in 1981 following the April 1 coup attempt to quickly deal with any outbrakes of violence or terrorism, he said.

Lt-Gen Wanchai said the security situation has greatly improved in recent years and the threat of sudden violence has subsided.

Lt-Gen Wanchai said the CSC's duties would shift from responsibility for security to carrying out development and public service work as requested by the government. He said the duties of fighting international terrorism would fall on a special unit trained for the task.

After its establishment, the CSC was directly in charge of elite units in the three armed services and police force. Units under its command included all units under the First Army Region, the Air Force Security Force, the Bangkok naval station and the Metropolitan police special task force.

Complaints have been voiced in military circles that the CSC's work overlaps the duties of several existing units as well as bolstering the power of the army commander-in-chief.

PRASONG ORDERS PROBE ON FOREIGN MONEY CLAIMS

BK160115 Bangkok BANGKOK POST in English 16 Jul 86 p 3

[Text] National Security Council Chief Prasong Sunsiri said yesterday he has ordered an investigation into claims of foreign money-dumping in Trang Province.

Sqn-Lrd Prasong denied reports he had met a Progressive Party candidate over the claims, which were made by Democrat candidate Chuan Likphai.

Phithak Rangsitham, a Progressive candidate who is considered a favourite in the election, has said the allegations are groundless and are intended to ruin his chances at the polls.

Describing the matter as political conflict Sqn-Ld Prasong said he did not need to report his findings to parties or candidates.

If there was evidence to substantiate Mr Chuan's claims, those implicated would be prosecuted.

SITTHI ON SOCIAL ACTION PARTY PLATFORM

BK110115 Bangkok THE NATION in English 11 Jul 86 p 2

[Excerpts] Sitthi Sawetsila, the leader of the Social Action Party (SAP), took his election campaign into the banking community yesterday, hoping to win their support in the July 27 poll.

The 67-year-old politician, an MP hopeful in Bangkok's Constituency Two, spent nearly three hours yesterday morning visiting the head offices of four major banks -- Thai Farmers, Thai Military, Siam Commercial and Siam City.

A strong favourite in the Chinese-dominated constituency, Sitthi is known to be banking on support from businessmen, bankers as well as local Chinese community leaders. Sitthi, who is also deputy premier, told THE NATION that he visited the bank head offices in order to seek support for SAP candidates throughout the country. [passage omitted]

Sitthi last night reiterated his party's policy to continue with the "tambon fund" project as a means of distributing wealth to the rural areas.

Speaking on television on the SAP's platform, Sitthi also said his party favours a reduction in the business tax and a removal of double taxation.

He said the "tambon fund" project, initiated by the Khjukrit Government in 1975, will be an approach to the unemployment problem and to promote democracy.

On the role of the armed forces, Sitthi said they dod not present any obstacle to the progress of democracy in Thailand. "On the contrary, they have the role to play in upholding democracy," he said.

Sitthi, who is also foreign minister, said he will have Thai envoys overseas assume the role of salesman in finding markets for Thai exports.

Turning to the current election campaigns, Sitthi said dirty tricks, such as vote-buying and illegal transfers of houshold registration cards of voters, are being widely practised.

"I urge voters to vote for good candidates. The Social Action Party may have become smaller in size but it is full of quality people," he said.

SITTHI SAYS COMMUNISTS INVOLVED IN CAMPAIGN

BK140901 Bangkok BANGKOK WORLD in English 14 Jul 86 p 1

[Text] Members of the Communist Party of Thailand are helping a particular party and canvassing votes for certain candidates in Nakhon Si Thammarat Province, the interior minister and commander of the Fourth Army Region disclosed this morning.

"The authorities know of the connection and had instructed the police to watch out," Interior Minister Sitthi Chirarot said in an interview.

While Gen Sitthi did not specify what kind of action will be taken, the Fourth Army Region Commander Lt-Gen Wanchai Ruangtrakun (surname as published) in a separate interview, said he regarded the communist involvement with optimism, referrring to the Prime Minister's order 66/23.

"It can be more good than bad because the Government has that policy of calling on the communists to stop an armed struggle and fight their way through the democratic system," Lt-Gen Wanchai said.

The Commander said the only problem remaining in a case like this was that some communists (especially those involved in the political campaign) have yet to surrender to the Government.

The reactions of the two top officials were in response to Nakhon Si Thammarat police superintendent Pol Col Sanphet Thamathikun's report that several candidates sought support from communist insurgents.

Col Sanphet told Gen Sitthi during his trip to the South last week that there are two communist insurgents canvassing votes for the candidates.

He identified the two insurgents as Comrade Samat and Comrade Mai who are working in the area encompassing Thungyai and Thung Song districts.

Lt-Gen Wanchai noted that the insurgents who have become involved in legitimate politics had evidently lost a strong communist ideology.

"I regard them now only as ordinary criminals and expected that they would soon surrender," Lt-Gen Wanchai added.

Mr Samphan Thongsamak, a leading Democrat Party candidate, yesterday accused his rivals from a major poltical party in Nakhon Si Thammarat of receiving support from members of the CPT.

Democrat Candidate's Charge

[Text] Nakhon Si Thammarat -- A leading Democrat Party candidate yesterday accused his rivals from a major political party of receiving support from members of the Communist Party of Thailand (CPT) to campaign for votes here.

Without naming the party and its candidates, Mr Samphan Thongsamak said he had informed the provincial governor and police chief and warned the candidates he would ask the Fourth Army Region to take action if the CPT support continued.

Mr Samphan is leading the Democrat Party's nine-man candidate team in this province. He said the two CPT members campaigning for votes for his rivals were known by their jungle names as comrades Chamnan and Kaeo.

He said the two had about 40 armed guerrillas under their command and have been seeking votes for his rivals from villagers of the remote Tambon Chalong of Si Chon District and Tambon Noppitham of Tha Sala District.

He claimed the CPT members were in close contact with the rival candidates from a major political party.

CAP LEADER HAS NO OBJECTION TO PREM PREMIERSHIP

BK151107 Bangkok BANGKOK WORLD in English 15 Jul 86 p 3

[Text] Community Action Party [CAP] leader Bunchu Rotchanasathian said he had no objection if Gen Prem Tinsulanon is reappointed prime minister following the general election.

Speaking at a campaign rally at the sports stadium in Muang District of Phet Buri Province yesterday, Bunchu said it is not necessary for the prime minister to come directly from the election.

What is more important is whether or not the prime minister is able to implement the policies of the parties in the government, he noted.

On the question of Gen Prem for premiership, Bunchu said: "I have no objection because I used to work with him in the Prem 1 Government. We can make up for his shortcomings. For example, on the economic issue which is now under criticism, we want our party's economic policy to be implemented and I believe it would be effectively worked out."

Describing Gen Prem as a good and honest person, Bunchu said the past problems stemmed from the fact that Gen Prem's team work lacked efficiency and that the Prime Minister could not do everything all by himself.

CAP's campaign for its Phet buri candidates Phoemphon Phalabut, Mrs Sakhon Chuahom and Pom Kimwangtako yesterday was held under tight security provided by over 80 police, military and defence volunteer personnel.

MUSLIM TERRORISTS REPORTEDLY THREATEN CANDIDATE

BK160220 Bangkok THE NATION in English 12 Jul 86 p 2

[Text] Hat Yai -- Interior Minister Gen Sitthi Chirarot yesterday heard official reports that a candidate in the July 27 election had been harassed by alleged Muslim terrorists while another had recruited communist defectors to help in his electioneering.

Sitthi yesterday chaired a meeting of governors and senior officials of 14 southern provinces here to listen to reports on their preparations for the election.

Pol Col Piya Iamchaiseri, chief of Narathiwat police, told Sitthi that one of the candidates, Watchara Singkhawibun, has had police protection since he received a letter from a group of Muslim terrorists demanding him to pay 800,000 baht. Watchara is a former governor of the southern province.

Pol Col Piya, however, said that Muslim terrorists in the province have been keeping a very low profile and they are not expected to engage in any activities that may disrupt the election.

Meanwhile, Pol Col Sanphet Thammathikun, chief of the police in Nakhon Si Thammarat, said that police had driven all suspected gunmen out of the province.

He said a certain candidate had recruited communist defectors to canvass for votes but they had not created any trouble.

ATHIT TOPS BANGKOK ARMY DISTRICT VOTERS POLL

[Excerpt] Supreme Commander General Athit Kamlang-ek tops the list of being the most favourite person to become the prime minister and defence minister after the election, according to a Democratic Party opinion poll.

The poll also showed Prachakorn Thai leader Samak Sunthorawet finishing first in the Dusit District.

A total of 370 questionnaires were answered out of 460 copies sent to military personnel of eight units at the Army Ordnance and Signal departments together with their dependents.

Colonel Ronnachai Sisuworanan, Democrat's campaign director in the Dusit District, said yesterday 90 respondents voted for Gen Athit to become the prime minister, followed by Premier Prem Tinsulanon, who received 35 votes; Mr Samak, 24; ACM (Air Chief Marshal) Sitthi Sawetsila of the Social Action Party, 22; Democrat leader Phichai Rattakun, 16; Army Commander-in-Chief General Chawalit Yongchaiyut, 12; General Thianchai Sirisamphan of Ratsadon, 10; Parliament president Dr Ukrit Mongkhonnawin, 9; and Mr. Khukrit Pramot and Bangkok Governor Chamlong Simuang, 5 each.

On the question as to who should be the defence minister, Gen Athit again topped the list with 109 votes followed by General Han Linanon, 54; Gen Thianchai, 43; and Gen Prem, 16.

The most popular candidate among the military and their dependents is Mr Samak, topping the list with 178 votes followed by SAP's General Withun Yasawet and Democrat's Colonel Chanbun Phentrakun with 93 each. [passage omitted]

POLLS SAY BANGKOKIANS PREFER MP FOR PREMIER

[Text] Three academic surveys showed that the majority of Bangkok's electorate favour the next prime minister to be an elected MP and tend to choose the candidates of the party rather than individual basis.

One of the surveys by two political scientists of Thammasat University found that 68.9 percent of their respondents said the next premier should be a member of parliament while 29.7 percent said it is unnecessary to be so.

Thangchai Wongchaisuwan and Somchai Sisutthiyakon reported that when asked who should the next premier be, 41.5 percent of the interviewees did not provide any particular name but specified some of the qualifications they want him to possess, such as honesty, faithfulness, philanthropy and diligence.

However, Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanon was named by 16.8 percent of the people, followed by Supreme Commander Gen Athit Kamlang-ek (14.6 percent) and leader of Democrat Party Phichai Rattakun (9.3 percent).

The study was based on interviews with 2,497 Bangkok voters by 100 Thammasat students on June 14-15. The sampling was designed to represent all the 12 electoral constituencies in Bangkok.

The survey also reported 80.7 percent of their respondents said they would go to the polls on July 27 while 12.3 percent said they were uncertain. Only a small group of seven percent definitely said they intended not to exercise their franchise. The last group reasoned that they would be occupied during the polling hours, they had never gone to the polls or did not know where the polling stations are.

Thongchai and Somchai's findings that many of the interviewees, 49.2 percent, would exercise their choices on party basis was partly supported by Dr Suphanni Chalothon of Ramkhamhaeng University.

Dr Suphanni reported in her survey that people in inner areas of Bangkok tend to vote on party basis while the outer parts favour individuals. She also found out that people in outer areas are more likely to go to the polls.

Dr Phonsak Phongphaeo of Chulalongkon University said in his survey that he expected candidates from no more than five parties will be elected for the Bangkok seats. His study based on the voting pattern of Bangkokians in the 1983 election and the 1985 Bangkok by-elections, found that people tend to choose candidates on party basis.

COMMUNIQUE ON RYZHKOV DELEGATION'S VISIT TO HANOI

[Text] Hanoi VNA July 15 -- Following is the full text of a communique issued here today on the activities of the Soviet party and government delegation:

The Soviet party and government delegation led by N.I. Ryzhkov, Politburo member of the C.P.S.U. Central Committee and chairman of the Council of Ministers, paid a visit to the Socialist Republic of Vietnam from July 13-15 to attend the funeral service for Comrade Le Duan, general secretary of the C.P.V. Central Committee. The delegation included A.F. Dobrynin, secretary of the C.P.S.U. C.C.; B.N. Chaplin, alternate member of the C.P.S.U. C.C., vice-foreign minister and M.N. Smirnovsky, deputy-head of the International Department of the C.P.S.U. C.C. The Soviet party and government delegation took part in the services in connection with Comrade Le Duan's funeral. The delegation laid a wreath at the Ho Chi Minh mausoleum.

The delegation held talks with Vietnamese party and state leaders: Trouong Chinh, general secretary of the party C.C. and president of the State Council; Pham Van Dong, Politburo member of the party C.C. and chairman of the Council of Ministers; Nguyen Van Linh, Politburo member and secretary of the party C.C.; Vo Chi Cong, Politburo member, vice-chairman of the Council of Ministers; Do Muoi, Politburo member, vice-chairman of the Council of Ministers; Tran Xuan Bach, secretary of the party C.C.; Vu Quang, member of the party C.C., head of its International Department; Nguyen Van Trong, deputy-head of the International Department of the party C.C.; and Hoang Bich Son, vice-foreign minister and Hoang Bich Son, vice-foreign minister.

The delegation conveyed the deep condolences and sympathy of the C.P.S.U. C.C., the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet, the Council of Ministers and the people of the Soviet Union to the CPV CC, the State Council and the Council of Ministers, and the entire people of vietnam, over the great loss -- the death of Comrade Le Duan, -- a glorious son of the Vietnamese people, a well-known activist of the Communist and workers' movement and the national liberation movement, and a great friend of the Soviet Union. The delegation made known that to express the deep respect of the Communists and the entire people of the Soviet Union to Comrade Le Duan, the C.P.S.U. C.C. and the government of the Soviet Union have decided on commemorative forms to be taken in the Soviet union in memory of Comrade Le Duan. On behalf of the Soviet party and government delegation, N.I. Ryzhkov congratulated Truong Chinh on his being elected general secretary by the C.P.V. C.C.

The Vietnamese state leaders expressed their profound gratitude to the Soviet leadership and to M.S. Gorbachev, general secretary of the CPSU CC, for having sent a high-level delegation to Vietnam to express their [words indistinct] to Comrade Le Duan.

During the talks, the two sides affirmed the strategic line of the CPSU and the C.P.V. aimed at continuing to strengthen and develop the unshakable friendship and all-sided cooperation between the Soviet Union and the S.R.V. on the basis of the Vietnam-USSR treaty of friendship and cooperation and consolidating by all means the unity of the socialist community on the unchangeable basis of Marxism-Leninism and socialist internationalism.

The Soviet delegation informed the Vietnamese leaders of the implementation of the resolution of the 27th CPSU Congress concerning the home and foreign policies.

The plenary session of the CPSU Central Committee in June 1986 directed the party and entire people of the Soviet Union to promote their creative efforts in fully and effectively utilizing the material and spiritual potentials of the socialist regime.

The vietnamese side informed the Soviet delegation of the preparations for the 6th CPV Congress, of the Vietnamese people's creative labour, and of the achievements in building the material and technical foundation of socialism, and in firmly defending the revolutionary gains. The Vietnamese side spoke of the socio-economic development in the Socialist Republic of Vietnam at present and of plans aimed at overcoming the difficulties ahead.

The leaders of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam declared their full support for the strong efforts of the Communist Party, the government and all working people of the Soviet Union aimed at rapidly accelerating the socio-economic development in the Soviet Union.

During the talks, the two sides exchanged views on the Soviet-Vietnamese cooperation and on their coordinated measures to implement the long-term program of economic, scientific and technical cooperation between the Soviet Union and Vietnam, and to raise the quality and effectiveness of that cooperation.

The Soviet delegation supported the efforts of the Communist Party of Vietnam, the Lao People's Revolutionary Party and the People's Revolutionary Party of Kampuchea to constantly strengthen their solidarity and one-mindedness and uphold the banner of national independence and socialism, and affirmed the Soviet Union's strong support for the peace initiatives of the SRV, the Lao People's Democratic Republic and the People's Republic of Kampuchea aimed at building Southeast Asia into a region of peace, stability and cooperation.

The Vietnamese leaders expressed their profound gratitude to the party, government and people of the Soviet Union for their support and sincere, precious and fruitful assistance to Vietnam in the national liberation struggle in the past, as well as in the cause of sociaist construction and national defence at present.

The two sides stressed that the world situation continues to be tense and that today there is no other task more important than to prevent the danger of a nuclear holocaust created by the aggressive policy of U.S.-led imperialism. The situation in the Asia-Pacific region is also causing concerns. The peoples in this region want to live in stability, good neighbourliness, peace and security.

In this complex situation, the Soviet Union and the Socialist Republic of vietnam, together with other fraternal countries, advocate the maintenance and promotion of political dialogues and continue seeking possibilities of reducing armaments, making the international situation healthy, and realizing constructive cooperation among nations. The persistent struggle of the countries in the socialist community to free our planet from the danger of a nuclear war and consolidate peace and security among nations conforms with the interests of humankind.

The Vietnamese leaders stressed that the presence of the Soviet party and government delegation at the funeral of General Secretary Le Duan is a fresh manifestation of the close fraternal solidarity between the two peoples. The two sides expressed their confidence that the friendship between the USSR and the SRV will continue to be constantly consolidated and developed in the interests of the two peoples and of peace and socialism.

The bilateral meetings and talks took place in an atmosphere of sincerity, comradeship, complete unity and mutual understanding.

GORBACHEV CONGRATULATES TRUONG CHINH ON ELECTION

OW151157 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 1100 GMT 15 Jul 86

["Text" of congratulatory message from CPSU Central Committee General Secretary Gorbachev to CPV Central Committee General Secretary Truong Chinh]

[Text] Respectfully to Comrade Truong Chinh, general secretary of the CPV Central Committee:

Dear Comrade Truong Chinh:

The CPSU Central Committee wishes to congratulate you, comrade, on your election as general secretary of the CPV Central Committee. In the Soviet Union, all people know well that you are one of the famous leaders of the Vietnamese people's revolutionary struggle, a disciple of Comrade Ho Chi Minh, a comrade-in-arms of Comrade Le Duan, and a fighter who has struggled [chieens six daaus tranh] for the unbreakable friendship between the Vietnamese and Soviet peoples. We are confident that the relations between our two parties and countries will continue to broaden and strengthen on the basis of the principles of Marxism-Leninism and socialist internationalism. We firmly believe that the Vietnamese working people, under the leadership of the glorious CPV, will score new achievements in socialist construction; in the defense of the fatherland; and in the struggle to consolidate the position of Vietnam, a firm link in the socialist community, which, along with fraternal Laos and Cambodia, continues to struggle for the peace and security of the Asian-Pacific region and the rest of the world.

Being comrades-in-arms and friends, we assure the Vietnamese communists that the CPSU, guided by the resolutions of the 27th CPSU Congress, will endeavor in their struggle to increasingly consolidate and develop the time-tested Soviet-Vietnamese friendship in the interests of the people of our two countries and to continue to consolidate the positions of socialist internationalism and solidarity among all progressive forces of the times.

We wish the Vietnamese Communists and all Vietnamese workers many achievements in honor of the Sixth CPV Congress.

Dear Comrade Truong Chinh, I wish you good health and great achievements in all activities in your high and highly responsible position, and realization of tasks facing the Vietnamese party and people.

I wish to convey to you my Communist salutations.

[Signed] Gorbachev, secretary of the CPSU Central Committee

EDITORIALS, CONDOLENCES MOURN LE DUAN'S DEATH

NHAN DAN Editorial

[NHAN DAN 16 July editorial: "A Manifestation of Strength"]

[Text] The passing away of Comrade Le Duan -- esteemed leader and comrade of the Vietnamese Communists and people -- is an extremely great loss for us. With boundless grief and profound gratitude, our party, state, and people organized very solemn memorial services for Comrade Le Duan with their revolutionary and cordial sentiment.

During the past several days of mourning, our entire party, people, and Army have expressed their common grief and sorrow. All party cadres and members have turned their thoughts toward the capital and all people and the Armed Forces have closed ranks behind the CPV. Millions of hearts beat with the same rhythm, sharing this common great loss. From the northern border provinces to the delta, coastal, and southern provinces, comrades, compatriots, and combatants have shown their warm sentiment for the outstanding revolutionary combatant who worked selflessly for almost 60 years and who left behind unforgettable memories.

We were extremely moved to see hundreds of thousands of people in the capital on the morning of 15 July who lined up solemnly and orderly on both sides of the 10-kilometer route from Ba Dinh Square to Mai Dich Cemetary. They lowered their heads before the coffin of their close comrade. This is a manifestation of our invincible political and spiritual strength in foiling all schemes of the hostile forces.

All revolutionary and progressive forces in the world are on our side. On behalf of the great USSR, Comrade Gorbachev, general secretary of the CPSU, paid homage to Comrade General Secretary Le Duan at the Vietnamese Embassy in Moscow. High-ranking party and government delegations from the Soviet Union, Laos, and Cambodia came to Hanoi to pay homage to Comrade Le Duan, share with our party and people this grief, and bring along fraternal sentiment and very valuable support for the Vietnamese people. Various fraternal countries and parties and friends all over the world have shared with the Vietnamese party and people this great loss.

International solidarity and support are always important factors for the victory of our revolution. We sincerely express our gratitude to all parties, governments, leaders of various countries and international organizations for their valuable sentiments.

To continue the tasks charted by Comrade Le Duan, the CPV Central Committee recently held a special meeting to elect Comrade Truong Chinh -- an outstanding pupil of great President Ho Chi Minh and a close and long-standing comrade-in-arms of Comrade Le Duan -- as general secretary of the CPV. This is a very important event, manifesting our party's firmness.

Comrade Le Duan has left us for good but his glorious cause lives forever with our nation. We pledge that we will live and struggle in accordance with Comrade Le Duan's example -- his example of absolute faithfulness to the national liberation cause, and the communist ideal, facing difficulties and ordeals, struggling staunchly, and consistently maintaining the offensive spirit.

Comrade General Secretary Truong Chinh has pointed out that now more than ever before our party Central Committee must turn grief and sorrow into strength, close ranks, scrupulously observe party discipline, strengthen unity on the basis of Marxism-Leninism, and implement policies of the Fourth and Fifth CPV Congresses and resolutions of the party Central Committee, as well as the principles on party organization and activities. This is a firm base for strengthening the unity of the entire party, people, and army to satisfactorily carry out important tasks. It is imperative for us to solve urgent socioeconomic problems, strengthen national defense and security, and triumphantly organize party congresses at various levels and the Sixth CPV Congress.

Responding to appeals by the party Central Committee, the National Assembly, the Council of State, the Council of Ministers, and the Presidium of the Vietnam Fatherland Front Central Committee, our entire party, people, and Armed Forces are closing their ranks behind the CPV Central Committee to stir up realistic seething revolutionary movement, accelerate production, practice thrift, stand for combat readiness, and fight effectively, thereby leading the cause of building and defending the socialist fatherland to surge forward and score new achievements.

Bulgaria, Albania, U.S. Tributes

[Text] Hanoi VNA July 15 -- A delegation of the Communist Party and state of Bulgaria, led by Todor Zhivkov, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Bulgarian Communist Party and president of the State Council, paid last homage to the late party General Secretary Le Duan at the Vietnamese Embassy in Sofia on July 14.

The Council of Ministers of the People's Socialist Republic of Albania has decided a one-day national mourning on July 15 in memory of Le Duan.

In New York, U.S.A., a delegation of the Communist Party U.S.A. led by General Secretary Gus Hall and chairman Henry Winston, and Virendra Dayal, chef de cabinet of the executive office of the secretary general, and Rafeeuddin Ahmed, U.N. deputy secretary general, on behalf of Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar, called at the Vietnamese permanent mission on July 14 morning to pay their last tribute to the late general secretary Le Duan.

Other Condolences

[Text] Hanoi VNA July 15 -- More messages of condolences have been sent from abroad to Vietnam over the death of party general Secretary Le Duan.

The message sent by the Central Committee of the Bulgarian Communist Party to the Central Committee of the Communist Party of Vietnam says: "Comrade Le Duan's life was closely associated with the Vietnamese people's struggle for national liberation, for the success of socialism in Vietnam.

Comrade Le Duan made great contributions to the working out and implementation of the Communist Party of Vietnam's line consistent with the Vietnamese people's desire to live in peace, happiness, liberty and independence.

This line also reflects the friendship with the Soviet Union and the other countries in the socialist community and the desire to develop mutual understanding and cooperation among nations in Asia and the Pacific and to turn Southeast Asia into a region of peace and to actively take part in the Non-aligned Movement".

The Central Committee of the Communist Party of Vietnam has received messages of condolences from the Secretariat of the French Communist Party Central Committee; the Central Committee of the Japanese Communist Party; Alessandro Matta, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of Italy; Alvaro Cunhal, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of Portugal; Dolores Ibarruri Gomez and Gerardo Iglesias, respectively president and general secretary of the Partido Communista Espana; the National Committee of the Communist Party of India (CPI); E.M.S. Jagan, secretary general of the People's Progressive Party of Guyana; the Brazilian Communist Party; Milanko Renovica, president of the Presidium of the Central Committee of the League of Communists of Yugoslavia (LCY); Masashi Ishibashi, chairman of the Japan Socialist Party (JSP).

State Council President Truong Chinh and chairman of the Council of Ministers Pham Van Dong have received condolences respectively from Indian President Giani Zail Singh and Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi.

REPORTAGE ON CRITICISM, SELF-CRITICISM DRIVE

HCM City Assesses Drive

BK131012 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 1430 GMT 11 Jul 86

[Text] The standing body of the Ho Chi Minh City party committee has held a get-together of party committee secretaries and people's committee chairmen of all precincts and districts and directors or party committee secretaries of various establishment, organs, and sectors and press agencies in the city to evaluate the results of press and radio reports on the self-criticism and criticism drive during the past 3 months, as well as to contribute their views to helping the city press continue developing its role during and after preparations for party congresses at various levels.

The participants commended the city press for the many new changes in its operational methods as well as for its successes in creating an atmosphere of democratic political activity since the start of the self-criticism and criticism drive in the city, thereby helping to increase the political awareness of the masses and inspire their confidence in the party's leadership. The city press has also helped encourage the leaders of all units to pay attention to satisfactorily guiding the self-criticism and criticism drive, and helped encourage various sectors and echelons to pay attention to promptly solving a number of socio-economic problems that have been brought up by the masses for a long time.

However, there have been some articles providing inaccurate details and documents. There are also cases in which certain matters have not been treated appropriately and carefully. A number of articles have even exposed secrets on economic affairs and so forth.

Representatives of all precincts and districts and of all services, organs, and sectors requested that the city press closely coordinate with all party committee echelons and mass organizations in conducting the self-criticism and criticism drive. Conducting criticism in the press must focus not only on pointing out shortcomings and evil things but also on promoting what is new and positive.

In Ho Chi Minh City, apart from those residence organs of the centrally-run press, there are as many as 14 press, radio, and television organs. Among them are the paper SAIGON GIAI PHONG an organ of the city party organization, published daily with a circulation of nearly 100,000; and the paper TUOI TRE [YOUTH] the voice of the city's Communist Youth Union, published four times per week. Radio and television stations also broadcast their programs daily.

Since early April 1986, the city party organization standing committee has taken charge of providing direct guidance to the city press and radio. It has developed its role and functions in making contributions to vigorously spurring self-criticism and criticism activities while asking party organizations, the administration, and mass organizations at all levels to explain or redress those mistakes committed by them and reported by the press.

Army Paper Editorial

BK101542 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 2330 GMT 9 Jul 86

[QUAN DOI NHAN DAN "recent issue" editorial: "Activitely Correct Shortcomings and Bring Self-Criticism and Criticism Onto the Right Track"]

[Text] The self-criticism and criticism drive in the army has been completed at virtually all party committee echelons subordinate to the party Central Committee's Military Commission and extended to all basic party organizations. According to an assessment by the standing body of the party Central Committee's Military Commission, although the results are not uniform -- some units have been lax and not thorough in reviewing and analyzing damages, finding the causes of shortcomings, attributing responsibility, and devising corrective measures -- the self-criticism and criticism drive has, generally speaking, produced good initial results in the various units thus helping to consolidate the principles of party activites; enhanced the militant, party, and principled characters of party organizations and party members; created unity and singlemindedness within party committee echelons; clarified the actual situation of the various units as well as the problems that need solutions; and made the organizations better understand party members and every party member better understand himself.

An important requirement facing the various party committee echelons, party organizations, and basic party units at present is to develop the realistic impact of this political drive by correcting shortcomings after conducting self-criticism and criticism. Conducting self-criticism and criticism without adopting measures to correct shortcomings afterward is merely a useless, formalistic act that is a waste of both time and effort. While conducting self-criticism and criticism, we have, to a certain degree, taken steps to correct shortcomings; and this is a realistic and correct action. Now, we must concentrate even more energy and efforts on carrying out this important task. Efforts to correct shortcomings must be focused on major targets. Each party committee echelon, party member, and cadre must stop committing erroneous acts and satisfactorily resolve their consequences. Shortcomings that must and can be redressed immediately should be corrected first; and specific plans, schedules, and measures should be drawn up to deal with those that need time for rectification. We should not correct only minor shortcomings for the purpose of soothing public opinion but should rather concentrate efforts on remedying major shortcomings that have been raised in the course of conducting self-criticism and criticism.

First, attention must be paid to shortcomings related to the quality and revolutionary conduct of each party organization as well as of each party member and cadre. Through realistic action, it is necessary to deal immediately with such ills as spiritual decline, lack of responsibility, laziness, unwillingness to study and undergo training, disrespect for the collective, arbitrariness, totalitarianism, lack of honesty as in the practice of filing favorable reports on sloppy work performance, factionalism resulting in disunity, abuse of prerogatives and privileges, infringement of the law, misappropriation and wasteful use of public property, exploitative practices infringing on soldiers' benefits, bureaucratism and arrogance, and alienation from reality and estrangement from the masses. These are the ills that can, by themselves, weaken and corrupt an entire party organization and even some highly meritorious and long tested party members who fail to satisfactorily continue their training. It can be said that people are afflicted by these ills chiefly due to subjective ccaues; and therefore, they must correct them chiefly through their own subjective efforts without being hampered by time requirements or objective conditions.

It is totally indefensible for a party committee echelon or a party member and cadre with position and power who is afflicted with such shortcomings to remain the same and indifferent after conducting self-criticism and hearing the opinions contributed by the collective.

Along with quaity and conduct, the issue of capability should be raised. Through self-criticism and criticism, party organizations and party members and cadres who find themselves weak in terms of leadership, command, and physical health must devise plans and measures to correct their weaknesses on the basis of the subjective and objective causes already discovered. Such plans and measures must not only be reflected in the form of determination and written reports, but must also be translated into realistic deeds and results. People who lack training must strive to improve their leadership and command capability both in theory and practice. Those who find their knowledge and capability too far below the requirements of their current positions should voluntarily accept lower positions more suitable to their capability. Those who find themselves no longer fit for service due to their work capability as well as their health should retire voluntarily.

In overcoming shortcomings after the criticism and self-criticism drive we must also review, evaluate, foster, and improve the quality of party cadres and members. Various party committee echelons must consolidate and perfect the organization of lower echelons Various party chapters must scrupulously review the behavior of each party member. When warranted, party committees must take punitive measures against those who violate discipline.

However, these measures must be taken in an appropriate, just, objective, and rational manner with the aid of increasingly purifying the party organization, cadres, and members. For those subjected to disciplinary action, to whatever degree, they must accept it with a high sense of responsibility, consciousness, and a positive manner. in so doing, they will show their courage for new improvement and progress.

We must satisfactorily overcome shortcomings at all levels of party cadres and members, especially the leading ones. The higher echelon and leading cadres must take exemplary action to realistically overcome shortcomings at their level, while reviewing and supervising the lower echelons, encouraging and commending those who positively strive to repent, and taking strict measures against those who, after the criticism and self-criticism drive, still display such negative phenomena as demagogy, flattering the people, and subtly persecuting their critics. We must resolutely eliminate all obstacles to overcoming shortcomings.

To develop the results of criticism and self-criticism, to effectively overcome shortcomings, and to lay the foundations for the long-term and firm development of each party organization, cadre, and member, we must consistently conduct the self-criticism and criticism drive. This drive must be included in the three activities of each party organization -- namely, the leadership, education, and self-criticism and criticism activities at various party organizations, especially at party chapters. All party members must participate in such activites, including top leading cadres. Those absent on offical duties must conduct self-criticism when they return to their units. In conducting criticism we must concentrate on the main problems such as revolutionary ethics and party members' behavior. Moreover, we must collect viewpoints on criticism from the lower levels against higher echelons and key cadres, and organize activities among party organizations, cadres, members, and the people -- especially the youths -- to collect comprehensive viewpoints on criticism. These activities must be organized with the aim of ensuring quality, promoting democracy, and avoiding phenomena opposing the new criticism drive. We must strive to create favorable conditions for all people to contribute their criticism on errors made by any person in an free manner an without worry.

The immediate tasks for each party committee echelon, party organization, cadre, and member, especially key cadres, are to overcome shortcomings after the self-criticism and criticism drive, create clearcut changes in the party organizations and units, and regularly conduct self-criticism and criticism in order to make this drive an effective task of the party on the ideological front and an important developmental law for our party and revolutionists.

CONDOLENCES ON ASSEMBLY LEADER DEATH SENT TO LAOS

[Text] Hanoi VNA July 15 -- Vietnamese leaders have sent condolences over the death of Faidang Lobaliayao, vice president of the People's Supreme Assembly (P.S.A.) of Laos and of the Central Committee of the Lao Front for National Construction (L.F.N.C.).

The message was jointly signed by Nguyen Huu Tho, chairman of the National Assembly, and Huynh Tan Phat, president of the Presidium of the Central Committee of the Fatherland Front, and addressed to Souphanouvong, president of both the P.S.A. and the L.F.N.C. Central Committee. It hails the deceased as an ardent patriot of all nationalities of Laos and a close friend of the Vietnamese people.

Faidang Lobaliayao made a great contribution to the cause of national unity and the glorious revolution of all Lao nationalities," the message notes.

[Text] So far, peasants throughout Vietnam have put 1[illegible] million hectares under the summer-autumn rice. The southern provinces put nearly 900,000 hectares under the summer-autumn rice and 370,000 hectares under autumn rice. The northern provinces transplanted the summer-autumn rice on 760,000 hectares, twice faster than in the same period last year. While stepping up rice transplanting, all localities are mobilizing all available means to fight drought and crop pest.

GOOD MAIZE CULTIVATION PROSPECTS IN NORTH VIEWED

[Text] Hanoi VNA July 11 -- Recent surveys conducted at two different places show big potentialities for large-scale intensive maize farming in northern Vietnam. At the Song Boi Maize Research Centre, southwest of Hanoi a new maize variety has been created which could give as many as 10 tons per hectare a year.

Thanks to maize cultivation, Phuc Tho has, over the past five years, increased its per capita food output by 1.5 times, the number of pigs from 25,000 to 30,000 head, the cow herd from 1,400 to 2,500 head. At Phuc Tho District, on the outskirts of Hanoi, the cooperative farmes have, through intensive farming, increased maize productivity from 1.15 tons in 1980 to 3.87 tons in 1985.

Nationwide, however, maize productivity remains low and the maize acreage occupied only a little more than 400,000 ha in 1985 with productivity slightly exceeding 1.5 tons per hectare.

The current five-year plan calls for an increase of the maize acreage and per hectare yield respectively by half a million hectares and two tons. To this end, the about 100,000 ha will be marked off for maize specialization with an estimated yield of more than 3.2 tons/ha. At the same time, measures have been taken to make better use of by products of maize for the production of export goods.

AUSTRALIA

ARGENTINA'S ALFONSIN ARRIVES FOR BRIEF VISIT

Discusses Falklands, Trade

PY122135 Buenos Aires NOTICIAS ARGENTINAS in Spanish 1310 GMT 12 Jul 86

[By Special NA Correspondent]

[Text] Canberra, 12 Jul (NA) -- President Raul Alfonsin today expressed his thanks for Australia's support for the 1985 UN resolution urging Great Britain and Argentina to resume talks on the Malvinas Islands. He also stressed his administration's willingness to "support the efforts aimed at achieving democratization of all "Latin American countries," referring to Chile and Paraguay.

At Canberra's Lake Side Hotel, during a press conference attended by some 50 Australian newsmen, Alfonsin confirmed his rejection of the protectionist policies of the developed countries. Asked about the subsidy given by the United States and the EEC to their farming and cattle-raising exports, Alfonsin said countries like Argentina and Australia "should, if possible, look for joint solutions in order to become stronger, and particularly to show through our actions that we are not willing to give up a trade policy which has allowed us to supply our markets for many years."

He admitted that the agreements he may sign during his trip will not have "a fundamental and direct influence on the basic economic problems of Argentina, although I am convinced that our trade relations with Australia, which are excellent, may be improved." When reporters asked his opinion of the economic situation of Australia, Alfonsin said: "We hope to be the next Australia," referring to the development enjoyed by that nation.

When asked about the measures the Argentine Government is adopting in order to encourage the return of exiles, Alfonsin answered that this "is a problem that is not just political or economic," and added: "We are trying to make it possible for everyone to engage in the activity he has chosen abroad." In response to another question, Alfonsin said that the award he got from the European Council for his human rights policy "is a big honor for which we are grateful."

He said he hopes that the Aerolineas Argentinas labor conflict "ends as soon as possible," he added that "it might be possible" for this airline to establish a direct route to Sidney.

Asked about the possible influence of Argentine democracy on the establishment of similar systems in Chile and Paraguay, he said that "Argentina does not intend to set an example or be any one's vanguard, but it is willing to join the effort for everyone's democratization." "Democracy is a general goal in Latin America and it will not be consolidated in any single country," he added.

Alfonsin qualified the current Argentine economic situation as "one of the most difficult we have ever experienced," and added that the Argentine people's effort has set "a real example." He said that such "efforts cause labor union and economic conflicts, but we cannot just provide sectorial solutions, we must provide national solutions and all the people must support this policy."

Regarding the bilateral exchange with Australia, he said that "for years the balance favored Australia" but it has recently become favorable to Argentina, and he then insisted on the need to "increase our trade."

Regarding the Malvinas issue, Alfonsin recalled that Australia had supported Argentina in the United Nations and said: "We are not seeking support but rather the special understanding of the whole world" of the need of Argentina and Great Britain to establish a dialogue to solve the conflict. Alfonsin concluded by saying: "I have no doubt that Argentina will recover its islands through peaceful means."

Signs Communique

PY122215 Buenos Aires DYN in Spanish 1549 GMT 12 Jul 86

[Text] Canberra, 12 Jul (DYN) -- According to the joint communique signed today here, Argentina and Australia, a member of the Commonwealth, agreed that the issue of the Malvinas Islands "should be resolved peacefully through negotiations." The joint declaration signed by President Raul Alfonsin and Prime Minister Robert Hawke established similar positions regarding the Central American and South African problems and on discrimination and protectionism in the trading of agricultural products. Following is the text of the joint declaration:

"1. The first visit by a president of a Latin American country to Australia has given us the opportunity to hold useful and friendly talks. Although the two countries are geographically distant, they are democratic and share important interests on major international issues. Therefore, we recognize the potential of strengthening bilateral cooepration.

"2. We share profound concern over recent events in international agricultural trade. Our two countries are efficient agricultural producers and exporters, but as a result of the policy of subsidies implemented by the major industrial powers, our agricultural export markets continue to suffer distortions which are worsened by an acute and prolonged fall of prices.

"3. There is an urgent need to liberate international trade, abolish subsidies of agricultural exports, and make reforms internal agricultural policies especially in the policies of the major industrial powers that stimulate overproduction through subsidies and barriers, which block access to their markets.

"4. We fully agree on the urgency and importance of holding the new round of multilateral commercial negotiations, in which agricultural trade must be established as a priority issue. We also recognize that the countries which depend in part on agricultural exports cannot wait for the results of the negotiations. Therefore, it is necessary to develop specific strategies to agree, according to our capabilities, on the measures necessary to change the current situation of agricultural trade. The ministers and officials of the two countries will continue to coordinate our positions on this issue. As part of this process Argentina will participate in the ministerial meeting of agricultural countries, to be held in Cape Cairns (Australia) next month)

"5. An open international trade system affording the opportunity for fair and reasonable prices for our exports is essential to really overcome the international financial problems and to foster internal economic growth. This is very important in order to strengthen the desirable tendency toward democracy that is taking place in Latin America, of which Argentina is the primary example.

"6. We agree that a solution must be found to the problems of the foreign debt of the developing countries especially the Latin American countries. This will also help to strengthen the democratic systems through economic growth, and in this regard Australia observes with special interest the efforts made by the Cartagena Consensus.

"7. We also held long discussions on international politics. We believe that the solution to the Central American problems must be based on diplomatic negotiations and democratization. We thoroughly support the Contadora Group process, including the work of the Contadora Support Group process, of which Argentina is a member. Argentina gives great importance to the issue of the Malvinas Islands (Falklands). We share the point of view that this issue must be resolved peacefully through negotiations.

"Regarding the tragic events in South Africa, we agree that it is essential to obtain broader and more effective measures from the international community, including the South African's major economic partners, in order for the South African Government to understand the urgent need for a basic change.

"We also confirm the high priority we give to the issue of disarmament. Our countries have been very active on this issue as shown by the Argentine participation in the Initiative of the Six Countries, and the Australian initiative for a nuclear-free zone in the South Pacific. "We emphasize and support the growing regional cooperation both in the Asian-Pacific as well as the Latin American areas. We agreed to continue close cooperation on the issues of the Antarctic.

"8. We have studied the potential for closer cooperation between the two countries and the southern region, and in this regard we agreed that officials of the two countries will meet soon to explore ways to achieve that objective. We discussed Argentina's participation in the celebration of the 200th anniversary of Australia, Australia's desire to contribute with its experience to the project of moving the Argentine capital.

"9. We recognized that there are bases to strengthen commercial cooperation between our two countries, involving bilateral trade as well as the international matters concerning us. Our meetings have established solid bases for a more profound relationship than the one existing so far between Australia and Argentina.

ARGENTINA'S ALFONSIN ARRIVES FOR 19-HOUR VISIT

PY112216 Buenos Aires TELAM in Spanish 1145 GMT 11 Jul 86

[By special TELAM correspondent]

[Text] Auckland, 11 Jul (TELAM) -- Argentine President Raul Alfonsin today said that Argentines and New Zealanders are currently struggling for the same solutions because they have the same problems and because they are both affected by international trade distortions, to the detriment of their products. Alfonsin made this statement in reply to a question by the local press during his 19-hour visit to this country as part of the 13-day trip he started yesterday to six countries, including Australia, Japan, the Philippines, Saudi Arabia, and Portugal.

The Argentine chief of state attended a dinner tonight (local time) offered in his honor by New Zealand Prime Minister David Lange. During a toast Alfonsin called for a better bilateral agreement and pointed out the similarities between the two countries. Alfonsin said that he has followed closely New Zealand's position in support of world peace, international nuclear disarmament, and its refusal to buy, use, or allow the presence of nuclear weapons. New Zealand's active sponsoring of a Pacific Ocean free of any nuclear action -- Alfonsin said -- cannot but be deeply understood and approved by Argentina because it is very much in keeping with Argentina's situation and concerns for the South Atlantic.

Alfonsin said that the democratic Argentine Government has used peace and cooperation as symbols of its international relations. In this spirit he has offered to start broad, comprehensive relations to sovle Argentina's conflict over the Malvinas, South Sandwich, and Georgia Islands. He also said that every year Argentina's peaceful and constant action for the recovery of its territorial integrity is obtaining greater support from the international community, almost to the point of unanimity. We firmly favor a peaceful solution to this conflict, through tolerance and compliance with international commitments in order to remove an undesired obstacle for our peoples.

Prime Minister Lange, who received Alfonsin at the local international airport, told the media that Argentina is a peaceful country above everything, and he added that it has many interests in common with New Zealand, like its concern over the nuclear problem.

Speaks on Falklands, Trade

PY112207 Buenos Aires TELAM in Spanish 1028 GMT 11 Jul 86

[By special envoy Jose M. Bacigalupe]

[Text] Auckland (New Zealand), 11 Jul (TELAM) -- Argentine President Raul Alfonsin today ratified the Argentine sovereignty rights over the Malvinas, Georgias, and South Atlantic Islands to New Zealand Prime Minister David Lange, who welcomed him at the local international airport.

The Argentine head of state concurred with his host on the nonproliferation of nuclear weapons and on opposing the protectionism of agricultural and livestock products by the EEC and the United States. Alfonsin, accompanied by Economy Minister Juan Sourrouille and Foreign Minister Dante Caputo, today started at 1500 (000 Argentine time) a 19-hour visit to New Zealand, during which he will hold two private meetings with Lange.

Speaking to the press, Caputo talked on the possibility of reopening the Argentine Embassy in New Zealand and the New Zealand Embassy in Buenos Aires, after which the Argentine Government would invite Lange and Australian Prime Minister Robert Hawke to visit Argentina. (Australia is the next leg of Alfonsin's tour). Caputo commented that Alfonsin and Lange will discuss the nonproliferation of nuclar weapons, rights in Antarctica, and the problems created by the protectionist policy of the industrialized nations, which are characterized by their agricultural and livestock production.

After noting that the visit by Alfonsin is the first by a Latin American president to New Zealand, the Argentine foreign minister noted the similarity between the Argentine and New Zealand positions on the South African situation; the two governments have broken relations with that country.

Concerning the Malvinas issue, Caputo said that Alfonsin will discuss his viewpoint and the solution he expects for his issue. Caputo revealed that next Saturday, upon the conclusion of Alfonsin's visit to Australia, he will sign a joint statement with the Australian prime minister. The two-page statement will contain all the issues discussed. Argentine UCR [Radical Civic Union] Senator Fernando de la Rua stated that Alfonsin will not only ratify his position on the Malvinas in New Zealand but he will also do it in Australia with Prime Minister Robert Hawke.

De la Rua said that the visits to Australia and New Zealand are very important because the resumption of diplomatic relations between the two nations will strengthen friendly ties. De la Rua stated that New Zealand and Australia are nations that make up the "Commonwealth" [in English] and recognize the queen of England as their symbolic head of state, following an institutional tradition.

De la Rua added that [words indistinct] and the decision of a government elected by the people. During the last vote on the Malvinas taken at the United Nations, Australia and New Zealand adopted a position which supports the Argentine position that negotiations should be held with the UK on all aspects concerning that zone, including sovereignty. De la Rua commented that this tour of President Alfonsin is very important because it furthers a policy of rapprochement, and enhances the international presence of Argentina, now oriented toward great technological development and trade with this part of the world, which is indispensable for our country's progress, welfare, and modernization.

Concerning Japan, De la Rua said that the possibilities for cooperation and trade are important, not only concerning the possibility of increased bilateral trade but also concerning the possibility for technological assistance, investments, and participation in international trade in Asia, and especially the strengthening of friendly ties to bring our countries closer together. De la Rua recalled that in 1905 Argentina gave Japan two battleships which Argentina had just purchased, something which allowed Japan to win a war.

De la Rua said that Japan has not forgotten that gesture and we trust that within the framework of a policy of harmonious international development and assistance to the South, as stated by Prime Minister Nakasone, we may be able to implement programs of common interest.

Argentine delegation sources have revealed that the basic goal of the private talks that Alfonsin and Lange will hold will also point toward an agreement on the upcoming General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) meeting scheduled for September in Punta del Este. It was recalled that at the GATT meetings Argentina has adopteed positions that agree with those adopted by Uruguay, Brazil, New Zealand, and Australia. It was stated that emphasis is being placed on the talks concerning a demand to the industrialized nations to stop protectionism, especially regarding raw materials.

It was also stated that Argentina, as is the case with other underdeveloped nations, is having difficulty paying its foreign debt due to the plunge of international prices of the agricultural and livestock products it exports. It was noted that this situation affects not only Argentina but also the other Latin American nations, which have problems because their industries are not modernized. In this regard, presidential adviser Enrique Garcia Vazquez said that this mission does not expect to achieve spectacular results although it plans to lay the groundwork for future negotiations and to make known the country's real potential, and its need to acquire technology.

SOURCES CITED ON PROSPECTS FOR SDI DECISION

[Text] Tokyo, July 16 KYODO -- The government is likely to decide on participation in research on U.S. President Ronald Reagan's space-based antimissile project, the strategic defense initiative, by the end of September, government sources said Wednesday. The prospect emerged after the government's decision to hold a third ministerial conference on the project, known as "star wars," on Friday.

The decision was made public by Chief Cabinet Secretary Masaharu Gotoda Wednesday. He said discussions at the conference will focus on such subjects as legal problems concerning protection of classified information and return of technology deriving from research work to Japan.

"The first diplomatic task to be tackled by the new cabinet will be the question of Japan's participation in the strategic defense initiative [SDI]," said one official source. Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone is scheduled to inaugurate his third cabinet soon after he is re-elected as prime minister by both houses of the (?diet). Government sources said another ministerial conference on SDI participation would be held soon after the new cabinet is formed.

In the two conferences held so far, the government has taken a positive approach toward Japan's participation in SDI research on the grounds it would contribute to improvement of technological standards and conform to Japan's policy of national security based on self-defense. The government also contended that Japan's participation in SDI research work would help promote the effective operation of the Japan-U.S. Security Treaty.

While private enterprises will be allowed to take part in the development of nonmilitary technology, government officials will be able to work in the field of military technology under the existing arrangement for transfer of technology for use for military purposes, the sources said.

Nakasone expressed his personal "understanding" of Reagan's project when the two leaders met in the United States in January 1985. It is almost certain that a decision will be made before Nakasone's second two-year term as president of the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party expires at the end of October, the sources said.

MINISTER COMMENTS ON FARM TALKS WITH U.S.

[Text] Tokyo, July 15 KYODO -- Agriculture, forestry and Fisheries Minister Tsutomu Hata said Tuesday Japan will continue talks with the United States on its import curbs on 12 agricultural products despite a U.S. suit filed against Japan under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT). He told a news conference the Japanese Government faces rough going in as-yet unscheduled negotiations with the U.S.

Other ministry officials said they were surprised at the American move, adding that with the July 6 elections finished. Japan had anticipated a sounding-out by Washington rather than a GATT suit over import restrictions on peanuts, processed cheese, tomato juice and nine other agricultural products. Negotiations broke off after a provisional pact expired April 22. In protracted talks, Japan had proposed the liberalization of some of the 12 products and expansion of quotas on the others, while the U.S. had demanded full liberalization.

Officials said the government plans to fend off the U.S. action by utilizing GATT rules that allow governments to curb imports of products subject to domestic output regulations. They predicted that the focus of the Japan-U.S. dispute will shift to the question of who is responsible for keeping tabs on domestic output of the 12 products involved -- the national government or those of prefectures affected.

FOREIGN MINISTRY OFFICIAL TO VISIT SRV 23-25 JUL

OW170421 Tokyo KYODO in English 0417 GMT 17 Jul 86

[Text] Tokyo, July 17 KYODO -- A high-level Foreign Ministry official will visit Vietnam July 23-25 for talks with Vietnamese officials, the Foreign Ministry said Thursday. Hiroshi Fukuda, deputy director general of the Asian Affairs Bureau, will exchange views on the Kampuchean question and bilateral relations with Vietnamese Government officials. Fukuda's visit, originally scheduled for July 16-18, was suspended due to the death of Le Duan, Vietnam's top leader and general secretary of the Communist Party, on July 10.

The visit is a part of the diplomacy Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe pledged the foreign ministers of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) in Manila late June to facilitate dialogue for coexistence in Southeast Asia. In Manila, Abe expressed his support for an eight-point peace proposal made by the anti-Vietnam Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea to his ASEAN counterparts. Abe also called on Vietnam to respond to realize "dialogue for coexistence" based on the proposal.

The proposal calls for a phased pullout of Vietnamese forces in Kampuchea and the establishment of an enlarged coalition government to include the Hanoi-backed Heng Samrin Government in Phnom Penh.

Fukuda is to explan the Japanese stand on Kampuchea to the Vietnamese and call for Vietnamese efforts for political settlement on the issue, the officials said.

NAKASONE TO FINALIZE LDP, CABINET RESHUFFLE

OW151631 Tokyo KYODO in English 1228 GMT 15 Jul 86

[Text] Tokyo, July 15 KYODO --Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone will give final touches to plans to reorganize the cabinet and Liberal-Democratic Party posts on Monday, the day before the new Diet convenes in a special session, LDP sources said. Nakasone will form a new cabinet and reorganize the party lineup immediately after he is reelected as prime minister at the Diet session Tuesday, the sources said.

Following the July 6 double election of both houses of parliament, political watchers are now shifting attention to whom Nakasone will select for party secretary general -- a post that has power to control the party and influence the selection of the next LDP president or prime minister. The selection is particularly important for the three new leaders -- Finance Minister Noboru Takeshita, Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe and party Executive Council Chairman Kiichi Miyazawa -- who are vying for the prime ministership.

Political analysts say that the focal point at the moment is whether or not party Vice President Susumu Nikaido will become the speaker of the House of Representatives, an uninfluential post that would require him to leave his post as head of the Tanaka faction -- as party Secretary General Shin Kanemaru has recommended. Nikaido has repeatedly rejected the recommendation. Analysts say that Kanemaru is strategizing to replace Nikaido as head of the 140-member Tanaka faction with Takeshita to enable change of generation of leadership, and make way for Takeshita to become prime minister.

The fight in the faction started on July 7, the day after the election, when Kanemaru started publicly that he would resign from his current post after the formation of the new cabinet to pave the way for a change in generation with the LDP. Earlier in the day, Kanemaru had met with Nikaido at the party's headquarters and urged him to take the post of the speaker of the influential 512-member lower house.

But Nikaido rejected the offer, saying that the LDP's landslide victory in the elections was mainly attributable to efforts by party executives, headed by the secretary general, and that the reward should be extended to Kanemaru in return. However, later in the day, Nikaido reiterated his intention before the Tanaka faction's post-election party to continue his post as faction head, calling for renewed unity among the members.

Meanwhile, Shintaro Abe, who accepted a post as leader of the former Fukuda faction from Former Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda Monday, paid respects to senior party leaders including Nakasone, Kanemaru, Miyazawa and Former Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki. In the meetings, Abe stressed that Nakasone should abide by the LDP rule banning a third two-year term as party president. Nakasone will complete his second term in October.

Analysts say that Abe's move will accelerate change in generation of leaders. Abe's faction currently has 82 Diet members in both houses of the Diet, the Suzuki faction led by Zenko Suzuki has 89, Nakasone faction 85, and 34 under Former Cabinet Minister Toshio Komoto.

Suzuki has not yet declared a transfer of leadership in his faction, but he said at a factional meeting later in the day that all Suzuki faction members should make their best effort to renew party strength and cooperate with each other to realize a Miyazawa cabinet.

Abe has invited the two other to [as received] meet on Wednesday or Thursday to exchange views on the formation of the new Nakasone cabinet.

ABE TAKES OVER FACTION; MEETS FUKUDA, NAKASONE

OW150515 Tokyo KYODO in English 0406 GMT 15 Jul 86

[Text] Tokyo, July 15 KYODO -- Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe was at pains to project a modest demeanor Tueday, a day after he took over the leadership of the third-largest faction within the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party. "We must not get intoxicated," with the major victory the LDP won in the July 6 election, Abe said in a regular post-cabinet new conference. "We must act with modesty," he said.

Abe took over the mantle of the 82-member faction Monday from Former Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda, who declared he wants his political protege to become a full-fledged leader within the LDP. The move was seen by political analysts as a Fukuda strategy to enhance Abe's position in the LDP presidential race this fall.

Abe did not outline what his plans are as a faction leader, only saying that he feels his responsibility will be heavy and that he hopes "not to lead his group astray."

Abe called on Fukuda at his private residence Tuesday morning in what sources said was a strategy discussion on the upcoming reshuffle of top party and cabinet posts.

Abe later paid his respects to prime minister Yasuhiro Nakasone as a new faction leader and received the good wishes of the prime minister, sources said.

GOTODA COMMENTS ON EXTENDING NAKASONE'S TENURE

OW170607 Tokyo KYODO in English 0551 GMT 17 Jul 86

[Text] Tokyo, July 17 KYODO -- Chief Cabinet Secretary Masaharu Gotoda said Thursday that Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone should stay in office beyond October, when his second two-year term as president of the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party (LDP) ends. Gotoda made the remark in a television talk show, saying that public opinion should take precedence over internal LDP technicalities in the selection of party president, a post which carries with it the prime ministership.

His remark was taken among political pundits to mean that Gotoda's faction, the powerful Tanaka faction led by party Vice President Susumu Nikaido, has decided to endorse an extension of Nakasone's tenure and to seek an LDP consensus on the subject before the Diet convenes Tuesday for a special session.

Touching upon the outcome of the July 6 double polls for both houses of the Diet, Gotoda added that the LDP's landslide victory meant policies championed by Nakasone have been widely supported by the public. The public apparently gave credit to the administration's major policies which include privatization of the state-run national railways, open-market policies and educational and tax reforms, he said. "Changing course would mean a betrayal to the public," Gotoda added.

In a meeting between Nikaido and party Secretary General Shin Kanemaru held Tuesday, Nikaido had suggested to Kanemaru that Nakasone may stay in office beyond October, possibly until the ordinary Diet session ends in May or June next year.

Meanwhile, earlier Thursday morning, Kanemaru met with Masayuki Fujio, party chairman of the Policy Research Council, and reiterated his intention to resign from his current post.

He suggested that his successor should be chosen through consultations between Finance Minister Noboru Takeshita and Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe, both of whom are vying for the post-Nakasone prime ministership together with party Executive Board Chairman Kiichi Miyazawa. Kanemaru's intention is thought to be to prompt a generational change within both the LDP and the Tanaka faction in a move to let his protege Takeshita take over control of the Tanaka faction by replacing Nikaido, analysts said.

In the meeting, Fujio said he will resign from his party post if Kanemaru steps down as secretary general, following the formation of a new Nakasone cabinet expected on the opening day of the special Diet session.

TECHNICAL PROBLEM DEVELOPS WITH H-1 ROCKET

OW151617 Tokyo KYODO in English 0823 GMT 15 Jul 86

[Text] Tanegashima Island, Kagoshima Pref., July 15 KYODO -- A launching rehearsal for Japan's new-generation H-1 rocket was discontinued Tuesday after a technical problem arose over its control system at the Tanegashima Space Center off Kyushu, the setback is expected to delay its official launch, slated for August. The reshearsal, postponed from July 11 due to bad weather, was for a technical and procedural check in preparation for the rocket's scheduled official launch slated after August 4.

But due to the halt of the preparatory rehearsal Tuesday, the launch must be postponed, according to the National Space Development Agency of Japan (NASDA), which developed the rocket. The rehearsal began at 1 a.m. and was due to last until 1 p.m., the time when the launch is due to be made.

Staff at the space center followed the detailed procedures necessary for a real launching, such as placing the rocket on the launch pad and putting in fuel, NASDA said. The trouble was found to stem from a control system for a safety valve on the rocket's tank of liquid oxygen, which did not close after being successfully opened by a command from the headquarters. The rehearsal was discontinued at noon, NASDA said.

NASDA said it would begin seeking the possible cause of the trouble Tuesday after removing the liquid oxygen from the tank.

The H-1 rocket, the latest rocket in Japan, has been developed by NASDA since 1975 and includes systems made of Japan's own technology on the second stage of its two-stage structure. The fuel system uses liquid hydrogen and liquid oxygen, the most advanced fuel used in world's leading rockets such as the space shuttle of the United States, the Arianne rocket of the European Space Agency and China's Chang Zheng III, NASDA said.

The infertial guidance and control equipment (NICE), the brain of the rocket, is also Japanese-made and automatically controls the attitude, position and speed of the rocket in flight, NASDA said.

Rockets currently used by Japan are equipped with U.S.-made parts and devices to all the rocket structures, some of which Japanese staff are not allowed to check or fix, it said.

The 34 meter long H-1 rocket is the largest rocket in Japan, but is over 10 meters shorter than the space shuttle rockets. It will carry laser beam devices for conducting geographical measurements of the earth from space, a satellite for amateur radio communications and experimental devices, NASDA said.

The delegation was seen off at the airport by So Yun-sok, member of the Political Bureau of the WPK Central Committee, chief secretary of the Pyongyang Municipal Party Committee and chairman of the Pyongyang Municipal People's Committee; Kim Yong-chae, minsiter of Post and Telecommunications; Colonel General of the Korean People's Army Pak Chung-kuk; Kim Chae-suk, vice-minister of Foreign Affairs; and Boris Morozov, charge d'affaires ad interim of the Soviet Embassy in Pyongyang.

GROMYKO, ZAYKOV MEET KIM HWAN IN MOSCOW

SK041021 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1006 GMT 4 Jul 86

[Text] Moscow July 3 (KCNA) -- Andrey Gromyko, member of the Politbureau of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union and president of the presidium of the USSR Supreme Soviet, and Lev Zaykov, member of the Politbureau, and secretary, of the CPSU Central Committee, on July 2 met in the Kremlin, Moscow, the party and government delegation of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea headed by Kim Hwan, member of the Political Bureau, and secretary, of the Central Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea, on a visit to the Soviet Union to attend celebrations of the 25th anniversary of the conclusion of the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation and Mutual Assistance.

The head of the delegation conveyed warm regards and good wishes of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and dear Comrade Kim Chong-il to respected Comrades Mikhail Gorbachev and Andrey Gromyko.

Andrey Gromyko expressed deep thanks for this on behalf of Mikhail Gorbachev.

He asked the head of the delegation to transmit warm greetings and best wishes of Comrade Mikhail Gorbachev and his own to them.

A conversation took place.

In the conversation the two sides pointed to the weighty significance of the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation and Mutual Assistance signed in 1961 in steadily developing the relations between the DPRK and the USSR.

The two sides noted that the highest level Korean-Soviet talks held during the official goodwill visit of the party and state delegation of the DPRK led by Comrade Kim Il-song to the Soviet Union in May 1984 constituted a new impetus in consolidating the Korean-Soviet friendship.

Andrey Gromyko and Lev Zaykov pointed out that the USSR, proceeding from the decisions of the 27th Congress of the CPSU, would make all possible efforts in the future, too, to strengthen the Soviet-Korean relations of friendship and cooperation and enrich them with new contents in the interests of the two peoples and the further consolidation of the international position of socialism.

They stressed that the USSR was manifesting invariable solidarity with the policy pursued by the Workers' Party of Korea and by the government of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea to secure the withdrawal of American troops from South Korea and the reunification of the country on a peaceful and democratic basis without outside interference.

The conversation took place in an atmosphere of fraternal friendship and mutual understanding.

CPSU HOSTS RECEPTION FOR KIM HWAN, DELEGATION

SK040447 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0432 GMT 4 Jul 86

[Text] Moscow July 3 (KCNA) -- The Central Committee of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union, the Presidium of the USSR Supreme Soviet and the Soviet Government gave a reception in the Kremlin Palace of Congresses on the evening of July 2 in honor of the party and government delegation of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea headed by Kim Hwan, member of the Political Bureau, and secretary, of the Central Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea, on a visit to the Soviet Union to attend celebrations of the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation and Mutual Assistance between the Soviet Union and Korea.

In his speech, Geydar Aliyev, member of the Political Bureau of the CPSU Central Committee and first deputy chairman of the USSR Council of Ministers, said:

The conclusion of the treaty of alliance was a substantially new event in the history of the Soviet-Korean relations.

Our mutual cooperation has given fuller scope to vitality, effectiveness and trust. The solid and ever growing trend which is irresistible thanks to our firm conviction has been markedly consolidated particularly since the Moscow visit of Comrade Kim Il-song in May 1984 and developed through ensuing meetings between the leaders of the Soviet Union and Korea.

Our two countries which take as the compass the desire to ease the tension and consolidate universal security in the world in conformity with the spirit and content of the treaty have close negotiations on all important international matters.

The CPSU and the Soviet Government powerfully and consistently support the energetic and persistent efforts made by the DPRK for the relaxation of the tension on the Korean peninsula and the reunification of Korea on a peaceful and democratic basis. The recent statement of the DPRK Government calling for the conversion of the Korean peninsula into a nuclear-free, peace zone confirmed once again the peaceloving line of the DPRK. We hail this important, constructive proposal and are ready to render full support for its realisation.

The Soviet Union, together with the DPRK and all other fraternal socialist countries and all the peaceloving forces of the world, will as ever act officially, sincerely, energetically and constructively in the work for defending and consolidating universal peace.

In his speech at the reception Kim Hwan said:

Our party and government are very much satisfied with close support and cooperation between the two peoples in conformity with the mission of the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation and Mutual Assistance.

The friendly and cooperative relations between the peoples of Korea and the Soviet Union have been developing in an allround way on a new stage in their interests since the visit to the Soviet Union by the respected leader of our people Comrade Kim Il-song and the historical meeting between the leaders of the two countries two years ago.

To consolidate and develop the great Korean-Soviet friendship generation after generation is an immovable policy of our party and government and an unshakable will of the Korean people.

Our people will as ever treasure the friendship and solidarity with the fraternal Soviet people, a reliable ally, and do their utmost to further strengthen it.

We highly estimate the efforts exerted by the Soviet Party and Government to realise a series of constructive proposals for safeguarding world peace and security they put forward to cope with the nuclear war provocation maneuvres of the U.S.-led imperialists and fully support their peace initiatives for the relaxation of the world situation as a whole.

The present tense situation makes it incumbent upon the Korean and Soviet peoples to more closely unite with each other on the basis of the relations of class alliance and strengthen the unity of the socialist forces, the international communist movement and the anti-imperialist, independent forces in every way.

We will further cement the relations of alliance with the fraternal Soviet people to firmly defend the gains of the revolution, peace and security against the aggression of the imperialists.

[Text] Esteemed comrade Kim Hwan, esteemed Korean friends, and comrades. We, on behalf of the Soviet leadership and all of the Soviet people, sincerely and warmly welcome the high-ranking DPRK party and government delegation led by Comrade Kim Hwan, member of the WPK Central Committee Political Bureau and secretary of the party Central Committee, which has come to the Soviet Union to attend functions celebrating the 25th anniversary of the conclusion of the Treaty on Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance, a significant day in Soviet-Korean relations.

The Soviet people, who receive envoys of the fraternal Korean people as their precious guests and intimate friends, firmly beieve that this celebration function will not only become more proof of the firm alliance and solidarity between the CPSU and the WPK and between the Soviet Union and the DPRK, but will also contribute to further strengthening them for peace, socialism, and the progress of mankind. The conclusion of the treaty of alliance was a new event in the history of Soviet-Korean relations in terms of its quality and established a solid legal foundation to continuously achieve comprehensive [pogwaljok] cooperation which accords with the bilateral interests of the fraternal people of our two countries.

Actual facts and life itself have more clearly and in a more dignified manner confirmed that relations between the Soviet Union and socialist Korea have developed fruitfully, vigorously, multilaterally, and broadly. Our mutual cooperation has greater vitality, effectiveness, and trust. This solid trend, which grows stronger with each passing day and which is irreversible, according to our firm belief, has remarkably become even more solid since Comrade Kim Il-song's visit to Moscow in May 1984, and has been further developed over the course of meetings thereafter between Soviet and Korean leaders.

This normal trend for the socialist community irrefutably reaffirms the strong vitality and great political significance of our treaty concluded in 1961, a treaty which has firmly established alliance between our fraternal peoples and between our fraternal socialist countries. During the past period, we have acquired abundant experiences of reciprocal and comradely cooperation. Practice during the past period has perfectly, clearly, and thoroughly proven the full justness of the content of our treaty, upon which our friendly relations are based, on the principles of Marxism-Leninism and socialist internationalism. The core of these fraternal relations is indisputably political unity and cooperation between the CPSU and the WPK. Our economic and cultural ties have also been vigorously developed as foreseen by the treaty. The mutual exchange of commodities in 1985 exceeded one billion rubles. The structure of this mutual exchange has also been improved.

A series of major plants which have become the core of the DPRK national economy have already been built or are being vigorously built in the DPRK with Soviet assistance. Many Korean experts have received training in the Soviet Union. Even today, several hundreds of college students and researchers are studying in the Soviet Union. Active ties are maintained in the public health, sports, and art fields. It is a very happy event for art troupes of fraternal Korea to frequently visit our country. Brisk contacts and exchanges between workers, social circles, and representatives of the young general have been carried out between the two countries with greater vitality.

We can indicate, with happiness, the successful completion of the festival of the Soviet and Korean youths which was held recently in (Vilyanoskiy). We actively welcome such a contact and will develop it by all means. Our two countries, which have adopted as a basic line the desire to alleviate tension in the world and to consolidate overall stability in conformity with the spirit of the treaty and its content, have actively consulted with each other on all important international issues.

In accordance with the duty of alliance, the Soviet Union and the DPRK have supported each other externally and politically in the cause of struggle for peace and the consolidation of the socialist fortress of the world. Today, we can state, with satisfaction and pride that the Soviet-Korean treaty has been an important instrument in maintaining stability and security in the Far East for 25 years. The aggravation of tension in this enormous region over recent years arouses common concern among us. The source of tension has been well known; it is the escalation of the military presence of the United States, the militarization of South Korea, the fabrication of the aggressive Washington-Tokyo-Seoul axis, the increase of the (?restorationist) trend in Japan, and the maneuvers to block the Asian countries from establishing an organization for broad and equal cooperation through the fabrication of such a (?cliquish) collective organization as the Pacific community.

The Soviet Union, a big Asian and Pacific nation, has put forward numerous constructive proposals aimed at guaranteeing peace and security in Asia and the rest of the world through the collective efforts of all parties concerned. At the 27th Congress of our party, general secretary of the CPSU Central Committee Mikhail Gorbachev indicated that the collective efforts of all parties concerned should begin with pooling efforts for a political resolution to knotty problems in Asia, and then all parties concerned should unite. The Soviet Government issued a special statement appealing to all Asia and Pacific nations to realize broad cooperation under the principles of equality and mutual benefit, irrespective of differences in their social systems. We firmly believe that such broad cooperation accords with the basic interests of the peoples and nations in this region.

According to our common opinion, the alleviation of tension on the Korean peninsula, the holding of a constructive and fruitful North-South dialogue, and the creation of favorable and realistic conditions for the peaceful and democratic reunification of Korea without outside interference will be an important step on the road to improving the situation in Asia. The DPRK's initiatives and peace-loving diplomacy are aimed precisely at achieving this. Anyone who is able to view living reality without prejudice cannot fail to see the DPRK's demand that U.S. troops -- which are the main barrier in the way of developing inter-Korean dialogue -- be withdrawn from the South of the Korean peninsula, is entirely just and justifiable.

The CPSU and the Soviet Government have actively and consistently supported the DPRK's energetic and persistent struggle to alleviate tension on the Korean peninsula and to reunify the country on a peaceful and democratic basis.

The recent statement by the government of the Republic calling for the Korean peninsula to be turned into a nuclear-free peace zone is a new reaffirmation of the DPRK's peaceloving line. We welcome this important, constructive initiative and are prepared to give all possible support to its implementation. Our invariable policy of establishing peace serves as convincing evidence that peace is really a socialist ideal.

Proceeding from the firm and invariable stand that in today's politics there is no more important task than to rescue the civilization of mankind from a terrible thermonuclear war and from self-ruin caused by nuclear weapons, the CPSU has consistently adhered to and embodied this stand together with the fraternal parties. A series of proposals advanced by the Soviet Union since last January with regard to arms reduction, the complete abolition of nuclear weapons, and the alleviation of international tension serve as convincing evidence of this peaceloving policy.

The meeting of the Political Consultative Committee of the Warsaw Treaty member nations and the recently held Budapest meeting showed to the world once again that the fraternal socialist countries are actively and consistently struggling for arms reduction and for the people's stability. However, the U.S. Administration, rejecting all peaceloving initiatives, is continuing to strive to achieve military superiority over socialism. The Soviet Union, together with the DPRK, all the fraternal socialist countries, and all the world peace-loving forces, will continue to act openly, honestly, energetically, and constructively in the work of defending and consolidating universal peace.

Dear Korean friends: In conclusion, I sincerely wish esteemed Comrade Kim Il-song, general secretary of the WPK Central Committee and president of the DPRK; esteemed Comrade Mikhail Gorbachev, general secretary of the CPSU Central Committee; and esteemed Comrade Kim Chong-il a long life and good health. Comrade Kim Hwan, I wish you, members of the DPRK party and government delegation led by you, and Korean and Soviet comrades present here a long life and good health and success in their work. The eternal and immortal friendship and fraternal alliance between the CPSU and the WPK, between the Soviet people and the Korean people also will be further consolidated in the future.

[Text] The CPSU Central Committee, the USSR Supreme Soviet Presidium, and the Soviet Government arranged a banquet yesterday evening at the Kremlin Palace of Congresses in honor of the DPRK party and government delegation led by Comrade Kim Hwan, member of the WPK Central Committee Political Bureau and secretary of the party Central Committee, who is on a visit to the Soviet Union to attend celebration of the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Soviet-Korea Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance. Along with the delegation, officials of our country's embassy to the Soviet Union were invited to the banquet. Present at this banquet were Comrade Geydar Aliyev, member of the CPSU Central Committee Political Bureau and first deputy chairman of the Soviet Council of Ministers; Comrade Ivan Kapitonov, chairman of the CPSU Central Auditing Commission; Comrade Georgiy (Taradevich), deputy chairman of the USSR Supreme Soviet Presidium; Comrade Vladimir Klyuyev, Soviet minister of light industry; and other party and government cadres and relevant officials.

Comrades Geydar Aliyev and Kim Hwan delivered speeches at the banquet. Stating in his speech: We are very pleased with our visit to the Soviet Union, our closest and fraternal ally, and our meeting with Soviet comrades on the occasion of the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Korea-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance, Comrade Kim Hwan expressed deep gratitude for the warm welcome of the delegation. He said: We have felt the fraternal friendship of the Soviet comrades and have vividly seen how firm the friendly ties between the peoples of the two countries are since we entered your land.

He further said: We have more deeply felt this through our conversation with Comrade Andrey Andreyvich Gromyko, chairman of the USSR Supreme Soviet Presidium, which took place just a while ago in a very warm and friendly atmosphere. The signing of the Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance between the DPRK and the USSR 25 years ago was an event of historical significance in the development of the relations of friendship and cooperation between the two countries. This treaty has firmly developed the relations of class alliance between two countries, vigorously (?furthered) the joint socialist and communist cause, and greatly contributed in opposing imperialism and toward the defense of peace in Asia and the world.

Our party and government are very pleased that the peoples of the two countries have sincerely supported and cooperated with each other in accordance with the task of this treaty. We will further solidify and develop our relations of class alliance with the fraternal Soviet people by remaining continuously loyal to this treaty. With the visit to the Soviet Union of our people's respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the historical meeting between the leaders of the two countries two years ago as an opportunity, the relations of friendship and cooperation between the people of the Soviet Union and Korea have developed on a large scale and on a new stage in the interest of the people of the two countries.

We are pleased that again this year we are able to demonstrate the might of the unity between the people of the two countries on the occasion of the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Korea-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooepration, and Mutual Assistance following the occasion last year when we vigorously demonstrated the firmness and invincible vitality of the Korea-Soviet friendship on the 40th anniversary of Korea's liberation. Consolidating and developing the great Korea-Soviet friendship generation after generation is a firm policy of our party and government and an unchangeable will of our people. We will also treasure the friendship and unity with the fraternal Soviet people, a reliable ally, and make all efforts to further strengthen them. We are very pleased that we are able to personally see innovative achievements brought about by the fraternal Soviet people in their struggle to realize the grand programs put forth in the 27th CPSU Congress. Today, under the slogan that the Soviet people must devote efforts filled with creative spirits to the 12th five-year plan, the fraternal Soviet people are vigorously struggling to realize the party's strategic policies.

The achievements which the fraternal Soviet people have brought about in the struggle to accelerate the country's social and economic development and to complete socialism on a large scale under the tested leadership of Comrade Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbachev, an outstanding activist of the Soviet party and state, are well known to our people. We warmly congratulate all achievements that the fraternal Soviet people have brought about, and sincerely hope that they will bring about brilliant fruition in the struggle to successfully accomplish the 12th 5-year plan adopted at the 27th Party Congress.

While upholding the banner of three revolutions -- ideological, technological, and cultural -- our people vigorously struggle to accelerate socialist and communist construction on the northern half of the Republic and to realize the independent and peaceful reunification of the fatherland under the wise leadership of the WPK led by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song. Availing ourselves of this opportunity, we again express gratitude to the Soviet party, government, and people, who gave our people assistance, both material and spiritual, during the past period of the fatherland liberation war and the difficult times of post-war rehabilitation and construction and who extend unchanging support and solidarity to our people's struggle to realize grand programs for socialist construction and to reunify the fatherland.

While frantically engaging in an arms race in an effort to oppose socialist countries, the U.S. imperialists further intensify the situation wherever they go, including the Korean peninsula, Asia, and Europe. While openly babbling that it would not observe the offensive strategic arms limitation treaty [title of treaty as received], the United States frantically engages in an arms race. This clearly shows its foolish aggressive ambition to obliterate socialism with the force of arms.

We highly estimate the efforts exerted by the Soviet party and government to realize a series of constructive proposals to safeguard the world peace and security they have put forth to cope with the nuclear war provocation maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists and other imperialists, and fully support their peace-loving initiatives to relax the world situation as a whole.

The present tense situation makes it incumbent upon the Korean and Soviet people to more closely unite based on relations of class alliance and to strengthen the unity of the socialist forces, the international communist movement, and the anti-imperialist, independent forces in every way.

By further consolidating relations of alliance with the fraternal Soviet people, we will firmly defend the gains of the revolution, peace, and security against the aggression of the imperialists.

No matter what difficulties may be ahead of us, they will not be able to block the vigorous advance of the people of the Soviet Union and Korea, who are struggling to realize the joint cause, and the Korea-Soviet friendship will be eternal like the streams of the Taedong River of Korea and the Moscow River of the Soviet Union.

The participants in the banquet toasted the eternal and indestructible friendship and unity between Korea and the Soviet Union, the long life and good health of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the long life and good health of the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il, and the long life and good health of respected Comrade Mikhail Gorbachev. The banquet took place in a warm and friendly atmosphere.

DPRK ENVOY HOSTS TREATY ANNIVERSARY BANQUET

[Text] On 3 July, Kwon Hi-kyong, our country's ambassador in the Soviet Union, hosted a banquet on the occasion of the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Korean-Soviet Treaty on friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance.

Invited to the banquet were Comrade Geydar Aliyev, member of the CPSU Central Committee Politburo and first deputy chairman of the USSR Council of Ministers; Comrade Ivan Kapitonov, chairman of the CPSU Central Auditing Commission; the deputy chairman of the USSR Supreme Soviet Presidium; a deputy chairman of the USSR Council of Ministers; responsible functionaries of many [word indistinct] and central organs; and representatives of the party, Soviet, and social organizations.

Attending the banquet were a DPRK party and Government delegation led by Comrade Kim Hwan, member of the WPK Central Committee Political Bureau and secretary of the party Central Committee, now on visit to the Soviet Union to participate in functions marking the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Korean-Soviet Treaty on Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance, and embassy staff members.

Ambassador Kwon Hui-kyong and Comrade Geydar Aliyev spoke at the banquet.

In his speech, Ambassador Kwon Hui-kyong said: Significantly greeting the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Treaty on Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance as a joint festival in the two countries is a powerful demonstration of the invincible vitality of Korean-Soviet relationship. I highly appraise the contributions of this treaty in thwarting the new provocation maneuvers of the imperialists in the past and in defending the security of the two countries and peace in the Far East, Asia, and the world.

He stressed: Traditional Korean-Soviet friendly relations are growing stronger and developing with each passing day in accordance with the milestone set during the visit to the Soviet Union of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song 2 years ago and historic meetings between the leaders of the two countries.

He said: Genuinely rejoicing over all successes attained by the Soviet people, our people wish them new achievements in their future struggle to successfully fulfill the 12th 5-Year Plan and further advance Soviet society toward communism.

In his speech, Comrade Geydar Aliyev noted: The Soviet-Korean Treaty on Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance, signed 25 years ago, has shown the unanimous aspirations of the peoples of our fraternal countries who have tried to pool efforts in the struggle to deepen trust and mutual understanding, expand economic and cultural cooperation, and oppose the aggressive plots of the international reactionaries.

Referring to the significance of the treaty, he said: This treaty, which conforms to the fundamental interests of our two peoples and countries, has reliably served as a guarantee for security in the Far East and has made a weighty real contribution to making the international situation sound and to removing the danger of a new global war.

He continued: Since the treaty came into effect, the scope of trade and economic links has considerably expanded, the level of scientific and technological cooperation has improved, and cultural exchanges between the Soviet Union and DPRK have, indeed, assumed a broad and diverse nature.

The visit to the Soviet Union by the DPRK party and state delegation led by Kim Il-song, general secretary of the WPK Central Committee and DPRK President, in May 1984 and talks and meetings between the leaders of the Soviet Union and Korea, at which the overall discussion of all questions regarding socialist construction and foreign policy was discussed, contributed to even further enriching and deepening Soviet-Korean relations.

Mutual cooperation among the socialist states -- states linked by the obligation of being allies in particular -- under the present complicated international situation can and should be an important and reliable pillar to the struggle of all progressive forces for peace and security in Europe and Asia.

Having earnest interests in making Asia a peaceful and good neighborly continent, the Soviet Union and DPRK have consistently and steadily demanded that effective measures be taken to reduce military tension in this vast region of the earth. With an invariable desire and readiness to explore an effective solution to the mature problems regarding Asian security, the Soviet Union and People's Korea are countering the moves of the imperialist circles to turn the Asia-Pacific region into another ground for confrontation with the socialist countries. I want to stress that the Soviet Union not only seeks to guarantee security in Asia, but has also shown its willingness to contribute toward ensuring it.

The numerous profound peace-loving initiatives of the Soviet Union, including the proposal to bear the responsibility for not using nuclear weapons initiated by those countries which abide by the nonnuclear [word indistinct], under any condition the proposal not to expand the range of activities of NATO and the Warsaw Pact outside Europe, the proposal to limit the activities of navies, and the proposal to remove all military bases in the territories of other countries are directly connected with questions concerning Asia and the Pacific. The Soviet proposal to hold talks on enhancing trust in the Far East is invariably preserving its effect. The appeal to prepare the way for a pan-Asian conference to jointly resolve the questions in the Far East by holding bilateral and multilateral negotiations contains new concrete amd humanitarian elements of the Soviet peace-loving foreign policy.

In this connection, I express once again our genuine thanks to the fraternal Korean people, the WPK Central Committee, and the government of the Republic for supporting and sympathizing with the program for completely destroying nuclear and chemical weapons set forth by Comrade Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbachev, general secretary of the CPSU Central Committee, and other proposals of the Soviet Union to basically make the political situation on our planet sound.

We think that realization of the constructive proposals of the WPK and the DPRK Government to ease tension and consolidate peace in Korea will make a weighty contribution to establishing a comprehensive international security system, delineated at the 27th CPSU Congress, and toward putting the concept of security in Asia into practice. These proposals envisage with grounds the withdrawal of U.S. troops from South Korea, replacement of the Korean Armistice Agreement with a peace agreement, adoption of a declaration of nonaggression between the North and South, turning of the Korean peninsula into a nuclear-free and peace zone, and the discontinuation of large-scale military exercises on Korean territory.

The efforts of the DPRK Government to develop a peaceful dialogue between North and South Korea greatly help to strengthen security in Asia.

Highly evaluating our fraternal relations of alliance with the DPRK and the WPK, we have always expressed and will also in the future express solidarity with the just struggle of the Korean people to reunify the fatherland peacefully and democratically.

The Soviet people treasure friendship between the Soviet Union and DPRK and will also make all efforts in the future to further develop and strengthen the multifaceted and useful relations with the Korean people.

Marking the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Soviet-Korean Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance, we wish the Korean friends new and greater success in the struggle to implement the decisions of the Sixth WPK Congress and reunify their fatherland in a peaceful and democratic way under the leadership of the party Central Committee led by Comrade Kim Il-song.

In conclusion, I wholeheartedly wish respected Comrade Kim Il-song and esteemed Comrade Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbachev good health. I wish respected Comrade Kim Chong-il good health.

Long live the eternal and immortal Soviet-Korean friendship!

He stressed that the creative alliance of our fraternal parties will be strengthened and have new power.

The participants in the banquet toasted the eternal and immortal friendship between the Soviet Union and Korea, the long life and good health of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the long life and good health of the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il, and the long life and good health of respected Comrade Mikhail Gorbachev.

The banquet proceeded in a warm and friendly atmosphere.

MOSCOW GRAND MEETING MARKS TREATY ANNIVERSARY

SK072251 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1503 GMT 7 Jul 86

[Text] Pyongkyang July 7 (KCNA) -- A grand meeting of representatives of working people in Moscow marking the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Soviet-Korean Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation and Mutual Assistance was held at the central house of the Soviet Army named after Frunze, on July 4, according to a report.

The meeting was attended by Geydar Aliyev, member of the Political Bureau of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union, first vice-chairman of the USSR Council of Ministers, and leading functionaries of the party and Soviet organs, Army and social organizations and representatives of working people of all strata in the city.

In his report Vladimir Klyuyev, chairman of the Central Committee of the Soviet-Korean Friendship Society and minister of light industry of the Soviet Union, stressed that the Soviet-Korean Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation and Mutual Assistance had consolidated the long-forged friendly relations between the Soviet Union and Korea and embodied the desires of the two peoples.

Referring to the question of Korean reunification, he said:

The Soviet Union invariably expresses solidarity with the policy of the Workers' Party of Korea and the Government of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea for reunifying the country peacefully on a democratic basis without outside interference.

We consistently support the proposals on the withdrawal of U.S. forces and nuclear weapons of all kinds from South Korea, replacement of the Korean armistice agreement with a peace agreement and adoption of a non-aggression declaration between the north and the south of Korea.

Vladimir Klyuyev emphasized that the Soviet Union would make all efforts to invariably consolidate and develop the relations of fraternal friendship between the two parties, states and peoples of the Soviet Union and Korea on the principle of Marxism-Leninism and socialist internationalism in the future, too.

In his speech Kim Hwan, member of the Political Bureau, and secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea, who is heading the Korean party and government delegation, said: considering the recent important peace initiatives put forward by the Soviet party and government to be fully accordant with the interests of socialism as a whole and the demand of the times for peace, we firmly support the peaceloving proposals and efforts of the Soviet Union.

He said that the Korean people would as ever make all efforts to further strengthen the friendship and the relations of militant alliance with the fraternal Soviet people.

After the speech a silk banner was conveyed in the name of the Korean party and government delegation. A meeting of public circles marking this anniversary was held in Alma Ata on July 3.

[Excerpts] A meeting of representatives of Moscow's working people was held magnificently on 4 July at the Central Hall of the Soviet Army named after [word indistinct] to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance. [passage omitted]

Participating in the celebration meeting were responsible functionaries of the Soviet party, Soviet institutions, the army, social organizations, and representatives of the city's working people of all walks of life, including Comrade Geydar Aliyev, member of the Political Bureau of the CPSU Central Committee and first deputy chairman of the USSR Council of Ministers; Comrade Ivan Kapitonov, chairman of the CPSU Central Auditing Commission; Comrade Guriy Marchuk, deputy chairman of the USSR Council of Ministers; Comrade Georgiy (Taradevich), deputy chairman of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet; and Comrade Vladimir Klyuyev, chairman of the Soviet-Korean Friendship Society Central Committee and Soviet Minister of Light Industry.

A DPRK party and government delegation headed by Comrade Kim Hwan, member of the Political Bureau, and secretary of the WPK Central Committee; a delegation of the Korean-Soviet Friendship Society, which was on a visit to the Soviet Union; and Kwon Hui-kyong, DPRK ambassador to the USSR, have also been invited to participate in this meeting, along with the embassy staff. [passage omitted]

Comrade Vladimir Klyuyev, chairman of the Soviet-Korean Friendship Society Central Committee and Soviet Minister of Light Industry, presented a report at the meeting. [passage omitted]

Next, Comrade Kim Hwan, head of our country's party and government delegation, spoke. He said: The signing of the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation, and Mutual Assistance was an epochal event in the history of friendship between the people of the two countries engaged in a common struggle against imperialism and for the victory of the socialist and communist cause.

He then stressed that over the past 25 years this treaty has greatly contributed to strongly defending the socialist gains of the people of the two countries and to defending peace in Asia and the world.

He noted that the historic significance of the treaty had once again been stressed at a warm and friendly talk with the Soviet leaders held in the Kremlin a few days ago.

Saying that the friendly relations between the Korean and Soviet people have a long history and many traditions, he noted that these friendly relations have fully developed at a new stage in all fields of politics, economy, and culture since the respected and beloved leader of our people Comrade Kim Il-song's visit to the Soviet Union 2 years ago and the historic meetings between the leaders of the two countries.

He noted: The Soviet people are now engaged in a vigorously advancing movement to carry out the grand programs presented at the 27th CPSU Congress under the tested leadership of the CPSU led by Comrade Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbachev, an outstanding activist of the Soviet party and state.

Noting that no other task is more pressing than to prevent the danger of nuclear war and to defend peace, he said: The Soviet Union is making positive efforts to ensure peace and security not only in the European region, but also in the Asia-Pacific region.

Believing that the important peace proposals advanced recently by the Soviet party and government are fully in the interest of socialism as a whole and fully correspond to the demands of the times for peace, we positively support the Soviet Union's peace-loving proposals and its endeavors.

Stressing that it is the Korean peninsula where the danger of nuclear war is most imminent, he exposed and denounced the fact that the U.S. imperialists have turned South Korea into an aggressive nuclear war base, the largest in the Far East, as a result of their military occupation of South Korea and their enforcement of a policy of turning it into a colony and military base for more than 40 years.

Comrade Kim Hwan, after noting that the WPK and government of the republic have consistently made efforts to ease tension in Korea, to eliminate the danger of war, and to realize the question of national reunification by peaceful means, stressed that because of their justness and feasibility, proposals for national reunification advanced by our party and the government and the DPRK proposal for the North and South to cohost the Olympics now arouse active support and sympathy from among the people of socialist countries, including the Soviet Union, and the world's peace-loving people.

He then thanked the Soviet party, government, and people for having always extended firm solidarity with and positive support for our people's just struggle to achieve an independent and peaceful reunification of the country.

In conclusion, he said: It is a firm and invariable will of the WPK government and the people of Korea to consolidate and develop Korean-Soviet friendship from generation to generation. The Korean people will, as always, make every possible effort to further strengthen the fraternal friendship and militant relations of alliance with the fraternal Soviet people. [passage omitted]

KIM HWAN-LED DELEGATION RETURNS FROM USSR

SK080500 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0444 GMT 8 Jul 86

[Text] Pyongyang July 8 (KCNA) -- The party and government delegation of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea headed by Kim Hwan, member of the Political Bureau, and secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea, returned home Monday by air after attending the celebrations of the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation and Mutual Assistance in the Soviet Union.

It was met at the airport by So Yun-sok, member of the political bureau of the WPK Central Committee, chief secretary of the Pyongyang Municipal Party Committee and chairman of the Pyongyang Municipal People's Committee, Colonel General of the Korean People's Army Pak Chung-kuk, Kim Yong-sop, vice-minister of foreign affairs, other officials concerned and Boris Morozov, minister-councillor of the Soviet Embassy in Pyongyang.

The delegation left Moscow Sunday.

KPA AIR FORCE UNIT RETURNS FROM USSR VISIT

[Text] Pyongyang July 9 (KCNA) -- The air force flying corps of the Korean People's Army led by Air Major General Pak Hyong-uk, deputy commander of the KPA Air Force, flew back home today after paying an official goodwill visit to the Soviet Union on the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Korean-Soviet Treaty of Friendship, Cooperation and Mutual Assistance.

It was met at the airfield by Air Maj. General Pak Sung-chu and other generals and officers of the KPA and military attache Gennadiy Bulanov of the Soviet Embassy in Pyongyang.

RESUMPTION OF SUSPENDED NORTH-SOUTH TALKS VIEWED

SK120207 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 12 Jul 86 p 4

[Text] Seoul's repeated calls for the resumption of the suspended inter-Korea talks are seen as reflecting the government's consistent efforts toward peaceful unification of the peninsula through dialogue.

Yesterday's demand for the resumption, the third since Pongyang's unilateral suspension of the talks last January, is also viewed as Seoul's positive steps to ease tension and build mutual trust.

In fact, the government has held a firm conviction that a direct dialogue is the only and best way to relieve 10 million separated family members of their pain and achieve national reconciliation.

Keeping this in mind, chief delegates to the Red Cross, economic and parliamentary talks sent separate phone messages to their Pyongyang counterparts on Jan. 20 and March 26.

In addition to the repeated telephone message by chief delegates, President Chon Tu-hwan has also urged Pyongyang to "show sincerity" in pursuing the south-north dialogue.

Pyongyang, however, has never responded to Seoul's bona fide proposal for the resumption of the talks much less the Seoul-proposed meeting between the "highest authorities of south and north."

Instead, Pongyang has intensified its own propaganda ploy culminating in its offer on June 17 to establish a new channel of dialogue -- which is a military summit.

"Pyongyang's proposal for a military summit is part of its well-disguised peace offensive and is designed to pass the responsibility for the suspension to Seoul," an official says.

He notes that judgements on military affairs constitute highly sophisticated political activities which cannot be decided in a meeting between south-north defense ministers.

Some issues which Pyongyang offered to take up in the military summit can be properly dealt with in the existing Military Armistice Commission, he points out.

"The ultimate intention of Pyongyang behind the proposal lies in trying to seek direct contacts with the United States," he says.

The preposterousness of north Korea's bid is made apparent by the fact that the north has already finished a forward deployment of its attack forces and updated armaments

While not abandoning its basic stratey to communize the south by force, North Korea is resorting to every possible means to disrupt Seoul's hosting of Asian Games and Olympic Games.

Should North Korea really desire to see the easing of tension on the peninsula, it would be due process for the north to respond to the south's offer and then present new ones.

Despite Pyongyang's sure-fire scheme, however, Seoul has incessantly called for sincerity on the part of Pyongyang and sought to achieve a breakthrough in the deadlocked dialogue.

The reason for that is the government is keenly aware that direct talks involving both parties are considered the only and the best way to ease tension and build up national reconciliation.

The outcome of the three-way talks, as a matter of fact, was never to be underestimated, if not satisfactory, observers here agree.

In terms of the frequency of talks, they say that in last year alone there were three Red Cross talks, two preliminary contacts for the full-dress parliamentary talks and four economic talks.

Particularly noteworthy are the exchange visits by separated family members and performing art troupes of south and north for the first time in the 40-year history of national division, they observe.

They also said that in economic talks, both sides could have almost reached an agreement on the trade and economic cooperation if Pyongyang did not unilaterally break off the dialogue.

They also recalled that Seoul had repeatedly invited north Korean leaders to inspect the annual Team Spirit defense exercise, which Pyongyang used to cite as an excuse for cutting off the inter-Korea talks.

A government official says, "If they (north Korea) would refuse to accept the Seoul's continual offer, they would fail the long-cherished desire of the whole nation and could not escape criticism from the international community."

NORTH REMINDED OF "EXISTING CHANNELS" FOR TALKS

SK120210 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 12 Jul 86 p 4

[Editorial: "Calls for Inter-Korea Talks"]

[Text] Seoul has once again renewed its call for an early resumption of inter-Korea dialogue through the three existing channels for south-north contacts, including the humanitarian Red Cross talks between both parts of the divided country on family reunion.

To this effect, the Seoul side sent a series of telephone messages to Pyongyang yesterday morning, urging it to speedily reopen the stalled economic talks, Red Cross conference, and preliminary contacts to arrange a parliamentarian meeting.

In the messages, senior delegates from the south to the three inter-Korea talks proposed to the Pyongyang authorities that the long-stalemated south-north meetings be held within nextx month, though on different dates, calling upon their north Korean counterparts to respond to the calls positively.

Coincident with the proposals, it was disclosed that the Seoul side refused to receive a letter from the north Korean defense minister addressed to his south Korean counterpart. Pyongyang had recently notified the south that it would send such a letter through Panmunjom yesterday, according to Defense Ministry sources.

As the defense authorities pointed out upon the formal refusal of the letter, which possibly contained a renewed north Korean offer for defense talks, Pyongyang might be still bent on waging futile propaganda maneuverings so as to cover up the responsibility for the prolonged stalemate in the south-north talks involving the existing channels thus far.

In the middle part of last month, Pyongyang abruptly proposed holding top-level defense talks between south and north Korean defense ministers, with the participation of the commander-in-chief of the United Nations Command.

Seoul then dismissed the north Korean overture as nothing but a propaganda ploy designed to divert world attention from its sustained military buildup, while making it appear as if Pyongyang were interested in easing tensions on the Korean peninsula. Also apparent was north Korea's intent to seek direct negotiations with the United States, by way of the proposed three-way talks.

On this occasion, the north Koreans are reminded that existing channels of dialogue may well tackle substantive matters pending in south-north relations, thus leading to the reduction of tensions. What should also be noted is the fact that Seoul has made a standing offer for talks between the highest authorities of both south and north Korea for an overall political settlement.

ASSEMBLY SPEAKER MEETS WITH CHON ON CONSTITUTION

SK160418 Seoul YONHAP in English 0302 GMT 16 Jul 86

[Text] Seoul, July 16 (YONHAP) -- President Chon Tu-hwan reportedly expressed a strong hope Tuesday that rival political parties will produce a negotiated draft of constitutional revision by operating a special national assembly panel on the constitution at an early date.

National Assembly Speaker Yi Chae-hyong told reporters that he perceived the presidential aspiration in a meeting with the chief executive at the residential residence earlier Tuesday.

"Some say there would be no other way but to fall back on the existing constitution if the ruling and opposition parties fail to propose a negotiated draft of constitutional revision. Whatever may happen, the constitutional revision would be made, however, since the rival camps have already agreed on it," Yi said.

Yi's remarks apparently indicate that a draft acceptable to the people and covering much of the opposition's demands would eventually be worked out.

The speaker said prospects are brighter for a negotiated draft at this moment than at any other time, noting that there is room for compromise between the rival parties about the form of government to be stipulated under a new constititution.

The form of government is a crucial bone of contention with the ruling camp favoring the parliamentary cabinet system while the opposition side refusing to budge from the presidential government system.

As a ground for possible room for compromise, Yi recalled that in the past the opposition group had demanded the parliamentary cabinet system and the ruling camp, the presidential government system.

CHON RENEWS DETERMINATION TO STEP DOWN IN 1988

SK170311 Seoul YONHAP in English 0303 GMT 17 Jul 86

[Text] Seoul, July 17 (YONHAP) -- South Korean President Chon Tu-hwan Thursday renewed his determination to step down at the end of his tenure in 1988 to pave the way for the first peaceful change of government in the nation's four decades of constitutional history. "The most important historic responsibility imposed on me is to realize the genuine democracy in this country," he said.

Chon said he allowed the recent demands to revise the present constitution to be resolved through dialogue and consensus because he believes that the compromise between conflicting political assessments is the way to move democracy a step forward. "The future constitutional debate will be a turning point in the political history of our country," he said.

He made the remarks in his congratulatory message read by Prime Minister No Sin-yong at a ceremony marking the 38th anniversary of the proclamation of the nation's first constitution.

Chon called for mutual restraint and concession in the constitutional debate to reach a national consensus, saying that an institutional reform is not a cure-all and that no institutions can satisfy all the interests and demands at the same time. "Especially, we are required to have cool-headed wisdom to sort out the unreasonable assessments that would harm the nation's basic order and values and trigger conflicts of interests among the people by driving the people into the egoistic scheme of particular individuals or political parties," he said.

Chon expressed the hope that the recent national interest in, and debate on, the constitution would progress smoothly to set a landmark in the nation's constitutional history.

He continued to say that the present constitution that launched the Fifth Republic has high values and efficiency that led the nation to the growth and development of today. "However," he said, "the efforts to accommodate various demands and values stemming from the nation's structural change through industrialization will also be a thoughtful way leading to the stability and development of democratic constitutional system."

NDF REPRESENTATIVES VIEW PLAN FOR BCP ALLIANCE

[By Pratya Sawetwimon]

[Text] The National Democratic Front (NDF), an umbrella organization of nine ethnic groups of armed minority rebels in Burma, will not turn communist despite its plan to form a military alliance with the Burma Communist Party (BCP) insurgents, the NDF representatives said.

"We have to join hands with the BCP in the settling period of our struggle against our common enemy or to topple the central government," Aung Ten, a representative of the anti-Rangoon NDF, said in an interview in an area on the Thai-Burmese border.

He said the planned military alliance between the non-Communist NDF and the BCP will not entail any political conversion. "Our aim is to promote better understanding with the BCP and to join hands to destroy our common enemy," he said.

According to the NDF representatives, the majority of the NDF nine [as published] members of the Karen National Union (KNU), the Kachin Independence Army (KIA), the Mon National Liberation Army (MNLA), the Shan State Army (SSA) of the Shan State Progressive Party (SSPP), the Wa National Army (WNA), the Pa-O National Army (PNA), the Palaung State Liberation Army (PSLA), the Karenni Army and the Arakanese Army have agreed on the plan to form a military alliance with the communist insurgents.

"We are pure nationalist fighters. We do not stick to any ideology. However, the enemy of our enemy is our friend. It's not wise to make a lot of enemies," said a senior official of one of the ethnic seccesionist rebel movements which has been fighting the Burmese central government for independence for almost 40 years.

According to the NDF representatives, the final decision on whether the non-communist front will officially form the military alliance with the BCP will be made during the upcoming general meeting of the NDF congress which is expected to be held at the KNU headquarters of Manaplaw along the jungled Burmese-Thai frontier opposite the Thai northern province of Mae Hong Son next month.

The meeting will also elect the NDF new president to replace Gen Bo Mya, the KNU president, who will have served his four-year term as the front's leader later this year.

Besides the ideological problem which is the main obstacle to the forming of the alliance between the NDF and the BCP, a senior official of the MNLA, one of the NDF member groups, insisted that the alliance must be formed only after the BCP has agreed to the idea of the future Burmese Federal State based on the right of self-determination among the ethnic minority groups in Burma. The MNLA has about 3,000 Mon rebels operating against the Rangoon central government in southern Burma.

Since China halted her arms and moral support to the BCP about seven years ago, the Burmese communist movement, which has about 15,000-20,000 armed insurgents operating in western Burma and along the Sino-Burmese bordder, has lost much of its military strength, while Rangoon's intensified military pressure on several minority ethnic groups of the non-communist armed rebels, especially the KNU and the KIA, has forced the separatist insurgents to seek support from outside their united front or to form military alliance with the communist movement.

A group of the NDF representatives early this year attempted to cross the Sino-Burmese frontier for their journey to Kunming, the capital of Yunnan Province in southern China in order to seek moral support from China. However, their attempt was foiled by the Chinese Government which refused to allow them to cross the border.

According to Nai Nonla, president of the MNLA, the NDF trip was aimed at observing the Chinese stand towards the Burmese central government and the ethnic insurgency.

He said that from the Sino-Burmese border, the NDF representatives proceeded to the BCP headquarters at Pang Hsang and held a discussion with members of the BCP Central Committee, including Ba Thein Tin, the BCP chairman.

The NDF delegates and the BCP central committee members were expected to discuss the possibility of forming the military alliance to escalate their joint operations against Rangoon's troops, though it was earlier reported that the fear among the non-communist rebel movements that they might be dominated by the BCP would lead to an opposition to the plan.

The KNU and the KIA are believed to have the biggest number of troops among the non-communist groups. They are estimated to have about 7,000 fighters each.

Meanwhile, the NDF representatives claimed that the Burmese troops a few weeks ago burnt down about 200 houses in a village close to the KNU base of Asin along the Burmese-Thai border opposite Umphang District of Tak.

They also claimed that the Arakanelt rebels at the end of May released 63 prisoners from a jail and torched a Burmese military camp in Minbya township of southwestern Burma during an attack in which three to five Burmese soliders were killed or wounded.

REPORTAGE ON LE DUAN, CEREMONIES IN CAMBODIA

Heng Samrin Returns From Hanoi

[Text] As the Cambodian Party, government, front, and people as a whole were mourning the death of Comrade Le Duan, general secretary of the CPV Central Committee, the Defense Ministry also held a memorial service this evening for Comrade General Secretary Le Duan, a prominent friend of the Cambodian people. Present on this occasion were Comrade Bou Thang, member of the KPRP Central Committee Political Bureau, vice chairman of the Council of Ministers, and minister of national defense; Comrade Koy Buntha, member of the KPRP Central Committee, deputy minister of national defense; Comrade Hul Savoan, member of the KPRP Central Committee and commander of the 4th Military Region; Comrade Chay Sangyun, member of the KPRP Central Committee and commander of the 3d Military Region; and many central high-ranking cadres. Several leading cadres of the Vietnamese Volunteer Army accredited to Cambodia were also on hand.

On this occasion, after all participants had laid wreaths and leis and paid respects to the memoray of Comrade General Secretary Le Duan, Comrade Bou Thang gave an oration permeated with sadness and sorrow, stressing that the entire KPRAF would like to express deepest condolences, woes, and regrets at the great loss suffered by the fraternal Vietnamese party, people, people's army, and the bereaved family of Comrade Le Duan, a noble friend of the Cambodian people, an outstanding son of Vietnam, the first man to carry out the call of Comrade Nguyen Ai Quoc, follower of the revolutionary path of Marxism-Leninism, and courageous fighter who sacrificed all his life for the ideal of national liberation, national reunification, and the advance of Vietnam toward true socialism.

On the same occasion, after presenting the biography of Comrade General Secretary Le Duan, Bou Thang also stressed that his death is not only a great loss for the Vietnamese party, army, and people, but also a loss for the Cambodian party, armed forces, and people and all peace-loving people the world over.

The prestige and example of heroism and resolute sacrifice of Comrade Le Duan will be engraved forever in the hearts of all Cambodian communists and KPRAF. We are determined to turn this sadness into determination to further strengthen internal unity and solidarity with Vietnam, Laos, and the Soviet Union in the interests of the revolutionary movement and world peace. We pledge to struggle to fulfill all resolutions put forth by the 5th party congress; to heighten the militant solidarity ties among Cambodia, Vietnam, and Laos and with the Soviet Union and other fraternal socialist countries; to crush all aggressive maneuvers of the Chinese expansionists in collusion with U.S. imperialism and other reactionary forces; and to tirelessly fight for the sake of peace and stability in Indochina and Southeast Asia, thus contributing to the maintenance of world peace.

The ceremony ended after all participants paid final tribute to the memory of the deceased and saluted the Internationale with hearts full of sadness and grief.

[Message of condolences over Le Duan's death from KUFNCD National Council Chairman Chea Sim to VFF Central Committee Presidium Chairman Huynh Tan Phat -- date not given]

[Text] On behalf of the KUFNCD National Council and the Cambodian people throughout the country and in my own name, I would like to express deepest sorrow, sadness, and regret for Comrade Le Duan, general secretary of the CPV Central Committee, who passed away recently.

Comrade Le Duan, an outstanding leader and a valiant fighter of the CPV, sacrificed all his life for the preservation of the tradition of solidarity among Vietnam, Cambodia, and Laos in the interest of regional peace and of mankind. The loss of this statesman, famous leader, and brave Communist fighter is a most deplorable loss for the whole of mankind. Comrade Le Duan left all of us indeed, but his fame, example of heroism, and ideal for communism and world peace remain alive in the hearts of the Cambodian people, Cambodian communists, and peace-loving people in the world. We express deep condolences to the fraternal Vietnamese party, government, front, and people and the bereaved family with the greatest emotion and grief.

Hun Sen Condolences

[Text] Phnom Penh SPK July 14 -- More messages of condolences over the death of Le Duan, general secretary of the Communist Party of Vietnam Central Committee, have been sent to Vietnam.

In a message to his Vietnamese counterpart Van Tien Dung, Kampuchean Defence Minister Bou Thang praised Le Duan's devotion to the struggle against French colonialism, U.S. imperialism for Vietnam's national liberation, reunification, progress, and socialist construction. The message also spoke of his great contribution to the cause of liberating the Kampuchean people from the genocidal Pol Pot regime.

For his part, Mat Ly, president of the Kampuchea Federation of Trade Unions, said in his message to his Vietnamese counterpart, Pham The Duyet:

"For all his life, Comrade Le Duan is always loyal to Marxism-Leninism. He worked with all his heart and mind for the cause of Vietnam. We pledge to follow the bright examples of Comrade Le Duan, particularly his spirit of proletarian internationalism, and to further heighten and consolidate the ties of the special militant solidarity, friendship and cooperation between our two peoples, particularly between the working class of Vietnam and Kampuchea."

In a message to Nguyen Thi Dinh, president of the Vietnam Women's Union, Mean Sam-an, president of the Association of the Revolutionary Women of Kampuchea, says:

"We are particularly shocked at the news of General Secretary Le Duan's death. His demise is a great loss not only for the fraternal people of Vietnam, but also for the entire Kampuchean people and the international communist movement as well."

For his part, Sam Sundowun, acting secretary of the People's Revolutionary Youth Union of Kampuchea, has also sent a message to Vu Mao, first secretary of the Ho Chi Minh Communist Youth Union. The message reads:

"Comrade Le Duan was an eminent leader of the Communist Party and state of Vietnam, a staunch fighter of the international communist and workers movement, who sacrificed all his life to the construction of an independent, democratic and socialist Vietnam. He also actively contributed to the cause of the Kampuchean revolution.

DK'S SON SANN ON U.S., PRC AID, KHMER ROUGE

PM170957 Paris LE MATIN in French 10 Jun 86 p 13

[Sophie Jacquin report: "Son Sann's Tireless Struggle"]

[Text] Son Sann, prime minister of the CGDK and chairman of the KPNLF, has taken up his pilgrim's staff again.

While on a European tour he visited Paris recently to remind people of his people's struggle to win back Cambodia, which has been occupied for more than 6 years.

Chairman Son Sann advocates simultaneous action on three fronts to enable the Cambodians to return to Phnom Penh one day. Son Sann is well aware that in the field, with his 9,000 men waging a guerrilla war inside Cambodia, in addition to the 35,000 Khmer Rouge soldiers and Prince Sihanouk's 6,000 men, the Khmer resistance is no match for the 160,000 Vietnamese soldiers occupying his country. A reversal of the military situation cannot really be envisaged in the near future, and the main aim is to "make life increasingly difficult for the Vietnamese," Son Sann explained.

Son Sann's supporters, who have taken refuge on the Thai border, are totally dependent on Chinese aid. "We received $310,000 from Beijing in December 1985. We received arms, guns, munitions, and mortars. The prince's forces received the same," and the Khmer Rouge probably received much more -- but the prime minister was more vague on that. This Chinese aid makes it possible to maintain the troops, but it is far from adequate. The $3.5 million in U.S. aid promised for the past year is therefore impatiently awaited. According to Son Sann the money has arrived in Thailand but is frozen for the time being. "It is taking a long time." Son Sann remarked cryptically.

One of the chinks in Vietnam's armor is its disastrous internal economic situation. This is why Son Sann is demanding the use of economic pressure. In Strasbourg he intends to ask the European parliament not to grant the economic aid requested by Vietnam until it withdraws its troops from Cambodia. And to make Hanoi pay even more dearly for its occupation, Son Sann wants to add diplomatic isolation to the economic stranglehold on Vietnam. Each year since 1979 the number of UN countries in favor of the withdrawal of Vietnamese troops has increased: 110 in 1984, 114 in 1985. On the basis of this support, the CGDK has drawn up an eight-point peace proposal which was published in Beijing on 17 March 1986.

More than 40 countries already support this plan, which makes provision for a UN-monitored cease-fire, a two-stage withdrawal of Vietnamese forces, and the formation of a coalition government grouping together the three factions of the Cambodian resistance (KPNLF, Khmer Rouge, and Prince Sihanouk's supporters) and the existing Phnom Penh government supported by Hanoi. Vietnam, which believes that this Beijing-inspired plan merely aims to restore the Khmer Rouge to power, immediately rejected it. Son Sann protests against this accusation, stating that China only knew of these proposals after they were adopted.

The coalition government, that unlikely combination -- when he is in Thailand Son Sann is very critical of his Khmer Rouge "allies," who "wear angelic masks" but, in his view, have not abandoned their terrifying ideology -- is certainly not noted for its homogeneity. In Paris Son San spoke cautiously of these "disagreements" talking about coordination, if not solidarity." The Khmer resistance's weakness lies precisely in the ambiguity of this coalition. Aside from China, other countries -- even those most hostile to the Vietnamese occupation -- are reluctant to support a resistance in which the Khmer Rouge, with their terrible past, form the bulk of the troops, but these countries' reservations strengthen the Khmer Rouge themselves, who receive more support from China than their noncommunist allies.

Despite the slow rate at which this conflict is developing and the apocalyptic picture painted by Son Sann of Cambodia's Vietnamization -- "a way of exterminating the Cambodian people" -- the KPNLF leader tries to remain optimistic. "It took Vietnam 100 years to Vietnamize Cochin China. They are trying to Vietnamize Cambodia in 10 years." (Hanoi thinks that by 1990 the government they have established in Phnom Penh will be consolidated and they will then be able to withdraw their troops.) "I do not think they will succeed."

SOUPHANOUVONG SPEAKS AT LE DUAN MEMORIAL SERVICE

[Eulogy read by Souphanouvong, member of the LPRP Central Committee Political Bureau, president of the LPDR, and chairman of the SPC and Lao Front for National Construction's Central Committee, at a Memorial Service held in Vientiane on 15 July for Le Duan, general secretary of CPV Central Committee -- recorded]

[Text] Comrades and friends, with profound grief and deep regret, we are here today to pay homage to Comrade Le Duan, general secretary of the CPV Central Committee, who has left us forever.

Comrade Le Duan was an eminent leader of the CPV and Vietnamese people, a loyal successor of President Ho Chi Minh's great cause, a staunch fighter of the international communist movement, the workers movement, and the national independence movement. He was a resolute activist for peace and friendship among nations.

Comrade Le Duan was a great, intimate, and faithful friend of our Lao People. His passing is a great loss to the party and all people of Vietnam, to the Lao communists and people of all ethnic minorities, to the people of various fraternal socialist countries, and to the various revolutionary and progressive forces in the world.

Comrades and friends, Comrade Le Duan was one of the first group of Vietnamese to follow the revolutionary path set by President Ho Chi Minh. Being a youth with revolutionary awakening at an early age, he became one of the first group of members of the Indochinese Communist Party. He dedicated his whole life to the national liberation cause, to unifying the fatherland, and to leading the whole country to advance toward socialism. Comrade Le Duan's revolutionary activities throughout the period of nearly 60 years were full of difficulties and honorable and glorious trials. He was twice arrested and imprisoned by the French colonialists. Despite being brutally tortured, he upheld his staunch perseverance in the unyielding struggle. He turned the enemy's prison camp into a school for political training and raised his prisonmates' level of awareness.

In his revolutionary activities, regardless of the tasks he was assigned, Comrade Le Duan clearly demonstrated his absolute loyalty to the party and the interests of the country and people. He always closely associated himself with the people and had firm confidence in them. Even in the very difficult situation caused by the enemy's suppressive acts, he spared no effort in protecting the people and successfully maintained and developed the revolutionary movement. This achievement was an important contribution to the victory of the August 1945 revolution, which led to establishment of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam -- the first worker-peasant state in Southeast Asia.

From 1946 to 1954, in his capacity as secretary of the party committee of Nam Bo and as secretary of the party Central Committee's leadership segment for southern Vietnam, he led the southern party organization to organize resistance against the French colonialists who had returned to invade Vietnam a second time.

Following the signing of the 1954 Geneva Accords on Indochina Comrade Le Duan continued to operate in southern Vietnam where he positively consolidated revolutionary bases in preparation for the struggle against the U.S. imperialist aggressors and their henchmen.

Throughout the period of his appointment to lead the party's overall task side-by-side with President Ho Chi Minh in 1957 to the period of his election as first secretary and general secretary of the CPV Central Committee by the Third, Fourth, and Fifth Party Congresses, and to the day he passed away, Comrade Le Duan made great contributions to the adoption and firm adherence to the line of independence and self-determination, to the correct adoption of domestic and foreign strategy and tactics for each period of the revolutionary revolution, and to winning broad international assistance and solidarity. Together with the Political Bureau and the party Central Committee, he led the entire Army and people of Vietnam to defeat the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys, defend and build the north, liberate the south, unify the country, and lead the whole country to embark on socialism, thus fulfilling President Ho Chi Minh's sacred will.
